Correct, Madam!

By E. C. RAGGIO, Investigation Clerk

A LADY was waiting in my office while I went to look up a certain point on the consumers' ledger. In my absence she had been reading one of our Better Service Orders and observed on it the printed expressions "Test Meter K. O. B." and "Re-read Meter K. O. B." Upon my return she remarked, "It would be no wonder if you made mistakes if you read your meters by radio." "K. O. B." does look like the call letters of a radio broadcasting station, no doubt; but it isn't. It is simply the office "shorthand" for "kick on bills", which in turn means a consumer's request for the investigation of a gas or electric bill.

Our Better Service Order was devised especially to facilitate the investigation of the service being rendered to consumers, and our relations with consumers. A Better Service Order is always in readiness to be used in your behalf if there is any point in connection with your service or treatment which to you is not satisfactory.

We want to give you perfect service and treatment. If we ever fail in so doing, please tell us about it.

THE TRAGEDY OF MASSACHUSETTS HILL

Thom[illegible] R. Jones

The accompanying story, prepared for The Grizzly Bear by Thomas R. Jones, compiler of the "California Fifty Years Ago" material that has been appearing in the magazine for several years, deals with facts associated with California's early history. It is not fiction, being woven about characters and incidents of the days of old. The tragedy's aftermath, also dealing with facts, has a romantic Christmas color; it will appear in The Grizzly Bear for December.—Editor.

AMONG THE THOUSANDS OF ARGO-nauts who came to California to seek for gold in the rush of 1849 and the '50s were very few who had any idea of how and whence the gold found in the placers came. Few cared, so long as they could find it by digging and washing the earth and gravel and separating the gold from them. This caused the axiom, "Gold is found where you find it," to come into use.

But, there were some of the intrepid prospectors who were of an investigating mind. One of these was Major Downie. He soon observed that the smooth flakes of gold found in the lower bars of the Yuba, made smooth by attrition, became coarser as he prospected up the stream. This fact caused him to become obsessed with the belief that up the river was a place where the gold grew.

Organizing a band of indefatigable prospectors, like himself, he started in search of it. In the party was "Kanaka Jim," who subsequently gave a name to Kanaka Flat, a place so rich in nuggets, chispas and gold-dust that hundreds of miners, lucky enough to locate there, were enriched. They prospected the bars at the mouths of the creeks and gulches flowing into the Yuba until they came to the confluence of two forks of the North Fork of the Yuba, and there the major thought he had found the place he sought. The gold found was coarse and plentiful.

The town of Downieville, Sierra County, named for Major Downie, came into existence there. Thousands of miners dug themselves rich. The placers yielded almost unbelievable wealth. Little did the major think then, nor did his followers know, that quartz was the matrix of gold. Slowly did the truth dawn upon the goldseekers. That the gold in the placers came from the quartz veins beribboning the slopes of the Sierra Nevadas through ages of decomposing and erosion, gradually became a known fact.

It was in 1850 that a miner named Knight opened the first quartz vein at Gold Hill, near Grass Valley, Nevada County. He did it with pick and shovel, digging the ore from a vein and then, with a hand mortar and pestle, separating the gold from the rock. With the inventive genius of the Yankee, came the first quartz mill. It was worked with horsepower. Its stamps were made from tree stumps shod with iron plates. From this immature beginning, has grown the great quartz gold mining industry of the state.

It now follows the auriferous vein down into the bowels of the earth a mile, and will go more. It builds powerful hoisting works and ponderous mills that drop stamps of iron half a ton in weight; that rise and fall ninety times a minute and crush, per stamp, two tons of quartz a day. This industry has developed an intricate amalgamating and sulphurets saving and roasting system that saves the particles of gold too fine for the unaided eye to see. Where its rumble is heard, the hum of industries prospering through supplying its needs is in the air, and thriving towns exist. Millions of capital are invested, thousands of men are employed, and it drops its gold into the lap of the world, year after year, with unfailing regularity.

Posterity owes a great debt of gratitude to those Pioneers who developed this great industry. Some of them prospered and became rich and great, but, alas! others failed and fell by the wayside.

It is estimated that the Grass Valley, Nevada County, district has produced, since the inception of quartz mining there, over $200,000,000 in gold. It is known by its $20-pieces throughout the world. In 1855 there were but three quartz veins being developed in the district. Then came, from New York City, Michael Brennan.

He was a man endowed with physical and mental qualities that made him a leader of men and a master of big enterprises. He was a native of Sligo, Ireland. He had graduated, while still in his teens, from Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland. He came to New York in the early '40s, a well-educated young man and one of the best of the few stenographers of that day. There, by his assiduous attention to business, combined with a "go-get-it" nature, he had, within a decade of endeavor, accumulated a modest fortune of $60,000. He would have undoubtedly continued to prosper in the New York environment had he remained there and continued as he had begun, but through his study of mineralogy he became imbued with the idea that a quick road to a big fortune lay through the gold mining industry of California.

With this thought uppermost, he migrated to this state. That he had faith in his plans, is evident from the fact that he brought his family with him. He had married a few years before a Miss Lindsay of the county of Mayo, Ireland. She was a well-educated young woman, an accomplished musician, could converse fluently in six different languages, besides having other attractive mental attributes. She made of the Brennan home in Grass Valley a center of attraction for the cultured and socially prominent residents of the new mining town. In time, three children had come to bless their home. With a nurse girl and a servant girl, with all the conveniences a mining town then afforded, the Brennan home, in a commodious house, was deemed a congenial and a happy one.

While Brennan had no mining experience, he was well read in mineralogy, and quickly became interested in the Rocky Bar Mining Company, taking an active part in the development of that property. Quartz mining seemed to appeal to him, and while occupied with the interests of the company he became associated with, he became possessed with the belief that beneath Massachusetts Hill was a rich quartz vein.

Massachusetts Hill is one of the many foothill elevations along the western slope of the Sierra Nevadas. It is about a mile west of Grass Valley. It has no conspicuous mark in either height of contour to make it different in appearance from many similar hills around it. It received its distinguishing name in the days of '49 in a manner similar to the naming of Iowa Hill, Michigan Bluff, Dutch Flat and other localities where newcomers from the same state or country located in such numbers as to give a habitation characteristics. A mining company of Bay State boys worked a placer at the mouth of a gulch that poured its waters into Wolf Creek, which meandered along the hill's base, and this gave it a name that has remained.

Brennan organized the Mount Hope Mining Company. He was made its president and superintendent. He induced Delano, Chauvenet and a number of other successful mining men of the district to invest in the company with him. He began sinking a shaft in search of the vein in the fall of 1855. Slowly, foot by foot, the shaft went down. Drifts and crosscuts were run, but no vein of auriferous quartz was found.

The high cost of labor, all of an inexperienced kind; no machinery available; only hand tools obtainable; black powder inefficient in execution; the frequent suspension, temporarily, of work from one unexpected cause or another, were difficulties that caused delays and expenses that were unanticipated. These complications caused a loss of time and an expense far beyond the estimates made, so that the available funds of the company became exhausted. With Brennan's $60,000 went the other thousands of dollars put in by his associates. The company began to go in debt, and in December 1857 it was $100,000 "in the hole." Then, insistent creditors had to be satisfied, dissatisfied investors to be pacified and, in the parlance of the time, "a stiff upper lip" maintained. This unexpected condition of affairs would probably have been tided over had not an irascible creditor commenced suit and had a writ of attachment issued. The sheriff took possession of the property and all work ceased on the 10th of December. Other creditors followed with more "plasters" on the property, and the investors looked to Brennan to straighten out the mess.

While Brennan seemed to be a man physically and mentally able to handle any emergency that could arise—with shoulders broad enough to bear any burden—yet, he appeared to weaken under this strain. He seemed to lack the aggressive ability to cope with an insolvency crisis. He became diffident, sullen and noncommunicative. He appears not to have informed his wife of his financial trouble, for she continued to entertain her friends and made no change in her domestic arrangements. There were sinister thoughts, though, developing in his brain. When these took a permanent hold and absolute despair drove away the feeling of buoyant hope he once had, his plan was formulated.

Early in January he went to the office of his attorney and made a will, making his mother and sister, living in London, the beneficiaries of £1,000 he expected to be paid by an English company in case of his death. No mention was made in the will of his immediate family, and this was apparently explained by his stating that his mother and sister, being his only relatives then alive in the old country, he wished to provide for them in case of his death. He became more diffident and appeared to his associates to become more despondent, but not to such an extent as to alarm them.

Sunday morning, February 21, 1858, Mrs. Brennan gave the nurse girl permission to absent herself for the day. The servant girl, when through with her morning work, took the three little children, aged 4½, 3 and 2 years, for a walk along the hillside trail. Shortly after starting she sent the eldest child, a little girl, back to the house for a hat. The little girl did not return. The servant girl went back with the other two children to the house to ascertain the cause. She was met at the door by Brennan who, admitting the two children into the house, told the girl she could go to town for the day as Mrs. Brennan was quite ill and there would be only a cold supper to prepare. The servant girl departed on her way to town, but was astonished, after going a short way, to hear the little boy, 3 years old, rush out of the house crying loudly, with the father in pursuit. She saw Brennan catch the little fellow and a moment later carry him, struggling in his arms, into the house.

About 6 o'clock she returned, but found the doors of the house locked and the windows fastened down. Quite undecided what to do and realizing that something out of the ordinary had happened, she was on the point of going for help when John Boyd, a friend and mining associate of Brennan's, came to have a talk with him. On learning from the girl the doings of the day, he surmised that something was wrong inside the house. Bursting open a door, he entered. On a sofa in the front room he found Mrs. Brennan lying dead with a pillow covering her face. At sight of this the servant girl fainted away. Leaving her to revive as she may, he proceeded into the children's bedroom. There, laid out side by side, were the three little ones with a pillow covering each face, cold in death. In Brennan's room Boyd found him a suicide, lying on the bed, dead, with a partly emptied phial in his hand. Whether Mrs. Brennan knew of her husband's intention was a doubted point, but, how he accomplished his object in making her take the poison was a mystery, as there were no signs of a struggle. Under the circumstances brought to light, it was believed that Mrs. Brennan was overcome first and had been killed when the servant girl returned with the children in the morning.

That Brennan's deed had been formulated and prepared for at least a month before its consummation, was definitely determined when it was found he had ordered and received by express in January, from a druggist in San Francisco, seven phials of prussic acid, one of the deadliest and quickest acting poisons known. He obtained the poison without any difficulty, by claiming he desired the hydrocyanic acid for gold extracting experiments. The contents of these phials were used by him to kill his family and himself. Michael Brennan was 38 years and his wife 30 when they passed away. No event that had yet happened in California caused a greater feeling of horror, more sympathy for the victims, and a deeper manifestation of grief in a community,—and, it may be said, over the entire state,—than did this. Hundreds vowed that had Brennan made known his trouble, appealed to his creditors and taken into his confidence men who thought they were his friends, they would have aided him to tide over his financial embarrassment.

Brennan left a number of lengthy letters, undated, and probably written weeks before he consummated his distressing finale. From one of these an extract shows his state of feeling and his lack of confidence in himself: "Massachusetts Hill has finally beaten me and I am tired out. I am doubtful of the future. I don't see anything worth struggling for. There is close to $100,000 due and I never would feel easy till it was all paid. No man knows what I have suffered in the last few weeks meeting so many I owed and am unable to pay. I did not do what Mr. Sylvester termed 'take care of myself'. In this our exculpation may be found. It almost makes me smile now that phrase of his. What a difference there is in human minds!

CHEROKEE DIAMOND FIELDS OF THE ONCE FAMOUS GOLD MINE OF CHEROKEE

Miss Wanda Wilson

The accompanying interesting article, dealing with one of the noted early-day California gold mines, is by Miss Wanda Wilson of Oroville, Butte County. It came to The Grizzly Bear from W. H. Hibbard, a member of Argonaut Parlor No. 8 N.S.G.W. of that city. The author, and not the magazine, vouches for the accuracy of the statements therein contained, and is solely responsible for the opinions expressed as to the "secession" movement in California.—Editor.

WHEN CALIFORNIA'S NATIVE SONS and Native Daughters of Argonaut Parlor No. 8 N.S.G.W. and Gold of Ophir Parlor No. 190 N.D.G.W. of Oroville, Butte County, journeyed to San Francisco to pay homage to their state at the diamond jubilee celebration, they had the distinction of exhibiting California diamonds. To many, this small incident may be only another role enacted in California history, but to others it may have a deeper significance. California is rich in natural resources!

As in the days of 1861, when the Cherokee mine, situated at Cherokee, Butte County, twelve miles north of Oroville, the county-seat of Butte County, played an important part in a drama in connection with the war then being fought, it now steps loyally forward with a rich exhibit from the same rich gold mine which then helped to save the Union from disruption and to secure the freedom of slaves. Half a million dollars' worth of gold, coined and stored in the United States mint at San Francisco, shortened the Civil War and proved that this nation would survive among the nations of the world. This wealth was taken from California mines in the short period between 1859 and 1861, that being the greatest gold producing period in the history of the state.

The United States Mint was established in San Francisco in 1854. Between that year and 1861 miners of California poured into the mint, more than $700,000,000 in gold. When the war was declared, April 24, 1861, there lay in the mint, of which the sub-treasury was then a part, approximately half a billion dollars in gold. If the seceding states could draw California into their Confederacy they believed their cause was won, owing to the fact that California controlled the gold supply of the world. If the Federal Government could use this wealth, food, clothing, arms and ammunition could be sent to the armies moving southward.

By 1862 a considerable movement had arisen for the secession of California from the Union. Los Angeles was then a village of 5,000 population. Sacramento was probably twice that size, and San Francisco led this twelve-year-old state with a population of approximately 57,000. General Albert Sydney Johnston was then in command of the Presidio.

California controlled the gold supply of the world! It was in the mint at San Francisco. Men of this state, in favor of the Confederacy, organized to seize this gold supply. The plan was to first seize the military force at the Presidio, then the mint and sub-treasury, and then the harbor back of the Golden Gate in order that it may be opened to Confederate privateers and that through it might pass the wealth of California mines to the armies of the South.

These men formed themselves into "The Knights of the Golden Circle," a secret organization whose numbers varied from the 1,600 claimed by Ashbury Harpending of Oakland to the 30,000 alleged by Assemblyman Crittenden of El Dorado County. The truth is, that there were 7,000 men armed with knives, machetes and revolvers, and another 7,000 who possessed no arms but for whom arms were to be provided when the forces that were armed seized the arms at the Presidio. Secretary of War Floyd, who sympathized with the states that were seceding, had sent to California 30,000 rifles and revolvers, with an abundance of ammunition.

This plot was a conspiracy to seize California for the Confederacy, but the truth is, that the plot of the Confederates failed owing to the fact that their plans moved too slowly. Agents of the Confederacy from New Orleans, Richmond and Atlanta flocked to Southern California and, reinforced by secessionists from the southern part of the state, moved on over the Tehachapi Mountains into San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, Vallejo and other centers of population. Six of the southern counties of California voted to secede from the Union and to set up a state of their own and to ask for admittance into the Confederacy. With the battle of Fort Sumpter, the plans of the rebels failed, and they decided that, with this victory, it was certain they must carry the whole state or nothing into Confederate ranks. Realizing this, they pressed to completion "The Knights of the Golden Circle."

In 1861 Senator Crittenden made the statement that there were 30,000 men in California ready to bear arms for the Confederacy. With this force, plans of the movement designed by the Confederates seemed almost certain to win. Their designs again received a blow, however, when they called upon Albert Sydney Johnston, then in command of the Presidio. "Gentlemen," this young officer said, "I believe in the right of every state to follow its own inclinations. I believe in the right of each of you to his own opinion and to his actions in support of that opinion. But, gentlemen, I am in command of the forces of the United States of this department. So long as one man is able to bear arms at my orders, just that long this department will remain in the Union. Get out!"

General Johnston later joined the ranks of the seceding states, but not until he had shown his ability as an officer and his character as a man. He was succeeded by General E. B. Sumner, but by that time the actual danger to the Union had passed. With General Johnston, 150 of the best men in the secession movement in Southern California went too. The remainder decided to wait until the forces of the Confederacy had won a stirring victory. But the moment of possible victory had passed. After the fall of Fort Sumpter, strong Union supporters became active throughout the state and Union clubs were formed. Trusted troops were sent to Los Angeles, artillery companies had been called to San Francisco and Vallejo from Vancouver Barracks and from Oregon, and the sixth infantry was stationed at Benicia.

San Francisco's golden harbor opened up its Golden Gate and the gold of this great nation poured into the treasury at Washington, and President Abraham Lincoln was enabled, through the wealth of California, to carry forward the cause of slavery. It was the mines of California that saved the Union and preserved this nation. Cherokee mine, which was one of the largest hydraulic mines in the world at that date, sent millions of dollars' worth of bullion to the mint at San Francisco.

From this mine hundreds of precious gems of exceptionally fine quality have been recovered by chance from the wash of the great deposit, proving that this territory is the center of a great diamond field within a circle embracing what is known as Sugar Loaf, a prominent lava-capped bedrock point which holds the reposing position in the center of Cherokee. This same Sugar Loaf, or extending bedrock point, is presumed to be the source of the diamond pipe from which these gems were distributed. The blue formation intersecting the center of Sugar Loaf bears evidence that this theory is correct. At the time of the operation of this gold mine the possibility of this blue formation being the diamond pipe was not thought of or considered by those operating, and undoubtedly many fine diamonds were lost.

Recent investigations have led to the belief that if Sugar Loaf Mountain could be properly prospected, by the construction of a tunnel 1,000 feet in length from the center of the mountain, it would be possible to locate, if existing, the presumed source of the diamonds. Argonaut Parlor of Native Sons placed on display at San Francisco, during the diamond jubilee, cut and uncut gems of exceptionally fine quality, recovered from this once fabulously rich gold mine.

The Native Sons and Daughters Parlors gladly joined San Francisco in helping to celebrate California's seventy-fifth anniversary. If the diamond jubilee did nothing else than awaken California's native sons and native daughters to the fact that their state is rich in natural resources and that it stands a power among the states, therefore a power among the nations, it will not have been in vain.

CALIFORNIA

(FLORENCE BYRNE-CARTWRIGHT.)

My sun-kissed mother of the West—
My goddess of the sapphire seas—
There is no other land so blest,
Dear Garden of Hesperides.

God speaks from Shasta's mighty crest,
Eternal warder of the snows,
The singing rivers find a rest
Where blooms the orange and the rose.

The sunshine on a thousand hills,
The light upon the placid sea,
The pulse that leaps, the joy that thrills,
Are, California, all of thee!

Here came the Argonauts of old,
The storied men of ancient time,
To seek the Jason fleet of gold
In this remote and unknown clime.

And here the Spanish padres stood,
The gentlest foe man ever knew,
To win through mystic brotherhood
This land of Red and White and Blue.

The mission bells rang to the breeze,
The flocks grazed on the fragrant lea,
But, California, not for these
We sing a diamond jubilee.

But for the sturdy Pioneers,
Who tread the lonely desert trail,
Who gave their lives, their splendid years,
In searching for this Holy Grail.

To them we lift our hymn of praise,
The founders of our noble state,
The men of vision and of ways,
Who opened wide the Golden Gate.

As comes the homing bird, we come,
To find the old familiar nest,
The sacred place that we call home,
The last, the dearest and the best.

And so upon thy tender breast,
Thy loving child I lie at ease—
My sun-kissed mother of the West—
My goddess of the sapphire seas!

THE NAMING OF ANGELS CAMP, CALAVERAS COUNTY.

Every once in a while there appears a new story of the naming of Angels Camp, and while there are a number of versions, the following, furnished by F. B. Marshall, now of Standard, Tuolumne County, a native of Murphys, Calaveras County, is worthy of attention:

In the fall of 1849 a party of five men, Francisco Cota, Andreas Machado, Francisco Machado, Juan Toro and Melitón Aloeso, arrived in this vicinity and camped on what is now the Deveggio place. They began prospecting, discovered gold and named the place Angels Camp, or it would have been in Spanish, Campo Angeles.

The generally accepted version is that a George Angel came here and discovered gold in the creek at what would be the junction of Main street and Hardscrabble avenue, and that the place was called Angel's Camp after him. Have it your own way. Either one is good. So is the camp.—Calaveras (San Andreas) Prospect.

MEMORIAL FOR PIONEERS.

Chico (Butte County)—With appropriate ceremonies, a memorial to General John Bidwell and his wife, Butte County Pioneers and founders of Chico, was unveiled October 16. The memorial, a shaft of California granite, bears a bronze plaque with this inscription:

"Rancho Del Arroyo, Chico. This marks the Oregon Trail and the site of the old Adobe, built for General Bidwell by the Machoopda Indians in 1852. In Honor of General John Bidwell, California Pioneer of 1841, Father of Chico. Annie E. K. Bidwell, his wife, and the Pioneers of California. Erected by the Pioneer Historic Association of California and the People of the State. 1925."

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

ONE OF THE "BIG" REASONS always advanced, both in Japan and the United States, why there should be no interference with the Japs' plan to colonize on the Pacific Coast, and particularly in California, is that there are no idle acres in Japan. That contention has frequently been met with citation of the fact that there is plenty of idle land in the Japanese empire, held, however, by the ruler of that country. He has not seen fit to relieve the "overcrowded" condition there by opening the "crown lands" to his subjects, preferring to unload them on some other country. Of course, the Japs, worshiping their ruler as a god, take pleasure in doing as they are bid, and go elsewhere.

In the following information, emanating from the University of California news bureau, is further evidence that the no-land-in-Japan "reason" is but a smoke-screen to conceal the Japs' "peaceful invasion" of California—for the purpose of colonizing in localities where they can best serve their master-god when the opportune time arrives to make the Pacific Coast a part of the empire of Japan:

"Seeking the solution of its greatest diplomatic difficulty, that of restrictive immigration, the Japanese government is planning to spend $750,000,000 in the next ten years in the development of land within the Empire, according to Yoshi S. Kuno, assistant professor of Japanese in the University of California.

"The Japanese government plans to develop the island of Yezo, of Hokkaido, the second largest island in the Japanese archipelago, which now has a population of but 62 to the square mile, as compared to the average of 380 in the other islands. Yezo, according to Professor Kuno, can support comfortably a population of between five and six million people. The climate in Yezo is rather cold, and for that reason its settlement has been slow. With the development of projects planned, however, the imperial government hopes to make it attractive agriculturally and as a place in which to live."

Considerable publicity has been given in the daily press the past month to the State Board of Prison Directors. That there is much just cause for complaint is evident, but the trouble is not so much with those who, under the present law, are delegated the right to fix the terms of prisoners, as with the law which concedes that right.

The indeterminate-sentence law is wrong, and should be abolished. Where is the sense in spending millions of The People's money yearly for juries and judges to try and sentence accused criminals, and then permitting a few men, responsible to no one for their actions, to determine how long the convicted party shall be incarcerated?

If the masses desire the continuation of the system now in vogue, then, in justice to the taxpayers, the rounding up, trying and sentencing of suspected criminals should be delegated solely to the prison board, and the hordes now engaged in that service eliminated from the public payroll. The prison board, under the present law, has decidedly too much power. Its energies should be confined exclusively to regulating the prisons, and it should have no say in determining the length of a convicted person's sentence. Those best qualified to pass sentence are the judges who hear the evidence, and they are responsible to The People.

The taxpayers should give this question earnest consideration, for they are the ones most vitally affected. If they act intelligently and for the best interests of the state, they will see to it that the power to fix the terms of and grant paroles to convicted persons sent to the state penal institutions is taken away from the State Prison Board and returned where it belongs—to the trial judges. Then, justice will be done all concerned, crime will be materially lessened, and millions of dollars will be saved to the taxpayers.

This month, November, the American people will, as usual, observe Thanksgiving Day. They have a great deal to be thankful for, especially those who dwell in California, the land of sunshine, fruits and flowers by the sunset sea, where opportunities are abundant and life is worth the living.

The copyrighted "Brett Page" in the San Francisco "Call," referring to the State (Bear) Flag in the Admission Day parade during the diamond jubilee, had this:

"I hope this will be the last celebration in which the Bear Flag will be used! It reminds every thinking American too bitterly of our few disgraceful, silly acts in those far days."

The author of that statement is not among the "thinking Americans," nor is he familiar with the Bear Flag history, otherwise no such hope would have been expressed.

Some people believe the revolution that resulted in the United States' independence a disgraceful, silly act, and so, employing the "Brett Page" editor's line of thought, the American Flag should be banished. Why the "Call," or any other paper, will spend its money for and devote its space to such publicity material is a question beyond solution.

Dr. Milton S. Vail, president of the Methodist-Episcopal Anglo-Japanese school of San Francisco, is authority for the statement that, because of the passage of the federal law excluding aliens ineligible to citizenship, which includes Japs, the Pacific Coast Japs have lost interest in the English schools and will establish more of their Jap-language schools. He says the Jap children are deserting the public-schools for the private Jap schools.

What better evidence of the impossibility of Americanizing the Jap! The alien Japs have thoroughly demonstrated that they have little use for the institutions and laws of this country, and they propose that their American-born children, who are citizens under our law, shall have just as little. Eventually, this country will pay the full price of its folly in permitting Japs to colonize here and breed citizens who are solely concerned with the welfare of Japan.

Federal Judge William B. Sheppard of Los Angeles has been quoted as stating from the bench, anent the Volstead Act: "Speaking from experience, I doubt that strict enforcement is possible." Indeed, a remarkable statement for a federal judge, at least, to make!

Strict enforcement of the law IS possible, but the authorities lack the "guts" to enforce it. Among the most consistent violators of the law, are many of those charged with the law's enforcement. "Cut out" politics and apply the law to the law-enforcers, the "smart set" and others who, under present conditions, appear to be exempt, and enforcement will be possible.

Speaking before the recent California Peace Officers' Association at Stockton, Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, took a shot at those "weak-kneed and without-backbone judges" who fail to exact the extreme penalty for reckless and speedy auto driving. He said:

"A little less playing for votes and a few more good stiff jail sentences would do more than anything else to solve the traffic problem." Some solution is certainly needed, that the number of fatalities may be considerably lessened.

"Svijet" of New York, the only daily in America printed in the Croatian language, in its issue of September 22 had a lengthy editorial on California and the diamond jubilee celebration in San Francisco.

John M. Pusich of Los Angeles, a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., says the write-up was a great "boost" for the state. He also expresses the opinion that, if all the foreign-language papers would speak for the welfare of California as "Svijet" has, there would not be a native Californian of Croatian or other descent who would not become a member of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

A congressman proposes a federal law providing for the deportation of alien-violators of the prohibition law. Why single out the aliens who, generally speaking, follow the example of the citizens? If every citizen-violator of the prohibition law were deported, this country would soon be near-depopulated.

President Calvin Coolidge has declared, according to press dispatches, that this country will not become a party to another disarmament conference without sanction of the Congress.

It is to be hoped that sanction will not be forthcoming, for, as a result of the recent conference, this country is at the mercy of Japan and all other first-class powers. More disarmament on the part of the United States would be traitorous.

The San Joaquin County grand jury has been investigating infractions of the Alien Land Law in the delta district near Stockton. It is common knowledge that the law is being evaded by the Japs, aided and abetted by White landowners. The district attorney some time ago warned the violators of the law that prosecution would result if the evading practices did not cease, but it failed to have the desired effect.

White-Japs and yellow-Japs are not worrying about the law; what they want is the money and the land. The San Joaquin district attorney, as well as all other district attorneys, should cease warning these traitors and have the lands involved escheated to California, as the Alien Land Law provides. That course, and no other, will bring about respect for and obeyance of the law.

UNSPOKEN WORDS

"Unspoken words, like treasures in a mine,
Are valueless until we give them birth;
Like unfound gold their hidden beauties shine,
Which God has made to bless and gild the earth.
How sad 'twould be to see the Master's hand
Strike glorious notes upon the voiceless lute!
But oh, what pain when, at God's own command,
A heart string thrills with kindness, but is mute!

"Then hide it not, the music of thy soul.
Dear sympathy expressed with kindly voice,
But let it like a shining river roll
To deserts dry—to hearts that would rejoice.
Oh, let the symphony of kindly words
Sound for the poor, the friendless, and the weak,
And He will bless you! He who struck the chords
Will strike another when in turn you seek."

BUSY BUSINESS WHIRL PREDICTED

FREQUENTLY, HERE AND OTHERwheres, in answer to the question, "How's business?", one receives the prompt response, "Rotten!" The reply, as a rule, is based on the experiences of the individual, for, were he familiar with business conditions in general, he would know and respond otherwise. Especially is this true of Los Angeles, where conditions which should satisfy the most pessimistic prevail. An analysis of conditions for the three-quarters of 1925 that have gone into history, compared with the same period of 1924, bears out this contention.

To October 1, bank clearings for 1925 in Los Angeles totaled $5,824,397,000. For the same nine months of 1924 they totaled $5,373,636,000.

While the building permits for 1925—$115,768,000 to October 1—were slightly less than the value for the same period of 1924—$117,413,000—no one can deny that there is much activity in all classes of building, and by the time the year closes the record of 1924 will undoubtedly be surpassed.

Postal receipts for the first nine months of 1925 were $5,805,512, and for the same period of 1924 they were $5,596,396.

September 28 this year there was on deposit in the banks of Los Angeles $978,813,000, while on a corresponding date last year the deposits totaled $891,746,000.

Along this line, "Southern California Business," the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce's publication, said editorially in the October issue:

"Right now is the time to begin to think about Christmas things. There is every indication that the fall and winter months in Los Angeles are going to see the busiest business whirl this city has ever known. Not only have the people of Los Angeles and trading territory been prosperous and in a position to spend large sums for necessities and luxuries, but we have the word of railroad men, steamship men and automobile clubs throughout the country that there is a prospect of greatly increased tourist travel. It is indicated that this influx of travelers will start earlier than usual. Instead of beginning in December and extending through January and February at a peak flow of tourists, there is every evidence it will start this year before Thanksgiving and extend over a period including the Easter season."

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Arthur M. Ellis, chairman of the program committee, spoke at the October 6 gathering of the Historical Society of Southern California on the celebration, at Taos, of the one hundredth anniversary of the coming of the Americans over the Santa Fe trail.

Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, president of the society, spoke on "Salient Points in the Development of California During the Last Seventy-five Years." In "Some Notes on the Cahuenga Truce," Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes revealed new material of great value that she has unearthed.

PRESERVE SPIRIT OF CALIFORNIA.

Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch was an official visitor October 22 to Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. There was a large attendance, including visitors from many Parlors, and his auditors were deeply impressed with his address. Grand First Vice-president Welch recounted conditions in the once-populous, but now near-deserted, mining communities of the state, and upon them based an appeal to preserve the spirit of California.

William W. Winn, a member of Sacramento Parlor No. 3 and a grandson of General A. M. Winn of Virginia State, the Founder of the Order, gave a brief but interesting account of the life of the general, who was a California Pioneer. Other speakers were Past Grand Presidents Herman C. Lichtenberger and William I. Traeger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer. Prior to the meeting the Parlor was host at a delicious supper, complimentary to the visiting official. President Sidney B. Witkowski and his corps of officers, all in evening dress, exemplified the ritual in an impressive manner during the session.

November 13 will be the forty-first anniversary of the institution of Los Angeles, and the good of the order committee, Howard E. Bentley chairman, is arranging for its proper observance. Initiation has been set for November 12, and there will be no meeting the 26th, Thanksgiving Day. The Parlor's meeting-place, 134

CARRYING ON.

Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer of the Native Sons, who has been interviewing Glendale residents the past month relative to the institution of a parlor there, reports much success. It is probable that at an early date organization will be perfected.

Mrs. Roy W. Hitt has been so effectively carrying on, that it is definitely announced a parlor of Native Daughters will be instituted shortly at Santa Ana, Orange County. Referring to this, the "Register" of that city said editorially October 12—and the statements apply also to the Order of Native Sons:

"The organization of Santa Ana parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, is a matter of more than usual interest and importance in fraternal circles. Devoted to the maintenance of the ideals that made California a vigorous, virile state and that carried it through the hardships and uncertainties of pioneer days, this organization has a unique opportunity for service.

"Good citizenship is one of its principal ends and aims. In fact, good citizenship may be designated as its real purpose for existence, for its activities in a historical way, in gathering data and in preserving landmarks, lead inevitably toward the development of good citizenship. One cannot be interested in the development of this state without gaining a better understanding of the problems of today."

COMING EVENTS.

The November program of Los Angeles Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., in charge of Elsie Beazell, includes initiation the 4th, and a dance and card party the 18th. That for December, in charge of Grace Norton, features a dinner at 6:30 to be followed by initiation.

THEIR HATS ARE IN.

Although the general state election does not occur until the latter part of 1926, candidates are already in the field working. During October

Judge Robert M. Clarke (Ramona N.S.) announced that he would like to represent California in the United States Senate, and Judge Rex B. Goodcell (Arrowhead N.S.), collector of internal revenue for the Southern California district, indicated that he will be a candidate for governor of the state.

CALIFORNIA PIONEERS' GALLERY.

There was quite an outpouring of "old timers" at the meeting of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., October 16, when Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch paid his official visit. In the course of his remarks he congratulated Ramona upon the splendid organization it has perfected and urged upon his hearers the necessity of carrying on. Other speakers included Past Grand Presidents Herman C. Lichtenberger and William I. Traeger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Historiographer Roy W. Cloud, Chancellor K. Grady, Judge Robert M. Clarke, District Deputy Ronald M. Ross, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer. Previous to the meeting Grand First Vice-president Welch was the Parlor's guest at a supper at Oaks Tavern. During the evening, with President Burrel D. Neighbours presiding, Ramona initiated a class of candidates, among them being Thurmond Clarke, son of Judge Clarke who, earlier in the evening, had become affiliated with the Parlor through transfer from Cabrillo No. 114 of Ventura. The historic landmarks committee of the Parlor outlined plans for a gallery of California Pioneers at the Fremont-Pico Memorial Museum.

November 13, Ramona will feature a talk by

SAN FRANCISCO BULLETIN

BAY REGION "SECOND NEW YORK"

WESTWARD WILL CONTINUE THE trend of civilization until the San Francisco Bay region will be the great central metropolis of the world, attracting the majority of its trade, travel and general interest, according to Professor Raymond Gettell, political scientist and professor in the department of political science at the University of California.

"The contention that the bay district will be the site of a 'second New York' is not as visionary as it may seem," says the college professor. To support this theory, Gettel points out the extensive harbor facilities, central location, and natural advantages necessary to care for the immense amount of trade which must some day belong to the Pacific Coast.

Increase in shipping and marketing must inevitably bring an increase in population, wealth and world influence. This will make San Francisco the most noted city in the country.

Reasons for his predictions of the future greatness of the West, Gettell bases on the general shifts of interest from Europe and the Atlantic to the Pacific and the Orient.

BUSINESS PROGRESS.

Here are figures that indicate business is good in San Francisco. They are comparative, for the first three-quarters of 1925 and 1924:

Bank clearings—$6,841,301,053 (1925), $6,183,400,000 (1924).

Buidling permits—$39,318,786 (1925), $39,858,900 (1924).

Postal receipts—$5,812,263 (1925), $5,324,226 (1924).

WORK ON MEMORIAL TO START.

Preliminary work on the construction of San Francisco's $2,000,000 war memorial group adjoining the Civic Center at Van Ness avenue, will be started on January 1. The project consists of a memorial opera building and an American Legion building.

CALIFORNIA'S LAW HISTORY REVIEWED.

Reviewing the history of California law for the past seventy-five years, Orrin Kipp McMurray, dean of the School of Jurisprudence at the University of California, Berkeley, recently addressed the members of the Bar Association of San Francisco.

"Many of the acts of our pioneer legislatures," said Dean McMurray, "are interesting for the light they shed on the social life and customs of the day." In 1851, he pointed out, although gambling houses were licensed, lotteries were declared illegal. Holidays then were not defined as holidays.

As to the criminal code, the lawyer declared "that of the fifties was simple compared with our own, at least so far as concerns the enumeration and definition of offenses punishable. Whether or not, as some synics think, civilization is a disease, it is obvious that the number of acts defined as crimes is constantly increasing. Not a session of the Legislature passes without a number of new definitions of acts as crimes which before had been immune from legal consequences."

FLAGS FOR SCHOOLS.

Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 N.S.G.W. presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the Kate Kennedy school October 13. The presentation address was made by Charles Powers, who lauded the efforts of the Order of Native Sons to place the national and state emblems in every public-school.

ELECTION NOVEMBER 3.

A red-hot campaign for public office in the City and County of San Francisco has been under way for some time. It will have its finale at the ballot-box November 3. Among the numerous candidates are the following Native Sons:

City Attorney—George Lull, Stanford Parlor No. 76; John J. O'Toole, Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214.

City and County Treasurer—John E. McDougald, California Parlor No. 1.

Public Administrator—W. J. Hynes, Stanford

Present also were representatives of many Parlors, Grand Trustee Lillian Beguhl, District Deputies Lillian Spillane, May Noble, Dr. Winifred M. Byrne, Emily Schultz, Margaret Ramm. The hall was beautifully decorated. Five candidates were initiated.

Miss Irwin spoke on the work of the Order in general and commended the Parlor for its activities; she particularly praised Secretary Margaret Ramm. Under the supervision of Flora Justice, chairlady of the evening, a delicious repast was served in the banquet-room from attractively decorated tables.

BROTHER GEORGE LULL

Seeks Re-Election

City Attorney

Brother George Lull, of Stanford Parlor, No. 76, N.S.G.W., who has been twice elected City Attorney of San Francisco by large majorities, is a candidate for re-election at the election on November 3rd.

Lull is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, having enlisted as a private in the First California Volunteers, while he was a student at Stanford University. On his return from the campaign he completed his education and practiced law in San Francisco, later being appointed an Assistant City Attorney.

Upon the resignation of Brother Percy Long, as City Attorney, Brother Lull was appointed by Mayor James Rolph Jr. to succeed him. Four years ago he was elected to the office by the highest vote ever given to any candidate for public office in San Francisco.

Lull has a splendid staff of assistants, all of whom are members of the Native Sons of the Golden West, among them being Brothers Charles Peery, member of the Board of Appeals; Maurice Dooling Jr., son of the late Judge Maurice T. Dooling, John J. Dailey, Joseph T. Curley, Al Devlin and Arthur J. Hearst.

Lull has been complimented on the able and efficient administration of his office by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, by the Presiding Justice of the Court of Appeals, and by the Judges of the Superior Court of the City and County of San Francisco, trying civil cases.

Brother Lull's candidacy is endorsed by Past Grand Presidents John H. Grady, Lewis F. Byington, Daniel A. Ryan, Louis H. Mooser, William P. Caubu and Edward J. Lynch; Grand Trustee Frank I. Gonzalez, and a host of other Native Sons and Native Daughters of San Francisco.

THREE FAMOUS INSTITUTIONS DEDICATED TO RESEARCH

(PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

PASADENA, ALREADY RENOWNED FOR its beautiful homes, its lovely gardens, its magnificent hotels and its exceptional facilities for recreation and culture, is now rapidly achieving fame as one of the world's greatest research centers. In or near the city are located three institutions that have become known throughout the world for the work they are doing to increase human knowledge along the lines of science, history and literature.

Two of these institutions—the California Institute of Technology and the Mount Wilson Observatory of the Carnegie Institute—are devoted to scientific research. On their staffs are some of the world's greatest scientists. To their laboratories annually come other famous scientists, and in these laboratories are constantly being conducted important experiments that mean much to the future welfare of the world. Just how important these experiments and the resultant findings are considered by distant observers is perhaps best illustrated by the recent statement of an editorial writer in the "New York Times" that "the most promising news in the field of science is that which comes from the united forces of research in Pasadena, California."

The third institution in the group is the Henry E. Huntington Research Library, privately owned and now open only to students, but ultimately destined to become a great semi-public institution for the promotion of research and reference.

On the shelves of the Huntington Library are thousands of priceless manuscripts and rare editions gathered from all parts of the world. The collection is considered one of the finest extant. Indeed, the Huntington Library is now universally recognized as the largest research library in America, and second only to the British Museum in world importance.

The Huntington collections are rather highly specialized, the books falling into three general classifications: (a) English literature from the introduction of printing into England to the present time, (b) American history from the discovery period to the World War, (c) incunabula, or books printed prior to the year 1501. These three classes of books are supplemented by rare collections of manuscripts. The bulk of the manuscripts are English, and they are chiefly literary or historical in character.

This collection of manuscripts was recently enriched by the arrival from London of thirty-nine huge packing cases filled with valuable documents, manuscripts and diaries that had lain for many centuries in feudal castles throughout England. These manuscripts are believed to contain records of early Britain that may change the whole aspect of English history. They were purchased in London last June for the noted Pasadena railway executive and philanthropist. Captain R. B. Haselden, keeper of the manuscripts in the world-famous library, is in charge of the task of arranging and classifying the material, which task will require years to complete.

"This collection of manuscripts," said Captain Haselden recently, "comprises the muniments of the ancient ducal family of Buckingham, and covers a period of time extending from A. D. 1150 to almost the present day.

"As a mirror of the social life of England for the period covered, this collection is without a parallel; here we find the family's confidential papers, love letters, marriage settlements and title deeds.

"There are over a thousand charters before A. D. 1500, including deeds of various monasteries, and an important document of Richard Strongbow, second Earl of Penbroke, who died in 1175. Attached to this is his seal, of which only one other example is known. Another important document is an unknown Set of Articles between High Commissioners acting on behalf of Mary, Queen of Scots, and Queen Elizabeth.

"New information can be derived from the manuscripts concerning Shakespeare. We have the autographs of Sir Thomas Lucy, Combes and Underhill on one document in a lawsuit. (Sir Thomas Lucy is alleged to have prosecuted Shakespeare for deer-stealing in 1585, and is represented in Shakespeare's plays as Justice Shallow).

"We have many letters and documents of the greatest importance regarding the history of the United States of America—information on the Equivalent Lands in New York State, Negro slavery and Negro importation in America, documents relating to Barbados, the treaty concluding the old French War, including the official instructions and pourparlers between the high dignitaries concerned. This treaty is the declaration of England's title to Canada and the Mississippi basin.

"The history of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries is well represented in the original correspondence of Richard, first Marquis of Buckingham, and his family with members of the courts and cabinets of George III, George IV, William IV and Queen Victoria, including a large number of letters of the Duke of Wellington. The secret history of the English Court and its connections with foreign courts is displayed in this correspondence.

"It must be remembered that there are more than a million separate letters and documents in this collection, and that they have never been carefully examined. Consequently, it is impossible to tell what important documents yet remain to be discovered."

The Huntington Library was recently presented under a deed of trust to the American people. The gift included not only the library, but also the famous Huntington Art Gallery and Botanical Gardens, and is subject only to a life tenancy of the property by the donor.

The trust is to be administered by a board of trustees, named by Huntington, which board comprises five prominent Los Angeles and Pasadena men. George S. Patton of Pasadena is chairman. The other four members are Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles and Pasadena banker who was a members of the Dawes Reparations Commission; Archer M. Huntington, nephew of the donor; Dr. George Ellery Hale, founder and director emeritus of the Mount Wilson Observatory, and Dr. Robert A. Millikan, executive head of the California Institute of Technology.

The Mount Wilson Solar Observatory of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, D. C., is situated on the peak of Mount Wilson, a mile above Pasadena. Here are kept the catalogues of the stars. By night and by day seven huge telescopes are sweeping the heavens. One of these—a 100-inch reflecting telescope that cost approximately half a million dollars—is the largest telescope in the world.

On Friday evenings, visitors are permitted to take a peep through the third largest telescope in the world, but before ascending to the observatory, a card granting permission to look through the telescope must be obtained from the office of the observatory in Pasadena. The observatory museum is open daily. Here may be seen astronomical photographs and interesting data about the stars.

The staff at the observatory includes many noted scientists, and other famous men journey there to conduct experiments. The observatory is presided over by Dr. William F. Adams.

The California Institute of Technology, an engineering and scientific school of the first rank, often referred to as the "Boston Tech. of the West," possesses unexcelled facilities for research work, and these facilities attract scientists from all over the world. Dr. Robert A. Millikan is chairman of the executive council. Dr. Millikan has won many high honors for his achievements in scientific research. In 1923 he was awarded the Nobel Prize in Physics. In the same year he also won the Edison Medal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Hughes Medal of the Royal Society of Great Britain. In 1924 he was awarded the Faraday Medal by the London Chemical Society, an honor which has been conferred by the society only eleven times in sixty years.

Conspicuous discoveries in the field of research at the institute have focused the eyes of the scientific world upon it since Dr. Millikan came from the University of Chicago in 1921 to take the helm at the California school. Dr. Millikan's studies and experiments in relation to the electron have revolutionized the world's knowledge of the constitution of matter.

The institute is privately endowed and not connected with any church or organization. It is governed by a board of trustees consisting of representative men of Pasadena and Los Angeles. The institute not long ago received an endowment fund of $4,200,000 as a gift from Arthur H. Fleming of Pasadena. Dr. Norman Bridge has made gifts aggregating about $750,000, and many other substantial gifts have been made by wealthy men interested in scientific research.

also has been given by such important educational agencies as the General Education Board, which in 1922 gave $300,000 for its endowment, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, which made a gift of $50,000 to initiate a fund for retired professors, and the Carnegie Institute of Washington and the Carnegie Foundation of New York, both of which have given funds for research into the constitution of matter and the nature of radiation, for investigation of the nature and properties of insulin, and for the development of a department of geology.

A notable addition to the scientific equipment of the institute is a seismological laboratory recently erected on a base of solid rock in Alisos Canyon near Pasadena. The laboratory is for the joint use of the institute and the Mount Wilson Observatory. It is said to be one of the finest and most complete plants of the kind in the country. It is a two-story concrete structure, comprising a basement, a photographic room, temperature room, seismological room, storage room, radio room, battery and charging room and a utility room on the first floor, with the offices situated on the second floor.

PASADENA NATIVES TO STAGE HOMELESS CHILDREN BENEFIT.

The theater party October 7 featured by Pasadena Parlor No. 259 N.S.G.W. was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed. The treat was made possible through the generosity of Wendell Wilson, an enthusiastic member of the Parlor and manager of the Liberty Players. The big crowd of Native Sons and Native Daughters were Wilson's guests, and his players created a most favorable impression. Between the first and second acts John L. Breiner, president of the Parlor, addressed the audience and in the course of his remarks tendered the Natives' thanks to Manager Wilson and the Liberty Players.

November 20, Pasadena Parlor will stage at the Shakespeare Club a benefit, the proceeds of which will be used for the Natives' homeless children work. The main attraction will be a terpsichorean program, to be presented by Miss Pearl Keller of Glendale, noted dancer, who will direct a group of her students in a colorful and pleasing selection of dance numbers. December 3, the Parlor will be paid an official visit by Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi, San Joaquin County.

BODEGA BAY'S CENTURY AND HALF ANNIVERSARY IS COMMEMORATED.

Santa Rosa (Sonoma County)—The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the discovery of Bodega Bay was observed October 4 by appropriately marking six historic spots in the vicinity.

Bodega Bay was discovered October 3, 1775, by Lieutenant Bodega, who raised the Spanish flag. Sir George Vancouver visited it in 1792 and took possession in the name of England, but no steps were taken to hold it for Great Britain. The Russians came in 1811 and the Russ settlement was formed. Twenty years later the Russians abandoned it and the bay remained under Spanish dominion until the Bear Flag was raised June 14, 1846.

(MARGERY BOYD.)

"ONE INCREASING PURPOSE."

By A. S. M. Hutchinson; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

It was in the third year of the war, in the comfortless shelter of the trench, that Sim Paris first had knowledge of it; knew that he was being saved for a yet unfathomed purpose. "Else why," he cried bitterly to himself, "should I be spared of all these others, should I come through this hell unscathed?" The war, at an end, found Sim happy to be home in dear old England again, but restless, wearily striving to find this one increasing purpose.

And then he found Elizabeth. Her coming helps Sim tremendously. Confident of her love and help he was strengthened, refreshed. Yet still thwarted, his efforts futile, the unanswered question pressed upon him, for what had he been spared? After a very searching silence Sim finds the answer to his questioning.

The characters in the novel are absorbingly and sincerely drawn, with the author's typically sympathetic touch. Lovely Linda, stern Anthony, bitter Charles and gentle Alice, these and many more lend their charm and appeal to the story.

The book, written in a deeply religious vein, is relieved only by rare flashes of sunny humor. Its theme is the eternal seeking of the human heart for God. "Yet I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs." This is the first novel in three years of the author of "If Winter Comes."

"THE THOUSAND AND SECOND NIGHT."

By Frank Heller; Thomas Y. Crowell Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

Three friends, hailing from England, France and Sweden, find themselves hopelessly marooned in Africa, on the edge of the burning Sahara. Seeking entertainment, they espy a grizzled soothsayer with his ancient rug and bag of prophetic sand. In mysterious enigmatic parables the rascally sorcerer foretells their futures. Graham, Lavertisse and Collins scoff, whereupon the vindicative one, in revenge, stirs up a whirlwind of intrigue. Then,

Graham discovers, too late, that he has blundered into the sanctity of a Mohammedan harem; death is the penalty which awaits him. Lavertisse becomes involved in a native superstitious curse laid upon an ancient rug; his fate is death. Collins intrigues, solves and saves—but only after a thousand and two nights of danger and deadly peril.

Heller's stories of these three adventurers provide vast entertainment and amusement. Humor, mystery, Eastern philosophy and Western wit combine to make "The Thousand and Second Night" one to be remembered.

"THE DAUGHTER OF THE HOUSE."

By Carolyn Wells; J. B. Lippincott Company, Publishers, Philadelphia; Price, $2.00.

The wedding guests arrive, yet not a trace of the bride or bridegroom! Mystery dark and forbidding now shrouds the house of the vanlished bride, Rosemary Lang. Murder quickly follows, and the mystery, deepening, settles darkly on the ill fated home.

Terror clutches at the hearts of the surviving members and loosens its grip only at the searching scrutiny of the eminent detective, Fleming Stone. His careful sifting and final deductions turn the searchlight of justice upon each, until at last the guilty one is traced down. "The Daughter of the House" is another Fleming Stone triumph, a detective story of the hair-raising, goose-flesh variety. Tip: select a rainy, gloomy night for its perusal.

"TALES OF INTRIGUE AND REVENGE."
By Stephen McKenna; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.50.

Tales of intrigue and revenge--stories to make one laugh, stories to make one weep, and stories that provoke the bitter-sweet taste known as irony; sixteen are they.

The versatility of the author is amazing. He passes swiftly from comedy to tragedy, with equal facility. The characters range from society folk to Italian peasants, each vividly drawn with a ruthless pen.

"The Acid Test" and "The Man Who Made Good" are both sardonically witty, while "Before the Guards Came Through" is tensely dramatic. The reader will find in "Tales of Intrigue and Revenge" a tale for every mood.

"AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP."
By John W. Davis, Philip Cook, Albert C. Ritchie, Luther B. Wilson, Charles E. Hughes; Thomas Y. Crowell Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $1.00.

"American Citizenship" is a unique collection of addresses on Americanism radioed to the public during the last year. John W. Davis, Philip Cook, Albert C. Ritchie, Luther B. Wilson and Charles E. Hughes are the contributors.

They deal with force and enlightenment with the following subjects: "What Does the Constitution Mean to You?", "The Constitution and Modern Tendencies," "State Responsibility," "Meets and Bounds," "The Declaration of Independence."

Those who have not had the good fortune to hear these speeches should not miss the opportunity of reading them.

A BOOK

("IRONQUILL.")

"With granite once a genius bridged a stream,
A builder once a rugged temple wrought;
On canvas once a painter fixed a thought,
A sculptor once in marble carved a dream;
A queen once built a tomb, and in the scheme
Of bronze and gold the quivering sunbeam caught;
Then came oblivion, unseen, unsought—
Contemptuous of thinker and of theme.

"And someone wrote a book. Palace and hall
Are gone; marble and bronze are dust; the fanes
Are fallen which the sun gold sought; the rook
At morn caws garrulously over all—
All, all are gone! The book alone remains.
Man builds no structure that outlives a book."

ROQUE IN LONG BEACH

Mark E. Heynes

(LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

LONG BEACH HAS HAD VARIOUS claims to distinction. Today, the city is noteworthy as being the center of one of the greatest of American sports—roque—one of the games which is held in high favor in Southern California, and Long Beach is the acknowledged headquarters.

The next time you visit Long Beach, whether you come by the Pacific Electric or the Union Pacific Railway, get off at the main station, walk across the street to the northwest corner of Ocean boulevard and Pacific avenue and enter Lincoln Park; take the diagonal walk flanked by many varieties of beautiful trees, shrubs and flowers; pass the Public Library, and on the west side of the park, shaded by giant eucalypti, you will find the courts of the Long Beach Roque Club, where the next national tournament of the American Roque League will be held, beginning February 15, 1926.

Many cities, including Los Angeles, Pasadena, Glendale, Whittier, San Diego and others, have courts built and maintained by those cities, but the Long Beach club has built and maintains eight good courts from the funds of the club and is the largest all-year club in the United States. Only one club—that of St. Petersburg, Florida,—has a larger number of names on its roster, and play there is confined to about three months in the winter, while the Long Beach courts are busy every week-day in the year from early morning until late at night, the courts being lighted for night playing. Its membership is composed of both sexes from all parts of the country as well as a large resident membership. There is also a women's auxiliary with a good membership which, besides playing roque, frequently delights its friends with enjoyable fish dinners and picnics.

Being located in the downtown district in a park that is generally visited by the tourist who may be in town merely for the day, there are always many spectators at the games. Several who have witnessed the games by chance have been led to locate here for this diversion or have themselves become players. The proximity of many desirable apartments and the present low rents prevailing in Long Beach are additional reasons for the growth of the club.

The Pacific Coast Division of the American Roque League is an organization composed of the Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Glendale Clubs, and tournaments are frequently held under its management, the next one being November 30 at Los Angeles, at the close of which the official medals of the league will be awarded. Members often visit other clubs for social games, and during the summer months many players from the inland towns are to be seen on the Long Beach courts, as they are located near the ocean where the cool breezes make it possible to play with comfort on the warmest summer day. No charge is made for occasional games, but tourists wishing to play regularly are charged a small monthly fee.

Players ranking in ability from the beginner to the champion are on the grounds every day, so that a visitor can always secure an opponent to suit his skill, and older members are always willing to instruct new members. Some roque players are also devotees of checkers and horseshoes, and have clubs near the courts, and many roquers divide their time between that game and golf, there being three fine courses within a few minutes' ride, including the new municipal links in Recreation Park. In fact, all the known sports are to be found in or near Long Beach, including tennis, bowling on the green, polo, and, if a roquer wishes to play on the mountain top, there is Lake Arrowhead only three hours' distant.

At the national roque tournament held at Winona Lake, Ind., last summer, Long Beach took the highest honors when a member of its club, A. S. Denny, won all the medals he contended for—the national championship, the Gates-Underhill and the diamond medals—the three highest awarded. A. J. Denny, father of the champion, also won a third division medal, as did also Mrs. Edith Johnson and W. H. Johnson of San Diego. Thus the Pacific Coast brought home six medals out of the eleven offered at the tournament, three of which were never held before by one player, and these the highest. When it was announced that the next semi-annual tournament would be held in Long Beach during the coming winter, preparations were immediately begun to take care of this meet in the best possible manner, and work is now under way remodeling the courts along the latest lines.

It has been said that roque is croquet with a college education, which is a good epigramatic description of the game. Croquet was a favorite game with the royal families of France more than two centuries ago, and later became the game of kings and queens of England; but it was little known in this country until 1870, when for a decade it was played in almost every section of the country. The National Croquet Association was formed in New York in 1882 and the first tournament was held in 1889. That year a group of experts decided to improve the game and rename it by taking away the first and last letters from the name "croquet", thus forming the name "roque". They formed the National Roque Association and several other associations were formed throughout the United States, when in 1920 all were united under the name of the American Roque League, thus bringing all roque interests in America under one organization, with uniform courts and rules. To make the game more scientific and require more skill, the arches were narrowed so that the ball had a clearance of only an eighth of an inch and the grounds were surrounded with a cement border. Wooden balls were replaced with vulcanized hard rubber balls.

The cement borders give the game a resemblance to billiards, in that the player uses them in banking to hit a wired ball, to drive the object ball to a desired position or to make posi-

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THANKSGIVING DAY, THURSDAY, NOvember 25, 1875, had its usual observance in California with church services, shooting matches, turkey dinners and grand balls.

In comparison with the present, prices for edibles were low. Turkeys, dressed, sold at 17c a pound, butter 30c a pound, eggs 55c a dozen, potatoes 1¼c a pound; by the dozen, ducks were $8.50, chickens $7.50, quail $2.

Herman Gyle, in Tehama County, dressed and shipped to the San Francisco market for Thanksgiving Day 1,000 turkeys. Market hunters in Solano County shipped a ton of ducks, killed in two days, to San Francisco November 6. Peter Sather, at Alameda City, was exhibiting a carrot that weighed twenty-seven pounds.

Only a half-inch of rain had fallen previous to November 1 this season. Mount Shasta, for the first time since the '50s, was nearly bare of snow. Forest fires were burning with great destruction to timber in every mountain county. So, when the month proved to be a rainy one, the people were highly gratified. In Tuolumne County the month's rainfall measured twelve inches.

The steamboat "Pacific," enroute from Victoria, B. C., to San Francisco, collided with the "Orpheus" near Cape Flattery, November 4. The "Pacific" had about 200 passengers and a crew of forty, all of whom, except two, were drowned.

About 200 Indians, ejected from the Temecula rancho in San Diego County, were threatening trouble. The sheriff called on the governor for state troops, but the request was denied. Finally Chief Olegaria was induced to go to Los Angeles and talk the situation over. He claimed the Indian village had been there for countless years; all the tribe were born and always lived there, and were now forced off because White men wanted the land. Instead of fighting, the Indians now wanted the Federal Government to help them.

A RARE COMBINATION.

John Tingman, secretary of the Sacramento Society of California Pioneers for many years, was buried November 1. He was 63 years of age, and came to California in 1850 from Scotland.

Jasper O'Farrell, after whom O'Farrell street, San Francisco, was named, died in that city November 16. He was a native of Ireland and prominent as a civil engineer.

The railroad from Santa Monica to Los Angeles was opened for business November 30. Passengers were carried without fare the first day.

Rev. Thomas Guard, an Irishman and a Methodist minister—a rare combination—was delivering lectures on his experiences as a missionary in Africa.

The National Gold Bank and Trust Company of San Francisco closed its doors November 1 after a two-day run. Otherwise, financial affairs there were again running smoothly.

A Scotch sailor named Anderson climbed to the summit of Yosemite Valley's South Half Dome, conveying, on the perilous climb, ropes and spikes that enabled others to follow him. The area of the summit was found to be about 100 acres in extent. An offer of $500 to the first man to achieve this feat had been made.

The discovery of an extensive clam bed near Vallejo proved a bonanza for the lads of that Solano County city. Baskets containing 400 or 500 clams were frequently filled by the diggers and readily sold.

In Kern County, about twenty-five miles from Bakersfield, hunting wild hogs was a remunerative sport. The porkers subsisted on tule roots, hence were in prime condition for marketing. Dogs were used to route them from the tules.

Eighteen miles from San Diego, on the ranch of J. Machado, was reported to be a grapevine of the mission variety covering 4,275 square feet. Four feet from the ground the trunk was thirty-two inches in circumference. Six feet above the ground were six branches, measuring, on an average, nineteen inches in circumference. The vine was in a healthy condition, and 100 gallons of wine was produced from the grapes. This year, by actual count, the vine bore 2,058 clusters of grapes, some of them over ten pounds in weight.

UNUSUAL YOUNG WOMEN.

The Chinese prized as an esculent the bulb of the tule, and a number of the Celestials were making good profit by industriously digging them from the mud of Butte Slough and disposing of them in Marysville, Yuba County. One "Chink" was said to have cleaned up $1,000 from this source this season.

A Downieville, Sierra County, editor published the following: "It is not often at the present day that we find young ladies soiling their pretty hands with manual labor. Their energies are more often exerted solely in securing the proper adjustment of their back hair. Notable exceptions to this general rule are the Misses Purdy of Long Valley. Besides being posted in all that pertains to elegance in dress, they can, and do often, harness and drive horses of their own breaking, and, in cases of emergency, mount the reaper. They can draw as steady a line over a pair of colts as the best among the so-called 'gods of creation.' This year they are in the potato business. Last spring they procured five pounds of seed potatoes of choice varieties, such as Snowflake and Estrella, planted the seed, cultivated the plot, and dug 517 pounds of the most excellent tubers. Some of their potatoes are a pound in weight."

In the dump of the Union mine at Cerro Gordo gold nuggets were found which, in working the mine for silver, had been overlooked. One weighing thirteen ounces had been found, and a large number of others valued as high as $60 had been picked up. The whole town was excited.

The Kellogg cinnabar mine north of Saint Helena, Napa County, this month produced 1,875 flasks of quicksilver, valued at $12,000.

Killing campaigns against squirrels were being organized by the farmers of Contra Costa County and of Scott Valley, in Santa Cruz County. They were to turn out enmasse, and kill the pests with guns and poison.

UNDERTAKER "WORKED."

A sealion about twelve feet long passed Sacramento City November 8 and continued on its fishing expedition up the Sacramento River, being heard from at Colusa City a week later.

A 12-year-old lad named Taloran was hunting ducks in the mud flats near Sausalito, Marin County, November 13, and mired. No one hearing his cries for help, he kept sinking until he perished. When found, only his head above the ears was above the ooze.

A shooting affray at Healdsburg, Sonoma County, resulted in the killing of Bird Bruenfeld by William Seane, November 11.

In Sacramento, a man entered an undertaker's and began to violently sob. Used to seeing people weep, the undertaker let him alone in his grief until he was able to coherently talk. He then learned that his caller had just lost his dearly beloved brother in a hospital of the city, to which he had been brought from a mining town in hopes of being saved. He desired to arrange for the funeral, which he wanted the undertaker to take charge of. He selected a rather costly coffin, arranged for the obituary notice to be published, selected the minister to officiate and the cemetery where the burial was to be made. Then he proceeded to take a temporary departure, but, just as he reached the door, passed his hand over his chin and remarked that he believed he ought to get a shave. Feeling through his pockets, he discovered that in the preoccupied condition of his mind he had neglected to pick up his purse from his personal effects and was therefore without the necessary quarter to pay the barber. He asked for the temporary loan of a dollar. In the exuberance of a prospective profitable funeral, the undertaker made it $2 and gladly handed over that amount. There were no telephones then, so it was not until he had sent the dead-wagon to the hospital for the body and it returned with the announcement there was none there, that he realized he had been "worked."

Native Daughters of the Golden West

BIG IN ACCOMPLISHMENTS, ALTHOUGH SMALL IN NUMBERS.

ALTURAS—THE LAST FEW WEEKS prior to the San Francisco diamond jubilee celebration were busy ones for Alturas 159. The Parlor's membership is not large, only fifty-seven, and the officers and members felt that it would be impossible to finance a suitable representation in the pageant. But, when it became evident that no provision had been made by civic or fraternal organizations throughout Modoc to have the county represented, the officers and members set bravely to the task of providing ways and means for the county's representation. Two members, Mrs. Willie Hughes and Mrs. Annie Pierce, sponsored a benefit ball in their home-town, Likely. In Alturas, under the leadership of Mrs. Irma Laird and Past Grand President Catherine E. Gloster, a vaudeville show, a ball, and a ball-supper were given, all of which were so well patronized that a large sum of money was placed to the credit of the Parlor's jubilee fund.

Admiring the spirit of the Native Daughters and having confidence in their purpose, a number of representative business men went before the Board of Supervisors and asked that it make an appropriation equal to the amount the Native Daughters had raised and thus make it possible for Modoc to make suitable entry in the jubilee pageant. This appropriation was made, and Alturas entered for Modoc County's unit in the parade a float typical of early Modoc Indian life. A family of eight Modoc Indians, descendants of the once-warlike Modoc tribe, were taken to San Francisco and were the center of interest on Modoc County's float.

While those fortunate enough to make the trip were enjoying the jubilee celebration in San Francisco, the members of the Parlor who remained at home prepared a banquet for the annual Pioneer reception. Pioneers from all parts of the county were guests of Alturas on Admission Day. After having been served with a delicious chicken banquet from flower-bedecked tables, they were entertained with old-time music, songs, dances and readings.

In an address of welcome, Miss Dorothy Gloster expressed the veneration and reverence in which the Native Daughters hold the Pioneers of California. The hostesses and guests, alike, enjoyed hearing the reminiscences of many of the Pioneers present. When the hour of parting came, the old folks departed, assuring their hostesses that this was the most enjoyable reunion they had ever had.

Services Appreciated.

Redwood City—Eight candidates were initiated at the September 24 meeting of Bonita 10. In appreciation for services rendered during the diamond jubile ecelebration, Mrs. W. W. Thompson was presented with a silver plate. Mrs. Eugene Cerqui, a recent bride of the Parlor, was the recipient of a half-dozen silver spoons.

Planning for Grand President's Visit.

Oakland—Several applications for membership were received October 8 by Piedmont 87. Delicious refreshments, prepared by President Betty Meinert, Ida Coales, Luella Baer of the October birthday committee, were served in the banquet-room, tastefully decorated in Hallowe'en effect. An electric iron was presented a recent bride of the Parlor, Mrs. Anita Langtry Bayles, who responded with sincere thanks. Interesting remarks were made by Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, D.D.G.P. Mae Barthold and Supervising Deputy Gertrude Morrison. October 15 the Parlor had a successful whist tournament, in charge of Miss Ramona Ring, assisted by the officers.

Grand President Sue J. Irwin will officially visit Piedmont, November 12. Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher has been made chairman of the evening, and will be assisted in making preparations by the November birthday committee: Gertrude Morrison, Alice E. Miner, Josephine Clark, Ramona Ring, President Betty Meinert, Edna Healey, Erna Jenkins, Gretta Murden.

"Mother" Parlor Observes Anniversary.

Jackson—Ursula 1, the "mother" Parlor, observed the thirty-ninth anniversary of its organization September 22. Mrs. Eva Kerr was chairman of the committee in charge of the event. The hall and banquet-room were artistically decorated, an enjoyable program was presented, and a delicious collation was served. Mrs. Henrietta O'Neill, former Grand Trustee, gave an interesting talk on the Order.

Play Cards for Missions' Benefit.

Hollister—September 24, Copa de Oro 105 gave a most enjoyable card party, the proceeds of which were forwarded to Reina del Mar Parlor of Santa Barbara to assist in its mission restoration work. Beautiful prizes were awarded, and refreshments were served.

October 8 a class of candidates were initiated, and a few happy hours were spent over the refreshment tables following the business session.

"Nut Nite" Creates Fun.

San Jose—Vendome 100 had its annual party for the Pioneers of Santa Clara County, October 15. Dinner was served at noon, followed by an extensive program. Mrs. Lloyd Buffington presided, and Past Grand President Mamie P. Carmichael extended the Parlor's welcome. Congressman Arthur M. Free (Observatory 177 N.S.G.W.) was the chief speaker of the occasion. In charge of the affair was this committee: Mmes. W. W. Jennings, Edward Musser, Raymond Plamondon, May Calice, J. C. Hayes, Clara Gairaud, Miss Tillie Brohaska.

"Nut nite" was featured October 8, and there was a lot of fun, as well as many surprises, "Mother" Tillie Brohaska being the most surprised. During October the Parlor's past president's club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Leal Davis, and the sewing club at Mrs. W. C. Kady's home. A Hallowe'en dance, in charge of Miss Georgia Fusco, was given October 29. Pleasure was brought during the month to shutins by the Parlor's sunshine committee, Miss Tillie Brohaska, Mrs. Clara Gairaud, Mrs. Gertrude Matthers. Vendome is arranging for a big card party, the proceeds of which will be sent to Reina del Mar of Santa Barbara, to assist in its mission restoration endeavors. Past Grand President Mamie P. Carmichael and Mrs. Clara Gairaud have the arrangements in charge.

Sons Guests at Hard Times Party.

Martinez—Costumes of the eighteenth century, as well as from the rag-bag, were worn by Los Juntas 221's members when they entertained October 5 Mount Diablo 101 N.S.G.W. at a hard-times party. The costume which caused the most laughter was that of Mrs. Rose Palmer; it was her mother's, and consisted of a pancake hat, a tight-fitting jacket, a gored alpaca skirt and flat shoes. Dancing and games were enjoyed, and appropriate refreshments were served in cracked and broken dishes from tables without tablecloths.

Grand President Sue J. Irwin paid her official visit September 21, and among the visitors were Past Grand Presidents Addie Mosher and Amy McAvoy, Grand Organist Estelle Evans, D.D G Ps. Mary Reber and Loretta Kelley. Gifts were presented the grand officers by the Parlor. A banquet was served by the following committee: Miss Gertrude Rice (chairman), Mmes. Rose Palmer, Georgie Doss, Myrtle Bickel, Ethel Keefe, Agnes Griffin.

Pioneer Day Celebrated.

Bieber—Mount Lassen 215 has decided to feature the study of California and Lassen County history in the Parlor. For each meeting a committee is to be named to arrange details, that for October being Angie Kenyon, Eva Harvey, Annye Mitchell.

Pioneer Day was celebrated September 30, with an attendance of over 40. The program begun with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," after which all partook of a bounteous banquet. T. J. Durfee was toastmaster, and those who related interesting incidents of their early days in Big Valley were: Augustus Smith, who settled there November 27, 1872, and was the oldest Big Valley resident present; James Hall, Mmes. Barbara Fulcher, Ellen Elliott, Nettie Shone, Lily Schott, Nancy Jones, Lynn Mayhew and Bertie Bunselmeier, president Mount Lassen. A solo, "California Is Mine," was beautifully rendered by Eva Harvey. All joined in singing "America" prior to departure for their homes. The Parlor trusts that all its guests may be present at next year's reunion.

Relics Cabinet Enriched.

Oroville—Florence Boyle, in charge of Gold of Ophir 190's pioneer relics cabinet, has received the following additions for the interesting collection: A helmet used by this city's first volunteer fire department; a miner's lantern used at Forbestown, Butte County, in 1850; a gun used in the Indian uprisings of 1863; an election banner displayed at now-almost-deserted New York Flat; cotton grown in 1860 in the Oregon Creek district, near Enterprise; a picture of Sutter's mill; a copy of the "Miner's Ten Commandments," on the reverse of which is a letter dated August 18, 1855; a ledger of the '50s; a certificate of stock in the Bragg Tunneling Company, issued February 20, 1864; a souvenir of San Francisco's celebration of California's semi-centennial, 1900.

At the home of President Fern Damon a shower was recently held for two of the Parlor's brides, Mrs. Effie Darby Hoke and Mrs. Margaret Putnam Gardner. Each was presented with a large poppy-shaped box filled with gifts. Whist was played, and refreshments were served. Cornelia Lott and Florence Boyle were in charge of the affair. Much enthusiasm centers about the Parlor's fourth annual hope-chest, which is to be given away during the Butte County Orange and Olive Exposition at Oroville the latter part of November. The returns from the chest will go into the building fund.

Twentieth Anniversary Observed.

Woodland—The twentieth anniversary of the institution of Woodland 90 was celebrated with a "kiddies' party" October 13. Among the special guests were Past Grand Presidents Ema Gett and Mary E. Bell and Grand Marshal Dr. Louise C. Heilbron.

Many Visitors.

Mariposa—Officers of Mariposa 64 were installed by D.D.G.P. Dora Shillington of Merced. One candidate was initiated. Flowers and ferns were attractively displayed to decorate the hall, and delicious refreshments were served. Among the large number in attendance were several visitors from neighboring localities.

Pioneer Women Guests.

Middleton—Clear Lake 135 had its annual reunion for the Pioneer women September 22. An interesting program was presented, and a sumptuous spread was enjoyed. President Addie Penney delivered the welcome address, and early-day reminiscences were related by Mrs. Anastasia Armstrong and Mrs. Lamira S. Cannon.

Decorations a Feature.

Elk Grove—Grand President Sue J. Irwin was royally entertained by Liberty 213, September 25. Among the many visitors were Grand Marshal Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Past Grand Pres-

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE)

FIVE YEARS AGO HOLLYWOOD BOASTED a population of 35,000. Today the most accurate obtainable information shows the population to be 130,000!

Five years ago buildings of two or more stories could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Today limit-height structures rear on all hands and display a tendency to become the rule rather than the exception.

One-half decade ago banks in Hollywood were so few that it was not considered necessary to conduct the business of a clearinghouse. Today Hollywood has a clearinghouse with fifteen members, and the business shows clearings averaging nearly a million dollars for every day in the month.

Value of buildings for which construction permits were issued in the entire year 1923 was $20,277,000; in 1924 it was $15,150,000. During the nine months ending with September this year the amount involved is approximately $15,000,000.

Statistically, that is Hollywood of today.

The figures, however, fail to tell the whole story of physical Hollywood, which, in the past five years, has moved so rapidly ahead that municipal departments have been utterly unable to keep pace with the growth, and today Hollywood faces the necessity of rebuilding its streets along major traffic necessity lines, constructing an adequate sanitary sewer system over the length and breadth of the territory embraced within the borders of Hollywood, and building a storm drain system to meet demands for carrying off storm and surface waters.

Numerical expansion of Hollywood is quite specifically indicated in a report of the telephone company, which shows that at the close of the year 1921 there were approximately 11,000 telephones in service. At the end of the calendar year 1924 the number was 30,000, and today Hollywood has 37,500 phones in use. The telephone company is carrying out an extensive building program.

At Santa Monica and La Brea the building under construction will be two stories and will cost $150,000. On Highland avenue below Santa Monica the structure will be limit height, devoted to warehouse and storage purposes, and will cost in the neighborhood of $450,000 when complete. The sum of $90,000 will be expended in erection of a building at McCadden place and Hollywood boulevard, and an additional $40,000 for a lesser structure.

To be constructed by a company headed by Gilbert Beesemyer, president of the Guaranty Building & Loan Association, another theater building, to cost approximately $550,000, will be erected on Vine street immediately north of Hollywood boulevard.

These are some of the building indications of progress in Hollywood which will be completed in the next few months. In the past year the Taft and Guarantee buildings, limit height affairs, have been constructed, each costing about $850,000, while the Security apartments, on Ivar avenue, eight stories in height, are ready to be turned over to a management for operation. The Security Bank building, at the corner of Hollywood boulevard and Cahuenga avenue, seven stories, was completed and occupied by the bank two years ago.

There are numerous apartment house structures in more or less complete state, which will be ready for occupancy by the end of the year, and which will add largely to the housing facilities in Hollywood.

A report just received from the school board shows that there are 13,359 pupils enrolled in fifteen Hollywood schools. Adding the 5,721 registered at the University of California, Southern Branch, which is a Hollywood institution, the total of school and university students is 19,080. Last year the schools and university enrolled 17,832, showing an increase for this year of 1,248 in favor of 1925.

Progress on the first unit of the major highway plan for the Hollywood district was explained by W. V. Harris, assistant city engineer, at a meeting tendered by the bondsmen who have furnished money to cover the expense of preparing plans for one of the first units, the Cahuenga avenue opening and widening, or so-called "Five Finger Plan."

Harris explained in detail the work which had confronted him and his associates in preparing the data for the various openings and widenings involved in the "Five Finger Plan," and also in the preparation of plans and specifications for the Hyperion project, which is a part of the first unit also.

These two projects were selected by the board of directors of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce as the projects, the completion of which could be most easily undertaken at this time and which would do the most toward relieving of traffic conditions in the Hollywood area. The Hyperion and Cahuenga projects, however, are only a part of the major traffic plan for Hollywood as explained by Harris.

Other projects involve the widening of Highland avenue to 100 feet from Cahuenga Pass south to a junction with La Brea avenue near San Vincente boulevard, from which point a wide boulevard will be eventually extended to Redondo; the widening of Franklin avenue from Argyle avenue to a connection with Los Feliz boulevard at Western avenue; the opening of Normandie avenue through to an extension of Avocado street, and the opening and widening of a new Avocado street parallel to Los Feliz to the Los Angeles River and eventually to connect with the San Fernando road; the opening of a new street to make a diagonal connection between Hollywood boulevard and Sunset boulevard in the vicinity of Laurel Canyon; the widening of La Brea avenue from Hollywood boulevard to Romaine street and from Wilshire boulevard south to its junction with Highland avenue; the boulevarding of Gower street from Franklin avenue to a connection with Crenshaw boulevard; the widening of Van Ness avenue from Franklin to the new Tenth street; the opening and widening of Hillhurst and Virgil avenues which is already well under way and the opening and widening of Fairfax and La Cienega boulevard.

The general plans also include an additional road through Cahuenga Pass on the east side of the Pacific Electric right-of-way, and the proposed diagonal street running from a point approximately at the intersection of Sunset boulevard and Cahuenga avenue to a connection with First street and Beverly boulevard.

All of these projects will be taken up and considered individually from time to time, as the property owners show an interest in taking up the projects in their respective districts and in accordance with financing plans worked out by the Los Angeles Traffic Commission and city officials. Such changes as seem warranted by changing conditions will, of course, be worked out.

It is hoped that the first ordinance in connection with the "Five Finger Plan" can be adopted by the City Council immediately, and that final ordinances can be adopted within ninety days. Actual possession of the property needed to complete the widenings and openings probably cannot be had in less than three years after the final ordinance is passed.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. ¶In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

idents Ema Gett, Addie L. Mosher and Olive B Matlock and delegations from neighboring Parlors. On the Parlor's behalf, President Muriel Bradford presented a silver token to Miss Irwin, and the other grand officers were remembered with boquets.

The lodge-room was effectively resplendent in decorations of colored cat tails, and the banquet-room presented a restful scene for the eyes in its decoration of red salvia, grape vines and "gyp" corn. The banquet concluding the meeting was held jointly with Elk Grove 41 N.S.G.W., that Parlor having as its guest for the evening Grand Trustee Richard M. Hamb.

Appreciative.

Daly City—With President Anna K. Bauer presiding, El Carmelo 181 initiated a class of candidates October 7. Benefits for the homeless children and the Parlor's drill team were held, respectively, October 21 and 28. Under date of September 16, the Parlor received the following letter: "The Board of Trustees of the city of Daly City wishes to express to the El Carmelo Parlor of Native Daughters its satisfaction and appreciation of the manner in which the Parlor represented our community during the diamond jubilee."

Miss Sylvia Amelia Haubrich, second vice-president of the Parlor, became the bride October 18 of Stephen V. Fischer. Previous to the wedding she was tendered a miscellaneous shower by the Parlor's drill team at the home of Mrs. H. O'Connor. Grand President Sue J. Irwin will officially visit El Carmelo December 2, and a "big" event is in preparation.

Benefit Dance.

Napa—Eschol 16 received an official visit October 12 from Grand President Sue J. Irwin, who was accompanied by Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler and Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher. Previous to the meeting a turkey dinner was served from beautifully decorated tables.

Grand President Irwin delivered an eloquent address, in the course of which she praised the officers for their exemplification of the ritual. Miss Irwin was the recipient of a silver flower vase, and Mrs. Thaler and Mrs. Mosher were presented with flowers. Preparations are being made by the Parlor for a homeless children's benefit dance November 23.

Outstanding Event.

Asilomar—The annual get-together meeting and overnight party of the Parlors of District 20 was held October 17 and 18. The meeting, one of the outstanding events of the year, was opened with a dinner made especially enjoyable by all present joining in the singing of original, appropriate and catchy songs arranged by Aleli chorus of Salinas. Adjournment was then made to social hall, where D.D.G.P. Pearl Baker assumed charge and extended a hearty greeting to large delegations from Salinas, Monterey and Hollister. Grand President Sue J. Irwin was introduced and gave a most interesting talk on her official visits. Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher expressed her pleasure at being present at this splendid meeting, congratulating the members of the Parlors represented upon their wonderful spirit of co-operation. Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs gave a brief talk on "Prospective Members of the Order." Anna G.

PIONEER TELLS EARLY DAY EXPERIENCES

This article, telling of one of California's Pioneer Mothers, Mrs. E. E. Johns, came to The Grizzly Bear from Mrs. Alice Haines of Oakland, a member of Argonaut Parlor No. 166 N.D.G.W. of that city, at whose home she was a recent visitor. Mrs. Johns resides in Fresno.—Editor.

MRS. E. E. JOHNS, BORN IN NEW York State, November 19, 1840, is one of California's interesting Pioneer Mothers. April 5, 1852, seventy-five people, including her parents, Ezra and Lucinda Agnes Holmes, and herself, left Saint Joe, Missouri, with a train of twelve covered wagons to make their perilous way across the continent into the land of gold. They arrived at Hangtown (now Placerville), El Dorado County, September 20, 1852.

Mrs. Johns relates the many dangers encountered on the way and speaks with great sadness of the death of three men of the party—Tubbs, who died of cholera, and Dean and Cook, who were drowned while attempting to ford the Platt River. Narrow escapes from the Indians, which met with much approval from the little folks, she tells of with considerable vividness.

Her mother was taken ill with mountain fever and for eight weeks the little daughter and her father waited anxiously for her recovery. No one in the train had any particular knowledge of the ailment, but an old Negro man was discovered who knew something of it, and through his efforts she was restored to health.

To the delight of her great-grandchildren, Mrs. Johns tells many humorous tales incident to crossing the plains. The one that always meets with great enthusiasm is of an old loop-horned ox called "Danterhoddy," owned by a circus previous to purchase by her father. He was temperamental to a degree, but performed many clever little stunts, one of which was to kneel whenever "Yankee Doodle" was played. Woe be to the man who so forgot himself as to lay a whip across the ox's back, for he would become very stubborn, and could only be restored to good nature by much petting.

One day, while fording a stream, the driver, in his excitement, cracked the whip on old "Danterhoddy." Down went the outraged ox on all fours in midstream, bawling lustily. This, of course, excited the other oxen, and a stampede was only averted by Mrs. Johns' mother making her way out on the tongue of the wagon and rendering an apology by much petting. "Danterhoddy" then clambered to his feet quite pacified and attempted to pull the whole load.

Ezra Holmes, Mrs. Johns' father, opened a hotel called the Brighton House, six miles out of Sacramento, in 1852. She recalls that flour sold then for $50 a sack and that a miner paid $5 to have a shirt washed. In 1854 another hotel was opened at Fifth and K streets, Sacramento, called the Waverly House, and the miners paid their hotel bills with gold dust and nuggets. Mrs. Johns spent many pleasant girlhood days in the Capital City, and was one of the passengers on the first train from there to Folsom.

Lucinda Agnes Holmes, Mrs. Johns' mother, was identified with early California literature. She wrote for an early-day paper, "California Farmer," edited by Colonel Warren and published in San Francisco. She was also a contributor to "Harper's Weekly" and other publications. As a tribute to the first locomotive that came from the East to the West, she composed the following poem, entitled "Welcome to the First Locomotive," published May 1, 1869:

"We greet thee, thou fire breathing steed of the rail,
Thy pathway completed, thy advent we hail!
Thou hast sped afar, over mountains and plains,
Where none but the rude savage unquestioned did reign,
Where the bison and antelope roamed in their pride,
By cliffs which look down on the Platt's turbid tide.

"Thy track has been builded with wisdom and toil,
Such as may not from obstacles ever recoil.
When the God of a nation is urging them on
To a goal like the present awaits to be won
Shall an empire lie waste in its savage repose,
Or a wilderness put on the bloom of a rose?

"Shall millions of acres of land lie untilled,
While the earth is with millions of homeless ones filled?
Or shall it be myriads of freemen be trod,
'Till all becomes fair as the Garden of God?
Let the brave sons of toil find home and find bread,
Where the broad fertile plains are luxuriantly spread.

"Let the eagle brood o'er them in peace like the dove,
Our hearts bid them welcome with brotherly love.
Thus teaching the savages lessons of peace,
Which may cause strife and carnage forever to cease
For example, if good, e'en with them may prevail,
Where unpracticed precept most surely will fail.

"The sword and the Bible too long have been tried To subdue the rude savages' untamable pride
And tribes who now roam o'er broad Western plains Find still only bloodshed, and enmity reigns.

"Then let the plow share and the pruning hook come,
With pleasures attending a civilized home.
Then e'er long all strife and destruction will cease,
And thy advent will herald the Advent of Peace.
Then speed on thy mission from mountain to sea
And the glad shouts of millions thy welcome shall be."

August 31, 1859, Mrs. Johns was wedded to J. W. Johns of Sutter County, also a Pioneer of 1852. To this union nine children were born, and her descendants also include eight grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren. She recently called on her youngest great-grandchild, John Phelphs O'Kane, born to Mr. and Mrs. O'Kane of Oakland.

A BIT O' FARMING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

IMPORTANT AGRICULTURAL DISCOVERY

ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT AGricultural discoveries of a century has recently been announced at the University of California, where Dr. C. B. Lipman, Professor of Plant Nutrition in the College of Agriculture, has made known the success of his experiments in treating trees directly through injections. The theory is not new, but the method of application is distinctive, and successful. Boring holes in tree trunks and administering chemicals has been tried by various experimenters for the last forty years, but their attempts at cures have brought either negative results or none at all.

Dr. Lipman's test was brought about through his effort to find a remedy for chlorosis, a disease of the trees caused by a lack of iron in the soil, and manifested by a yellowing of the leaves, or a lack of the chlorophyl or green coloring. He found the iron could not be made available as a plant food in the soil, for the alkalinity which precipitated the iron naturally in the soil had the same effect on ferrous solutions introduced into it. Sprays of ferrous sulphates did little good, although green spots appeared on the leaves wherever the chemical was able to enter. Injections directly into the body of the tree were then tried, and after some experimentation were successful.

Dr. Lipman bores about three-quarters of the way through the trunk of the tree, to be sure to tap the sap circulation which carries the sustenance to the leaves and fruit. A glass tube is placed in the hole and held in place by a specially prepared wax. A small rubber hose leads from the outer end of this tube to a small reservoir placed at about the height of the tree top, to provide a mild pressure for the liquid. The solution is then fed to the tree, and 300 lemon trees in the huge planting of the Mills Orchard Corporation near Maxwell, in Colusa County, which were so seriously affected by chlorosis as to be marked for destruction, now are thriving and as healthy as any trees in the orchard.

Important as this announcement is, the real significance of the discovery lies in the possibility of its extension to other trees and other tree diseases. Dr. Lipman found, for instance, that he could stimulate production in deciduous trees by an injection of magnesium. Preliminary tests indicate that aphis can be controlled by feeding the tree a solution of poison not sufficiently strong to harm the tree, but still strong enough to kill the aphis. Pear blight, the bane of the California grower, may be controlled by this method. While the discovery is still in its infancy, and not enough of its possibilities are known upon which to base a real prediction, it seems safe to assume that Dr. Lipman's contribution to horticulture is distinctly meritorious, and one the far-reaching effects of which may completely revolutionize pest control and tree disease treatments throughout the United States.

NEXT YEAR'S CROP.

With the production season at an end in the orchards of the state, the grower should turn his attention at this time to the preparations for next year's crop. Pruning, fertilizing and spraying all must be considered, if fruit is to be of quality standard, and the time for preparation is now, so that operations in the orchard may not be delayed when the time is ripe for the application of fungicides to protect the trees or insecticides to kill scale and similar pests. Dormant sprays are recognizedly important, and if done thoroughly and promptly, will serve to increase both quantity and quality of fruit. If not well done, spraying becomes a liability rather than an asset.

Right now, sprays to control peach blight, shot-hole fungus, peach curl leaf and brown rot should be administered. As a rule, spraying should precede pruning, so that the latter operation may remove all dead wood, dead scale, incrusted branches, diseased twigs and mummied fruit. Among the insects that are to be controlled by dormant sprays are San Jose scale, Italian pear scale, brown apricot scale and others, as well as eggs of aphis and the red spider.

TIME TO PLANT BULBS.

First of the flowers to welcome the spring and most glorious among the bedded delights of the farm and city, are the tulips, narcissus and others that come from bulbs. Now is the time to plant, anywhere except in the sections of the state where the ground freezes. There is no flower that repays better the small outlay of money and labor required for their production than those that come from bulbs. Get good varieties, give them a chance in at least fair soil, and the reward will be ample.

CALIFORNIA SAFEGUARDED.

The outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease in Texas has again endangered the livestock industry of the United States, but prompt quarantine measures by the California State Department of Agriculture have safeguarded California, which but a short time ago suffered so heavily from the disease and the quarantines laid against this state.

Criticism was directed against California because of this quarantine, which went beyond the federal regulations; but when it is understood that Texas stockmen were not permitting the slaughter of their cattle, that no quarantine lines had been drawn, there seemed to be no other solution to the problem. However, with the observance by Texas of federal requirements, California immediately modified her quarantine. The situation now appears to be well in hand.

NATIONAL GRANGE MEETING.

National problems in agriculture are to be considered at the annual meeting of the National Grange, to be held in Sacramento beginning November 6. The grange is the oldest agricultural organization in the United States and one of the most influential. It comes to the Pacific Coast this year for the first time, and the convention in Sacramento will be one of the most important in the many years of the existence of the organization.

Speakers of national importance, agricultural authorities known throughout the world, will discuss problems that are of vital interest to farmers of the nation. The meeting of the California State Grange will be held in conjunction with the national convention.

IMPORTANT GATHERING.

Another meeting of real importance to the farmers of California, is the Fifty-seventh State Fruit Growers' and Farmers' Convention, which also will be held in Sacramento, beginning November 3 and lasting three days. These conventions have brought about some of the most important steps in the agricultural development of California. The organization of the Agricultural Legislative Committee, through which the farmers demand and secure legislation, was conceived at one of these conventions. So, too, was the Western Plant Quarantine Board, composed of eleven Western states, British Columbia and Hawaii, operating and co-operating to prevent the spread of insect pests and plant diseases.

The California State Department of Agriculture, which now supervises these conventions, owes its existence directly to them. Problems of importance, such as transportation, refrigeration, production and farm practice are discussed by the leading authorities in the state, and the convention has become the best known and most productive gathering of its kind in the United States.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY FAIR.

County fairs are held in many, if not most, counties of California, and admittedly to the benefit of agriculture. But the San Diego County Fair, one of the most successful and largest in the state, justly claims a real distinction. It is truly a San Diego County fair, for only the products of that county are shown. The versatility of the county is forcibly presented in the exhibits, which this year were made by more than 700 San Diego County farmers. Few fairs in the state can equal it, and very few, indeed, surpass it.

WHITEWASH GOOD INVESTMENT.

Whitewashing of trees should be done in the late fall or the early winter. Contrary to the belief of many, sunburn damage occurs mostly in the winter, when the days are warm and the nights are sharp and frosty. Then the range in temperature is dangerous. It will run from 100 degrees in the bark of the trees on a sunny winter afternoon to below freezing at sunrise in the morning. Dark surfaces absorb heat, light surfaces reflect it. Consequently, a coat of whitewash is a mighty good investment, or rather insurance, for your trees right now.

CLEAN UP.

Clean up! This is the time when all the old stalks and vines should be removed from the garden, when the litter should be removed from the corners, weeds that have been allowed to remain too long should be taken out, and all hiding places for insect and other pests removed. See that there is no dirt—and by dirt soil is not meant, but dirt,—left in the garden, in the orchard or in the field.

NEW FEATURE WELL RECEIVED.

The newest county fair to make its bow to California agriculture appeared this year in Modesto, Stanislaus County. With tent housing and no background of attainment through past years, it must be admitted as one of the best that occurred. It was primarily a farm bureau fair, and each farm bureau center in the county, instead of showing a conglomeration of produce, typified in its exhibit some achievement of the year.

As a result, the fair was a panorama of the agricultural development in Stanislaus during the past twelvemonth, and was most interesting. Not that the exhibits of fruits, grains and other products of the soil were neglected, for they were among the best in the state; but the idea, new in conception and splendid in practice, furnished a refreshing change from the stereotyped order of fairs.

FATTENING THE HOLIDAY BIRD.

At this time of the year, turkey growers are beginning to put weight on the fowls intended to grace the holiday boards of California. Most

N. D. G. W. NEWS

Andresen, chairman of the Grand Parlor history committee, spoke entertainingly on the "History of California Previous to the Admission of the State into the Union." Each speaker was greeted in a most unique manner by the Salinas representation.

A burlesque "Bathing Girl Revue," staged by fifteen members of Copa de Oro 105, brought forth gales of laughter. The "Magic Pipe," an exceedingly clever and well-arranged stunt by eighteen members of Aleli 102 and directed by Mrs. Jessie Parker, was greeted with hearty and merited applause. Dancing, games, social conversation and the serving of refreshments brought a happy evening to a close. Sunday was given over to wading parties and the enjoyments of a perfect autumn day at the beach. After luncheon all dispersed for their respective homes more enthused than ever before with the value and enjoyment of the district gatherings. In commemoration of these happy meetings, the Asilomar management was presented with a State (Bear) Flag, to be placed in social hall.

growers are content to let their turkeys continue on the ranges, adding to their diet sufficient grain to put on the desired poundage. Attempts have been made to fatten turkeys in confinement, but they have not been generally successful. The birds put on weight for a few days, but soon lose their appetites and, consequently, the desired flesh that brings profits. Indications for a good turkey crop in California this year are excellent, and the farmers should realize fair profits when the fowls are sold.

CALIFORNIA TO BE REPRESENTED.

Of interest to the livestock industry of California, is the announcement that the University of California is to compete again this year at the Chicago International Livestock Exposition. Last year the splendid string of California victories was interrupted through the quarantines imposed because of the foot-and-mouth disease. This year a full show string of cattle, sheep and hogs will be taken to Chicago. The consignment will leave Davis, Yolo County, November 13, and a send-off luncheon is planned at the University Farm on the preceding Tuesday. The Blackhawk Ranch in Alameda County has also

ANNUAL FRUIT SHOW.

The annual fruit show at the College of Agriculture in Berkeley will be held as usual this year, the week preceding Thanksgiving, in Hilgard Hall. There will be no fruit growers' institute this year, however. The displays will be mainly of plate quantity, and will include apples, pears, grapes, figs, dates and nuts, although some soft fruits have been kept in refrigeration for exhibition. Practically every county in California will be represented, and displays from a dozen or more states to the east and north have been promised. The display will last for an entire week.

FEES FOR 1926 AUTO LICENSES MAY BE PAID THIS MONTH.

Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, announces that fees for 1926 automobile licenses may be mailed to the division's headquarters in Sacramento as early as November 15. This was made possible by changes in the motor vehicle law at the last State Legislature.

The 1926 plates, however, will not be delivered until after January 1. Motorists this year are required to submit only the white certificate of registration. The pink certificate of ownership is not necessary.

Autos Increase—To September 30 this year, auto vehicle registrations in California were 44,108 in excess of all of 1924, the figures being, respectively, 1,394,867 and 1,350,759. Of the increase, 30,000 is credited to automobiles. Will H. Marsh, Chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, predicts there will be 100,000 additional registrations before 1925's close.

Road Show—The All-Western Road Show begins a week's run in San Francisco, November 9. Every phase of road building will be discussed.

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1860.)

MRS. CECILIA BOARDMAN-DICKSON, native of Illinois, 83; with her father, Joseph Purdy, came in a covered wagon to California in 1852 and resided for many years in Nevada County; in 1858, at Grass Valley, she was wedded to J. H. Boardman, an early-day postmaster there, who died in 1882, and later married Horace L. Dickson of San Leandro, Alameda County; died at Oakland, survived by four children, among them J. A. Boardman, affiliated with Piedmont Parlor No. 120 N.S.G.W. (Oakland).

Mrs. Frank P. Hogan, native of Indiana, 73; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1852; died at San Gabriel, Los Angeles County, survived by a husband and three daughters.

Mrs. Sophronia Jane Black, native of Iowa, 89; came across the plains in 1853 and resided in Napa and Solano Counties; died at Fairfield, survived by five children.

William Phillips Edwardes, native of Pennsylvania, 76; came in 1852 and for years resided in San Francisco; died at Three Rivers, Tulare County, survived by a wife and two children. His father, a Pioneer of '49, is said to have built the first shingle mill in California, at Corte, Madera County.

Mrs. Eugenia Baudin, native of France, 89; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1853 and resided until 1907 in Calaveras County; died at Stockton, survived by a daughter.

George W. Langdon, native of England, 95; since 1855 a miner of Plumas County; died at Quincy.

Mrs. Nancy Gard, native of Tennessee, 82; crossed the plains in 1854 and resided in the San Joaquin Valley and Lake County; died at Kelseyville, survived by seven children.

I. Jay Buckley, native of Iowa, 79; came in 1856 and after five years' residence in Alameda County settled in Merced County; died near Snelling, survived by a wife and a daughter. He was a son of Sylvanus Buckley, a Pioneer of 1849.

Mrs. Lydia Hickerson-Lee, native of Illinois, 83; crossed the plains in 1859 and settled in Indian Valley, Plumas County; died near Greenville, survived by three daughters.

Mrs. Emma L. Waterman, native of Louisiana, 82; in 1852 settled in Sacramento City, where she died; four children survive.

Judge George W. Hunter, native of Missouri, 72; came with his parents in 1854 and after a short residence in Amador County settled in Humboldt County; died at San Francisco, survived by a wife and four daughters. For twenty years deceased was superior judge of Humboldt County.

Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Scott, native of Alabama, 87; crossed the plains in 1857, settling in Stockton, San Joaquin County, where she died; surviving are seven children.

Mrs. Julia Sanford-Fellows, native of Kentucky, 93; crossed the plains in 1853 and resided for many years in Yuba, Placer and Nevada Counties; died at Oakland, survived by three children.

J. L. Peters, native of Germany, 90; came in 1853 and resided in San Mateo, Tuolumne and Sonoma Counties; died at Petaluma, survived by a wife and thirteen children. "Deceased," says the "Argus" of Petaluma, "was one of the last, if not the very last, of a coterie of rugged, honest, splendid Pioneers who, many years ago, laid the foundation for the present prosperous Sonoma County."

Mrs. L. D. Johnston, native of Massachusetts, 87; came in 1857 and long resided in Amador County; died at Oakland, survived by four children.

OLD TIMERS PASS

Bonshey, a mining man of Catalina Island and Kern County who at one time owned the silver mines on the island. May 4, 1869, at Catalina, she was wedded to William Jasper, also a mining man. San Francisco was the destination for the honeymooners, and they landed there the morning of May 9, the day of the celebration of the placing of the golden spike on the Central Pacific. Mrs. Jasper inquired of the vessel's captain as to the reason for the celebration, and he replied that the people of San Francisco were celebrating her arrival in that city.

In Memoriam

MARY JOSEPHINE SAVAGE.

For the first time that name is one yet relentless visitor, Death, hath entered the portals of our Parlor, broken the chain of fraternity and ensnared a dear sister, Mary Josephine Savage, to the bourne of the beyond. Her zealous work in the interests of our beloved Parlor, and her life laden with gentleness and kind deeds, have won for her the plaudits of the good Master and will cause her name to be cherished in the inner sanctum memory of our Parlor. And

Whereas, The All-wise Father hath called our beloved sister to the New Jerusalem, where happily she hath heard the signal of her release in the bells of the Holy City, the chimes of Eternal Peace; and now she having been a faithful and ardent worker in the teachings of our Order, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Rubicunda Parlor No. 230 Native Daughters of the Golden West, in testimony of its loss and to express sisterly love, hall its flag for thirty days; and that we tender to the family of our sister our sincere condolence, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, one to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and a copy spread on the minutes.

CHARLOTTE M. SANDSTROM
CATHERINE MARY ROSS,
CARRIE E. LENHOUSE,
Committee.

San Pedro, October 9, 1925.

THOMAS EDWARD McLAUGHLIN.

The Angel of Death has invaded our ranks and taken away our beloved brother, Thomas Edward McLaughlin. Whereas, Brother McLaughlin was a charter member of Byron Parlor No. 170 N.S.G.W., and by his noble acts, kindly disposition and sincerity of purpose he endeared himself to all who knew him, and we who have been so long closely associated with him shall keenly feel the loss of him in our Parlor, now, therefore, be it Resolved, That we, the members of Byron Parlor No. 170 Native Sons of the Golden West, extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, and be it further resolved, that the charter of this Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, in his memory, and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy be forwarded to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

H. G. KRUMLAND,
W. W. HOFFMAN,
GEO. A. GEDDES,
Committee.

Byron, October 20, 1925.

MARY WAGNER SCHONFELD.

To the Officers and Members of Darina Parlor No. 114 N.D.G.W.—Dear Sisters: We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister, Mary Wagner Schonfeld, submit the following:

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of the Almighty God, our sister has passed on to take up her duties in the Heavenly Parlor on High; we have lost a sister whose noble character and kind disposition endeared her to all; therefore be it,

Resolved, That in token of our heartfelt sympathy for her bereaved family, a copy of these resolutions be sent to them; and be it further resolved, that they be spread in full upon the minutes of this Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Fraternally submitted in P.D.F.A.,
BESSIE PETERS,
SADIE WEINBERG,
MINNIE RUESER,
Committee.

San Francisco, October 9, 1925.

FRANKLIN J. BIGLOW.

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of Almighty God, our friend and brother, Franklin J. Biglow, has passed on to take up his duties in the Heavenly Parlor on High; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Biglow, General Winn Parlor No. 32 Native Sons of the Golden West has lost one of its most loyal members and earnest workers, the City of Antioch one of its most respected citizens, and Brother Biglow's family a loving father and a true brother; now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the members of General Winn Parlor No. 32 Native Sons of the Golden West extend our most heartfelt sympathy to the members of Brother Biglow's family in this their sad hour of bereavement, and sincerely pray that their sorrow may be tempered in the thought that God, in His infinite mercy, knows best, and be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning and that General Winn Parlor at its next regular meeting close in loving respect to the memory of our departed brother, and be it further resolved, that copies of these resolutions be sent to the members of Brother Biglow's family, that copies be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine and "Antioch Ledger," and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of General Winn Parlor.

Respectfully submitted in F. L. & C.,
W. FIELD,
THOS. H. McCOY,
C. W. HORNBACK,
Committee.

FIRST AMERICAN FLAG RAISING SITE IN CALIFORNIA MARKED.

Hollister (San Benito County)—The dedication October 4 of an eighty-foot flagpole upon the summit of Fremont Peak, to mark the site of the first American Flag raising in California, by Captain John C. Fremont in 1846, was attended by about 200 hundred persons, including Native Sons and Native Daughters from Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties. In the crowd were the following Native Son grand officers: Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb and Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Outside Sentinel George A. Dethlefsen; also, Past Grand Presidents Thomas Flint and Lewis F. Byington.

Bertha A. Briggs, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., was mistress of ceremonies. Mr. Fitzpatrick, in behalf of a cement company, presented a large American Flag, which was hoisted by a squad of ex-service men while the assemblage sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Addresses were made by George H. Moore and Frank B. Abbe, and Lewis F. Byington delivered an oration. The Native Son grand officers dedicated a bronze plaque, reading as follows:

"Fremont Memorial. On this spot the American Flag was raised for the first time on California soil by John C. Fremont, March 4, 1846. Dedicated by San Juan Bautista Parlor No. 179, N.D.G.W., Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105 N.D.G.W. and Fremont Parlor No. 44 N.S.G.W."

March 4, when the Fremont Memorial Association holds its annual ceremonies on Fremont Peak, the Grand Parlor N.S.G.W. will present a large State (Bear) Flag to fly from the flagpole along with the national emblem.

CALIFORNIA CITIES' POPULATION ESTIMATED BY FEDERAL BUREAU.

Estimates of population made public October 12 by the Federal Census Bureau disclose the following population figures for some of California's larger cities:

San Francisco, 559,630.
Oakland, 253,700.
San Diego, 106,047.
Long Beach, 91,182.
Sacramento, 72,260.
Berkeley, 66,209.
Fresno, 58,485.
Pasadena, 56,732.
Stockton, 47,287.
San Jose, 43,551.
No estimate was made for Los Angeles.

AN INCH OF RAINFALL'S WEIGHT.

Two men were disputing as to the weight of an inch of rainfall. "I read somewhere that it is 101 tons of water to the acre," said one. "No," said the other, "I'm positive the correct figure is 113 tons." The Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture says that both are right.

The rainfall in the first instance was reckoned by the long ton, or 2,240 pounds, the common ton in Great Britain. The long ton is used for some purposes in this country, but the short ton, or 2,000 pounds, which gave the second result, is more usual here.

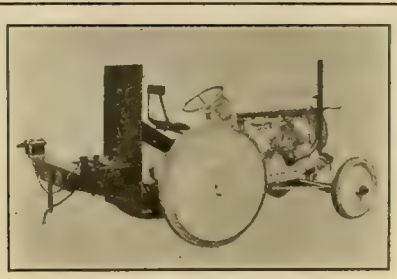
tion for the playing ball, and the best players make shots of two to five rails with remarkable accuracy. The need of proficiency in banking is especially noticed when one player is tied up behind an arch. He must be able to figure out a bank to hit one of the balls. The average player is generally content with trying a one-rail bank, but the expert prefers a multi-rail shot. Those who are good at billiards excel at this shot and they give the spectators a thrill when the ball is driven against several rails and then connects with a ball. Another billiard shot that is useful is a combination whereby a third ball is driven near a desired position.

In every game of roque the losing player always has at least one chance. If "A" wins a lag and makes a home run from the first shot, "B" will have a shot before "A" has a chance to repeat his home run with the other ball and end the game. So the importance of a good tie-up is evident if a player wishes to keep the balls. One of the meanest tie-ups possible is to place the ball against a wire so that it can be driven in but one direction, and then place the other balls in the most inaccessible position.



Nursing the balls is another important feature of the game. This consists in keeping the balls close together so that near position to the arches can be obtained and no long shots required for balls or arches. This is the prettiest style of play and the safest, although it is more spectacular to drive a ball several feet to an arch or make a long hit.

The game appeals to old and young, as it can be played for light exercise or diversion. The walking about the court, bending over and shooting, give good muscular exercise, and mental alertness is required in planning your game, studying your opponent's style of play, finding his strong and weak points and his reactions to the different situations of the game. The young player can utilize all his nervous energy if he wishes to play a tight game, and the need of concentration in such cases is as great as can be possible in any other game. The game is never won until the last point is made, and often a single careless shot has cost a player a game. Many times a player has made his thirty points, and failing to stake out has lost the balls to an opponent who made the whole thirty-two points from that stage of the game. A prominent Chicago physician, in recommending roque as an aid to health, says: "Roque, more than any other game of which I know, furnishes the form of treatment required for relieving human ailments, and to my mind the mental requirements for a good game of roque are comparable to the mental activity of a general in the army."

Eddie Clark, former champion, says that roque is an old man's game but that it takes a young man to play it. While this has been demonstrated beyond question in champion play, yet the Long Beach Club has a number of octogenarians among its members who play a really good game, which is a good testimonial for Long Beach climate as an aid to longevity and to the game of roque as a pastime for those in declining years.

At the close of the February tournament the American Roque League will award nine official medals, being first, second and third in each of the three divisions. In addition to these, the diamond medal awarded by the Washington Park Club of Chicago, and the Gates-Underhill challenge medal will be defended by the champion. Other trophies will be awarded, including one of the famous Kramer mallets.

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

ELABORATION BOWLING EVERYBODY OVER

FASHION, THIS AUTUMN, TAKES MORE than its usual delight in preparing styles for every age. Each member of the family, from the tiny tot to the stately grandmother, has, as her rightful possession, modes distinctive and beautiful. Grandmother need not feel herself bound to the fashions of youth as the only means of escaping dowdiness, for the vogue offers her its newest features in adaptations of flowing lines and rich fabrics, especially suited to her mature poise and grace.

Every mother, as well, will find daintiness and sweet childish charm in the advance models for her children's frocks. When planning her little girl's fall wardrobe, the wise mother will first of all sum up the newest phases of the styles likely to give most character and use.

The little girl, herself, will rejoice if mother selects the new jumper frock with quaint overbodice fastening with buttons to the skirt section. It is the newest fancy for the littlest girl, and is made in soft cashmere or one of the warm-colored plaid woolens, trimmed with bands and cuffs of contrasting fabric. This little schoolgirl's dress achieves the last word in smartness.

The child of petite type wears, with fairylike grace, the new flare adopted for children's dress-up frocks, and the sturdier youngster also enjoys its fluffiness. An alluring party frock might be made of the softest satin, with flared sections swinging from shoulder to hem.

The little daughter of six will look well in one of the lace trimmed frocks, with perhaps a lace bertha and a short, frilly skirt of lace attached to the long-pleated bodice. The well-dressed junior's hose are darker than her older sister's.

A trim little kasha frock is made with a tweed or worsted coat. Silk and wool hose, in a deep beige, blend nicely with calfskin pumps. These have many perforations, with sometimes a little bow of the leather in the front.

Lisle stockings are good style, too, and, of course, for cold weather, there are the all-wool. They come in a whole range of colors,—grays and gunmetal to go with black pumps, and tan and beige to go with brown pumps. There are flesh pinks, also, for party wear.

Little hats are almost always of velour. A hat that goes with a coat of brown and white fancy worsted may be merely of light tan valour, all light tan, but it is much more apt to break out with a bit of violent color, or perhaps a shiny patent-leather band of scarlet or irish green, or a tailored grosgrain ribbon and bow of king's blue. The velour hats, themselves, run the color range of green, golden pheasant, black prince, king's blue and wine red.

The excitement of autumn openings wanes, but then follows the personal thrill of acquiring one's individual wardrobe. Then we seek what we may adopt for ourselves, and view ourselves in imagination, dressed in some of the marvelous creations. The designers have so well exploited a new note that it has come near to bowling everybody over. It is the one of elaboration.

Evening dress has mounted sky-high in process of decoration. We are used to that, but this new trend relates to day-time wear and afternoon dress especially. It is as though there had been a revolt against simplicity, for lines are not simple any more and by the same token details are elaborated. Trimmings are literally piled on, and this winter will see us the most decorated race of women.

Much has been written about the high collar, to appear as though wrapped for a sore throat. It looks very smart. Long sleeves and low waistlines for winter, unlike past seasons, are good.

Not one, but a variety of interesting hat shapes take their place at the head of the mode. As a charming example, there is the close-fitting, draped velvet toque made of two contrasting shades of blue, a color which is exceedingly smart this season. The body is developed of brilliant metal brocade and the soft drape of velvet proves very becoming. Adhering to the strictly tailored trend, is a striking chapeau of black satin, or panne velvet, with upturned brim and with handsome gold or silver ornament.

The large hat is not neglected. One original shape has a sectional crown of deep rose velvet and a wide rolled brim of the same lustrous fabric in black, slashed at the left side and caught down by two small gold ornaments. Many attractive hats display such clever treatments of velvet as shirred crowns, stitchings of self or contrasting shades, and mirrored effects which are obtained by pressing the pile of the velvet in two different directions. Rich fabrics require only the masterful touch to be molded into hats of flattering shape and original design. And delicate velvet is now the favored medium.

Corsets come under fire. They are suspected of a return to original capacities for discomfort, but there is little to be feared in this direction. The "natural" form is the desirable effect, and the molding of the dress must be slight and soft to be correct. Present methods of corseting will suffice; no change is needed. The larger woman will, of course, require as much restriction as she employs now for that troublesome overweight.

For the conservative, there is a great deal to choose from in the way of straighter bodices, with variously flared skirts. Bolero styles that conceal rather than define the figure, and many other lines that avoid extreme flares, continue to dominate.

Really, the side flare seems to be the one most liked,—widening the skirt at the sides and leaving the front and back both flat. The side flare tends to start higher up, and in this way does its part to raise the waistline.

There is now quite a bit of sash tying at the hips, a sort of draping with a wide girdle that ties in a nonchalant bow at front or side, which produces, naturally, a blousing bodice and leaves very little skirt visible.

As skirts continue to be extremely short, tunic details are remarkably tenacious. Just a suggestion is often made of a tight underskirt with a flared section set on at the hip. The more the tunic is slashed, seemingly the more fashionable it is, and the slashes give occasion for embroideries or pipings at the edges, to say nothing of opportunity for all kinds of contrasting underskirts.

The two-fabric dress is quite smart, having underskirt and possibly the sleeve puff in a different material and different color from the rest of the frock. Surplice closings and coat effects are in the mode.

Neck treatments do not change rapidly. The tie collar, the little band and other devices produce high neck effects that are often convertible. The pointed or "V"-neck opening is the most frequent outline, with the shallow round almost an institution. In the mode, ties unite in front or back, or else they fall casually without tying. Thus, with sashes and ties on gown and neck and sleeves, we find ourselves very secure in our garments.

LONG BEACH

In addition to the tournament schedule there will be many exhibition games between the best players, and night games will be played, as the courts are lighted and some of them will be covered so that rain will not interfere with the schedule.

The Long Beach City Council has generously agreed to build two new courts and the Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with the Long Beach Roque Club to make this one of the best tournaments, both in number and ability of entrants. Grandstand seats will be erected sufficient to seat all who wish to see the games, and as the seats are to be free, Long Beach offers two weeks of high-class entertainment at the cost of one's transportation and accommodations while here.

Among the players from the East who will enter the tournament are: Lester Clark, C. G. Carlson and G. E. Swanson of Chicago, who finished in the order named next to the champion in the last tournament; A. B. Argenbright, Kansas City, past holder of the Gates-Underhill medal; W. A. Rounds, Cleveland, Ohio, president of the American Roque League; W. H. Hoagland, Peoria, Ill., and others. Dr. R. H. Good of Chicago and Mrs. A. L. Whitney of Bradenstown, Florida, and other second and third division winners, have promsied to be on hand. Local entrants of note are A. G. Buffom, Los Angeles, past holder of the Gates-Underhill medal; F. C. Turner, Pasadena, former holder of the diamond medal, and A. S. Denny, present champion and holder of diamond and Gates-Underhill medals.

LONG BEACH NATIVE SONS PREPARING FOR OFFICIAL'S RECEPTION.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. initiated several candidates during October, and appointed Edgar McFadyen, Dr. S. T. Luce and "Bill" Schweizer to arrange for the official visit to the Parlor of Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi, November 18. A large attendance is anticipated, and the visitor will be given a royal welcome.

At the October 7 meeting Carroll B. Waite gave an interesting account of his trip to Coloma, Auburn, Grass Valley and other places in the northern part of the state. Following the October 21 meeting, a committee composed of Harold Feiock and E. M. Schlemmer served a feast in honor of the new members and of Charles E. Crowell, who has returned from his honeymoon in San Francisco. Captain J. D. Loop discoursed on the capturing of whales.

October 28, jointly with Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., an old-time Hallowe'en party was featured. There were ghost stories, weird music and appropriate refreshments. Several prizes were awarded.

Good Roads Bonds—The people of Marin County have voted, 5,511 to 760, for a bond issue of $1,250,000 for permanent good roads in that county.

Native Sons of the Golden West

SELL THE STORY OF CALIFORNIA AND CURE THE SUSPENSION EVIL.

SAN RAFAEL—GRAND FIRST VICE-president Hilliard E. Welch paid an official visit October 12 to Mount Tamalpais 64, and was accorded a most enthusiastic reception. Accompanying him were A. P. Krumb of Lodi 18 and Newman Cohn of 64, former deputy grand president.

In the course of a well-received address, Welch said that there are no cure-alls for the ill afflicting the Order of Native Sons, or any other fraternal organization—the suspension list. The fault rests with the members themselves, who do not "sell the story of California" to the initiates as they cross the Parlor threshold, and, not having absorbed the story, many of them lose interest and finally drop out. The older members, who have heard the story from the lips of the Pioneers, as he did from his grandparents and other sturdy Argonauts, appreciate the true worth and the noble aims of the Order. They are unswerving in their loyalty, and it is incumbent upon them, now, to "carry on." He strongly urged his hearers to "sell the story of California, the most romantic ever told," to the initiates and to the thousands of eligibles. He closed with a description to his enraptured audience of pilgrimages to many of California's historic places.

Charles Redding of Nicasio 183, treasurer of Marin County, delivered a splendid address on Marin Native Sonism, and paid a well-deserved tribute to Grand Vice-president Welch who, he said, was one of the first grand officers to visit his (Redding's) Parlor. He said Nicasio had hopes of some day having the honor of entertaining the Grand Parlor, and predicted for Welch a successful year as head of the Order.

Mount Tamalpais gave a Hallowe'en dance at Novato, and is arranging for a Thanksgiving Eve dance in the recently-completed Masonic auditorium in San Rafael.

GRAND PARLOR NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

Burlingame, October 5, 1925.

To the Officers and Members of the Subordinate Parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West—Dear Sirs and Brothers: The observance by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the admission of California into the Union as a State was an event attendant with such a remarkable exhibition of patriotism, loyalty and unselfish efforts on the part of the membership that it would seem timely that there should be some recognition thereof.

Never in the history of San Francisco nor the state was there presented a scene so magnificent, so wonderful and so fascinating to the beholders. It was the one day of the "jubilee" celebration, and I accord to the Native Sons and Daughters the exclusive credit for the success of the day. The countless thousands of spectators who viewed the parade attested the splendor of the pageant and their approval.

I congratulate each and every Native Son who participated in the memorable event. I want to praise each and every brother personally for the dignified, earnest and fine citizenship displayed all along the line of march. It showed to the people of the State of California that our Order is composed of high-minded men deeply interested in the affairs of the state, seeking to perpetuate its history and its traditions.

Every section was represented by members of the Order; they came to mingle with their brothers in a state-wide observance of the day. Special mention should be made of those from the southern part of the state whose attractive features were so prominent and whose numbers and enthusiasm invoked a spontaneous acclaim from their brothers.

It is noteworthy that the expenses of the parade were met and paid for by the Native Sons and Daughters and not by any other person, committee or organization. To each and every brother who patriotically and unselfishly expended his time and money in order that his Parlor might be properly represented, all of the credit that can be bestowed is due. We are proud of all the parades that have been a part of our observance of Admission Day in the past, and we are proud indeed, of the record that we made on the ninth day of September last.

The two Orders voluntarily, independently and at their own expense placed upon the streets of San Francisco a spectacle "unsurpassed for its beauty, unexcelled for its colorful setting and unrivaled for its historical significance." All honor and credit to the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Fraternally yours,
FLETCHER A. CUTLER,
Grand President.

Reward of Merit.

Santa Barbara—In tribute to his untiring efforts to make this city's splendid showing at the San Francisco diamond jubilee the success that it was, Harry C. Sweetser, tax collector of Santa Barbara County and secretary of Santa Barbara 116, was the honor-guest of a dinner October 6 sponsored by Reina del Mar 126 N.D.G.W. The affair opened with the singing of "I Love You, California," and concluded with dancing. During the evening there was a program of songs and dances. One hundred and fifty guests were in attendance. In presenting to Sweetser, for Santa Barbara, a silver cup, the third prize for the best group exhibit of the pageant. Malcolm Frasier (Golden Gate 29 N.S.G.W.), executive chairman of the San Francisco diamond jubilee citizens' committee, said, in part:

"The Santa Barbara unit was the best part of any Admission Day parade ever held. No finer cavalcade of horses and riders has ever been seen in any American city before. Santa Barbara won the respect and praise of all as a plucky and courageous city." In a gracious little address, President Edna Sharpe, on Reina del Mar's behalf, presented Sweetser with a diamond and platinum scarfpin, and to his wife, for her interest in those things which interest her husband, she presented a pair of silver candlesticks.

In responding to the deserved compliments, Sweetser said he had long had the desire to have Santa Barbara have a conspicuous part in California's diamond jubilee, and the earthquake could not shake his determination and enthusiasm. He said that he could not have succeeded, however, without the generous support given him by the people of Santa Barbara in general.

Past Presidents' General Assembly.

Oakland—The fifth session of the General Assembly, Past Presidents' Association, was held October 17, with representatives in attendance from the following assemblies: San Francisco 1, San Jose 2, East Bay 3, Marin 5, Fred H. Greely 6, San Joaquin 7, Fremont 8. Governor-general V. L. Orengo reported the formation of three new assemblies during the year: Fred H. Greeley No. 6 at Marysville, with membership from Nevada, Placer, Butte, Colusa, Sutter and Yuba Counties; San Joaquin No. 7 at Stockton, with membership from San Joaquin County; Fremont No. 8, with membership from Monterey, San Benito, Santa Cruz Counties.

F. P. PLAGEMAN, Manager

Officers were selected as follows: Joseph Ganong of San Jose 2, governor-general; V. L. Orengo of San Francisco 1, junior past governor-general; Charles L. McEnerney of San Francisco 1, lieutenant-governor-general, James F. Stanley of San Francisco 1, director-general, John T. Regan of San Francisco 1, secretary-treasurer; Leolin T. Sinnott of Fred H. Greely No. 6, marshal-general; George Dethlefsen of Fremont 8, A. J. Turner of San Joaquin 7, Herbert Dela Rosa of San Francisco 1, trustees-general, B. A. Orengo of San Francisco 1, guard-general, A. J. Mazzini of San Francisco 1, sentinel-general. These officers elect were installed by Ray B. Felton, past governor-general, assisted by Henry Faure and James P. Cronin.

At the memorial session in honor of the past presidents who passed away during the year, Charles L. McEnerney delivered the oration. Prior to the general assembly's closing the forty-one delegates listened to an inspiring address by Superior Judge E. P. McDaniel of Marysville, a representative from assembly No. 6.

In the evening the general assembly was entertained at a banquet given by Fruitvale 252, East Bay Assembly 3 P.P.A. and the N.D.G.W. Past Presidents' Association. James P. Cronin was the toastmaster and among the speakers were: V. L. Orengo, Past Grand Presidents Harry G. Williams and Thomas Monahan, Robert H. Waldear and Willis Edwards, respectively, president and financial secretary of Fruitvale, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, W. M. Manning.

Delightful Occasion.

San Jose—Members of Observatory 177 and Vendome 100 N.D.G.W. to the number of 300 and more enjoyed a turkey dinner, followed by dancing, October 1. The color scheme was white and gold, and those in attendance appeared in the gorgeous costumes worn in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant. Miniature hats were the favors. The occasion was a most delightful one.

Heart-to-Heart Talk

San Bernardino—A large number of the members of Arrowhead 110 were out October 21 to welcome Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi on the occasion of his official visit. Previous to the meeting, Grand Director John Andresen Jr. headed a committee of Arrowhead which entertained the visitor, in the Parlor's behalf, at a splendid dinner.

The attendants at the Parlor session following were given a treat—a heart-to-heart talk by Grand Vice-president Welch which was roundly applauded. Other speakers, who were also among the visitors, were Past Grand Presidents Herman C. Lichtenberger and William I. Traeger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, Charles R. Thomas, B. Neilson, William G. Newell. After the speech-fest a program of entertainment was presented and refreshments were served.

Arrowhead is evidencing much interest in the proposal to combine the Sixteenth National Orange Show, to be held next February, with the centennial celebration of the National Old Trails Highway.

School Dedicated.

Penngrove—Under the auspices of the Grand Parlor, Petaluma 27, Santa Rosa 28 and Sebastopol 143 dedicated the Penngrove, Sonoma County, school September 27. The dedicatory address was delivered by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, and in addition to the musical program there were addresses by Senator Hubert Slater, R. Waite and County Superintendent of Schools Miss Louise Clark.

On behalf of the three Parlors, H. B. Churchill, assistant district attorney, presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the Penngrove school, and they were accepted by Mrs. A. M. Jones, the principal.

Grand Trustee Visits.

Ukiah—Grand Trustee Frank I. Gonzalez paid an official visit to Ukiah 71, at a most wonder-

"KNOCKERS" DOING CALIFORNIA NO GOOD

Edward Reese

LOU JOHNSON, SECRETARY OF THE Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, issues a weekly newsletter which is a real gem and is eagerly looked for by all members of the chamber. The brilliant secretary, in the issue of October 17, comments on the actions of numerous California newspapers in referring to the Florida boom, and handled matter in big-type style as follows:

"It isn't always that we agree with what other people do, and one instance where we're off the reservation is the present attitude of some of our good folks toward Florida.

"We don't have to go back very far to recall how grieved and hurt we were when the Middle Western and Eastern papers took a swing at California and threw a lot of mud at us—some of which stuck. Remember what we said about it? Dirty, inconsistent, actuated by jealousy, etc., etc. And it was all of that and then some. After we unloaded on them for what they had unloaded on us we wouldn't have traded places with them under any consideration.

"Florida has been stepping out for the past few years—very swift and suddenlike during the past twelve months. Boom was no name for it. It has been a riot. But why describe conditions? We all know how these things go, for we have had one or two of them ourselves.

"Now what happens? Many of our people are talking and a number of our papers are publishing things concerning Florida that remind us of some of the criticisms that were leveled at California during that period in which we complained so bitterly of unfairness, selfishness and untruthfulness. Is this playing the game according to Hoyle? Are we going to allow ourselves to be classed with those who handed us the same sort of a wallop? Isn't it a fact that many of the attractive features of Florida and California are so similar in character that we can ill afford a mud-slinging campaign?

"California has arrived in spite of the knockers. She is spending money with both hands today to counteract the effect of the storm of slander and libel which was waged against her, and the results are justifying the expenditures. She is big enough to weather the gale and come through clean, and she is also big enough to be clean in her attitude toward others."

Californians who delight in "knocking" Florida are doing California no good. No nation, state, city, community or business ever got far by tearing down another. That is not the Native Son spirit. The Native Sons of San Pedro agree with the congenial Wilmington secretary, and hope the State of Florida will continue to progress as fast in the future as she has in the last three years.

ber 15, when a class of candidates were initiated by a ritual team from Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles, made up of Burrel D. Neighbours, Judge Louis P. Russill, John M. McCroskey, Leon J. Leonard, Dwight Crittenden, Carl A. Mueller, Walter M. Slosson, Glen J. Packer, Ralph I. Harbison, Julius Krause. Big delegations were present from Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 and Ramona. First Vice-president "Bill" Reuter was made chairman of a committee to arrange for the official visit to Sepulveda, November 19, of Grand First Vice-president Hillard E. Welch, and a gala time is promised.

The feature of the evening was a talk on the early history of California by Historiographer Roy W. Cloud, superintendent of Redwood City schools and affiliated with Redwood Parlor No. 66. In an interesting manner he enlightened his hearers as to the trials and accomplishments of some of the Pioneers who helped to lay the cornerstone of California. Other speakers, among the visitors, included Grand Trustee John T. Newell, President Burrel D. Neighbours of Ramona and First Vice-president Andrew Stodel of Los Angeles Parlor. And then, in behalf of that Parlor, President James Dodson Jr. invited all to adjourn to the banquet room, where one of Sepulveda's famous feasts awaited.

THIMBLE CLUB NAMED POPPY.

At the October 23 meeting of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. several candidates were initiated, officers of Long Beach Parlor No. 151 exemplifying the ritual. Following the meeting a demonstration supper was served. This was to have been featured October 9, but was postponed because of the sudden passing of Josephine Savage, a member of the Parlor and sister of President Margaret Dever.

Rudecinda's recently organized sewing club has been christened the Poppy Thimble Club, and meets every Thursday at the home of some member. During October, Marie Smith, Leota Brucker, Carrie Lenhouse entertained the club at their homes. Preparations for the Hallowe'en dance October 31 have been perfected by the good of the order committee, under whose auspices it will be given,—Carrie Lenhouse (chairman), Amy Hagenow, Abigail Hagenow.

Marie Stone, a member of the Parlor, writes from Indiana that she intends spending the winter there, "to see what cold weather is like." Leota Brucker, affiliated with Rudecinda, is head of the P. T. A. school clinical work in San Pedro this year.

PROUD OF JUBILEE SHOWING.

Sepulveda Parlor of Native Sons and Rudecinda Parlor of Native Daughters are quite proud of the showing made by San Pedro at the diamond jubilee celebration in San Francisco, where Mrs. Rudecinda F. S. de Dodson, pioneer resident, captured first prize for having the most beautiful costume at the grand ball. It was a magnificent Spanish creation, worn by Mrs. de Dodson's grandmother many years ago, and received much publicity throughout the state, the leading newspapers of San Francisco devoting much space to pictures of Mrs. de Dodson and to a history of the gown and the old family name which has been so well preserved.

Mrs. de Dodson's son, James H. Dodson Jr., is one of the most active members of Sepulveda Parlor, while his esteemed mother made possible the formation of Rudecinda Parlor, which promises to become one of the largest and most active in the Order of Native Daughters.

The Dodson name is well woven into the past and present history of San Pedro. The beautiful Plaza Park, overlooking the ocean between Seventh and Fourteenth streets, was a gift to the city by the Dodsons. Mrs. de Dodson, besides many other gifts, made possible the American Legion home here, donating valuable ground for the beautiful structure in West Tenth street.

FEW BEAMS MARK SITE OF CALIFORNIA'S FIRST PAPER MILL.

A recent issue of "Northwestern Pacific Headlight" contains a graphic account of the paper mill which was one of the leading industries of California in its day. Only a few old beams remain to mark the site where the old mill stood on Paper Mill Creek, at Taylorville, Marin County.

The mill stood in the virgin forest and began to do business in 1856, having been erected and put in operation by S. P. Taylor, who died in 1886 and was buried beside two sisters in a quiet spot near the home-town.

This was the pioneer paper mill in California and also the first one built west of the Mississippi. Not far from the paper mill stood a powder mill. The settlement was a day's journey from San Francisco in the old days. The panic of 1893 brought ruin to this flourishing business and closed the paper mill.

Henry G. Dinkelspiel of Bay City Parlor No. 104 N.S.G.W. chairman. Dinkelspiel succeeded the late Federal Judge Maurice T. Dooling, who was chairman of the board at the time of his death. Ariana W. Stirling, Past Grand President of the Native Daughters, was elected vice-chairman, and Mary E. Brusie of Argonaut Parlor No. 166 N.D.G.W. (Oakland) was re-elected secretary.

During the past year children placed for adoption averaged nearly one for each business day of the year. The total number of adoptions since the organization was founded has been over three thousand.

THE TRAGEDY

What a vast difference between his ideas and mine! One thing troubles me: that we may be found before we are dead. I fear the cyanic acid is weak and may seem to do its work but has not. Do not allow us to be buried until we are known to be dead. I have drawn so many into this. Poor old Delano! No one can know the pain I suffer when I reflect on him and others."

Michael Brennan was too proud to live in poverty and to endure the sting of failure. He did not want to leave his family to struggle along in adversity, and so he took death as a solution of his heartache. That his unfortunate act was in time proven to have been premature and unnecessary, is shown by subsequent events.

The Massachusetts Hill Mining Company, organized by Delano, Chauvenet and others who were formerly connected with the Mount Hope Company fiasco, with a number of San Francisco capitalists began operations some years later on the hill. The aphorism that "It takes a gold mine to work a quartz mine," had now come to be an acknowledged fact, and this company proceeded to explore, where Superintendent Brennan left off in 1857, with ample capital to sink a shaft a thousand feet in depth if necessary. In April 1864 this company took possession of the Brennan shaft. It obtained the rig and other property by legal process, by purchase and otherwise, and began work.

Had Superintendent Brennan been permitted to put in one more blast before the writ of attachment stopped work in December 1857, he would have uncovered the fortune he sought. Three inches below the bottom of the shaft on one side and eighteen inches below on the other, a vein of quartz two feet wide, that milled $38 a ton, was struck, and it yielded a fortune to its owners.

Since then Massachusetts Hill, with its ledges, has become a part of the North Star workings. Of the $40,000,000 in gold this big company has produced from its quartz veins, that mined from Massachusetts Hill is not segregated, but a goodly part has been obtained there. A ledge discovered at the 1,200-foot level some years ago yielded over $1,000,000 before it pinched out.

And then came an aftermath!

a university professor on an interesting subject. November 20, a class of candidates will be initiated. For December 4, an "open" night, "Skinny" Leonard of the good of the order committee promises a program that will surpass any before presented—and that's promising a great deal.

To date, the following have taken out $100 life memberships in Ramona, under the recently-enacted legislation which provides that all revenue from this source shall go into the building fund: Harry J. Lelande, Calvert Wilson, Charles E. Ames, William J. Hunsaker, John Edward Sullivan, Eddie Schmidt, George Jacob Kuhrts, Richard E. Barry, Isaac A. Lothian, Richard J. Dillon, Alfred H. Wilcox, Louis Sentous Jr., George S. Wilson, John M. Carson, Fred J. Fischer, George B. Beebe, William F. Nordholt, John W. Henderson.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS SUCCESSES.

The October social functions of Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W.—the dance of the 1st and the Hallowe'en party of the 29th—both under the supervision of the good of the order committee, John W. Topham chairman, were complete successes. October 22 early adjournment was taken and the members paid a fraternal visit to Los Angeles 45.

Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch paid an official visit to Corona, October 15. Among the other visitors were Past Grand President William I. Traeger and District Deputy William E. Coffey. Following the good of the order, during the course of which there were several addresses, refreshments were served by Harry Jorder.

Corona's November program includes initiation the 5th, a smoker the 12th, and nomination of officers for the January-July term the 19th. The 26th being Thanksgiving Day, there will be no meeting. The Parlor's orchestra is progressing favorably; a few more instruments, particularly basses, are needed.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. Mary E. Aubury, affiliated with Los Angeles Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., passed away following a long illness October 10. She was born at Michigan Flat, El Dorado County, May 6, 1863, the daughter of the late James and Mary Adair; for thirty years she had resided in Los Angeles. Mrs. Aubury was the sister of J. A. Adair Sr. and J. S. Adair (Ramona N.S.) of this city and C. F. Adair of Yosemite Valley.

Mrs. Esther Slavin, mother of David Slavin (Corona N.S.), passed away October 14, at the age of 73.

Mrs. Annie Kelly, mother of Edward J. Kelly (Ramona N.S.), passed away October 19, at the age of 63.

Joseph Duarte, father of Manuel A. Duarte (Ramona N.S.), died October 22 at San Gabriel, at the age of 70. He was a son of Andreas Duarte, who at one time held the original grant deed to the Duarte rancho, which included the sites of Duarte and Monrovia.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A native son has arrived at the home of Howard Bixby (Ramona N.S.).

Sidney B. Witkowski (Los Angeles N.S.) made a business trip to Kentucky last month.

Genial Gus Alvarez (Vaquero N.S.) is recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Sheriff William I. Traeger (Ramona N.S.) was elected president of the California Peace Officers' Association at the fifth annual convention held at Stockton the latter part of September.

Colonel Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel (Bay City N.S.), Charles L. McEnerney (James Lick N.S.) and Chancellor K. Grady (Pacific N.S.), all of San Francisco, were among last month's visitors.

Miss Mary E. Brusie (Argonaut N.D.) of Oakland, executive head of the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Central Committee on Homeless Children, was a visitor the latter part of September.

Hilliard E. Welch (Lodi N.S.) of Lodi, one of the outstanding figures in the business and financial affairs of San Joaquin County, was a visitor last month, and was accompanied by Mrs. Welch.

Roy W. Cloud (Redwood N.S.), superintendent of Redwood City, San Mateo County, public schools, was a visitor last month. He was in attendance at the Pasadena gathering of the county and city public-school superintendents of the state.

NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY.

Santa Ynez (Santa Barbara Co.)—A notable golden wedding anniversary was that of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tunnell, celebrated at Los Olivos, October 20. Both were born in Sonoma County, near Santa Rosa. Their ten children and twelve grandchildren were present at the festivities. The weddingg cake was decorated with ten $20 gold pieces, gifts from their children.

Mrs. Tunnell's parents, John and Jane Hopper, came across the plains to California in 1847. Tunnell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Luther Tunnell, arrived in a covered wagon in 1852.

EGG EATING A VICE IN HENS.

Egg eating among hens is a vice hard to contend with, once it becomes established. Usually it develops from a broken egg in the laying house, or when fresh eggshells are thrown to the flock. Darkened, roomy nests, frequent removal of eggs, plenty of protein in the diet and the immediate removal of broken shells, are as near a remedy as has been suggested. Hens that show a particular tendency toward this vice soon will eat up all the profits they return to the producer, and are best taken to the block and disposed of.

New Plant Creations—Three new plant creations, a new type of sweet corn and new varieties of the aster and the rose, have been created by Luther Burbank, Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, plant scientist.

SAN DIEGO APPEALS TO THE WORLD

John H. N. Adams

(SAN DIEGO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA, BECAUSE OF a combination of unusually advantageous circumstances, has unquestionably greater potential possibilities than any other city on the Pacific Coast and, perhaps, in the United States.

San Diego, situated at the entry of the blue waters of the Pacific, has a most superb geographical location. It is the southwesternmost city of any moment in the United States. From Point Loma, one of the three most magnificent views of the world is unfolded to the fortunate visitor's enraptured gaze. Standing on the balcony of that picturesque old Spanish lighthouse of two or three centuries ago, and looking directly toward the east, one sees in the immediate foreground the sparkling water of San Diego Bay as it sweeps in through its only entrance and swings gracefully around North Island and Coronado. Beyond the harbor the entire City of San Diego is spread out, with the superb California tower in Balboa Park standing out prominently, while in the background range after range of rigid mountains complete this glorious vista.

The climate in this garden spot of the Pacific Coast is indescribably delightful. The mean annual temperature is about 63 degrees and the rise and fall in temperature can be accurately shown by the smallest thermometer in the world. With no sudden rise or fall in temperature and never any extreme heat or cold, with practically no humidity and no winds to speak of, San Diegans enjoy climatic conditions unsurpassed anywhere in the world. Snow never falls at any time, while the rainfall, which is restricted to the so-called rainy season of about two months, usually occurs during the hours of darkness, causing the minimum of inconvenience to the fortunate residents of the city.

Economically, San Diego is today on the dawn of a new era. The city is not, nor does it wish to be, undergoing a so-called boom. On the other hand, it is growing sanely, consistently and logically. Its population is growing at a steady rate of about twenty percent per year, while reports of bank clearings, building permits and postal receipts, as well as other barometers of business conditions, constantly demonstrate that the economical expansion of the metropolitan area is in direct proportion to the increase of residents.

San Diego today is a prominent "white spot" on the "Map of the Nation's Business" published monthly by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in its official magazine, "Nation's Business." This map is considered by the business men of the nation to be absolutely authentic and unbiased; it is compiled by an economical expert, Frank Greene, managing editor of Bradstreet's.

At the present writing (November 13) business conditions in San Diego have been depicted as a "white spot" for the fifth consecutive month. Another significant fact is that San Diego is in the only "white spot" on the entire Pacific Coast. The San Diego Chamber of Commerce, some months ago, inaugurated an intensive and concentrated campaign for additional industries for this city.

The first big result of this action was the location here of the new plant of the million dollar Potter Radiator Corporation; since the breaking of the ground for this factory, several other industrial organizations have decided to locate here. San Diego is nearer to ninety per cent of the balance of the United States than any other city on the Pacific Slope. The terminus of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad and the San Diego and Arizona Railway Companies, together with the fact that this city is the first port of call north of the Panama Canal, provide ample rail and water transportation facilities.

Another important feature to be considered is the establishment here of the gigantic army and navy bases. It has been estimated that over $30,000,000 has been expended by the Federal Government in permanent investments for the several branches of the service. Included in this investment are the naval training station, the naval air station, the army air station, the submarine and destroyer base, the naval hospital, the marine corps base, the naval radio station, the fuel depot, the supply depot and the Eleventh Naval District headquarters and warehouse. This estimate does not take into consideration the millions of dollars floating on San Diego Bay in the form of destroyers, battleships, cruisers and submarines, nor the thousands of dollars to be seen every day winging their way across the blue skies of this city. In addition to the permanent investments in buildings and equipment, the government is expending here approximately $2,000,000 each month for the naval payroll.

San Diego is a community of home lovers and home owners. People from all over the United States and many foreign countries have established their permanent residences here, while many celebrities of international reputation have also chosen this city as the most desirable one in which to live. Among its famous citizens, San Diego has Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Carrie Jacobs Bond, Lyman J. Gage, ex-treasurer of the United States, Walt Mason, John D. Spreckels and a score of others. Consider, for a moment, the fact that approximately 1,400 retired army and navy officers live here. They are all cultured, charming and much-traveled men, with sufficient means to live in any part of the globe they desire. After seeing the entire world, they have chosen San Diego!

Artistically and aesthetically, San Diego holds many of the highest things in life. In the center of the city is the 1,400 acre Balboa Park, famous throughout the world for its wonderful Spanish architecture and plentiful supply of trees and foliage. Here one finds in the Museum of Natural History one of the most complete anthropological exhibits in the world. It is a scientific sculptural history of the evolution of man, based on the discovery of scientists over a period of centuries. In the California Building there is located and open to the public an exhaustive scientific library.

There is also established in the park an Academy of Fine Arts under the guidance of a former instructor of the Chicago Institute; the accomplishments of some of the public of this institute are remarkable. The only out-of-doors organ in the world, donated to the city by J. D. Spreckels, furnishes a daily recital free to the public.

Several times during the season, the San Diego Players, a community group of enthusiastic thespians, presents for the entertainment of its fellows first performances of worth-while plays and furnishes the ambitious playwright with an opportunity to see his plays enacted. A number of plays written by H. Austin Adams have first been witnessed by an audience in San Diego before opening on Broadway, New York.

In conclusion and summary, San Diego appeals to the world. Living here intrigues the intelligentsia and the illiterati alike. It is a home-place for the cosmopolite and the provincial, for the rich and the poor; in fact, for the world. Visit San Diego and be convinced!

VISITING NATIVE SON OFFICIAL DISCUSSES CABRILLO MONUMENT.

Grand Third Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi paid an official visit to San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.S.G.W., October 19. With President Joseph Tighe presiding, the officers exemplified the ritual for the benefit of the visiting official. Among the recent additions to the membership of the Parlor are Frank Byron Colton and Glen Edwin Colton, son and grandson, respectively, of Charles Edward Colton, a California Pioneer who settled in San Diego in 1846.

Following the business session a banquet was served by the entertainment committee, H. P. Burkhardt chairman. District Deputy Eugene Daney Jr. was the toastmaster and extended the Parlor's welcome to the several visitors. Grand First Vice-president Welch said that California had its beginning in San Diego, and used that fact as a theme for an inspiring address, in the course of which he urged those present to spread the gospel of California and thereby strengthen the Order numerically. Other speakers included Past Grand President William I. Traeger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell and the Parlor's much-loved Albert V. Mayrhofer, deputy grand president.

Previous to the Parlor meeting, Deputy Grand President Mayrhofer entertained at supper at the Cabrillo Cafe. Following the feast, those assembled discussed with Grand First Vice-president Welch the proposed monument on Point Loma to commemorate the discovery of San Diego Bay by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo. The Grand Parlor at the San Bernardino session in May, pledged $10,000 to the fund, and San Diego Parlor will endeavor to raise the balance. It has a committee, headed by Edgar F. Hastings, organized to that end and is anxious to have the monument-site question settled before actively proceeding.

SUCCESS CROWNING EFFORTS.

Success apparently is crowning the efforts of the latest producers' co-operative marketing organization, that of the California Cattlemen's Association. While operating with an assured market, with prices apparently controlled through freight rate barriers from the intermountain and middle western cattle producing sections and with a local under supply, there have been problems to meet, and opposition developed that for a time gave serious concern to the friends of the organization. However, the reports of the association show that in the first six months of its venture cattle valued at five million dollars were marketed, sold by more than three thousand growers, and to more than 175 packers.

The association claims its activities are making for more orderly marketing, stabilizing of prices and reduced costs. A cattle loan bank recently has been organized in connection with the co-operative marketing association, which the cattlemen believe will solve their last marketing problem.

¶ The Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West is founded upon the same broad patriotic principles that have been the inspiration of similar organizations in older States of the Union. Each State has its history. Into that history is interwoven a narrative of deeds performed by a mighty race of men who frontiered and pioneered the pathway for the countless thousands to follow. They transplanted the spirit, the life, the institutions of the Colonists, and wherever a State was erected there was planted the ideals of the Fathers of the Republic.

¶ Therefore, the membership of our Order is limited to those born within the State, because we believe that pride of nativity is inherent in the breast of every person and moves that person to a consecrated loyalty to his native land. We do not maintain that birthplace alone confers any special privilege; rather do we teach that this casts upon the citizen an increased obligation to become interested in all material matters affecting its development and progress. National strength and national greatness have been commensurate with State strength and State greatness.

¶ California was the thirty-first State to be admitted into the Union. She contributed a citizenship and a golden treasure at an opportune time in the affairs of the nation. The many events connected with its settlement and organization as a State played a prominent part in shaping the destiny of the American people, and geographically she occupies a strategic position in the world-wide problems of the present and the future.

¶ We have taken an active interest in the conservation of our natural resources; the preservation of our scenic wonders and making them accessible to all; the retention of the State and its soil for the White race; all legislation, Federal and State, affecting the State and its interests.

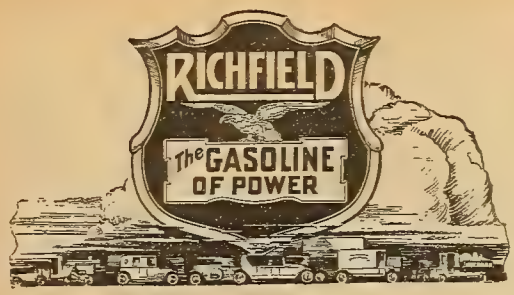
¶ In our Fellowship endowment at the University of California we have expended over fifty thousand dollars in the preparation and preservation of the history of California and the Pacific Coast, and it has become the incentive for the Student Body of that institution and of the high-schools throughout the State to learn and teach that history. In this work we have laid the foundation for a text-book to be used in the public schools.

¶ We visit places where important events transpired and we have identified and marked the same with tablet and monument. Responding to the patriotic objects of our Order, we observe each recurring anniversary day of the Admission of California into the Union by public ceremonies in the various cities of the State. We actively participate in public dedicatory ceremonies of grammar-school and high-school buildings, on which occasions the students and citizens are addressed by officials of our Order on patriotic subjects.

¶ We maintain a "Homeless Children" Bureau and have placed in the childless homes over twenty-six hundred homeless boys and girls, insuring their development into a splendid citizenship amid elevating environments. In this activity we have expended over two hundred thousand dollars, contributed generously and voluntarily by the membership of the Order.

¶ It thus appears that the work of our organization appeals to every citizen of the State, irrespective of place of birth. It matters not where we were born in this land of ours; we are all citizens of a common country, we pledge our allegiance to one flag, and we are best evidencing our love of country and our loyalty to that flag by deservedly wearing the badge of public service wherever we exist and have our home.

¶ We welcome to our Membership the sons of California, and we promise nothing in return, save that compensation which comes to the citizen who conscientiously endeavors to perform his part in the cause of a greater and better civilization.



FLETCHER A. CUTLER,

Grand President, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Deposits

By E. R. ADAIR, Chief Order Clerk

SOMETIMES people become offended when asked to make a deposit for gas and electric service, feeling that the request is an unfavorable reflection on their standing or honesty.

Not at all.

With many more than a third of a million customers on its books, a public utility organization is obliged to treat all of them according to rules which have been developed through experience. Clearly the Order Clerk's opinion of the person applying for service cannot be allowed to make any difference in his course of action.

We pay 6% interest on deposits. If the consumer pays all bills for service promptly for 12 months the deposit is returned, with interest due; or the deposit is returnable at any time that the account is closed.

THE MORNING OF DECEMBER 21, 1864, Dan Higgins sat in his sanctum cogitating on what he should do next. He was the business manager, editor, reporter, proofreader and sometimes "devil" of the weekly paper then published in Victoria, British Columbia. Little did he think that the Christmas week now being ushered in was to be one of the most momentous in his life.

His sanctum was the front room of the one-story building that housed the paper. Back of it were the composing, press and file rooms. His indecision was removed by the entrance of a comely French madame, who came with mincing steps to his desk and, with an arched eyebrow, smilingly asked: "Do I speak to ze boss of ze papah?" She was fat, fair and more than forty. Dan answered in the affirmative, with a nod of the head.

Then madame opened a reticule she carried on her left-hand wrist and, taking from it an undated newspaper clipping, culled from a Nevada County, California, paper, handed it to Dan, saying: "What will you charge me to print zis?" Dan counted the lines and, figuring the charge at the reading-notice rate, announced the amount, which the madame at once paid.

Bidding him a cheery goodbye, she started to depart but, reaching the doorway, turned and said: "Would you like to see my leetle boy?" "Yes," replied Dan who, thinking from her question and manner he was to meet a lad in the short-pants age who would be pleased with a pat on the head and a dime with which to buy a stick of candy, heard the madame at the doorway call "Henri! Henri!" and saw her advance, holding a young man by the arm, to his desk. Henri was so well along in the adolescent age as to be shaving, was attired in a tailor-made suit of blue serge, wore a "stovepipe" hat of the then-fashionable shape of brim, carried a flexible Malacca cane headed with an ivory carved woman's leg and foot—showing he had some thoughts of the fair sex—and in his mouth was a freshly-lit, long cigar.

When he removed the cigar, expectorated once in the cuspidor—which happened to be the wastepaper basket—and took off his "plug" hat, Dan got the impression there was not much left of Henri, for he was of slender build. The "plug" hat, worn at the time by lawyers, doctors, ministers and gamblers, was significant that the wearer did not make a living by manual labor; the wearing of the headgear was incompatible with the handling of the pick and the shovel, the saw and the hammer, or any other tool that required a bending of the body to manipulate. When Henri extended an immaculate hand for Dan to shake, the latter felt more inclined to use his foot than his hand. He had observed the young man the evening before in the hotel billiard-room playing pin-pool and imbibing a man's size cocktail after each game. Dan had an impression that the "leetle boy" was pulling something over his mother.

After a few minutes of introductory conversation they took their departure and then Dan proceeded into the composing room to have the item put in type, so as to appear in the next issue of his paper. On reading it again, he found it to be an item of news stating that at a sheriff's sale held on the court house steps in Nevada City the foreclosure sale of the Mount Hope Mining Company had taken place and that the creditors would realize about two cents on the dollar from the thousands that had been sunk in the Massachusetts Hill hole.

He was gone some time, and on return to the sanctum was surprised to see seated in the visitor's chair by the side of his desk a young woman about twenty years of age, plainly but neatly dressed. She was not a beauty, but possessed an attractive personality. Upon his entrance she arose from her seat and, in an embarrassed way, asked if he was the editor. On being informed that he held that honorable position, she handed him a folded manuscript, saying: "I have written a poem entitled 'An Ode to Queen Victoria,' which I wish to sell to you for what you think would be a fair price, as we are in need of an income just now."

Dan took the manuscript and, looking it over, found it lacking that soul of thought all good poetry should have. He was on the point of declining it in the usual way of letting the writer down easy, when he saw such a beseeching look in the eyes of the young woman he hesitated a moment and then prevaricated and procrastinated. He said the publisher passed on all poetry offered for sale and this poem would have to be referred to him. He told the young woman to leave her name and address and he would advise her of the publisher's decision as soon as made. She wrote her name and address upon a business card and, thanking him in a very lady-like manner, departed. Dan pigeonholed the "Ode," intending to mail it and the declination in a few days and then, as is usual with editors, forgot it.

Two days later the madame called again, and at once proceeded to talk business. She said: "I am in need of an adviser. I have asked Pierre at the French hotel and he say 'talk to Dan', so I am come to you." It struck Dan that he had seen the madame before. His mind wandered back to the old mining days of a past decade. It took but a few moments for him, in memory, to remember a night when he saw a well-dressed Frenchman with waxed moustache and goatee acting as lookout over a twenty-one game where

What Does Christmas Mean to You?

Miss Esther Crone

(WRITTEN ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

Now that days are growing shorter
A hint of frost is in the air,
And as winter seems approaching,
With its festals glad and rare,
'Tis now we plan the many pleasures
And think of what we want to do,
To make a bright and merry Christmas.
Is this all it means to you?

Kinder thoughts fill the moments,
And our hearts begin to yearn
For the faces once about us
And we long for their return.
We would gather 'round the fireside
And live o'er the past, anew.
Am I guessing right to say it?
Is this what Christmas means to you?

Do you recall the shepherds watching
In the still and distant night,
When the angels came from Glory
Filling all the sky with light?
How they sang, and told the story,
Coming all the ages through,
Proclaiming peace to every nation!
Is this what Christmas means to you?

When the wise men came together
In a strange appointed way,
Drawn by chords of adoration
To where the infant Christ-child lay,
They worshiped, full of wonder,
For the Star had led them true.
Is your heart, like theirs, rejoicing?
Is this what Christmas means to you?

an attractive French girl, supposedly one of the demi-mondes, was acting as banker and deftly shuffling and dealing the cards. Still, there were a score of such games run in the same manner by the same kind of looking people. Some way, all French women in the different mining towns of California in pioneer days resembled one another, and he might be mistaken in the madame.

Then, roused from his reverie, he nodded to the madame to go on. She first dashed her lace handkerchief across her eyes to wipe away an unbidden tear, and resumed: "Ah, zat is all right then. I am Madame LeFevre. My husband, who was a Frenchman, died in California. I am a Russian. In Russia, I am a duchess." She paused to see what effect the statement would have on Dan, who appeared to be unimpressed. Then she continued, slightly disappointed at his not showing he was visibly impressed by her statement of being a royal personage: "Here, I am nobody, only Madame LeFevre. When we had a great deal of money my husband, he put it in a quartz mine in Grass Valley. He know nothing about ze quartz at all and by and by he lose it all. Then he break ze heart and he die, oh, so queek. He leave me no money, only a big piece of papah that zay he own so much in ze quartz. We have only one thousand dollar one month for Henri and mamma to live and it is not all zat we need. After my poor husband he die a countryman of mine come to me and zay, 'I work in ze tunnel of ze mine near ze quartz your husband own. We strike very reech quartz and ze boss he cover it up so he can buy ze ozer people out cheep.' I hear there is one Englishman here. He own a big lot of my poor husband's quartz and he want to sell. I think for two cents a share. I want you to find him and I ask you to help me."

Then, with a winsome smile and a hand gently pressing on Dan's knee, she coaxingly said, "You are ze man of big affair." Dan demurred at this and answered he was nothing of the sort, but only a modest newspaper reporter, to which she replied, "Ah, no! You cannot thus deceive me. I see in your eye, mon amiee, in your face, in your way, that you are ze man of ze great ability and ze good judgment. Your words are charming. Now, I come to you as a man of ze world. I ask you to help me and I lean on your arm. Henri, my leetle Henri, he has no head for business. He is too young, he is too simple in his leetle ways, too noble to do zis for me, so I come to you."

As a result of this conversation Dan, thrilled with her confiding look and manner, promised to aid in finding the elusive Englishman, whose name she then gave as Forbes. He also promised to try and obtain for her the shares he had in the supposed worthless mine at a reasonable figure, based, of course, on what he would sell it for.

Before leaving, the madame called Henri in. After impressing Dan with the fact that everything she was doing was for the sake of her "leetle boy," who was so sweet and patient, she asked Henri if what she had done in enlisting Dan's aid was not right. Henri's reply was so vague and nonenthusiastic that Dan felt like kicking him out of the office.

The next day Dan thought of the poetess and, looking at the address in order to write the letter of declination of the "Ode," was awestruck to read on the card: "Miss Estella Forbes, No. 4 Forshay place, Yates street." It was in the humble section of the town, where the poorer but respectable families lived, back of the cemetery. Now arose complications, through conflicting thoughts in Dan's mind whether this was the Forbes family the madame was looking for and how he could get in touch with them. His honest nature would not allow him to practice deception and thereby do a wrong, yet he had been told in confidence by the madame and had promised to aid. He concluded to postpone action on the "Ode" and think it over.

Christmas Day was foggy, cold and dismal in Victoria. But while cheerless without, it was cheerful within nearly all the homes in the city. Dinner then was served early in the afternoon. While Dan had received several invitations to dine with friends it was the day the paper went to press and he wished to give his attention to it, so he declined them all. About 1 o'clock he entered the French restaurant, a block away, to partake of the excellent menu Pierre, the French chef, had prepared for his patrons. The land and waters of Vancouver Island abounded with game and fish the best in the world, so there was no difficulty in procuring what was necessary to make a repast fit for a king to enjoy. To Dan's surprise, he found the former exuberant Pierre sullen and solitary. Not a diner was seated at a table. The expected guests evidently had all accepted invitations to dine with friends, and therefore were elsewhere.

A stranger stood at the bar holding a cigar in his hand and was silently contemplating its ash-burning end. With a jocose remark that the restaurant showed who had friends in town and what it meant to be without them at Christmas time, Dan informed Pierre that he had come to dine alone. The stranger turned to Dan and volunteered the information that he was in the same fix. Being a stranger in a strange town, he was without an invitation to dine. Now, what was the matter with Dan having a Christmas dinner with him. Dan's answer was to the effect that he would be glad to do so, but he would insist on the stranger and he introducing each other first and then having a cocktail at his treat.

To this proposition the stranger agreed, so mutual introductions followed. The stranger gave his name as George Barclay, stating that he came from Grass Valley, in California, that he was a mining man, and that his visit to Victoria was in regard to some mining property. He expected his visit would be of some days' duration and he hoped to become better acquainted. After imbibing an appetizing cocktail made by the experienced Pierre, the two Christmas diners were seated at a table by the side of a large window fronting the street, where they could see the passersby along the sidewalk and be seen as well. It was about an hour that they passed enjoying the viands and during which the obsequious Pierre had opened a bottle of his choicest vintage in honor of the day. When they had reached the coffee and were burning the cognac, hearing a light tap on the windowpane Dan looked out and received a beckoning sign from a young woman standing on the sidewalk, indicating she wished to speak with him.

Excusing himself to Barclay, he went outside and there met the poetess. After apologizing for disturbing him while at dinner, with tearful eyes and tremulous voice she told him that on account of her father having been afflicted with rheumatism for months and the inability of her mother and herself to obtain employment they were in financial distress; that her little brother had put such confidence in their having a Christmas dinner as of yore she hated to disappoint him and that she had come to ask if the "Ode" had been accepted, or if not, if she could get an advance on it so she could be Santa Claus to her little brother. If this could not be done then there were only tea, bread and butter to make their Christmas dinner of. Dan did not have the heart to tell her the truth, that her "Ode" could not be accepted, but again postponed the unpleasant task by telling her to come to his office at 3 o'clock and he would then see what he could do about it.

Mentally resolving, while returning to finish his dinner, that he would do a kindly act on this Christmas Day, he resumed his seat at the table with Barclay. Wrapped in thought over the interview with the young woman, without particularly noticing his companion he said: "This is a sad condition of affairs. This young woman thinks she has the ability to write poetry, which, unfortunately, she has not. She has offered us a poem which she expects us to buy, but that we cannot do, and she is depending upon the payment for it to purchase a Christmas dinner for her family."

Then Dan noticed that Barclay was greatly agitated. A moment later he took two $20 pieces from his pocket and, passing them to Dan, said: "Give these to Miss Forbes for her poem, but do not publish it if it has no merit." "Do you know her?" asked Dan, in surprise. "Yes," replied Barclay. "She is one of the reasons for my coming here." Then he told Dan his story:

He was a young miner in Nevada County, California, in 1857, when he became the lover of Miss Forbes. They were engaged to be married when the Mount Hope Company failed. With the same faith that Superintendent Brennan had in the mine, Forbes had invested every dollar he possessed, and the failure broke him. Disgusted and disappointed with quartz mining, he closed out all his interests, broke off the engagement of his daughter with Barclay and, following the Fraser River excitement, went to British Columbia, where he was lost sight of. Barclay had not heard from Estella directly in all the elapsing years, but had remained true to his love for her and hoped for the day to come when he again would meet her.

Now had come the development made by the new company working the mine on Massachusetts Hill and a desire on its part to locate Forbes. Owing to his being away in a foreign country, the summons in the attachment and other suits had not been legally served on him, consequently, to clear the title to the now-valuable property, it was desired to negotiate with him for his interest and thereby clear the title. The company had sent out scouts to locate Forbes. One of these had reported that he was in Victoria and that his daughter, Estella, was still single. This report was the cause of Barclay being in Victoria now.

Then Dan told him he had better assist in keeping the 3 o'clock engagement, and it was arranged that Barclay should follow and make his appearance immediately after the $40 had been paid to Miss Forbes. Barclay did not know Madame LeFevre nor had he ever heard of her husband being interested in the quartz developments of his section, so it was surmised that the madame was an emissary of some of the Frenchmen who were interested in the new company.

At 3 o'clock Dan went to his office. He found Miss Forbes there, awaiting him. When he handed her the two $20 pieces she was speechless. It was so far beyond her expectations she could scarcely realize it was true. She made a step forward, and also a demonstration that Dan fully expected to result in her throwing her arms around his neck and implanting an enraptured kiss upon his lips, when Barclay stepped into the room.

Miss Forbes was awestruck for a moment. Then, with a joyous exclamation of, "Oh, George!" rushed into his welcoming arms and with enraptured kisses they embraced each other while Dan looked out of the window upon the street. While it looked like the meeting of a long-lost brother and sister to him, yet it was the reunion of two long-separated, devoted lovers.

When the blissful meeting had lasted as long as Dan thought was reasonable, he drew their attention to himself by saying: "How about your Christmas dinner, Miss Forbes?" This brought the young woman back to every-day life again. "Oh, yes," said she, "I must arrange for that." "I doubt if you can," said Dan, "the stores are all closed. It is too late to get and cook a turkey or any other kind of fowl, and I doubt if you can get either milk or bread for it at this time of the day."

A look of disappointment came over her face, but Dan quickly removed it when he added: "You had better let Mr. Barclay and myself furnish it." "How can you?" asked she, and then added, "Oh, if you only would." "I have a way to overcome the difficulty," said Dan. "I will take it on the condition that you make it a supper instead and that you invite Mr. Barclay and myself to come with it to your home at 6 o'clock and join you in disposing of it." "I will be glad to do so," said she. Then turning to Barclay, she exclaimed, "Oh, George, won't mother be glad to see you, and I think father will, too." A few minutes later, as if walking on air, Estella took her departure. If she had had wings, she would have flown, she felt so happy. And thus, in a few short hours, was unhappiness changed into bliss.

Dan formulated his plans for a Christmas supper with Barclay's assistance at the Forbes home. He went to Pierre and had that caterer fill a hamper with viands that could be carried and served there with facility. Then, surmising that the humble furnishings of the home would not provide the necessary equipment for a table service, he had a basket filled with tablecloth, knives, forks, spoons, condiments and dishes. At 6 o'clock, accompanied by a waiter carrying the hamper and to wait upon the guests, while he carried the basket of accessories with Barclay, they started to walk across the unlighted, unpaved streets, the muddy, dirty sidewalks and the slushy street crossings to the Forbes home. The waiter frequently expressed his feeling of disappointment in voluble French when he found that such a fine supper was going to such humble quarters. He was still more nonplussed when, upon entering the home, he saw such evidence of poverty.

The house had four rooms of moderate size which a small wood-burning stove in the kitchen made a feeble effort to heat. There were but two whole chairs in the place, so Dan and Barclay had to sit upon the bed that occupied a corner of the best room. The expectant family, foretold by Estella, were ready to receive them and had made some effort to prepare the table for the coming supper, but the meagre equipment would not have answered the demand.

Forbes, unable to sit up, reclined on a couch in the kitchen and had his portion of the supper served on a box placed by his side. The waiter, after calling on "Mon Dieu" a number of times, silently went about his duty and soon had the table arranged and the supper ready to serve. Barclay and Dan moved the bed up to the table and sat upon it during the repast. The two women occupied the chairs, and the lad fixed a box with a block of wood and a pillow so that he was comfortably seated. In every other way, the supper was a success. All ate heartily, and no one enjoyed the glasses of wine served with the meal more than did Forbes, for it had been long since he had been with the price to open a bottle. How he enjoyed the fine Havana cigar that Dan had thoughtfully brought and proffered him after the feast, the rings of smoke, rising ceilingward, attested.

After the supper, Barclay played his part as a Santa Claus. He informed Forbes of the new conditions and of his changed prospects. He advised him to return with him to California and to enter into negotiations with the new company, which desired to buy his right and title to an interest in the Mount Hope Company. If Forbes began legal proceedings, it would take money and time to get a court decision, which might go against him, so Barclay thought the most logical thing to do was for him to sell.

"What do you think they will pay me to get out of their way?" asked Forbes. "It is said," replied Barclay, "they will pay you $100,000!" Forbes, struck with astonishment, nearly fell off the couch. But before anything was done, Barclay insisted that the wedding bells should ring for Estella and himself. Of course, after the hour of great hospitality Forbes had unexpectedly enjoyed, he was in the humor to grant any favor asked. It was an opportune moment for Barclay to bring his suit to a finality, and it was quickly arranged that on the morrow the wedding was to be and that on the next day, when a steamer would leave for San Francisco, the happy family would depart.

Dan and Barclay returned to the Hotel de France about 11 o'clock. In the lobby they saw the madame, somewhat disheveled, pacing rapidly up and down the room, very much agitated. She occasionally gave utterance to a distracted moan. When she saw Dan enter she rushed to him and began wringing her hands and moaning "Oh, my poor boy, my poor boy." Dan's sympathetic soul was aroused and, asking her to try and calm herself, he by degrees ascertained that Henri had disappeared. He had not slept in his bed; had not, as was his usual custom, given her a morning kiss, nor had he came and dined with her as she had expected him to do. She then became somewhat hysterical, and declared her belief in the fear he had been kidnaped or inveigled into some den of vice and there murdered. Dan did his utmost to assure her that nothing harmful could have happened to Henri without he, as a newspaperman, being informed of it, and then satisfied her grieving heart by offering to go and find him.

Taking Barclay with him, he started on his quest. Dan then remembered that he had seen Henri on his way the evening before with a party of convivial youths going to the sporting part of the town. Thither they went. Entering a "joint" where all games of chance were played, he made inquiry of the barkeeper if Henri was anywhere thereabout. In reply, the cocktail-mixer led the way to a back room where, laid out on a faro table, was Henri, snoozing off a booze. Dan raised him to a sitting posture and then noticed that his "plug" hat, mashed flat as a pancake, had been beneath his back. Thrusting his fist into it up to its crown he straightened it out and, full of creases, pulled it down upon Henri's head. Then, taking hold of one arm, he asked Barclay to take hold of the other, and between them they almost had to drag him to the hotel.

Through the slush of the unpaved crossings his feet seemed to be a drag rather than a help to his going. The madame had gone to her room on their coming, so she did not witness their arrival. They took him upstairs to his room, to which they found the key in his pocket. There they removed his boots, took off his coat, and were about to finish undressing him and putting him into bed, when in rushed the madame. With a wild cry of joy she rushed to her son and, throwing her arms around him, began calling him, in French, the most endearing names and thus, clasped in his mother's arms, they left the drunken boy.

The next day the wedding took place at the Forbes home and the day after the steamer left with the Forbes family. They traveled first-class, with the new member of the family paying all the bills, although Estella insisted she should spend some of her poem money for some of the necessary expenses.

A few days later the madame came into Dan's sanctum and, with the same engaging smile, undulating hoops and attractive manner, asked him if he had met with any success. "Yes," replied

GEORGE HOPE, A TITLE-INSURANCE authority of San Rafael, Marin County, had a very interesting article, in a recent issue of "Inspirator," dealing with the California Alien Land Laws as they affect title insurance and property rights. Among other things, he said:

"The first Alien Land Law came into effect August 10, 1913, and is not retro-active. If you find a Japanese taking title before that date, it is safe to vest in him without qualification. AFTER THAT DATE, HE MAY HOLD TITLE ONLY AS PERMITTED BY THE TREATY WITH JAPAN."

He then sets out the rights given by the treaty to Japs residing in this country, and continues: "Be careful to note that they [Japs] . . . CANNOT OWN LAND ITSELF and that their right to lease is confined, as to the land, to residential and commercial purposes."

Search the records of the several counties of California, and it will be found that in a great many of them titles to numerous parcels of land are vested in Japs. In most instances, it will be found that title was acquired after the Alien Land Law went into effect, August 10, 1913. That law, like the present one, provided for escheat as a penalty for violation of the law.

Not a single piece of Jap-purchased land has been escheated to California, although the law provides that Japs cannot own land of any kind —agricultural, residential, commercial or otherwise. The Japs' holdings of all kinds of land are extensive, and a great percentage of their holdings, having been acquired since 1913, are subject to escheat.

All these lands belong, by right, to the White people of California, and they should be recovered, within the law, for them. The citizens of the several counties in which these Jap-owned lands are located should organize now, and, at the election next fall, put into office public servants, particularly district attorneys, who will recover every foot of this land from the yellows for the Whites. There has been too much "stalling" on this escheat question. The people may yet save California for the White race if they will!

In refusing to pardon Miss Charlotte A. Whitney, an Oakland woman of wealth, convicted about six years ago of violating the Criminal Syndicalism Act of the state, Governor Friend W. Richardson said, in a signed statement:

"While I am governor I propose to stand staunchly for the laws of the state and to support the constitution. Those who have been convicted, after fair trials by juries, sustained by decisions of courts, cannot expect to escape punishment of their crimes by appealing to me. It is my duty to stand up for the laws and to protect society, and I will not issue pardons merely because of popular clamor."

Governor Richardson, like all humans, has his faults. He also has backbone, displayed on many occasions, and that o'ershadows many of his mistakes. If more public officials would follow his example, and support and abide by the constitutions and laws of the state and the nation, there would be an appreciable lessening of crime and criminals.

Bishop Thirkfield of the Methodist Church, in a recent address queried, "If the message of Christ is not brought to the world in this generation by the English-speaking peoples, what other nation is equal to the task?"

How about Japan, bishop? Your church all but worships at the feet of the emperor, and propaganda emanating from your church's headquarters would lead one to believe that the Japs are capable of accomplishing anything. Your church would, if it could, give possession of California and the Pacific Coast to the Japs and Japan. Your church so loves the Japs, why not give Japan the task?

The attention of The Grizzly Bear was recently directed by Roy W. Cloud, Historiographer of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, to this pledge to California, the author of which was Mrs. F. M. Lane of Fresno. It should be committed to memory by every native:

"I am a California child, I love my native state: its mountains high, its valleys wide, its people good and great. I love the dear old Pioneers who made us what we are, and gave to us our glorious state, the nation's brightest star."

"You must have sent some dynamite to the author of the 'Brett Page' in the San Francisco 'Call'," says Mrs. Ella Sterling Mighels of that city in a letter to the oversigned, "for he faded from sight the day the November Grizzly Bear with its protest appeared, and not even a word of farewell or explanation." Good riddance!

Press dispatches say that Representative Emanuel Cellar of New York proposes to introduce in the coming Congress a joint resolution providing for a national referendum, election day 1926, on modification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution.

That would be excellent, so that an expression of opinion may be had from The People as to whether they do or do not approve of the amendment. It would be well, too, at the same time, to have them vote on the question of rigid and impartial enforcement of the prohibition law, as opposed to the mock-enforcement now in vogue.

While on this subject it is well to call attention to an address in Chicago of Andrew J. Volstead, author of the much-discussed national prohibition enforcement law, in which he said that there are "teeth" in the law which have not been brought into action. He referred to section 29 of title 2, which provides that the purchaser of liquor is subject to prosecution, as well as the dispenser.

Undoubtedly this provision has been ignored by agreement among all law enforcers. Is there a single instance on record in California where a person has been arrested for purchasing liquor since the prohibition law went into effect? And yet, there is more "booze" floating around and more drunken citizens advertising their defiance of and disrespect for the Constitution of the United States than ever before!

If the purchaser "teeth" in the law be brought into play against the rich and the poor, the public official and the common citizen, prohibition would become a reality, for the bootlegger and other dispenser would go out of business for lack of customers. Also, as Volstead said in his address, "It would have a salutary effect to prosecute some of these purchasers so that the country might know some of the so-called 'good people' are simply in the bootleg class."

Because "our navy has carried out spectacular maneuvers in the Pacific . . . irritating to Japan," and because "Congress has recently enacted an immigration law highly offensive to Asiatics," the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches expresses the opinion, in its latest piece of propaganda, that "America is standing at the crossroads of war or peace."

Of course, the Federal Council of Churches—in reality the government of Japan's main propaganda agent in this country—would have the United States consult Japan as to the conduct of our army and navy, and would permit the Tokio government to overflow California with Japs, that America may travel the peace-road.

In an address before the recent California Real Estate Convention at Fresno, Charles R. Smurr, industrial agent of the Southern Pacific, predicted that this state would become the greatest industrial center in the world, because eighty-five percent of the crude materials necessary to manufacture the world's products are found here.

Without question, that prediction will be fulfilled, in time. And the time of its fulfillment may be hastened by support, on the part of the

CHERRY TREE CAROL

As Joseph was a-walking,
He heard an angel sing,
"This night shall be the birth-time
Of Christ, the heavenly King.

"He neither shall be born
In housen nor in hall,
Nor in the place of paradise,
But in an ox's stall.

"He neither shall be clothed
In purple nor in pall,
But in the fair white linen
That usen babies all.

"He neither shall be rocked
In silver nor in gold,
But in a wooden manger
That resteth on the mould."

As Joseph was a-walking,
There did an angel sing,
And Mary's child at midnight
Was born to be our King.

Then be ye glad, good people,
This night of all the year,
And light ye up your candles,
For His star it shineth clear.

ROBERT M. CLARKE
FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

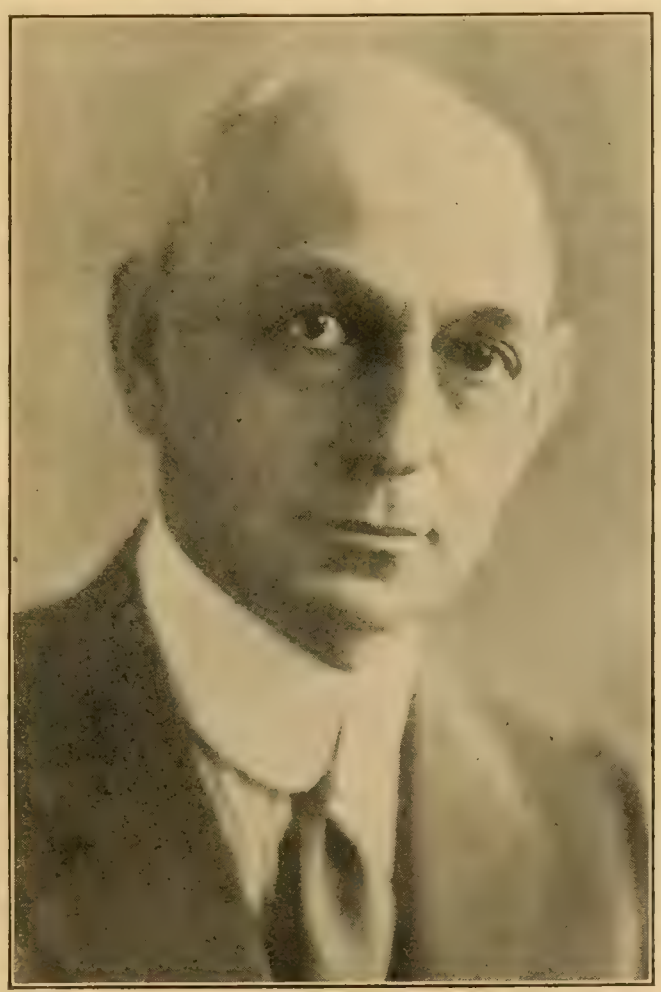
THE CAMPAIGN FOR UNITED States Senator is well under way and there has been launched a candidacy for former Judge Robert M. Clarke, now a resident of Los Angeles. The representatives of ten southern counties of the state met in Los Angeles recently and unanimously called upon him to become a candidate. He will poll a tremendous vote in the southern part of the state and has many influential friends and supporters throughout all of California.



Nor is this at all puzzling. Born in Ventura County, near Santa Paula, March 5, 1879, Robert M. Clarke is of pioneer American stock, the family, of English origin, having started on this continent within sight of Plymouth Rock. The elder Robert M. Clarke, father of the prospective senator, came to California in 1850, rounding the Horn with Captain Josiah Wing, and settling at Suisun, Solano County, where he engaged in the lumber business and was one of the founders of the town of Suisun. His father, Captain John Clarke,—a seafaring man, as were all his ancestry in the paternal line,—was drowned at sea in 1825. On his maternal side, Judge Clarke is descended from the Coreys of Connecticut. His mother, Cynthia A. Corey, daughter of Rev. Jonathan Corey, an itinerant Methodist minister who early trekked westward through Ohio, Illinois and finally to Wisconsin, came to California in 1865, and was married to the elder Clarke in Suisun in 1870. Of this union three children, two daughters and Robert, the youngest, were born.

In 1876 the Clarkes migrated to Ventura County. Seven years later, when her husband died, Mrs. Clarke moved in from the ranch to Santa Paula, where she remained until her death in June, 1924. Her sacrifices were many in the education of her little flock, but in the advent of Messrs. Hardison and Stewart,—the latter of whom eventually associated with former United States Senator Thomas R. Bard in organizing the Union Oil Company of California,—ways were opened which made it possible for the family to continue together. After graduating from the Santa Paula High School in 1897, Robert came to Los Angeles to study law with James Brown Scott, now solicitor-general in the State Department at Washington.

Admitted to practice law in 1900, when he attained his twenty-first year, Robert became interested in politics and was elected a member of the State Assembly from Ventura County, serving one term. Three years later, when Santa Paula achieved municipal honors, he was appointed its first city attorney. In 1908, when he was twenty-nine, he was elected Judge of the Superior Court of Ventura County. At the expiration of his term, in 1915, the demands of a growing family caused him to decline re-election and to the broader field of Los Angeles he turned for the practice of his profession, having on several occasions presided, by invitation, in the Los Angeles County courts, when serving on the superior bench.

For a time, following his removal to Los Angeles, he was assistant to the Attorney-General of California, and on two occasions represented the state in the United States Supreme Court, in which he was admitted to practice in October, 1913. Since 1916 he has pursued the general practice of the law in Los Angeles, the honor of being elected president of the Los Angeles County Bar Association coming to him in 1924. In that year he was a delegate to the meeting of the American Bar Association in London, England. At the close of the session he remained abroad for several months in studying legal, political and economic questions in the Old World.

His civic activities have been demonstrated on marked occasions, notably as president of the Board of Freeholders, which drafted the new city charter of Los Angeles (1923-1924), and again as a member of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, with which body he is at present actively affiliated. Always aligned with the interests opposed to corporate control, Judge Clarke, politically considered, is regarded as an anti-machine man. He was bred and reared as a Republican and was a delegate to the national convention of the party in 1920. While usually aligned with the progressive wing of the party, he was a staunch supporter of President Calvin Coolidge and campaigned in behalf of his election.

JUDGE ROBERT M. CLARKE,
Candidate for United States Senator From California.

It is important to note that the candidate for United States Senator has an intimate knowledge of the demands and requirements of the citrus fruit industry of California, gained when, as a lad, he was employed on the Blanchard lemon ranch, the first successful one of its kind in California.

Through his acquaintance with the pioneer oil men of Ventura County, he has also made a first-hand study of the oil industry, so important a factor in the development of the state. As a lawyer he has had vast experience and much litigation involving questions peculiar to that industry. An orator of marked ability, as all who have heard him speak on various public occasions readily concede, California will not have occasion to blush for him in that regard if he is commissioned by the people to forward their interests at the National Capital.

Briefly, his platform is support of the national administration and President Coolidge; a protective tariff; adequate appropriations for the care of disabled veterans; continued Oriental exclusion; advocate of a high dam at Boulder Canyon and of the All-American canal, as embodied in the Swing-Johnson Bill. He has made a special study of the Colorado River possibilities and realizes what that source of supply means to all of California.

As a lawyer, Judge Clarke's reputation at the bar of Los Angeles County is of the highest for ability, probity and integrity. Genial in disposition and with warm friends in and out of his profession, to whom he is always "Bob" Clarke, that the aspirant for the Republican senatorial nomination is affectionately regarded by those who know him best is of great significance.

Married December 27, 1900, to Edna Thurmond, daughter of a pioneer family of Carpinteria Valley, four children have blessed their union, Thurmond, a law student; Robert Jr. and Rossamond, twins, seniors at Los Angeles high-school; and Susan, aged eleven.

It should be borne in mind that in 1926 a United States senator and a governor are to be chosen, in both of which the people of California are deeply interested.

"Bob" joined the old Santa Paula Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West when he was eighteen years of age. Upon his removal to Ventura he affiliated with Cabrillo Parlor No. 114, and is now a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109 of Los Angeles. In 1910-1911 he served as Grand Trustee.
in 1926 a United States senator

In the business world, club life and fraternal orders, Judge Clarke has an active part, through his directorship in the Bank of America, membership in the California Club, the Los Angeles Athletic Club, the Wilshire Country Club, the Masonic Lodge and the Mystic Shrine. He is an honorary member of the Phi Delta Phi National Legal Fraternity.

The candidacy thus presented shows that in "Bob" Clarke we have a man in the prime of life, a native of the state that he seeks to represent, and one who has behind him a long and active career both as a lawyer and as a public servant.

He has worked on the farm, is familiar with the oil development of California, and has made a study of the water and power resources of his native state.

His candidacy is in no sense a sectional one, but will meet with the hearty approval of all of those who believe that the lands of this state should be preserved for Americans, that its water and power should be further conserved, and that another native of the state is competent and qualified to fully represent California in the National Congress.

While in the position of Assistant Attorney-General of California, Judge Clarke instituted and prosecuted the first case brought under the Alien Land Law.

¶ The Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West is founded upon the same broad patriotic principles that have been the inspiration of similar organizations in older States of the Union. Each State has its history. Into that history is interwoven a narrative of deeds performed by a mighty race of men who frontiered and pioneered the pathway for the countless thousands to follow. They transplanted the spirit, the life, the institutions of the Colonists, and wherever a State was erected there were established the ideals of the Fathers of the Republic.

¶ Therefore, the membership of our Order is limited to those born within the State, because we believe that pride of nativity is inherent in the breast of every person and moves that person to a consecrated loyalty to his native land. We do not maintain that birthplace alone confers any special privilege; rather do we teach that this casts upon the citizen an increased obligation to become interested in all material matters affecting its development and progress. National strength and national greatness have been commensurate with State strength and State greatness.

¶ California was the thirty-first State to be admitted into the Union. She contributed a citizenship and a golden treasure at an opportune time in the affairs of the nation. The many events connected with its settlement and organization as a State played a prominent part in shaping the destiny of the American people, and geographically she occupies a strategic position in the world-wide problems of the present and the future.

¶ We have taken an active interest in the conservation of our natural resources; the preservation of our scenic wonders and making them accessible to all; the retention of the State and its soil for the White race; all legislation, Federal and State, affecting the State and its interests.

¶ In our Fellowship endowment at the University of California we have expended over fifty thousand dollars in the preparation and preservation of the history of California and the Pacific Coast, and it has become the incentive for the Student Body of that institution and of the high-schools throughout the State to learn and teach that history. In this work we have laid the foundation for a text-book to be used in the public schools.

¶ We visit places where important events transpired and we have identified and marked the same with tablet and monument. Responding to the patriotic objects of our Order, we observe each recurring anniversary day of the Admission of California into the Union by public ceremonies in the various cities of the State. We actively participate in public dedicatory ceremonies of grammar-school and high-school buildings, on which occasions the students and citizens are addressed by officials of our Order on patriotic subjects.

¶ We maintain a "Homeless Children" Bureau and have placed in the childless homes over twenty-six hundred homeless boys and girls, insuring their development into a splendid citizenship amid elevating environments. In this activity we have expended over two hundred thousand dollars, contributed generously and voluntarily by the membership of the Order.

¶ It thus appears that the work of our organization appeals to every citizen of the State, irrespective of place of birth. It matters not where we were born in this land of ours; we are all citizens of a common country, we pledge our allegiance to one flag, and we are best evidencing our love of country and our loyalty to that flag by deservedly wearing the badge of public service wherever we exist and have our home.

¶ We welcome to our Membership the sons of California, and we promise nothing in return, save that compensation which comes to the citizen who conscientiously endeavors to perform his part in the cause of a greater and better civilization.

FLETCHER A. CUTLER,
Grand President, Native Sons of the Golden West.

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

CHRISTMAS DAY, 1875, CAME ON A Saturday, and while financial conditions, especially in San Francisco, were not as good as in past years, the holiday was observed in the usual happy manner throughout California. Turkeys sold at Marysville, Yuba County, at twelve cents a pound, and everything else necessary for good-cheer was proportionately inexpensive.

December opened with a heavy downpour of rain, and a succession of storms made the month a wet one. The 2nd, at Redding, Shasta County, the Sacramento River rose ten feet in two hours.

Democrats took possession of the State Capitol at Sacramento, December 6, when the Republican office-holders vacated. The Legislature met in biennial session the same day. B. F. Tuttle of Sonoma County was elected president-pro-tem of the Senate, and G. J. Carpenter of El Dorado County speaker of the Assembly. Accomplishing nothing, the Legislature adjourned the 21st for the Christmas holidays.

William Irwin was inaugurated as governor December 9, being escorted from his residence to the Capitol by the military. It was a gala day in the Capital City. The inaugural ball was held the 15th, and was attended by the state's social and political prominents. Champagne flowed as freely as at previous inaugurals.

The fight waged by the farmers against the miners for many succeeding years commenced at Yuba City, Sutter County, December 18, when a mass meeting petitioned the Legislature to stop hydraulic mining which, the farmers contended, was filling the river beds with debris.

OYSTER COCKTAIL IN VOGUE.

Oroville, Butte County, made its first shipment of oranges to San Francisco this month.

W. E. Emery of Alameda County put on exhibition what he claimed was the state's champion squash. It weighed 140 pounds.

General Banning was having a 4,100-acre ranch fronting Newport, Los Angeles, County, surveyed, with the intention of disposing of it in acre-lots.

Scarlet fever was prevalent throughout the state. Five children were claimed as its victims at Weaverville, Trinity County, in one week.

December 24, the Commercial Bank, a $50,000-capital concern in San Francisco, suspended.

The bondsmen of William Hill, the absconding Fresno County treasurer, had to pay a $34,313 judgment.

The oyster cocktail came into vogue in California this month. It was not what is now called such, but was compounded with small Tomales Bay oysters and whisky. It became so popular the oyster supply was soon exhausted.

That the vineyard industry was a growing and important one, was shown by the report of vines in various counties of the state this month: Los Angeles, 4,250,000; Sonoma, 3,603,000; Napa, 3,103,000; Sacramento, 2,132,000; Amador, 1,680,000; El Dorado, 1,410,000; Tuolumne, 1,400,000; Santa Clara, 1,215,000.

In Plumas County, A. C. Light found a gold quartz vein and from five pounds of rock pounded out $160.

Dona Lulalia Guillen, residing near Pomona, Los Angeles County, was claimed to be the oldest person in California. She had reached, it was said, the age of 140.

276-YEAR-OLD OAK TREE CUT DOWN.

A sensation was created in San Francisco December 8 by the appearance of a cartoon entitled "Bill Sharron's Dream," which was sold in great numbers. It represented the Palace Hotel with each of its bay windows occupied by a white elephant head. Senator Sharon was shown as awakening from a dream with a white elephant sitting upon his stomach. The gist of it was, that the Palace Hotel was considered too elaborate a concern for the times and that it was doomed to be a failure. Never was a greater mistake made, for it was a paying concern from the day of its opening.

The Latrobe, El Dorado County, deer club of ten members had already this season killed seventeen deer.

An oak tree cut down at Holden, San Joaquin County, was found to be 276 years old. In the center of the trunk, fourteen feet from the ground, was found an oval-shaped stone, two inches long, with a groove through its center. It had probably been used as a missile to be thrown with a sling and was lost a couple of centuries previous by some prehistoric bird-hunter.

A Mrs. Allen, passenger on a steamer from Los Angeles, was found to be missing when the boat arrived at Santa Barbara. Her clothing was in her stateroom and she was supposed to have jumped overboard. Later, dressed in male attire, she was discovered in the dining-room. It was a case of elopement, and Mrs. Allen took this method of disappearing.

The Society of California Pioneers had its annual reunion at Sacramento, December 29, the descendants of the members leading in the exercises. The old-timers enjoyed every minute of the occasion.

The stage-robbing industry opened this month with the stopping of the stage from Chinese Camp, Tuolumne County, the 1st by one masked man who took the express-box, with very little in it.

The North San Juan, Nevada County, stage was stopped the 16th by one man who got several hundred dollars from the express-box.

MADE MORE THAN HE COULD SPEND.

The 22nd, the stage from Downieville, Sierra County, to Marysville, Yuba County, was stopped near the famous Dobbins ranch by three masked men, one of whom impersonated a Chinese. They took the express-box and robbed three male passengers of $360, but did not molest the two female passengers.

The 28th, near Smartsville, Yuba County, the stage from North San Juan to Marysville was stopped by, it was thought, the same three highwaymen. The passengers were not bothered, but the express-box was taken.

William A. Thompson came to California from Iowa in 1850 and had been in Siskiyou County ever since. He left a wife and nine children in Iowa and during the quarter-century he had been away had not heard from them, nor had they heard a word from him. He was now 74 years old and one of his friends communicated with his family and they sent for him to return. His wife and the nine children were all living and in addition there were fifty grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.

J. Cunningham got into a fight in a Merchant street, San Francisco, dive December 29, was arrested, taken to the station-house and searched. He was found to have $2,800 in currency in one of his boots; in his pockets were $205 in gold, $50 in silver halves, $35 in English notes, $20 in foreign coins, and three bank books that showed he had on deposit in savings banks $14,193. He had been mining in different parts of California since 1856 and evidently made more than he could spend.

At Ferndale, Humboldt County, December 27, M. F. Branstetter and John Henley quarreled over a game of cards and engaged in a fistfight. During the melee Henley drew a pocketknife and fatally stabbed Branstetter.

A gang of six Mexicans went to Gaskell's store in Campo, San Diego County, to rob it. A battle ensued in which Gaskell killed one of the bandits, wounded three others and was himself dangerously wounded. The Mexicans made their escape into Lower California.

OROVILLE NATIVE DAUGHTER WINNER IN QUEEN CONTEST.

Oroville (Butte County)—In the contest for queen of the Orange and Olive Exposition which opened here November 25, Mrs. Helen Smith won by a last-minute landslide over all seekers of the honor.

The contestants were presented by numerous lodges and civic bodies, Mrs. Smith being the candidate of Argonaut Parlor No. 8 N.S.G.W., Gold of Ophir Parlor No. 190 N.D.G.W. and the Elks. Her nearest competitor, Miss Leona James, held the lead until the final night of balloting, and then came the Queen Helen deluge of votes.

The contestants, and their final votes, were: Mrs. Helen Smith, 1,147,050; Miss Leona James, 302,550; Miss Myrtle Grubbs, 69,400; Mrs. Earnest Gibson, 57,750.

(MARGERY BOYD.)

"CHRISTINA ALBERTA'S FATHER."
By H. G. Wells; The Macmillan Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.50.

This is the story of Mr. Preemby and Christina Alberta. Mrs. Preemby was very exacting, except as to the matter of her death, poor thing. So, suddenly free, Christina Alberta and Mr. Preemby adventure into the great wide world of London. The sorrows and joys which befall them there weave themselves into a strange and poignant tale.

The evils of the present system of insane asylums, together with the outlook of the modern girl on life, form the more serious themes of the novel. But threading constantly in and about, the glinting humor and warm sympathy of the author save the book from any sardonicism.

"Christina Alberta's Father" is not light reading; rather, it is that unusually rare prize, a novel which offers abundant food for thought.

"THE MISTY FLATS."
By Helen Woodbury; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

The Bradleys lived in a comfy white house in the little town of Ridgley, Connecticut. There were Dr. Bradley, his pretty wife, Linda and Tad. The Bradleys were both devoted to their children.

The years slipped past quickly. Suddenly Linda and Tad were "grown up." The world called to Linda, and to Tad, too. Tad left, but Linda could not leave; her pretty mother grieved if she even spoke of going. The dreary years in Ridgley came and went; Linda was twenty-five. Once she tasted of freedom and love, but she had to go back to Ridgley because of her mother.

"The Misty Flats" is a novel written with a strong appeal. It leaves the reader to draw his own conclusions as to whether Linda chose the nobler way. The early chapters of the book reveal splendid sympathy for and thorough understanding of children. The story of Linda's early life contains most of the novel's charm.

Whether you agree with Helen Woodbury's views or not, the conclusion of "The Misty Flats" must bring the honest verdict, "well done."

"ANDERSEN'S FAIRY TALES."
By Hans Christian Andersen; Thomas Y. Crowell Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $1.50.

If you wish to skip down that gossamer trail to fairyland once more, close your eyes tightly and listen well: "There once was,"—

Of course, you remember every one of those twenty-two tales of Andersen's: The story of the magic tinder box and the soldier who marched along the highway,—one, two! one, two!—the Ugly Duckling, the Snow Queen, and the score of other fragile threads lightly linking us to childhood.

This edition is printed in large, clear type. It is charmingly illustrated by Stephen Reid—eight colored plates and many quaint little sketches in black and white. Children love fairy tales, and Christmas is coming!

"YELLOW FINGERS."
By Gene Wright; J. B. Lippincott Company, Publishers, Philadelphia; Price, $2.00.

Yellow fingers clutching, now she could feel them clawing at her throat. Nona, with a tremendous effort, struggled free and ran as she had never run before. The "Luak" lay at anchor in Bangkok Bay, while an angry captain glared at the three before him. The two men were frankly trembling. Then the girl suddenly spoke:

"I was in grave danger—of my life—perhaps something infinitely worse—and these men came to my aid. My safety lay in getting away from Bangkok, and your vessel was my only opportunity. I begged them to bring me here, although they protested a fear of—Captain Shane. They are not to blame." From the shore came the shrill cries of the Chinamen. They had found a boat. But Nona did not heed them, for she lay crumpled and still on the deck. Captain Shane stooped and gently lifted her. So, Nona Deering met Captain Shane.

The romance that follows tingles with excitement, from beginning to end. The setting, laid in the South Seas, gives the author ample scope to paint those vivid word-pictures in which he excels.

"Yellow Fingers" is a close follower and worthy companion of "Pandora La Croix," that first popular novel of Gene Wright's.

"THE VIRTUOUS HUSBAND."
By Freeman Tilden; The Macmillan Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.50.

Jim Buckbarrow was a trifle slow and cautious, but a loveable lad. When he grew up, he was going to marry Rachel. Then he would become Daddy Fernie's partner in the printing business.

Grown to manhood, Jim finds that plans do not always go according to dreams. The city, with its clamoring opportunities, lures him irresistibly. As a reporter on a Boston newspaper, he encounters many and varied experiences, chief among them Patricia.

FATHER SERRA STATUE UNVEILED

A BRONZE STATUE OF FATHER JUNIpero Serra, erected in Memory Garden adjoining San Fernando Mission as a tribute to the founder of the chain of California missions which extends from San Diego in the south to Sonoma City in the north, was unveiled November 22 in the presence of 5,000 people, including many Native Sons and Native Daughters. The unveiling was preceded by a pageant depicting the founding, in 1797, and the early history of San Fernando Mission.

The statue depicts Father Serra, who was born November 24, 1713, standing with a staff in his right hand, and his left hand resting upon the shoulder of an Indian boy. It is of Roman bronze, and stands eight feet in height.

The statue was formally presented to Los Angeles City by John Steven McGroarty, as the representative of a group of men who came to California from other parts of the country and have profited in health and worldly goods. For the city, it was accepted by Colonel Frank H. True of the Board of Park Commissioners.

Justice Frank G. Finlayson delivered the address of the day. Pointing out the wonders accomplished by Father Serra, he said: "There is much that we can learn from this great man. Particularly, that the great varieties of life are of the spirit. Consider what he did to educate those humble aborigines—not only for the hand and for the mind, but for the heart and for the soul."

He expressed the hope that so much time would not be spent in the public-schools cramming facts into the minds of the young. "Let one of the lessons of Father Serra be," he concluded, "to so educate our children as to bring out the greatest attribute of the human mind, heart and soul."

LOOKING AHEAD.

Preparedness for 1926 will be the first order of business at the regular quarterly meeting of the Pacific Coast Regional Advisory Board, convening December 11 in Los Angeles City.

More than five hundred shippers, growers and manufacturers of California products will meet with railroad representatives at that time to formulate definite plans for handling the shipments of next year's crops. It is anticipated that the 1926 crop volume will be fifteen to twenty percent above that of this year.

The Pacific Coast Regional Advisory Board was organized in 1924 to form a common meeting ground between shippers and railroads for the better understanding of transportation questions, to adjust informally car service difficulties which may arise between carrier and shipper, and to give the shipping public a direct voice in the activities of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association on all matters of mutual concern.

BIG TIME AT BARN DANCE.

One of the best and most-enjoyed functions in the social history of local Native Sonism was the anniversary party of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. at the Elite November 16. A splendid menu was served at the 7 o'clock supper, concluding with ice-cream molded and colored to represent California fruits, and cakes adorned with the State (Bear) Flag. First Vice-president Andrew Stodel was the toastmaster, and there were responses by Undersheriff Eugene Biscailuz, Judge W. S. Baird, Sheriff William I. Traeger, Judge Ira Thompson, Judge Nathan Friedman and President Sidney Witkowski. Dancing followed the supper, and Miss Dorothy Day and Miss Florrie Witkowski pleased with fancy dance numbers. The event was in observance of the forty-first institution anniversary of No. 45. Arrangements were in the hands of the Parlor's good of the order committee: Howard Bentley (chairman), Andrew Beazell, Ray Lemoine, Ronald Ross, Julius Leuschner, Herbert Holts, William Newell, Herbert Leuschner, John McGonigle, Albert Cron, Earl Lemoine, Richard Fryer, Andrew Stodell, Howard Bell, Lewie Smith, Sidney Witkowski.

Several new names were added to Los Angeles' membership-roll during November. Everybody had a "gosh dern" big time at the Parlor's barn dance November 28. The boys were in field outfits, the "gals" in aprons, bonnets, etc., and cornstalks and "sich" decorated the hall. Cy Perkins' fiddlers furnished the music, and prizes for the most appropriate costumes were awarded.

Los Angeles will feature its annual Christmas tree and dance December 17. Those who have attended previous events know what a delightful time is in store for them. Officers will be elected December 3. The 24th and the 31st being, respectively, Christmas Eve and New Year Eve, the Parlor will have its final 1925 meeting December 10.

HONOR CONFERRED ON NATIVE DAUGHTER

Miss Grace S. Stoermer, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., returned to Los Angeles October 25 after attending the convention of the American Bankers' Association and the Association of Bank Women which met jointly at Atlantic City. Honor was again conferred on her in being re-elected to the position of regional vice-president of the association in the Western division.

After the convention, Miss Stoermer spent considerable time in New York and other Eastern cities, visiting the large banking institutions there and studying financial conditions. She was particularly interested in observing the women's departments as operated in those institutions.

In commenting on her trip, she mentioned that one of the most enjoyable features was the privilege and pleasure of meeting Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. In returning via the Canadian Rockies, Miss Stoermer saw the beauties of the northern country and came down the coast, stopping off at Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. While in those cities she was entertained elaborately by the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

NEW MUSEUM UNIT OPENED.

The new unit of the Los Angeles Museum of History, Science and Art was formally opened November 27 with an exhibition of several hundred paintings by artists of North and South America. The paintings will remain on exhibition until January 31. William M. Bowen is president of the museum's board of governors.

The feature of the evening was the unveiling of a mural painting, fifty feet long and ten feet high, by Charles R. Knight of New York, an artist who has specialized in the painting of prehistoric animals. It represents the gathering of such about the famous La Brea pits, in which many of them were trapped and their remains thus preserved.

RECORD SMASHED.

Friday, November 13, was not unlucky for Los Angeles City, for on that date the bank clearings smashed all previous records, mounting to $41,112,490.29.

This was the third time this year that the bank-clearings record was broken. July 2 they totaled $37,109,784.70, the highest mark ever reached up to that time, and October 14 they went to $40,866,679.79.

NEW HOME IN PROSPECT.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. was entertained November 13 with an interesting and humorous talk on the "Chemistry of Oil" by Professor Laird J. Stabler, dean of the University of Southern California Chemistry School. President Burrel D. Neighbours is actively engaged in promoting the Parlor's proposed new home on its Venice boulevard (formerly West Sixteenth street) property, and believes that building operations will shortly be under way.

Ramona will feature a high-jinks December 11 under the direction of First Vice-president Leon J. Leonard, who promises a program of

HARM ME NOT

"HARM ME NOT!" THESE WORDS conclude the prayer of a tree that is being distributed in poster form by the California Development Association throughout the state as a means of conserving the great timber resource of California. The appeal is one that has been used for many years on posters in the forests of Spain. It follows:

"To The Wayfarer. Ye who pass by and would raise your hand against me, harken ere you harm me. I am the heat of your hearth on the cold winter nights; the friendly shade screening you from the summer sun; and my fruits are refreshing draughts quenching your thirst as you journey on.

"I am the beam that holds your house, the board of your table, the bed on which you lie, and the timber that builds your boat. I am the handle of your hoe, the door of your homestead, the wood of your cradle, and the shell of your coffin.

"I am the bread of kindness and the flower of beauty. Ye who pass by listen to my prayer: Harm me not!"

"The misfortune," states Charles G. Dunwoody, director of the Conservation Department of the California Development Association, "that has been California's, due to the lack of realization on the part of California citizens of the tremendous value of our timber resource, must soon become a condition of the past, if we are not to destroy forever this great heritage.

"It is our thought that there is an innate love of the forests in the hearts of all of us. We simply need the knowledge of how to keep from harming the trees, and we will see to it that they are preserved for posterity.

"The greatest destructive agent of our forests has been fires caused by man's carelessness. A decided turn for the better has been noted this year, however, and I am sure that by all working together man-caused fires will be few and far between."

GREAT REDWOOD FOREST RESERVATION CONTEMPLATED IN HUMBOLDT COUNTY.

A great redwood forest reservation, comprising approximately 10,000 to 12,000 acres and representing a valuation of several million dollars, is contemplated in plans recently outlined and given approval by the Council of the Save the Redwoods League at its annual meeting at San Francisco, November 5. This reservation, if established, will be of national significance, both as to size and importance, and will, according to the plan, be located at the junction of the South Fork and Eel Rivers at Dyerville, Humboldt County, California, and will comprise the major portion of the watershed of Bull Creek, a tributary of the South Fork of the Eel.

At the same meeting the league's council indicated its support of plans for preserving from 700 to 1,000 acres on Smtih River, near Crescent City, in Del Norte County, California, including a strip of redwood timber along the new state highway for a distance of from four to six miles and taking in the famous Mill Creek Flat at the junction of Mill Creek and Smith River. The contemplated redwood park on the Smith River has the whole-hearted support of officials and citizens of Del Norte County, where it is located.

It is recognized as containing not only a marvelous stand of redwoods and exceptional river scenery but also as offering unusual recreational opportunities.

Toward the realization of the larger redwood reservation at Dyerville, the league already has in hand a fund in excess of three-quarters of a million dollars to be utilized toward the purchase of portions of the Dyerville Flats and also a portion of the celebrated Bull Creek Flat. Many scientists and world travelers have declared that in Bull Creek Flat the redwood is found in its highest form of development. The largest and tallest of the sequoia semper-virens and also the most symmetrical are found in the main Bull Creek Flat. It is stated that probably nowhere since the beginning of time has there existed a more majestic forest. Lumbermen are agreed that the average density of the timber here reaches the maximum known in these forests. It is with these facts in mind and also because of the unusual recreational opportunities afforded that the league has decided to support the plan for saving this area.

CALIFORNIA WOMEN DETERMINED TO STAMP OUT LIFE SACRIFICE.

"Four California citizens must be fed today to the modern minotaur. Who is to be sacrificed?" Introducing her thought with these words, Mrs. D. E. F. Easton, general chairman of the street and highway safety campaign launched by the women's department of the California Development Association, November 17 broadcasted a state-wide appeal asking California women to rise in determined unity and stamp out the needless sacrifice of human life demanded by the automobile. Quoting from vital statistics of the state, she showed that during 1924 1,385 deaths, with an approximate rate of four per day, occurred on the streets and highways as a result of automobile accidents. Continuing, Mrs. Easton said:

"The monster of Grecian mythology demanded only seven youths and seven maidens as its yearly tribute from the grief-stricken Athenians. The modern minotaur, the automobile, devours men, women and children of California served as a daily appetizer. Four of us are to die today, four tomorrow, four the day after, and so on through the year. A glance at the state vital statistics of 1924 show that these killings by automobile on the streets and highways of the state are not spasmodic, but are a continuous day-by-day grind of death.

"We must have action. Careless and reckless driving on the streets and highways must cease, and practical safety regulations enforced. We are faced with an emergency—our lives are endangered. Broadcast the distress call of the campaign, 'S. O. S.'—Safety or Sorrow.'"

The first step in the campaign has been the distribution of thousands of safety pledges. Every community in the state is asked to secure a hundred percent signing. The pledge reads: "I hereby solemnly pledge that I will at all times, to the best of my ability, studiously cultivate, carefully observe, and actively practice in all safety precautions, to the end that the appalling sacrifice of human life and unnecessary suffering caused by carelessness may be stopped —and the streets and highways made safe."

Autos Bring State Revenue—Automobile registrations in California to November 16 totaled 1,399,728, of which 1,189,260 were passenger machines, according to the State Division of Motor Vehicles. Fees totaling $7,593,809 were collected by the division.

THE TOURNAMENT OF ROSES

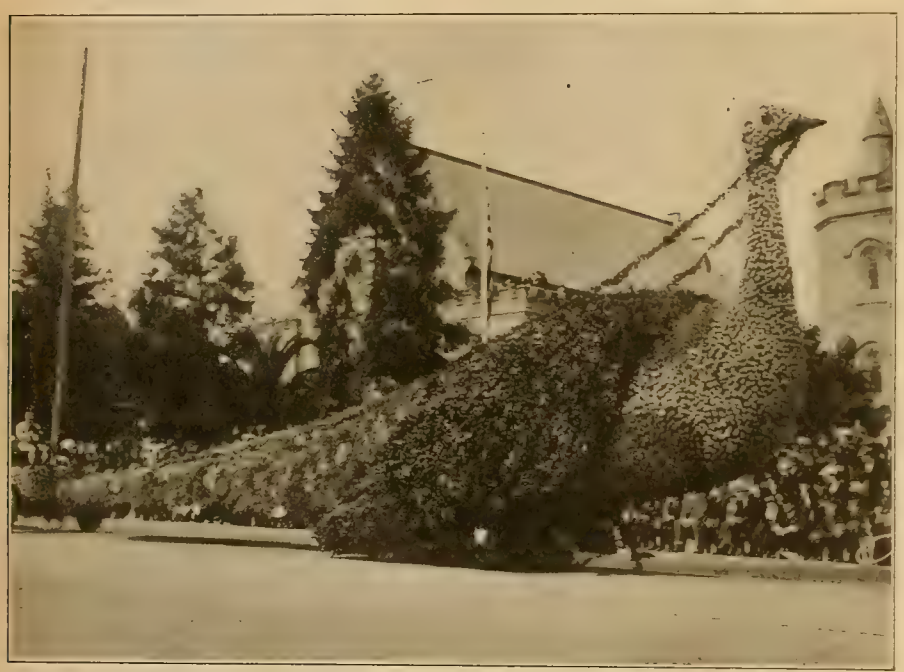
(PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)



WHILE BLIZZARDS RAGE AND HUmans shiver throughout the greater part of the United States, Californians are getting ready for their annual mid-winter floral fete, the Tournament of Roses, which has been held in Pasadena each New Year's Day for thirty-six consecutive years.

Started by the Valley Hunt Club in 1889 as a small village fiesta, the Tournament of Roses has grown until it has achieved the proportions of a great state-wide institution, and its fame has spread until all the world wakes up each New Year's morning, longing to be in California, where roses are blooming under sunny summer skies and a football game is to be played that afternoon on a sward of velvety green grass.

The Tournament of Roses is universally regarded as California's greatest annual event. sits in a theatre, with the wind howling and the snow drifting outside, while on the screen is shown the indisputable proof that the newspaper stories erred only on the side of conservatism. The world sees, gasps, and goes away to dream of a trip to California, the land of perpetual sunshine and perennial flowers.

Each year the Tournament of Roses grows a little larger and more gorgeous. Although this is written several weeks before New Year's Day, it already is apparent that the 1926 parade will far surpass all its predecessors in size and in magnificence.

The thirty-seventh tournament will see San Francisco and Santa Barbara represented for the first time. This in itself will make the pageant a notable one, for it means that the Tournament of Roses will now be representative of all of California. The San Francisco entry has been

A TOURNAMENT OF ROSES. PASADENA. FLOAT.

Here it is that California once each year presents visual evidence that her climate is the finest on earth. The evidence is conclusive and irrefutable. While the residents of less-favored states are stoking furnaces and shoveling snow, California drapes a hundred floats in millions of fresh flowers, and parades them along sunbathed, palm-lined streets. Telegraph instruments chatter and motion-picture cameras grind. The next morning, the world reads about the gorgeous floral fete, and a couple of weeks later made possible by an appropriation voted for the purpose by the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco County. The Santa Barbara entry is to be sponsored by the Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce and the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West of that city.

Beside the Santa Barbara and San Francisco entries, almost twenty other cities had entered floats seven weeks before the date of the tournament. In addition to these floats, there will, as usual, be a host of entries from clubs, churches, schools, hotels, industrial and commercial concerns, fraternal bodies and other organizations. It is probable that there will be at least a hundred gorgeous floral creations in the parade.

The cities that will be represented include San Francisco, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Diego, Long Beach, Glendale, Alhambra, Oxnard, Eagle Rock, Ontario, Upland, Monrovia, Burbank, San Bernardino, Sierra Madre, Azusa, Encinitas, San Gabriel, Hemet, San Jacinto and Pasadena. Chambers of Commerce of Orange County have entered a joint float to represent the county. Several churches will have floats in the parade. Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, winner of the sweepstakes prize last year with a beautiful creation typifying the broadcasting of the Gospel to the world, will again be represented.

There will be many entries from service clubs, fraternal organizations and military bodies, including the Elks, Knights of Columbus, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Knights of the Round Table, Optimist, Salvation Army, Grand Army of the Republic, American Legion and Spanish-American War Veterans. The resort hotels of California also will be well represented. One entry will depict a scene from John Steven McGroarty's "Mission Play," presented annually at San Gabriel Mission, and among the floats representing commercial firms will be entries by the Western Auto Supply Company, Edison Electric Appliance Company and the Perfection Bakeries.

The entry of the Tournament of Roses Association will be particularly gorgeous this year. While the float is not eligible for a prize, it always heads the parade, and invariably it is a masterful creation.

Originality and beauty, rather than cost, are the points considered by the judges in awarding prizes for the best floats in the parade, according to Harry M. Ticknor, president of the Tournament of Roses Association.

The equestrian division of the 1926 parade promises to be exceptionally notable and brilliant. W. W. Mines, one of the most prominent horse owners in Southern California, is in charge of arrangements for it.

It is possible that several foreign nations, through their California representatives, will have floats in the parade.

Much thought is being given to arrangements for taking care of the huge crowd that will descend upon Pasadena New Year's Day. That the problem requires a great deal of thought is obvious when it is known that more than 400,000 persons witnessed the parade a year ago and about seventy-five percent of them came in automobiles. To direct this tremendous stream of traffic necessitates much careful planning and a huge force of special traffic officers. A scheme is being worked out whereby the traffic police of towns adjoining Pasadena will distribute traffic equitably over the various routes into Pasadena on New Year's morning in order that no one highway may receive the bulk of the load and thus become choked. Another plan is being perfected for directing the crowd, after it arrives in Pasadena, so that the huge throng may be evenly distributed over the five-mile line of march, thus insuring that everyone may have an opportunity to see the parade.

More than one thousand special traffic officers will be on duty New Year's morning to handle the swarms of automobiles on the highways leading into the city and to distribute the crowd over the parade route.

Few people realize the magnitude of the undertaking embraced in the staging of the Tournament of Roses. The traffic problem is only one feature. On the night of December 31, an average of more than six thousand persons work all night preparing the floats for the morning parade. This is made necessary by the fact that only fresh, natural flowers are permitted on any float, and the tournament rules require that these flowers be placed on the floats not more than twelve hours before the scheduled starting time of the parade.

The number of floats in the parade has averaged more than one hundred for the last twenty years. Millions of flowers are used on the floats. There have been many instances where one hundred thousand or more blooms appeared on a single float. In a few instances this number has been far exceeded. Ten years ago the parade represented a total expenditure of around $100,000. This year it is estimated that the gorgeous pageant will cost approximately half a million dollars. Officers and directors of the tournament put in four months of hard work and spend about $20,000 making plans and getting everything ready for the parade.

Although marching bodies are not permitted in the parade, about two thousand persons are required to depict the various characters on the floats and to provide the music units necessary for such a pageant.

California receives a tremendous amount of publicity as a result of the tournament. In one year, the newspapers of the country have carried a volume of dispatches and comment that, if clipped out, single column width, would have measured eleven miles in length. Motion pictures of the pageant are shown all over the world. Last year the tournament association received communications from people who had seen the pictures in Chile, the Argentine Republic, the Philippines, Java, Labrador and Norway. These films are shown in practically every city and village in the United States.

The parade usually is around three miles in length. More than seventy percent of the floats come from communities and organizations outside of Pasadena. Cities as far distant as Atlantic City and Portland have been represented by floats in the pageant.

The tournament again this year is being directed by Malcom A. Fraser, who was in charge of the 1924 and 1925 tournaments, and who was executive director of the diamond jubilee pageant at San Francisco last summer. Fraser is regarded by many as the greatest pageant director in the United States. [Incidentally, Fraser is a Native Son of California, affiliated

While the parade is the chief feature of the Tournament of Roses, the inter-sectional football game, played in the Rose Bowl on New Year's afternoon between teams representing the East and the West, easily claims its share of attention. Arrangements for the football game are in the hands of the Pacific Coast Conference. Ten Tournament of Roses games have been played in the past, Western teams having won four times, Eastern teams twice, and two games resulting in tie scores. The 1918 and 1919 games were played between teams from the war-training camps.

The 1925 game, resulting in a 27-to-10 victory for Notre Dame over Stanford, marked the second time that an Eastern team had defeated a Pacific Coast team at Pasadena.

The games are played in Pasadena's huge Rose Bowl, which seats 65,000 persons, while quick ingress and exit are permitted by twenty-two tunnels. Parking space is provided for 20,000 automobiles. Before the football games were inaugurated, chariot races furnished an afternoon of sport for the Tournament of Roses program.

The Tournament of Roses is not a commercial enterprise. From the beginning, its board of directors have been composed of public-spirited men—men of high ideals—who have devoted all that they had of energy and skill without any hope of financial reward and in many instances with actual financial sacrifice.

The credit for the first Tournament of Roses goes to the late Dr. Charles Frederick Holder, famous scientist and writer on outdoor sports, who had seen the floral fetes in Nice and believed that they might be successfully held in Pasadena. The first tournament was sponsored by the Valley Hunt Club, of which Dr. Holder was one of the founders. Members of the club trimmed their carriages, tallyhos and other horse-drawn vehicles with garlands of flowers, and paraded through the streets of Pasadena. Spanish sports were held in the afternoon on a vacant lot. These sports were similar to those staged at the tournaments of the Middle Ages in Europe. Hence, the pageant was named, "Tournament of Roses."

The first tournament was a huge success, and consequently it became an annual event. After being sponsored by the Valley Hunt Club for eight years, it grew to such proportions that a separate organization, known as the Tournament of Roses Association, was formed to conduct it. This organization has since continued to stage the tournament each year. No member of the association has ever profited financially from the venture.

The rules that governed the first tournament are still in effect. They are: Only fresh, natural flowers may be used in the parade. Nothing of an advertising nature may appear in the parade. No individual shall enjoy any financial profit from the tournament. Entry in the parade shall be open to all upon equal terms.

NATIVE SONS STAGE BENEFIT.

Pasadena Parlor No. 259 N.S.G.W. staged a benefit for the homeless children of California November 20 that was a rare treat, thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience. It was a children's society vaudeville, presented by pupils from The Pearl Keller School of Dancing, Glendale, and every number on the program was excellent and heartily applauded. The performers, with one exception, are the pupils of Pearl Keller, and they acquitted themselves in a manner most creditable to her. The costumes were unusually attractive. The exception was Eddie Ulrich, a boy violinist, who gave three numbers and indicated that he has a great future; he is a pupil of Florence Norman-Shaw. Vincent Savory, secretary, had charge of the arrangements for the benefit on the Parlor's behalf.

December 3, Pasadena will receive an official visit from Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi. The gathering will be held at the home of President John L. Briener, 1470 Monte Vista street.

CALIFORNIA PROSPEROUS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THAT CALIFORNIA IS PROSPEROUS and that development of this young state is making rapid progress are facts revealed in a statement compiled by State Controller Ray L. Riley, recently made public. It shows that the grand total assessed value of all property in 1925 is $7,035,742,630, which is $394,333,238 more than the 1924 grand total of $6,661,409,392. In a decade, the state controller's records show, the assessed value of property in California has doubled, jumping from $3,578,146,434 in 1916 to $7,035,742,630 this year, 1925. The increase has been consistent, as indicated by the following figures:

| Year | Grand Total Assd. Valn. |
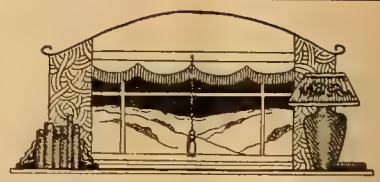
| 1916 | $3,578,146,134 |
| 1917 | 3,722,606,407 |
| 1918 | 3,806,865,179 |
| 1919 | 4,067,132,918 |
| 1920 | 4,555,445,147 |
| 1921 | 4,929,479,508 |
| 1922 | 5,135,984,563 |
| 1923 | 5,716,358,058 |
| 1924 | 6,661,409,392 |
| 1925 | 7,035,742,630 |

A little figuring shows the gain for the first five-year period, 1916-1920, of the decade was $977,299,013, while for the second five-year period, 1920-1925, it mounted to $2,480,297,183. Property valuations for purposes of taxation are indicative of general conditions, so, from the comparative figures of the last and the first half of the decade, it is plainly evident that California's stride forward has not been impeded. In fact, the state has just commenced to grow, in population and in development. These figures will, no doubt, displease the perpetual pessimist, but will cheer the optimist and furnish him with undeniable facts to combat the propaganda directed against California. Here are additional comparative figures of the state at large that are interesting:



| | 1925. | 1924. |
| Real Estate | $3,182,639,112 | $3,052,687,156 |
| Improvements | 1,657,002,822 | 1,429,950,420 |
| Personal property | 888,113,602 | 961,387,717 |
| Money, solvent credits | 66,724,388 | 75,058,240 |
| Nonoperative property | 5,794,779,924 | 5,519,083,563 |
| Operative property | 923,106,615 | 821,807,486 |
| Railroads | 317,565,091 | 320,518,343 |

Going back a decade, it is found that in 1916 the value of real estate in California was placed at $1,851,485,421; improvements, $696,960,698; personal property, $333,403,268; money and solvent credits, $35,005,709; non-operative property, $2,916,855,096; operative property, $504,284,748; railroads, $157,006,590.

The total funded debt of the several counties has jumped from $66,260,300 in 1916 to $122,617,600 in 1924 and $124,733,500 in 1925. The counties' total indebtedness has been consistently upward, too, $66,370,265.88 in 1916, $125,319,018.74 in 1924, $128,038,428.39 in 1925. Counties free of debt are Amador, Calaveras, Humboldt, Inyo, Madera, Marin, Mariposa, Mono, Monterey, Nevada, Placer, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Trinity, Tuolumne, Yuba.

San Francisco has the greatest debt, $76,567,400, and also the highest tax rate, $4.13. Lake has the smallest debt, $6,500, and Kern the lowest tax rate, $1.05 (inside), $1.15 outside. Kern also has the largest number of assessed acres of land, 3,752,578, and San Francisco the smallest number, 29,760.

Los Angeles, by far the wealthiest county in California, almost went into the three-billion class this year. The total assessed value of all property there is $2,940,078,815, which is $223,855,010 more than the 1924 total of $2,716,223,805. Forty-two percent of the state's grand total assessed property valuation is credited to this one county, and the gain there for 1925 over 1924 ($223,855,010) is fifty-six percent of the gain credited to the whole state ($394,333,238). The county has 1,221,858 acres of assessed land, a total debt of $8,572,599.45, and its tax rate is $1.089 (inside), $1.379 outside. The following figures tell better than words the story of Los Angeles' phenomenal advancement:

|---|---|
| 1916 | $ 991,378,862 |
| 1917 | 1,012,731,129 |
| 1918 | 1,021,629,317 |
| 1919 | 1,029,981,124 |
| 1920 | 1,275,735,264 |
| 1921 | 1,414,564,717 |
| 1922 | 1,573,418,167 |
| 1923 | 1,992,068,094 |
| 1924 | 2,716,223,805 |
| 1925 | 2,940,078,815 |

For the first five-year period of the 1916-1925 decade, Los Angeles County registered a gain in assessed property valuation of $284,356,402, and in the second period a gain of $1,664,343,551. For the past ten years the Los-Angeles-has-reached-its-development-peak howlers have been directing their "knocking" at that county. These figures not only discredit them, but prove the contention that every "knock" is a boost.

San Francisco, the only combined city-and-county government in the state, went into the billion-dollar class this year, the grand total assessed valuation of all property there reaching $1,050,485,716, which is $61,268,646 more than last year. In 1916 the assessed valuation was $756,235,232, and in 1920 it had increased to $819,820,078. For the decade, 1916-1920, the gain is $294,250,484.

In Los Angeles and San Francisco the combined total assessed value of all property this year is $3,990,564,531, the figures being $2,940,078,815 for Los Angeles and $1,050,485,716 for San Francisco. This total is fifty-six percent of the grand total of the whole state, $7,035,742,630.

According to State Controller Riley's statement, there are nine California counties in the nine-figure class, based on the grand total assessed value of all property for 1925. These include:

| County | 1925 Total | 1924 Total | Debt |
|---|---|---|---|
| Alameda | $398,907,567 | $374,469,952 | $1,320,364 |
| Kern | 211,995,472 | 188,198,003 | 1,745,000 |
| Fresno | 198,413,940 | 204,390,666 | 4,410,000 |
| Orange | 166,799,719 | 173,296,561 | 1,196,000 |
| Sacramento | 155,360,518 | 148,208,604 | 2,609,580 |
| Santa Clara | 124,103,301 | 119,887,623 | 220,000 |
| San Joaquin | 122,330,481 | 120,017,753 | 1,200,000 |
| San Diego | 121,179,472 | 105,376,789 | 3,352,000 |
| San Bernardino | 114,022,926 | 108,585,273 | 2,197,875 |

"PATRIOT'S FLAG CREED" SUBJECT FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN'S ESSAY CONTEST.

A "Patriot's Flag Creed" is being sought by the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, and Allen B. Bixby, California commander, has announced that this will be the subject of the Legion's national essay contest for schoolchildren for the year 1925-1926. Commenting on the contest, Commander Bixby says:

"The National Americanism Commission of the Legion desires to secure a patriot's flag creed, not more than 125 words in length, which will foster greater respect for the Flag of the United States. The flag creed must display originality; it must be inspirational."

Prizes of a silver medal, a bronze medal and a certificate of merit will be awarded for the winners of first, second and third places, respectively, in the state competition. In the 1925 contest more than 800 pupils in the California schools participated, and prizes were won by students in the Placerville, Selma and San Francisco schools.

Records Shattered—The 1924-25 season shattered all California citrus crop records, according to the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. The delivered value of the crop was $122,245,523, and the returns to growers totaled $93,581,263. For the year ending October 31, 49,437 carloads of citrus fruits were shipped.

Red Bluff (Tehama County)—Mrs. Emma Bruce-Conard, born in California in 1857, passed away November 15, survived by four children.

In Memoriam

JOHN MOSES BOYES.

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of Almighty God, our friend and brother, John Moses Boyes, has passed on, to take up his duties in the Heavenly Parlor on High; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Boyes, Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 Native Sons of the Golden West has lost one of its most loyal members, the County of Sonoma one of its most respected citizens, and Brother Boyes' family a loving husband and father; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of the Santa Rosa Parlor extend our most heartfelt sympathy to the members of Brother Boyes' family in this, their sad hour of bereavement, and we sincerely pray that their sorrow may be tempered in the thoughts that God, in His infinite mercy, knows best; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions, under the seal of the Parlor, be sent to them; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this Parlor.

Fraternally submitted in F. L. & C.,
CARL A. PATTERSON,
JOHN HAWKES,
FRANK BERGER,
Committee.

Santa Rosa, October 1, 1925.

H. EDWARD YARDLEY.

Whereas, The Almighty Father has seen fit to remove from our Parlor to the Parlor on High our esteemed friend and brother, H. Edward Yardley, one of the oldest and most beloved members of our Parlor and one who has always given generously of his time, effort and money to any activity of the Parlor; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Yardley, Sunset Parlor No. 26 Native Sons of the Golden West has lost one of its most loyal members and earnest workers, and the City of Sacramento one of its most respected citizens; now therefore, be it Resolved, That we, the members of Sunset Parlor No. 26 Native Sons of the Golden West, extend our most heartfelt sympathy to the loving wife of Brother Yardley in this, her sad hour of bereavement; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor; and be it further resolved, that a copy be sent to Mrs. Yardley and that a copy be forwarded to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

HAND MADE GIFTS MOST APPRECIATED

THE FAVORITE COSTUME IS MADE up of kilt (skirt) and casaque (blouse). The former is well named, for it is nothing more than a skirt of narrow crepe-de-chine and balbriggan. Only materials that stand fine knife pleating are used in the kilts, which are so narrow that they must be short, otherwise women would be unable to move in them. Even the foundation of transparent evening gowns is narrow, but the flying movement continues in all frocks.

The French gave the name "casaque" to the balbriggan blouse that we wear with joy and comfort. Some of the garments are long and some are short, but all turn at the hip-bone. They have a small rolling collar, and long sleeves with several link buttons at the wrist, and are worn with the same careless air that a man wears an undershirt, from which they are frankly copied.

That last sentence brings up the vital subject of buttons. Cut, crystal and colored bone ones have been widely exploited, but inset pearls and flat mother-of-pearls, ringed with metal, such as men wear in their cuffs, are first choice. In the turnover collar on a balbriggan or crepe casaque, two link buttons dangle from the right buttonhole and several hold the sleeves together at the wrist. The pearls used are as large as those worn around the neck last winter. Probably they are taken from discarded necklaces.

Women buy their link buttons from jeweler or haberdasher. It has become the smart thing for women to buy at places where men purchase their apparel. Just now, it is fashionable to wear as many masculine togs as possible without interfering with the decided air of femininity.

This fashion brought the tweed topcoat into fashion. The collars of these coats are without fur. When a fur piece is worn it is not placed high at back of neck, but drops well down on the shoulder. Light biege furs are dominant. A man's muffler goes with the tweed coat more often than fur. It is folded like a riding stock and held with a scarfpin.

Tailored suits have short double-breasted jackets fastened across the normal waistline with self-colored buttons. The revers are long and narrow, the pockets deep and below the waistline. The skirts are short and narrow, with tweed the preferred fabric.

The dark blue rep suits are with us again. Many of the dresses are trimmed with silver and gilded leather.

Velvet is fashionable for all apparel, gowns, evening capes, topcoats and hats. Velvet and felt are combined in hats. Burgundy and lacquered red are used by milliners, but the black hats hold their own.

Black silk coats, however, in deeply ribbed weaves, are smart with light fur collars and have beige kasha linings. These are not new, but they continue popular. Two-inch bands of cross-stitch gold-thread embroidery run down each inside front edge. The bell-shaped sleeves also show the embroidery.

Weavers of silks and cloths created the materials which inspired the silhouettes that fashion has accepted for fall and winter. So handsome are the textures and so lovely the colors, that satisfying heights of richness are reached by means of combining crepe and satin. Some are lustrous, gleaming on one side and softly suede-like on the other. Others have polished brocaded patterns against the subdued elegance of crepe or smooth lustre satin.

There are many important changes in the mode—many different ways of achieving individuality in dress that are decidedly new—and many ways of discovering the lines that suit one best.

XMAS SUGGESTIONS

Gift-giving time need not worry the thoughtful person. There should be real joy in remembering those dear to one. Dozens and more suggestions are offered in all the shops. The art rooms will aid one in making gifts for one's friends that will interest and please them. It does not take money to give, but a little time in planning. Modern patterns and beautiful materials make it possible, with very little effort, to create really beautiful things.

So plan that the gift-giving season may be one of happiness for you, and a real delight to your friends in the appropriateness of the remembrances. Aprons, negligees, underthings, pillows and household articles of many kinds may all be developed inexpensively and with very little effort.

The doll pincushion, lace trimmed, the lace boudoir pillow, the dress hanger and the pincushion make an attractive set, when a pretty color is selected. Vanity sets, handkerchief cases, covered shoe trees, lingerie bands and laundry bags make splendid gifts and afford enjoyment in the making.

Lace-trimmed table linens are very attractive. No trimming is more effective than lace edging. The fastidious housekeeper always enjoys having such articles. For the dining-room and bedroom linens, white lace, of course, is always in good taste, but at this moment there is a decided vogue for colored laces such as gray, blue and rose. A tray cloth and napkins make a nice gift when made of pink linen, edged with lace.

Decorated toys for the children are made to look like wild animals from the jungles.

The girl who wants to give presents of her own handwork will find the towels delightful to work at. She can use strand cottons in the dainty colors. If she has not embroidered much before, she may easily learn the stitches in lazy-daisy, outline, running and french knots.

The crocheted edging is always daintiest on pillow cases and guest towels, and is worked over a tiny hem. All housekeeping gifts are done in gay embroideries.

The gifts given at Christmas time will be most appreciated when they are hand-made. There is an added charm in personally made remembrances, because one always puts something of oneself into anything that is hand made. In addition to these being the most appreciated gifts they also enable one to keep Christmas expenditures within bounds.

Making gifts takes time, so start now. Fascinating things may be made with paint-box and modeling clay, with silk and embroidery thread, and with colored papers and paste, such as desk sets, blotters, Christmas cards, silk garters and flower motifs in wool.

My best wishes and merry Christmas to all.

HISTORIC BELL TO RETURN TO SCENE OF FORMER USEFULNESS.

Petaluma (Sonoma County)—The historic bronze vigilante bell, which in early San Francisco days summoned the law-enforcing elements to old Fort Gunnybags there, will be returned from this city, where it has been for more than sixty-five years, to the Bay City.

The bell was bought in 1860 for the Petaluma Baptist church, and was used for a few years, but when Abolitionists used it to signalize Union victories in the Civil War, Secessionist sympathizers invaded the belfry and cracked the bell with a sledge-hammer blow. It has since been stored in a basement.

A BIT O' FARMING

AGRICULTURE THE BASIS OF LIFE

THE INTERESTS OF AGRICULTURE are those of the people as a whole. Lift agriculture from the industries of the nation, and the nation must succumb. Cities cannot survive without the country, while on the other hand, the country would have somewhat less difficulty. Agriculture is the basis of life, for man must be fed from the farm. It is to be admitted, of course, that in this day of very complex civilization agriculture is more or less dependent upon the other industries, but not in the degree that they are dependent upon it.

However, there is an interdependency that must be recognized, and the interests of the people as a whole must be considered. When the manufacturer, the transportationman and the banker come to know the farmer and he, in turn, becomes acquainted with them, the better understanding that will follow will wipe out prejudices and enmities that long ago should have ceased to exist.

The farmer must always remain a primary factor in any civilization, and business and industry are coming to recognize this fact.

PROTECTION AT HOME.

An outstanding feature of the Fifty-eighth Fruitgrowers' and Farmers' Convention at Sacramento last month was the unanimous stand taken by the growers of California favoring strict plant quarantine measures to prevent the introduction of more diseases and pests into the United States. Foreign countries have taken the position that America desires the quarantine for tariff purposes, but the farmer who is familiar with the ravages of plant diseases and pests already introduced, and who is at all familiar with what the Mediterranean fruit fly has done elsewhere, has no thought of anything other than protection to his investment.

While millions of dollars are being spent in the United States to combat pests already introduced here, this should bring forcibly to the attention of those who are spending that money the utter folly of permitting the entry of any more enemies to the fruit industry. Some hardship may be worked to some other country, and some benefit may accrue to growers here in the way of eliminating competition, but such facts are merely incidental. The main thought is, and always must be, the protection of our interests at home and the perpetuation of our horticultural industry.

CLEANLINESS IMPORTANT.

Nearly every farmer and suburban resident is a poultry producer. Many more back yards in towns and cities would have their feathered flock, were it not for the discouragements that have accompanied amateur chicken raising. The chief trouble is, and has been, a lack of thoroughness in the sanitation of the poultry house and yard. If the poultry house is kept clean, free from mites and lice, and the birds properly fed and protected from the weather, there will be little difficulty in raising chickens, which will dispose of a lot of the table waste and return valuable eggs.

See that the droppings are cleaned, that the house is whitewashed, that the roosts and cracks are painted with creosote or some other insect killer—old automobile engine oil will do—and that the house is dry and free from drafts. If it is possible, divide the yard into two runs, keeping one in use for the hens while the other is plowed or spaded up and planted to some grain for green feed. Feed plenty of greens, by the way, and give the birds a balanced ration such as is furnished by feed houses already mixed, together with plenty of clean water. Inspect birds carefully for disease if they are added to the flock. All this takes little time, prevents disease, insures profit, gives vent to the desire for a profitable hobby, and affords no little satisfaction.

PRESIDENT TO SPEAK.

PresidentCalvin Coolidge will speak to the farmers of California and of the nation during the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in Chicago in December. Those farmers who have radio sets and who wish to hear the president's ideas on agriculture, may tune in on K.Y.W., wave length 535, or W.L.S., wave length 345, at 9 o'clock Monday morning, December 7.

GARDEN PLANTING TIME.

Winter garden activities should be under full swing at this time, in the valley and coastal regions of the state. Where killing frosts are likely to occur, care must be used in planting, but where there is no danger from cold, nearly any vegetable may be seeded.

Growth at this time of the year will not be equal to that of mid-summer, of course, but the plants will come along very well during the warmer days of winter and will be ready for the early spring. Peas, onions and similar hardy vegetables may well be planted and growing during the winter.

CLEAN UP THE GARDEN.

Right now the back-yard gardener, as well as the man who grows vegetables on a commercial scale, should see that his garden is clean. Refuse should be raked up and burned. No hiding place for pests should be permitted to exist through the winter. Mummied fruit should be picked from the trees and burned, rotten or dried fruit on the ground should be removed

SACRAMENTO COUNTY

Invites you to investigate its agriculture possibilities.

Soils, adapted to the culture of every fruit, cereal or vegetable crop grown in the North, South, East or West.

Fruits and vegetables produced and marketed every month of the year.

Large canneries and excellent transportation facilities assure a ready market for all products.

and the tree should be given a good cleanup spray. Berry bushes should be gone over and the old canes on the trailer varieties removed and the bearing canes tied into place.

Fertilizers should be put on the ground before the winter rains are over. Trees should be whitewashed before another day passes, for sunburn injury is much more apt to damage the trees in the winter than in the summer. In addition to the necessity of cleaning up as a practice that every careful gardener should follow as a matter of caution and profit, there is the satisfaction of seeing that the place is in shape, a reward the gardener will find to be not the least of all.

PEAS REQUIRE MOISTURE.

Before planting peas be sure the land has been well worked to increase aeration and bacterial activity, and to prevent weeds. If the tract is so large that irrigation is a problem, prepare for furrow irrigation rather than flooding, for peas need abundant moisture at the roots. Plant the rows at least four feet apart in commercial fields, and home gardeners will do well to give their peas plenty of room. Seed heavily enough so there will be an allowance for poor seeds and some damage by pests, for it is easier to thin the plants than to increase the stand. Plenty of room between the rows prevents mildew and makes picking easier. Successive plantings will make the garden more useful.

HEAVY DISKING TEARS OUT PEST.

Bermuda grass is a pest in many parts of California and has been the cause of a great deal of trouble in alfalfa fields. One farmer has found that heavy disking of his alfalfa tears up the shallow-rooted Bermuda grass and other weeds, but does not damage the deep-rooted permanent crop. On the other hand, the alfalfa actually is benefitted by the cultivation and its life is prolonged.

COCCIDIOSIS IN CHICKS.

Coccidiosis in chicks is becoming more common among the flocks of the state, as there is more interchange of fowls and an increase of poultry plants. The disease is not hereditary in the egg, but is very contagious, and once it gets started in a flock prompt measures are necessary for its eradication. First of all is cleanliness, the cleaning of droppings often and the spreading of warm, dry litter. Isolation is necessary; put the sick birds in the hospital. Milk is essential as a corrective. Sweet milk has been found best, but the difficulty in keeping it sweet has led to the use of sour milk, which gives almost as good results.

Just recently, however, Dr. J. R. Beach and Dr. D. E. Davis of the Veterinary Division of the College of Agriculture, University of California, have announced the discovery that dry milk mixed with the mash fed to chickens, the ration being 40 percent dry milk and 60 percent mash, will prevent coccidiosis or, with proper sanitation, eradicate it in a flock already afflicted. While dry milk may be too expensive to feed in this manner as a preventative, its use as a cure will be economically possible. Dry milk is easy to feed in this manner, no more work being entailed, aside from the mixing, than is ordinarily done in the poultry yard.

UNDER-CONSUMPTION THE DIFFICULTY.

With the marketing of this year's crop of deciduous fruits, there has been the usual aftermath of suggestions and criticisms. Over-production looms as the bugbear of the California grower, but except perhaps in the case of grapes, this has proved to be only a bugbear. Under-consumption, rather than over-production, appears to be the difficulty.

However, this is not to be taken as meaning that California can keep on planting all kinds of fruits with impunity as far as marketing difficulties are concerned. The grape situation shows that clearly, where now this state ships twenty pounds of grapes for every man, woman and child in the United States. Moderation in planting, skill in producing, care in packing and an eye ever watchful of quality, will care for the fruit production in California, however, as it develops.

SAN FRANCISCO BULLETIN

SPORTSMEN OF STATE TO CONVENE

(E. R. KAUFFMAN.)

THE FIRST ANNUAL CALIFORNIA sportsmen's dinner and convention will attract sportsmen from every nook and corner of the state to San Francisco December 10. The purpose of the convention is to discuss matters of vital importance in regard to the perpetuation of wild life and the sports with rod and gun. There will be representatives from every community so that concerted and unified state-wide action will result.

That California is far behind other sections in these affairs is emphasized by pointing to the great annual sportsmen's events conducted in neighboring states. California sportsmen now realize that they must work together to protect their interests and this awakening is destined to make history in fish, game and forest perpetuation. Aside from hunting and fishing, the outdoor environment, from a recreational standpoint, and the inestimable monetary value of fish, game and forests, as a community attraction, will be pointed out to the citizens of the state and their co-operation will be solicited.

This meeting is sanctioned by the California Development Association and the Associated Sportsmen's Clubs of California. They join in urging all interested parties to attend and participate in the activities for the good of the entire state.

All lovers of the great outdoors are welcome to attend, and it is most particularly urged that every fish and game organization in California be represented by at least one delegate.

DIAMOND JUBILEE OF DEVOTED SERVANTS

The diamond jubilee of the advent of the Jesuit fathers into San Francisco will be celebrated at the Civic Auditorium December 2. Supervisor J. Emmet Hayden will preside, and there will be brief addresses by Mayor James Rolph Jr., Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, D.D., Rev. D. J. Kavanagh, S.J., and James A. Bacigalupi. All Native Sons and Native Daughters are extended an invitation by Edward J. Whelan, S.J., president St. Ignatius Church and College, to attend.

Associated with the California Pioneers who came, in most cases, in search of gold, were men of ability and zeal who answered the call for service in the way of education and moral and social uplift. December 8, 1849, Rev. Michael Accolti, S.J., the founder of St. Ignatius College, and Rev. John Nobili, S.J., the founder of Santa Clara University, came into the Harbor of San Francisco and threw themselves heart and soul into their work. These were the pioneers of a long and noble line of devoted servants of the community, whose venerated names are in benediction.

SUCCESSFUL AT POLLS.

At the November 3 election in San Francisco the following Native Sons were successful candidates for public office:

City Attorney—John J. O'Toole (Twin Peaks 214).

Tax Collector—Edward F. Bryant (Twin Peaks 214).

Public Administrator—Phil C. Katz (Presidio 194).

Supervisors—Cornelius C. Deasy (California 1), Walter J. Schmidt (Rincon 72), Milton Marks (Bay City 104), William Stanton (Dolores 208), James B. McSheehey (Twin Peaks 214), Charles J. Powers (Twin Peaws 214).

ANNUAL CHILDREN'S BENEFIT.

The annual prize masquerade of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of San Francisco for the benefit of the homeless children of California was held at the Civic Auditorium Thanksgiving Eve, November 25.

Arrangements were in the hands of a joint committee representing all the local Parlors of both Orders. James A. Wilson, Grand Third Vice-president N.S.G.W., was the chairman and Mae Edwards the secretary.

the reception tendered Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, as visiting grand officer, and Past Grand President John F. Davis, an honorary member of the "old guard" of 104.

Welch delivered a masterful address, which greatly impressed the large number in attendance, while Judge Davis' word-pictures of the places visited on his recent tour of Europe were given as he only could give them. Other guests of the evening who were heard from included Past Grand President Charles W. Decker, who was Grand President when Bay City was instituted, Past Grand President Louis H. Mooser, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Trustee Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Organist Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel, D.D.G.P. Jesse Miller, Newman Cohn (Mount Tamalpais 64). Refreshments concluded what was acclaimed by all a most enjoyable evening.

GRAND PRESIDENT VISITS.

Grand President Sue J. Irwin was entertained by Oro Fino Parlor No. 9 N.D.G.W. November 6. The hall was tastefully decorated with strands of poppies intertwined with greens. Among the many visitors were Past Grand President Margaret Hill, Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler, Deputy Grand Presidents Lillian Spillane, Lola Horgan, Helen Mann, Margaret Ramm, Josephine Morrisey.

On the Parlor's behalf President Mildred Fowler presented a gift of silver to the Grand President. A banquet was served after the meeting. A verse, composed and set to a lively, snappy melody by Josephine C. McCarthy of Oro Fino, in honor of Miss Irwin, was a feature.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY ENJOYED.

One of the most enjoyable affairs ever given by La Estrella Parlor No. 89 N.D.G.W. was the Hallowe'en party of October 26 in celebration of the natal days of the members born in October. The hall was festooned with Hallowe'en decorations, and the table was unique with its goblins, cats and witches. Appropriate games were indulged in, and the future of each member was predicted; these "fortunes" were read aloud and created much merriment. A dainty repast helped to make the event one long to be remembered.

Members of the Parlor recently spent a delightful day at the country home of District Deputy Hēlen Mann in the Marin County foothills. The lovely autumn day combined with the hostess' hospitality made the occasion a complete success.

CALIFORNIA'S GREATEST BUSINESS ROMANCE IS BEING STAGED.

Buried treasure! The greatest treasure-hunt ever organized is in the process of formation. California citizens are mobilizing by the thousands to join in unearthing a vast reservoir of gold—California's natural and potential wealth—and the directors of the California Development Association are lending leadership in the hunt.

The millions in steel, the millions in mining, the millions in cotton, to be realized as a result of logical development of these industries within the state form but part of the program being formulated to give to Californians their heritage of fortune. All phases of agriculture, all phases of industry, commerce and finance, the capitalization of California climate and recreational features, the state's huge store of timber and wealth of water, make up the burden of major projects to be worked out.

As expressed by one director at the state conference held in Oakland, November 20: "California's greatest business romance is being staged. The treasure-hunters, keen minded businessmen of California, are enlistde in the cause of continued and unprecedented prosperity for the Golden State."

SIGN IN FIRMAMENT RESPONSIBLE FOR PARLOR'S NAME.

GRASS VALLEY—FRED H. GREELY Assembly No. 6 P.P.A. met here October 26 following the session of Quartz 58. One candidate was initiated, and members from Colusa, Sutter City, Marysville, Lincoln and this city were in attendance. During the evening addresses were made by Governor Leolin T. Sinnott, Superior Judge E. P. McDaniel, Seth Millington Jr., Past Grand President Fred H. Greely. Quartz Parlor served a bounteous repast at the session's conclusion.

Lincoln—Assembly No. 6 met here November 16 following the session of Silver Star 63, and initiated several past presidents of that Parlor. Officers were elected, John P. Colford of Sutter 261 (Sutter City) becoming governor. At the banquet which closed the gathering toasts were responded to by Superior Judge E. P. McDaniel, Barney Barry, Harry A. Schroeder, Judge Jones, Past Grand President Fred H. Greely, and others.

Past Grand President Greely related how No. 63, instituted by him as Grand President May 22, 1885, got its name, saying:

"The members of Marysville 6 went to Lincoln by team and, just as they were about to cross the railroad track there, a freight train blocked the crossing and kept it obstructed for quite a long time. The Lincoln neophytes, hearing of the cause of the delay, came out to meet the Marysville delegation. It was a rainy evening, but just as the freight train pulled out the clouds cleared for a brief space and a single star shone out. One of the Lincoln boys, pointing to the star, said, 'There's the name of our Parlor,—"Silver Star",'—and such it has been ever since."

The Assembly's next meeting will be at Colusa December 15, when the recital of things historical in the lives of the members will be inaugurated as a regular feature. These tales will be preserved and, in time, worked into a volume of reminiscences of early days. At Colusa, Past President Robert P. Dixon of Silver Star will review his personal contact with John W. Marshall, discoverer of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County.

BOARD GRAND OFFICERS OPPOSED TO CHANGING STREET NAMES.

San Francisco—The Board of Grand Officers met November 7, the following being in attendance: Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Director John Andresen Jr., Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, John T. Newell, Frank I. Gonzalez, John T. Skelton, John S. Ramsay.

Still confined as a result of a serious accident that befell him some time ago, Grand Trustee Alfred H. McKnew was unable to be present, and it was announced that he would be unable to make his visits. Grand President Cutler volunteered to visit Mount Bally 87 (Weaverville) and McCloud 149 (Redding) for him, and Grand Trustee Newell volunteered to visit Quincy 131 and Golden Anchor 182 (La Porte).

The committee on restoration of the California missions made a progressive report.

Resolution No. 42 (tax for benefits), referred to the board for investigation by the San Bernardino Grand Parlor, was, after considerable discussion, tabled.

A resolution was adopted, directing the Grand President and the Grand Secretary to reconvey to Placerville 9 and Georgetown 91, or to such person or persons as they may designate, the Coloma home property.

A petition for a charter for a parlor at Glendale, Los Angeles County, was received from Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer. The charter was granted, with the proviso that at least fifty names be attached thereto by the time of institution.

The Grand President was directed to appoint a committee of seven, including the Grand Secretary and himself, to represent the Order in the erection of a Cabrillo monument at Point Loma, San Diego County. The committee is authorized to accept from the United States Congress permission to use the government reservation there for the proposed monument.

The board went on record as being opposed to changing the historic names of old streets in various localities in California. [Reports from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Stockton and other cities indicate that this is the open season for attempts to substitute new names for those which have for years designated streets.]

1927 Grand Parlor Wanted For Eureka.

Ferndale—Natives from all parts of Humboldt County were present at the November 2 meeting of Ferndale 93, when the matter of asking for the 1927 Grand Parlor for Eureka was discussed. As a result, it is expected that a determined effort will be made at the Santa Rosa Grand Parlor in May to have Eureka designated as the 1927 meeting-place.

A social session followed the meeting. After listening to a fine program presented by Gerald Collins, Miss Edna Lund, T. G. Allison, Raymond Grinsell and the Humming Bird orchestra, a splendid supper was served.

Annual Christmas Tree.

Livermore—Las Positas 96's annual Christmas tree for the children of the Livermore Valley will be a great event at the New Livermore Theater December 22. C. J. Turner is chairman of the big general committee, which has been divided into numerous sub-committees to handle the various details.

November 10 the Parlor presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the Arroyo Sanatorium and the Del Valle schools.

Flags Given State College.

Arcata—Arcata 20 presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the Humboldt State Teachers' College November 13, the presentation address being made by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler. For the students, Estelle Preston and Alfred Ames made responses. A program of vocal numbers was under the direction of Mrs. Anna Ostrander.

Thanksgiving Ball.

Sacramento—The annual Thanksgiving ball of Sacramento 3 at Native Sons' Hall November 20 was a complete social success. The committee in charge was A. S. Drennon, Z. C. Pressey, E. C. Taylor, A. H. Henderson, H. E. Williams.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 November 20 as follows, together with their membership figures January 1 1925:

Grand Trustee Visits Mother Lode.

Grand Trustee John T. Newell of Los Angeles spent the latter part of November in the Mother Lode country, officially visiting the Parlors in his district located there.

The itinerary included: Chispa 139 (Murphys), November 11; Columbia 258, 12th; Tuolumne 144 (Sonora), 13th; Angels 80 (Angels Camp) and Calaveras 67 (San Andreas), jointly at Angels Camp, 16th; Excelsior 31 (Jackson), 18th; Keystone 173 (Amador City), 19th; Amador 17 (Sutter Creek), 20th; Plymouth 48, 21st.

Grand Vice-president Visitor.

Saint Helena—Saint Helena 53 was officially visited November 9 by Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson of Santa Clara, who delivered a splendid address. One candidate was initiated, and a banquet was served.

The Parlor's annual '49 camp was in operation November 24 and 25 and proved the usual success.

Judgeship to Bank Presidency.

Nevada City—George F. Jones, Superior Judge of Nevada County for seventeen years, has tendered his resignation to Governor Richardson, effective January 1, when he will become president of the Nevada County Bank. Judge Jones has for years been affiliated with Quartz 58 (Grass Valley), at one time being Grand Trustee. Previous to becoming superior judge he served Nevada County as district attorney for six years.

Former Grand Parlor Officer Injured.

San Francisco—The numerous friends of Charles L. McEnerney (James Lick 242), former Grand Trustee and Grand Director, will be grieved to learn that he was severely injured in an auto accident on the Junipero Serra boulevard October 29. "Mac", however, is now well on the road to recovery.

School Dedication.

San Jose—The Grand Parlor, through the Board of Grand Officers, dedicated the Woodrow Wilson junior high-school November 22, a large crowd witnesseing the ceremonies. Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler delivered the dedicatory address, and there were remarks by Nell O'Brien, principal of the school; Joseph Hancock, superintendent of Santa Clara County schools; Thomas J. Lennon, Associate Justice California Supreme Court. Musical numbers were supplied by the school orchestra and glee club. On behalf of San Jose 22 and Observatory 177, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the school.

THE CREDITORS' PLEA.

Lives of poor men oft remind us
Honest toil won't stand a chance;
The more we work, there grows behind us
Bigger patches on our pants.
On our pants once new and glossy
Now are stripes of different hue,
All because our customers linger
And won't pay us what is due.
Let us then be up and doing—
Send your remittance, however small,—
Or when snows of winter strike us,
We shall have no pants at all.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

TWO NEW LINKS ADDED TO NATIVE DAUGHTER CHAIN.

AUBURN (PLACER COUNTY)—Auburn 233 was instituted October 31 by Grand President Sue J. Irwin, assisted by Past Grand President Ema Gett. Thirty-four charter members were initiated by a ritual team from Sacramento. Others in attendance were Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Grand Trustees Mary Quinn and Sallie Thaler, Grand Inside Sentinel Lily Tilden, Past Grand Presidents Addie L. Mosher and Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen, and large delegations from surrounding Parlors. Officers of the new Parlor include: Past president, Mildred Macy; president, Frances Mae Shields; first vice-president, Oveta Walsh; second vice-president, Elsie Patrick; third vice-president, Norinne Quinn; marshal, Alice Williams; trustees, Belle Smith, Annie Branch, Helena M. Dobbas; treasurer, Florence Teagarden; financial secretary, Mary H. Wallace; recording secretary, Alma De Camp; inside sentinel, Sarah Ekberg; outside sentinel, Rose Walsh. Following the institution ceremonies Auburn 59 N.S.G.W. entertained at a banquet. Credit for the organization of the Parlor is given Mabel Bond of La Rosa 191 (Roseville).

Crockett (Contra Costa County)—Carquinez 234 was instituted with thirty-three charter members November 3 by Grand President Sue J. Irwin. A team from Alameda County exemplified the ritual. Officers of the Parlor include: Evelyn Hansen, past president; Alice Hutchinson, president; Mary Ahern, first vice-president; Celia Hansen, second vice-president; Julia Crowley, third vice-president; Goldie Murphy, recording secretary; Ruth Hunt, financial secretary; Julia Horgan, treasurer; Ellie Harr, marshal; Lillie Imerone, Catherine Cox, Cecilia Murphy, trustees.

Orange County to Have Parlor.

Santa Ana (Orange County)—It is expected that the parlor which is being organized here by Mrs. Bertha Hitt will be instituted about the middle of December by Grand President Sue J. Irwin. The recently-instituted Rudecinda 230 of San Pedro had the largest number of charter members in the Order's history. There is a possibility that the charter membership here will exceed Rudecinda's; if not, it will be a close second.

Krazy Party Big Success.

Fort Bragg—The third annual "krazy party" given by Fort Bragg 210 and Fort Bragg 200 N.S.G.W. October 23 was largely attended. These affairs are growing quite popular and each year brings larger crowds and better times. While the name "krazy" seems hardly fitting for a benefit for homeless children, when once understood it speaks for itself, and those who attend look forward to another such time. It is in the form of a masquerade, minus the masks, and the idea is to dress and act as crazy as possible.

The hall was taxed to capacity and was decorated from lobby to kitchen with corn, kale and vegetables in all kinds of manner. Crazy posters adorned the walls and funny papers served as tablecovers. Punch was served during the evening and at midnight the Native Daughters served the usual refreshments of coffee, sandwiches and cake. The joint committee of arrangements consisted of the following: Carl Gerhardy, Walter Andrews, Wm. Ilson, Charles Weller, Leonard Stone, Grace Reynolds, May Scheper, Alice Marshall, Elvera Mehtlan, Lorraine Welch, assisted by Ruth Fuller and Mrs. Woods, all of whom are proud of the $122 to be turned over to the worthy cause.

Grand President Visits.

Oakland—The meeting-place of Piedmont 87 was thronged November 12 on the occasion of the official visit of Grand President Sue J. Irwin. Visitors included Grand Secretary Alice H. Daugherty, Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler, Past Grand Presidents Addie L. Mosher, Dr. Victory A. Derrick, Margaret G. Hill and Mae C. Boldeman, D.D.G.P. Mae Barthold; each was presented a corsage bouquet. Supervising Deputy Gertrude Morrison was the recipient of a regalia, the presentation being made by Miss Irwin on behalf of the Alameda County district deputies. All of Piedmont's officers were presented with favors in the design of umbrellas by Past Grand President Mosher. Miss Gertrude Donohue sang "California" during the evening. Six candidates were initiated. Interesting remarks were made by Grand President Irwin and D.D.G.P. Barthold, who were presented with gifts and flowers. The meeting-hall was tastefully decorated in patriotic colors, and the decorations in the banquet-room were symbolic of Armistice Day. Delicious refreshments were served by a committee in charge of Past Grand President Mosher, who was remembered with gifts and flowers.

November 19 Miss Josephine Clark was chairman of a most successful turkey whist for the benefit of the Parlor's funds. Each month the Parlor presents gifts to the disabled soldiers at the Livermore hospital, and the "kiddies" at the Del Valle farm are also remembered, due to the zealous efforts of Past Grand President Mosher, president of the Camp Fire Girls of Oakland. All of Piedmont's sick members were remembered with Thanksgiving greetings.

December 3 the Parlor will have election of officers, also a grab-bag social and fancy work sale under the direction of Gretta Murden. A turkey whist is scheduled for December 12, and the 19th the Christmas tree for the members of the Parlor and their children will be held under the supervision of Augusta Huxsol and the December birthday committee.

Pioneers Guests.

Lincoln—Carrying out a custom inaugurated nineteen years ago, Placer 138 had its annual entertainment for the pioneer men and women of this vicinity October 31. Mrs. Mary B. Sanders, Mrs. Nannie Kennedy, William Findley, James Landis and John Landis, who crossed the plains prior to 1851, were guests of honor. A chicken dinner was served.

Mrs. Bertha Landis was toastmistress and responses were made by Nellie Ramsey, Viola Lasswell, Florence Berry, Carrie Parlin, Florence Clark, Etta Leavell, Mary Finney, Lois French. Mabel Ahart gave a reading and vocal solos were rendered by Viola Lasswell and Emma Jansen.

Anniversary Observed.

Sonoma—The tenth institution anniversary of Sonoma 209 was observed with a banquet November 9. The decorations were in jubilee colors. A birthday cake with lighted candles was cut by Mae Chase, charter past president. The honor guest was Isabel Green, the Parlor's first district deputy, and she was presented, by President Florence Robin, with hand-painted china. In appreciation for ten years of faithful service Recording Secretary Mae Norrbom was presented with an emblematic pin by Florence Adler, charter president.

October 31 the Parlor had its annual ball and a nice sum was realized. The decorations were typical of Hallowe'en, witches, pumpkins and cornstalks. The music was much enjoyed by the dancers.

Making Layettes for Homeless.

Alturas—Alturas 159 has organized a sewing club which will meet monthly to make layettes for homeless children. The Antlers' Club has thrown open its clubrooms for the Parlor's use on sewing days. Mrs. Irma Laird was hostess at the first gathering of the club, October 17, and served dainty refreshments. Mesdames Auble and Frailley were the November hostesses.

November 7 the Parlor sponsored presentation of the film "The Pony Express," and donated its entire share of the proceeds to the homeless children fund. On the Parlor's behalf a committee waited on little Donna Mae Sharp, who has come to gladden the home of Mrs. Harriet Sharp, a member of Alturas, and presented her with a gift of silver. Past Grand President Catherine E. Gloster recently held "open house" for the officers and members of the Parlor. Refreshments were served, and all enjoyed her reminiscences of her term as Grand President.

Annual Mask Usual Success.

Pittsburg—Grand President Sue J. Irwin paid an official visit November 4 to Stirling 146 and was greeted by two hundred and more. An Italian dinner was served prior to the meeting, and refreshments followed the Parlor session. Among those in attendance were Grand Organist Estelle Evans and delegations from Las Juntas, Donner, Antioch, Piedmont and Berkeley Parlors. Arrangements for the occasion were made by the following: Margaret Delp, Gertrude Bigelow, Mary Houlihan, Pauline Gatto, Kathryn Latimer, Marie Antrobus, Belle Smith, Vera Laederich, Lucy Nuttman, Grace Veragge, Frances Lucido.

November 14 the Parlor held its twentieth annual mask ball, which was largely attended and a big success. It is always one of the main local social events of the year. The following made up the committee of arrangements: Past Grand President Amy McAvoy, Ruth Miller, Pauline Gatto; Hanna McVay, Mary Reber, Margaret Abrams, Mary Buckley, Alpha Barnes, Margaret Buckley, Sophie Billeci, Mary Barraco.

ONE OF NATIVE SONS' FIRST MEMBERS GOES TO FINAL REWARD.

San Francisco—Oscar A. Clegg is dead! The first man to sign the roster of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West passed from this life October 29 and was buried October 31 by and under the auspices of Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S.G.W..

Clegg was born in San Francisco May 30, 1856, in a section of the city then known as "Happy Valley." He was one of that small band of native Californians who paraded under the direction of General A. M. Winn on that memorable 5th of July, 1875, and who later banded themselves together and organized the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West. In 1885, when Rincon Parlor was organized, he withdrew from Mission Parlor No. 38, with which he was then affiliated, and cast his lot with the boys from the vicinity of Rincon Hill, in the shadow of which he first saw the light of day.

In the fifty years of his membership, Clegg's loyalty and devotion to the Order never waned. He lived, exemplifying the principles of Friendship, Loyalty and Charity. He died poor in this world's goods, but rich in the love, respect and admiration of his brothers.

The funeral service was conducted by the officers of the Parlor and at its conclusion the president spoke briefly but feelingly of Clegg and of his early activities in the Order, after which the members filed slowly past the bier to take a last look at the kindly face of a man who never had an enemy, and as they turned away each deposited a white carnation on the casket as a last sad tribute of respect to the memory of a loyal Californian. May his soul rest in peace.—John A. Gilmour, secretary Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S.G.W.

Old Mother Witch Was There.

Oroville—Gold of Ophir 190 entertained at a jolly Hallowe'en party. The lights being extinguished, the air was filled with strange noises and old Mother Witch rode into the room on her broom, accompanied by black cats, etc. She brought along her porridge pot and foretold many events that are soon to happen.

Florence Danforth-Boyle, chairman of the Parlor's relics committee, reported the following additional donations: A badge made from a cannon captured from Mexico and a copy of a map of Oroville in 1855, showing the largest theater north of San Francisco and five big hotels.

HOLLYWOOD WANTS CONVENTIONS

Harry Barratt

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

WITH NOT LESS THAN 1,550 MODern single rooms and suites at command, hotel proprietors of Hollywood consider the entertainment of moderately sized conventions quite within their ability and, for that reason, have organized a Hotel Bureau of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, the major purpose of which is to disseminate information concerning the hotels of Hollywood.

In connection with this new bureau a special convention committee has been organized and is already functioning as an invitational body for conventions. Through the efforts of the convention committee an annual conclave of Federated Business Women's Clubs has already been booked for Hollywood in 1926, and negotiations are being conducted to bring others here during that year. Among the latter is the Laundry Operators' Association, a national organization.

In addition to working to build up a reputation for Hollywood as a convention city, the Hotel Bureau will conduct a program of advertising, which will include printed and roadside mediums. Arrangements have already been nearly completed with an official billboard organization for placing six billboards on the leading arteries coming into Hollywood. These boards will blazon facts concerning Hollywood hotels and their ability to care for the transient.

Through the news department of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce an illustrated pamphlet is being prepared for the hotels, this to be used for general distribution throughout the country. The pamphlets, besides carrying photographs of all hotels embraced in the membership of the bureau, will tell a short story of each, relating the character of the house, its rates and its accommodation facilities.

Organization of the hotelmen in a bureau of this sort is regarded among local businessmen as one of the most important of progressive steps toward promiscuous dissemination of information about Hollywood through the medium of business agencies.

RAPID TRANSIT NEED.

Appreciating the definiteness of rapid transit need in Hollywood, as being equal to the urgency in metropolitan Los Angeles, the Board of Directors of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce has recommended to the City Council that some workable and efficient rapid transit plan be adopted for all of Los Angeles. The board suggests, as a basis for this, the adoption of the Kelker-DeLeuw report, recently rendered after a lengthy survey of traffic needs in Los Angeles.

The board, however, in making its recommendations, does not fix any hard and fast rules to be followed with respect to the adoption of the Kelker-DeLeuw plan, merely submitting and suggesting the latter report as forming a basis upon which to build a permanent and suitable rapid transit plan, or system.

In the resolution adopted by the board, and addressed to the City Council, it is made very plain throughout the resolution, which is consistent with the rules and provisions laid down in the new city charter with reference to rapid transit plans. The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, The Los Angeles city charter provides that no franchises or permits for rapid transit structures of any kind may be granted within the City of Los Angeles until the City Council has by ordinance adopted a comprehensive rapid transit plan; and

"Whereas, The report made by Kelker, De Leuw & Company recommends certain general plans for a rapid transit system which meets the requirements of the city charter; and

"Whereas, We are advised by the city attorney and other city officials that the adoption of the plan suggested by Kelker, De Leuw & Company does not bind the city to carry out such plans in detail or to follow specifically any of the recommendations of the report, nor does the adoption of the Kelker-De Leuw plan necessarily prohibit the building of rapid transit lines not provided for in the plan, nor does the adoption of these plans make it mandatory that all of any unit shall be built but that parts of units may be built if found desirable; and

"Whereas, With these flexible conditions definitely provided for, we deem the Kelker-De Leuw plans satisfactory; be it

"Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, that we respectfully request the City Council to adopt, by an ordinance setting forth the flexible provisions previously referred to in this resolution, the Kelker-De Leuw plans as the basis of a rapid transit system for the City of Los Angeles in order that some rapid transit lines may be built and put into operation at the earliest possible date."

The resolution was accompanied by a letter addressed to the City Council with the following explanatory paragraph: "We recommend the Kelker-De Leuw plan in our resolution because it is the only available plan and because we believe that the flexibility suggested in our resolution fully protects the city and each portion of it so far as the future may require changes in the Kelker-De Leuw recommendation."

DEMAND COMPLETE PAVING.

Expressing the sentiment that funds can be made available for paving the entire width of the new Cahuenga Pass highway from Highland avenue to the summit, executive officers of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce have urged upon the city engineering department the necessity of abandoning the plan to pave the road one-half of its width at present.

Investigation of conditions in general, and especially as they refer to the status of the budget controlling funds for this service, seems to indicate availability of an amount sufficient for the entire paving job, which is ten inches of concrete eighty feet in width over a stretch of approximately 4,000 feet. It is believed that the city departments will yield to the suggestions of the chamber and proceed immediately with paving over the full width.

The new Cahuenga Pass road, taking off at the head of Highland avenue where it joins Cahuenga avenue coming from the east, and the old, or present Cahuenga Pass road, traces a straight course along the side of the mountains to the top of the grade. It was originated in an effort to not only eliminate curves over that distance, but to greatly reduce the heaviness of the pull in reaching the top. The new road provides a steady rise, while the old one provides jerky and hard grades over a severely circuitous route.

At the present moment a thing that agitates property owners along the old road is the attitude of the City Council toward a contract engaged in with the C. E. Toberman Company two years ago, by the terms of which the city was to deed the old Cahuenga Pass road to the Toberman company in exchange for a right-of-way for the new road. An element in the council has seen fit to request the annulment of this agreement in order that the old, or present road, may be employed as a truck artery from the summit to Highland avenue and Cahuenga avenue.

Opponents of this plan point out that the real need is not for a separate truck road over the pass, but the construction and operation of a second major road on the east side of the Pacific Electric Railway Company's Lankershim and valley lines. This latter plan was initiated by the Chamber of Commerce and already most of the influential property owners on the east side of the tracks have completed a fairly comprehensive plan of construction, and have even gone so far as to procure pledges for rights-of-way.

Such a road as is proposed east of the railway tracks would, in the opinion of engineering and traffic experts, be of vital importance to traffic originating in San Fernando, Lankershim, Burbank and even Glendale, inasmuch as it would preclude the necessity of encountering present grade crossings at various points. In fact, traffic so originating would not be required to cross any tracks, except in Lankershim itself. The City Council has referred the matter to the Board of Public Works for consideration.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. ¶In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

COMMUNITY IDEA IN LONG BEACH

S. Lucile Thompson
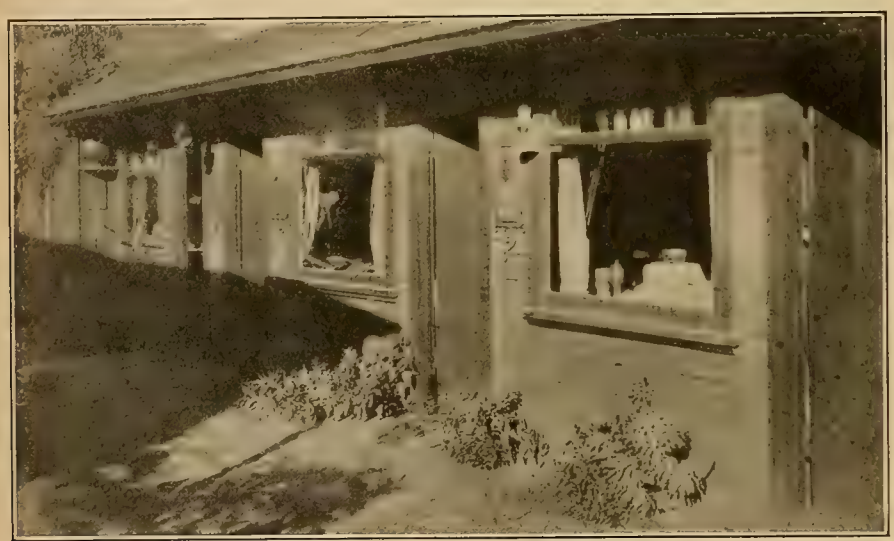
(LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)



TO THE TOURIST, THE PLEASURE seeker, the casual visitor, Long Beach is still thought of as just a "beach city"; the center of a great oil field; a future world port and industrial center.

To those who see the city in this guise alone, it may be said they have looked only on the face of the city; their glances have not penetrated beneath the outer appearances. Little is known of the art and culture in this city by the sea with a shore line and beach that are said by eminent critics and those who have traveled extensively to be unsurpassed in beauty even by the famous Meditteranean Riviera; a city with broad avenues lined with beautiful homes and parks landscaped by the natural beauty of nature.

It has been truly said, "The glory of a country must be as great in its arts and sciences as in its commerce and politics," and so it is with a city. A city which develops its industrial and commercial activities and neglects the arts and cultural life lacks a harmonizing balance which is necessary to the completeness of its growth. True culture is not just a pose an individual may assume, but it may be said to be an intellectual development—a gradual development starting with the appreciation of the finer things and developing finally into a deeper understanding; and so with a city.

For the inhabitants of a city to be surrounded by beauty and charm is to find their minds unconsciously contemplating the beautiful, and that very power to attune oneself to the beautiful in art and nature is the essence of all culture. This appreciation of the beautiful manifests itself in an interest in all things beautiful and creative. It is a gratifying fact that there is today in this country a gradually increasing interest in art generally, and especially in a higher appreciation of the art work of American artists. Not only is this true of the art centers of the large cities, but true also in the smaller cities and towns. This awakening spirit is largely due to the efforts and influence of a few real lovers of art. In towns of small size this interest is manifested in the endeavors of a small group and, like many other cities, Long Beach is not lacking.

The Long Beach Art Association, organized in January 1924 by a small group of interested people, was formed "to stimulate the knowledge of and interest in art and to create a spirit of fellowship between the artist and the public; the holding of exhibitions to inaugurate a movement for the building of a Municipal Art Gallery." The membership included all those interested in the cause for which this association is organized, and it now has a membership of one hundred and fifty active members. Besides Long Beach artists, the membership includes William Wendt, nationally recognized as the dean of landscape painters; Karl Yens, who has just recently had the prize picture at a recent exhibit and which is now on exhibition at the museum in Exposition Park, Los Angeles City, and other artists of lesser note. Long Beach is the home of thirty or more artists, some interested in block prints, others in water color and landscapes. Their studios are ever open to the interested public.

All progressive towns hold the germ of a community organization in some social activity. Palo Alto has its Community House as the mainspring of its social and civic life; Santa Barbara has its Community Art Association; Pasadena has its Community Playhouse; San Francisco has its Social Center; Oakland and Los Angeles are on their way; Long Beach has its community organization in the Wayside Art Crafts Colony, 60 Atlantic avenue. It started through the efforts of Mrs. Natt Piper, Long Beach artist and craftsman in many lines, in March 1924. The little colony has grown from the original studio of Mrs. Piper's to the present colony, including not only the studios of women artists, but a mandarin shop, a little old-time shop, a rug shop and, to complete the picture, a tea room, all through the patient efforts of Mrs. Piper, with the co-operation of James Savery, who made possible the remodelling of the bare cottages and garages into the artistic group, a small part of which is shown in the illustration.

The colony, with this small beginning, has made for itself a permanent place in the community and is well known to the lover of beautiful things. The guest books of the various studios and shops hold the names of visitors from all parts of the United States and some from foreign lands. The passersby are attracted to the artistic surroundings, which they come upon almost suddenly a group of little brown cottages surrounded with evergreen shrubbery, blooming flowers and a pleasant stretch of lawn with a background of old-fashioned hollyhocks, all contributing their share to the general atmosphere and the silent invitation to enter and explore.

A Chinese lantern, hanging from the veranda of the nearest cottage, intrigues, and you enter the "Mandarin Shop," where you find yourself perhaps a little bewildered, for here you are in the midst of all the things you have always wanted—beautiful mandarin coats; Chinese lacquer jade rings and pendants; jasimine tea in colorful tea caddies, with a little Chinese woman, in her vivid kimona, offering you a cup; Chinese Christmas cards, linens and all the rest. You cannot leave without buying, you are greeted so cordially by Miss Lottie Point, and she tells you an interesting story, perhaps, about the legend depicted on the silk-woven panel. You buy, yes, because the prices are so reasonable.

You are cordially invited to meet Mrs. Katherine Richter, whose studio adjoins, and when she shows you a pendant or a ring she has just finished you immediately recall the old-fashioned stone you have had for so long and have never thought of having reset in a ring designed especially for yourself. You think, also, of the verse or motto you read one day, or might have written yourself, and it never occurred to you that it could be lettered attractively and illuminated fittingly, which would make it suitable for framing and perhaps offer you its pleasant thought each day. Mrs. Richter will further intrigue you in the many things she does in all the arts and crafts in which she is so capable an artist. As you leave, your eye catches a little rocking chair, with slender rungs and delicate lines. You must touch it, for it might have been taken out of an illustration you have of the living room of your great-great-grandmother.

You enter the "Little Old Time Shop" across the hall and are startled. Almost with a gasp, you take the hand offered, as you are invited to enter by a little woman who reminds you of a very delicate piece of Dresden china. You wonder if she, too, has not just stepped out from the pages of the book you read describing the mistress in the old colonial mansion, the gentleness and delicacy of past generations of inherent refinement. You spend the hour listening to the history represented by each piece of furniture, each set of china or single precious piece; a miniature brought from Prague in old Bohemia, a Paisley shawl rich in design and color, and perhaps something of its adventures in life.

You have seen and heard so much, a desire comes over you to be quiet, with a cup of tea in the "Little Tavern," or perhaps a lunch. Here you are surrounded with an atmosphere of gentle quietness, a richness mixed with the desire to be gay, and while you drink your tea you gaze at the old portraits hanging upon the wall, the heavy wooden chairs brought from Mexico, the colorful decorations; and the silent questioning peguins, which give you salt and pepper from their perforated heads, appeal to you. As you leave the tavern and look through the archway between the two front cottages, with its sign overhead, "The Little Workshop," you feel yourself compelled to follow the little flagstones down a path.

They lead you to a lawn surrounded on all sides with flowers and shrubbery, the kinds found only in Southern California. In the background you see "Ye Pilgrim Rug Workshop," a little studio complete with kitchenette and front veranda. A cordial greeting awaits you, and never before have you so wanted to do something with your hands, for here you see the hooked rugs like the one your grandmother gave you years ago, only with designs far richer in color and beauty, and you learn that they are all original with Mrs. Newman, or perhaps Mrs. Richter. Mrs. Newman will teach you how to make them, right there in the studio, while Mr. Newman sings a Spanish song, playing his own accompaniment on the guitar.

You are introduced to Mrs. Florence Gendron, across the way in "The Magic Brush Shop," and in her, with her colorful smock and the gay gypsy handkerchief about her head, you find the spirit of Greenwich Village without the pseudo-artistic atmosphere, for Mrs. Gendron is a serious artist and you are immediately impressed with her sober seriousness as she modestly shows you beautiful hand-painted scarfs, handkerchiefs and dresses. You discover for yourself the real technique displayed in all her work, whether it be a surprising portrait of Valentino on the corner of a handkerchief, a gorgeously colored life-like parrot on a scarf, or a delicate design etched on a plate belonging to a complete dinner set designed, etched and fired in this little studio.

And so, your visit is ended and you hurry home to tell your friends about it all. You have also learned from the artists in the colony of other artists and their quaint or perhaps unusual studios and you mentally plan on a visit to them at some time in the near future. And so, while this little colony is just the germ of the community idea, the beginning has been made, and the words of Chamfort are recalled, "There is in everything a maturity which must be waited for."

NATIVE SONS HAVE VISITOR.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. received an official visit November 18 from Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi, who was entertained at supper previous to the meeting by Edgar McFadyen. One candidate, a brother of President E. L. Hann and Recording Secretary W. E. Hann, was initiated. For Christmas boxes for the disabled war veterans at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home, $10 was appropriated. It was voted to affiliate with the Long Beach Federation of State Societies, and E. C. Crowell was named as the Parlor's delegate.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Grand First Vice-president Welch delighted his hearers with an address in which he revealed the Order's "excuse" for existence. Other speakers were Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, Marshal Walter Slosson of Ramona (Los Angeles), Captain J. D. Loop, Dr. S. T. Luce and First Vice-president "Bill" Reuter of Sepulveda (San Pedro). John Cadogan of Sacramento Parlor was on hand with his surprise gifts. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Max Schlemmer and Edgar Crowell. Treasurer Percy Hight of the Parlor paid a visit last month to San Francisco.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS VISIT.

Headed by President Clara Fay, a delegation from Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. journeyed to Santa Ana November 6 and attended a preliminary meeting of the parlor which is shortly to be instituted in the Orange County capital through the efforts of Bertha Hitt of 154. Among the speakers of the evening were President Fay, Mrs. Hitt and Past President Kate McFadyen. Refreshments were served.

The Thimble Club of Long Beach Parlor had an all-day session November 5 at the home of Mrs. Kitty Dillon and sewed for the social welfare bazar. Luncheon was served at a long table attractively decorated in geraniums and smilax. Guests included Mrs. J. P. Rochford and Mrs. Mary Miller of San Francisco, house guests of their sister, Mrs. Kate McFadyen. Miss Marie McFadyen, a member of the Parlor, autoed to Palo Alto to witness the California-Stanford football game.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY PARK TO INCLUDE HISTORIC SPOT.

San Bernardino—The site of the San Bernardino Asistencia, on the old Barton ranch near Redlands, San Bernardino County, and now marked by the ruins of an early Franciscan mission, has been purchased by the Board of Supervisors as a preliminary step in creating a San Bernardino County park.

The mission was one of the first adobe buildings erected in California, being built some time between 1822 and 1826. Portions of its mud walls are still standing. Indians and Franciscan fathers worshiped at the mission, one of the first outposts of Christianity in the San Bernardino Valley.

HISTORY PAGEANT.

Anaheim (Orange County)—Floats covering the leading events in the dramatic and romantic events connected with the development of California from its discovery by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo in 1542 to the founding of the little colony of Anaheim in 1850, featured the Armistice Day parade here.

Million a Week—Factories of metropolitan Los Angeles produced $1,202,677,004 worth of products during 1924, an increase of $51,033,467 over 1923—an increase of almost a million dollars a week.

WINTER SPORTS THAT BEAT POKER

(HELENA LORENZ WILLIAMS.)

WHEN THE LAST GOLF CLUB HAS been restored to its bag and the last ball lies forgotten in the rough, the average businessman settles down to hibernate for the winter and yearn for the day when he may again tee off for the first hole. Or, if he is an ardent fisherman, he dreams of that favorite trout stream which he is going to visit for two weeks next August. Perhaps "Annette," his motor launch, is lying in the dock waiting for him to come and remove her winter wrappings. Bored, he only half hears the ravings of the younger set about skiing, skating, sledding and ice-boating. To him, December, January, February and March are a total loss from the point of view of sport.

But he is wrong. Skates are built for the settled man of affairs as much as for the college youth. A toboggan won't capsize if a lusty quartette of forty-year-olds skim down the hillside on it. Skiis have no more idiosyncrasies when managed by a portly authoritative looking gentleman than when they upset his slim-waisted son.

Perhaps the one thing in which Americans lag behind the European, is in the creation and the healthful enjoyment of leisure. A European in comfortable circumstances takes his recreation in winter as well as in summer; he follows the seasons with his play the way a small boy changes from tops to marbles, marbles to shinny sticks, shinny sticks to skates. In winter he goes for a week's hike in the snowy Alps; he races horses on the ice; he skiis, snowshoes, and goes on sleigh rides.

The average American has no winter playground unless he joins the swarms who go to Florida and the southwest. And there he plays —golf. Yet thousands of men can spare the time to spend a few days at Lake Placid, in Montreal or the middle-western sport centres. New England and the northern Atlantic states have dozens of rivers that freeze over sufficiently so that they can be utilized for ice-boating. If these are beyond his means, the great cities, where the snow is snatched off the streets before it has hardly had time to settle, have their park lakes and artificial rinks. In the parks, too, one may indulge in snow-shoeing and sometimes skiing. Winter hiking is possible to any suburbanite or to any city dweller living in no matter what modest circumstances, if he chooses a place where traffic and the street-cleaning department do not combine to ruin the scenery and fun.

There is nothing like the tingling feeling of good health which follows an hour or two in the cold, outdoor air. It beats the thrill that accompanies the discovery that one hold a full house. And it is a healthier thrill, for the grand old game of poker is almost always played in a room or on a train having closed windows. It would be a fine thing if some arbiter of styles, say the Prince of Wales, would start the fad of playing winter poker in a sleeping bag, ear muffs and mittens, near a wide-open window. Then would the great indoor sport give its devotees that sense of youth and energy, the memory of which the tired businessman has almost forgotten.

Outdoor sports are among the greatest disease preventives known. If the body is kept in good physical trim, there is slight danger, for example, that it will succumb to tuberculosis. It is the aim of the National Tuberculosis Association to teach Americans the value of outdoor living as part of its program for eradicating the disease. The eighteenth annual Christmas seal sale will be held throughout the country in December. Every seal that is purchased will help to strengthen the work of education and prevention which the 1,500 state and local tuberculosis organizations have planned for the coming year.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS KISSING EARLY.

One trouble about these modern scientific days is that they are putting out of business so many of our age-old traditions, says the "Stockton Record." What's more beautiful than mistletoe and whatever goes with it at Christmas time?

The United States Department of Agriculture says mistletoe must go. It is regarded in Washington as a dangerous forest pest and a drive has been started against the parasite in the national forest with the hope of exterminating it within ten years. The time is short. Do your Christmas kissing early.

NEW ERA DAWNS FOR SAN PEDRO

Bert Coleman

A NEW ERA IN THE HISTORY OF SAN Pedro Harbor has dawned! This is nothing more nor less than that the port has reached that cosmopolitan stage familiar to other and older large world ports, where vessels of every type and nationality have created an atmosphere of shipping that feels like home to the deep-water men.

Forty years ago, San Pedro had no harbor, and lumber and other freight had to be handled in lighters. Then came the era of sailing lumber carriers, followed by the steam schooners with lumber until this became the biggest lumber importing point in the world.

The passenger service—coastwise—began to pick up and then later the intercoastal freighters began to drop in occasionally. Still it was not recognized by the seamen as a port.

During the war it became a shipbuilding center and after the war odd freighters and passenger vessels began to call here. Shipping board vessels began to call regularly and then came the big rush of 1921 and 1922 when new arrivals poured into Southern California by the hundreds of thousands, causing a demand for lumber, cement, building materials and other supplies to care for the housing needs and to provide luxuries for the newcomers.

The rapid production of oil caused the establishment of oil tanker lines, intercoastal and off-shore. New wharves had to be built, the harbor and channel had to be deepened. Men who knew how to handle ships and shipping had to be obtained from other ports.

Through all the hubbub of development and change caused by the sudden growth, the "deep-water men," who will tell which is a "real" port and which is not, were prone to criticise because the atmosphere of a seagoing center which they were used to was not here. At least, that is what they had to say, if you questioned them at any length.

Then when business and shipping reached a steady stride and the hysterical development of some years ago lost its "pep," there appeared to be a lull in shipping. During this lull the shipping firms and steamship lines had time to organize and to get their offices, representatives and agencies in shape for regular business.

This fall the shipping business has shown a steady increase, but what is more interesting is that new vessels from every maritime nation on the globe have begun calling here. Every week from one to half a dozen freighters and liners whose officers never dreamed they would be "making" this port, have commenced to call in regular service.

Italian, Greek, Irish, French, Japanese, Holland and British vessels have settled down to the business of operating their craft to this port as a settled institution.

As facilities in the way of quarantine inspections, increased customs forces, marine hospitals, employment bureaus, freight forwarders, brokers, transfer lines, large areas of switchyards, better roads, wharves, warehouses, tug services, deeper water, better aides to navigation and a hundred or more other phases of a deep seaport have been established, that atmosphere desired by the "deep-water men" has arrived.

Seamen of every nationality may be found in the port at one time. The harbor is growing more metropolitan every day. The presence of the fleet adds to this atmosphere, and the business houses being established here to care for the needs of those on the ships and for the ships themselves are daily adding to San Pedro's "seagoing atmosphere."

If chanties were as common on vessels nowadays as they were in the heyday of the full-rigged ships and other sailing craft, it is safe to claim that San Pedro Harbor would become as famous as Rio de Janeiro and other ports in the Western Hemisphere, to those aboard foreign vessels bound for this port.

Arrival of the giant around-the-world passenger craft, is considered significant of the fact that this port is established to remain and grow according to the amount of products which can be raised.

It is but little more than a year ago when a half-hearted effort was made to get the first of these big around-the-world vessels to call here, as well as at San Francisco. They now come of their own initiative.

Investigation, it is claimed, will show that more than twenty new vessels, most of them on their maiden voyage, have called here recently. Hence the claim that the port has reached that "deep-water" atmosphere which it is necessary to create in order to have the "deep-water men," those volunteer press agents who roam the world, decide this is a port.

NATIVE SONS HAVE ROUSING MEETING.

Members of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. were out in force November 19 to welcome Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, on the occasion of his official visit. A large delegation was present from Long Beach 239, and there were visitors from Sacramento 3, Humboldt 14 (Eureka), Amador 17 (Sutter Creek), Los Angeles 45, San Diego 108 and Ramona 109. President James H. Dodson Jr., previous to the meeting, entertained the visiting grand officer, the exceptional merit. Officers will be elected December 4. The last meeting of 1925 will be that of December 18, and the first meeting in the new year will be that of January 8. Ramona assisted Vaquero No. 262 in "putting over" its anniversary celebration. and has been highly commended by that Parlor for its generosity and interest.

CHRISTMAS PARTY, DECEMBER 23.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. initiated five candidates November 4. The dance of November 18, in charge of Miss Dolores Malin, was well attended and a pleasant time was enjoyed. Mrs. Edith E. Douglas entertained at luncheon November 12 several members of the Parlor, who spent the day sewing for the homeless children. Mrs. Annie L. Adair, secretary of the Los Angeles County Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Homeless Children's Committee, proudly exhibited two layettes she had that morning received from the sewing club of Long Beach Parlor.

Grand President Sue J. Irwin of Berkeley will officially visit Los Angeles December 16. Miss Grace Norton is making arrangements for the supper-banquet that will precede the gathering. Miss Norton also has in charge the Parlor's annual Christmas party, December 23, when a decorated tree and dancing will be featured.

HISTORY RECOUNTED.

At the November 3 meeting of the Historical Society of California, Dr. Owen C. Coy of the University of Southern California gave an illustrated talk on "The Legacy of '49."

"Suggestions Relative to a Fitting Celebration of the Arrival of Jedediah Smith" was the subject of an address by Dr. Robert G. Cleland of Occidental College.

HIGH JINKS, DECEMBER 14.

Many of the old-timers of Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W., including L. S. Nordlinger, W. T. Craig and J. J. Regan, were out November 19 to participate in the smoker. A good feed was provided and a clever bunch of entertainers furnished a snappy program. November 5 a class of six candidates were initiated.

Corona has decided to meet in future in Hollywood, in the Hollywood Conservatory of Music building, 5402 Hollywood boulevard. The meeting-night has been changed to Monday, of each week. The first meeting in the new quarters will be that of December 7, when officers will be elected.

December 14, Corona will feature a high-jinks at Native Sons' Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street. A good entertainment program will be presented, and there will be plenty to eat. The spirit of the days of '49 will prevail, and it is hoped that a large crowd will be in attendance to enjoy the affair.

BANKS' ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.

The staffs of the Citizens National Bank, the Citizens Trust and Savings Bank and the Citizens National Company, to the number of approximately 700, attended the thirty-fifth anniversary dinner at the Elite, November 19.

In addition to a musical program, C. A. Rude spoke on "Credit and New Business Activities," and J. Dabney Day, president of the Citizens National and Citizens Trust and Savings Banks, delivered an address on general banking conditions, prosperity being the keynote.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.

Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N.S.G.W. is now meeting the second and fourth Wednesdays at the Vaquero Club, 1200 North Vista street, Hollywood. The change was made possible, through the generosity of Eugene R. Plummer, owner of the property and a member of the Parlor.

November 11 Vaquero observed the first anniversary of its institution with an afternoon and evening outing at Vaquero Park which was largely attended by Native Daughters and Native Sons. Supper was served at 6 o'clock, and dancing was then in order. During the evening a class of candidates were initiated for the Parlor by a ritual team from Ramona Parlor No 109 made up of Adolph Rivera, William Coffey, Parrel Neighbour, Leon Leonard, Dwight Crittenden, Carl Mueller and Walter Sossom. Following the ceremonies there were brief addresses by Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, President Parrel D. Neighbour of Ramona, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer and others.

Vaquero will have a special meeting Wednesday, December 2, to receive an official visit from Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi. The meeting will be preceded by an old time California feast, prepared under the supervision of Eugene Plummer—and he knows how. The supper will be served at 7 o'clock. All Native Sons are extended an invitation by Vaquero to enjoy the occasion.

OLD FIRM IN NEW HOME.

Harris & Frank opened their beautiful new store at 635 South Hill street for business November 2. Flowers from the firm's well-wishers were in abundance, and a program of entertainment was presented during the day and evening.

The firm of Harris & Frank, clothiers, is one of the oldest in Los Angeles, having been established in 1856. Dealing in quality merchandise and catering to the satisfaction of its customers, it has built up an enviable reputation.

GLENDALE TO HAVE NATIVE SON PARLOR.

Weekly meetings of those who have signified their intentions of affiliating with the parlor of Native Sons being organized in Glendale by Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer have been held at the home of Lee Payne, a member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W., who resides in the growing and prosperous suburb.

Grand Trustee John T. Newell and other members of the Order have been present at the meetings, to explain the purpose of the organization. On the part of the charter-signers, much enthusiasm has been displayed, and that the new parlor will be a success in every particular is a foregone conclusion.

At the November 24 gathering it was decided to name the new parlor Glendale. December 16 was fixed as the date of institution, the ceremonies of which will be conducted by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler of Burlingame. At that time, too, it is expected that large classes of candidates for all the Los Angeles County Parlors of Native Sons will be initiated by a ritual team of grand officers. The institution and initiation ceremonies will be conducted in Press Hall, 335 No. Brand, Glendale.

PERSONAL MENTION.

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA

SOMETHING NEW AND UNIQUE IN THE field of California history is a publication of the Extension Division of the University of California, the "Pictorial History of California." To Edward Mayer, the energetic secretary of the Department of Visual Instruction at the university, belongs the credit of conceiving and planning this work. In Dr. Owen C. Coy, Director of the State Historical Association and now professor of Western and California History in the University of Southern California, he found an able ally in preparing this excellent production. For a dozen years Dr. Coy has devoted himself to research in the field of California history and has a grasp of the subject both from the standpoint of knowledge and sympathetic spirit, that gives him a pre-eminent position in this field.

The pictorial history is not an illustrated book on California history but is a very remarkable collection of nearly three hundred pictures, artistically printed in sepia-colored halftones on sheets 8x11 inches in size. Accompanying each picture is a paragraph of descriptive matter, which is a bit of California history in tabloid form. The eye very naturally turns to the text in order to get the explanation of the picture, and in spite of one's self he absorbs a lot of California history that many of us never knew. History study made painless! What a discovery! If you doubt the truth of this statement just try it yourself.

One wonders where such a fine collection of pictures could come from, for they are of high quality and range all the way from the saber-tooth tiger of prehistoric days to present-day industrial California. It is here that Dr. Coy's wide knowledge of the available collections of material has been of great service. The best of pictures have been collected from the Bancroft Library, the State Library, Crocker Art Gallery, De Young Museum, Los Angeles Museum, private collections and early newspapers and periodicals. History and art have both been carefully considered, in order that each picture might be an artistic as well as an historical contribution. In this the compiler has done very well indeed, for there is not a commonplace picture in the whole set.

The range of the subjects treated appears to be very complete, so that the whole field is quite adequately covered. Roughly speaking, the set divides itself into about three fairly equal divisions. One hundred pictures are devoted to prehistoric and Spanish California, about the same number to the early American period, and the remainder to the industrial and economic history of the state. The missions are shown in forty-five pictures, one or more being devoted to each mission; a dozen sketches depict Spanish California life; for the days of forty-nine over three dozen pictures are given portraying its various phases, while two dozen illustrations tell most graphically the story of transportation, including the ox teams, mule trains, pony express, camel caravans, the overland stage and the railroad.

This gives an idea of the collection, but it is necessary to see the pictures themselves in order to appreciate fully the wide range and excellence of the subjects selected. Since the pictures are presented in loose-leaf form, it is possible for them to be used by several individuals or groups at the same time. Every picture is numbered, and when taken in serial order a fairly complete history of California may be had. However, each picture is a unit by itself and does not need to be considered in proper sequence to be appreciated.

Californians will be glad to welcome this to their libraries, for it is something that is of interest to everyone. The University of California is to be congratulated upon this publication, which not only gives evidence of scholarship but also an appreciation of what the great body of citizenship desire—an interesting presentation of subject matter. The Grizzly Bear does not hesitate to recommend the "Pictorial History of California" to the schools and women's clubs of the state, and especially to the Parlors and individual members of the Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. It is a noteworthy contribution to the cause of California history.

"PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA," compiled and edited by Owen C. Coy, Ph.D. Published by the University of California Extension Division, Berkeley, California, 1925. Separate leaf, 263 sheets of illustrations. Price, $8.00.

BOOK REVIEWS

As a companion, Jim finds in Patricia Corliss all that man desires; as a wife, she both perplexes and wounds him. Modern to her fingertips, Patricia demands a career of her own, unhampered by children. Unhappily, their married life stumbles along to a bitter climax. They part. Patricia plunges at once into her career, and Jim turns back to his childhood resolves. Happy in them, he enters into his kingdom.

"CROWELL'S HANDBOOK FOR READERS AND WRITERS." Edited by Henrietta Gerwig; Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York, Publishers; Price, $3.50.

Everything from "A to Z" you will find in "Crowell's Handbook for Readers and Writers." The book is one-half dictionary and one-half encyclopedia, but, best of all, it is a constant fund of valuable information.

Greek mythology, derivations of words, late war terms, famous characters of fiction, and those illusive allusions so hard to track down, are all neatly labeled and found without difficulty.

Once seen and scanned, this handbook is one you will not wish to do without.

WORLD'S LARGEST TREE.

A. D. Lee claims to have discovered the world's largest tree near Requa, Del Norte County, California. While of the sequoia semper virens species, its measurements proclaim it larger than the biggest sequoia gigantea of the Sierras. They read: 40 feet across the base, 125 feet 7 inches around the base, 429 feet high. This is 100 feet higher than the General Sherman 326-foot tree in Sequoia National Park.

Leads Nation—For the past four years Los Angeles County has led every one of the 3,063 counties of the United States in agricultural production. The last government figures give the agricultural crops for the United States as $9,953,000,000 and Los Angeles County alone as $64,780,993.

Martin L. Haines (Los Angeles N.S.) paid a visit last month to New York City.

Jack Kleinman (Los Angeles N.S.) has gone to San Francisco, probably to reside.

Henry G. Bodkin (Corona N.S.) was in San Francisco last month on legal business.

Harry G. Pendall (Los Angeles N.S.) returned last month from an Eastern business trip.

Emil Plath (Ramona N.S.), now residing in Taft, Kern County, was a visitor last month.

E. M. Rector (Hydraulic N.S.) and wife of Nevada City, Nevada County, were visitors last month.

Colonel Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel (Bay City N.S.) of San Francisco was among last month's visitors.

GIFTED NATIVE SON LIVES FOR HIS ART

A "Credit to Los Angeles," is the slogan employed by the Brent's Furniture Company of 716-22 South Main Street, Los Angeles, but it could rightly be called a "Credit to California."

Many of our own dear native sons comprise the executive force of this enviable organization. Mr. E. J. Brent, Jr., Secretary and Treasurer, claims Los Angeles as his birthplace, and well indeed can Los Angeles be proud of this gifted son.

Mr. Brent has created no little sensation amid musical circles by his masterly interpretations on the piano. For the past three or four seasons, his musical programs have been the source of much pleasure in and amongst the various clubs in Southern California.

Business has not interfered with this young man's genius. The quest for "coin of the realm" is a secondary consideration. Young Brent lives for his art, and by his accomplishments he is stamped truly, a "Credit to Los Angeles."

Carl D. Pusich (Ramona N.S.) has returned from a visit to his parents' former home, Jugo Slovakia.

John T. Newell (Los Angeles N.S.) and wife spent a large part of last month in the northern part of the state.

William I. Traeger (Ramona N.S.) has announced his candidacy for re-election as sheriff of Los Angeles County.

John A. Bullard (Ramona N.S.) and wife (Los Angeles N.D.) were among the many who went to Palo Alto to see the Stanford-California football game November 21.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Henry Arthur Ruthard, grandfather of Carl R. Neighbours (Ramona N.S.), died October 26, at the age of 81.

Mrs. L. Reilly, mother of E. J. Reilly( Los Angeles N.S.), passed away at San Francisco, October 29. She was a native of Ireland, aged 78.

Ford Travilla, brother of Jack Travilla (Ramona N.S.), died at Banning, Riverside County, November 7, at the age of 31.

Mrs. Emeline A. G. Coles, wife of Oliver E. Coles (Ramona N.S.), passed away November 9.

John H. Gallivan, a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., died November 15 at San Diego, survived by a wife and a daughter. He was a native of San Francisco, aged 60, and had long been associated with Foreman & Clark.

Marshall Brunett, brother of Paul Brunett (Los Angeles N.S.), died November 15.

John Joseph Ford, father of W. Joseph Ford (Corona N.S.), died November 21. He was a native of Massachusetts, aged 76, and was affiliated with the Los Angeles County Pioneer Society.

C. J. Burleson, a member of Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W., died November 21, survived by a wife and three children. He was a native of Amador County, aged 71. In point of years, "Dad," as he was affectionately known to all Coronaites, was the Parlor's oldest member; he was a constant attendant at the meetings and will be greatly missed in its councils.

Mrs. Dora Bilderback, mother of Charles Bilderback (Ramona N.S.), passed away November 22, at the age of 83.

MONUMENT MARKS SITE OF FORTY-NINERS' CAMPING GROUND.

There was an immense cottonwood tree four feet in diameter and very tall, says "American Forestry," which stood in Nebraska almost in the center of the continent, between New York and San Francisco, which was within one mile of that center. Under its branches rested thousands of '49ers enroute to the El Dorado of the Pacific Coast. It was the best-known camping ground on the old California trail.

From 1849, when the goldseekers rushed across the great plains, down to the completion of the Union Pacific railroad, the great tree was a guidepost to the wagon trains going West. After the railway was completed there was no further use for the old tree, and it eventually rotted away and died.

A monument has been erected on this spot, representing a trunk of a cottonwood tree, and bearing the inscription: "On this spot stood the original Lone Tree on the old California trail."

In Memoriam

MARY E. AUBURY.

To Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 Native Daughters of the Golden West—Dear Sisters: The Angel of Death has again entered the portals of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 Native Daughters of the Golden West, and taken from our midst our sister, Mary E. Aubury. Sister Aubury was an earnest, enthusiastic Native Daughter, and none loved California with a truer love. Our Order has lost a faithful member. Therefore be it

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to her bereaved brothers, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

"May the California winds blow lightly,
May the California sun shine brightly,
May the California rain fall softly
Where sleeps our sister dear."

Lou W. Johnson

(SECRETARY, WILMINGTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

THE MEETING PLACE OF THE STEEL highways of this country with the water lanes of the world affords greater opportunities to people in every walk in life than are to be found in any other section of America.

A wealth of propitious situations unfolds itself alike to the workingman through steady employment connections—to the man of limited means who can make the down payment and know he is safe—to the businessman whose turnover will increase with our population—to the capitalist who can make handsome returns on an investment of foresight, initiative and money—to the importer and exporter who can find no more fertile field than this threshold of Occidental and Oriental commerce—to the retired man who is looking for balmy climate, coupled with the variegated interests of a maritime metropolis and a chance to increase the bankroll on modest investments—and finally to the family—the man and that good woman who will find in Wilmington a modern city, very much alive with the best in educational facilities, churches, clubs and everything that goes to make an attractive home community.

Wilmington is located at the Inner Harbor of the Port of Los Angeles and has been a part of that municipality, through annexation, since 1909. In area it comprises ten square miles, is twenty-two miles south of the Plaza in Los Angeles, and about midway between San Pedro and Long Beach.

Here you will be greeted by a thriving, bustling transportation and industrial community, a seaport of world-wide recognition and, with all, a delightful home place. There are no tenement districts here, no overcrowding. Nature has been kind and generous to our people.

Three minutes' ride from the bee hive of harbor activities you are in a delightful residence section; wonderful yards, flowers, palms and the best type of California bungalows—homes that are good to look upon—where you would be proud to come and rear that family—existent and potential.

Wilmington isn't exactly an infant. Cabrillo discovered it in September of 1542, three hundred eighty-three years ago.

In 1920 we had 3,500 people here. Now it's 12,000 and up, with the accent on the "up," and we're just getting nicely started. Everything that belongs in a town of this size, we have. The opportunities of the pioneers are here, but there is no pioneering to be done.

Wilmington is up to the minute. Los Angeles Harbor made itself and, incidentally, Wilmington.

The stupendous commercial progress of Los Angeles and Southern California marked its inception with the active development of the gigantic harbor project that re-created the Ports of Wilmington and San Pedro, once little more than mud flats, into Los Angeles Harbor.

Flags of eleven maritime nations decorated Los Angeles Harbor in October, streaming from five hundred and twelve ships which carried 1,700,730 tons of cargo valued at $74,367,119. This smashes all previous records for the year in value of inbound and outbound cargo, leading the next best month in 1925 by over $9,000,000.

On the heels of the completion of the East Basin fill comes news of another and even larger undertaking in the shape of a similar reclamation for that portion of the city lying north of Anaheim and between Pennington avenue and the Long Beach boundry. This will cover an area of some sixty blocks, and its sponsors are bending every effort to advance the proceedings so that they may be completed with the Anaheim street paving. Eight and one-half miles of streets and alleys will be brought to grade, involving over a million cubic yards of fill.

UNIQUE PLACE TO DINE AND DANCE.

The entire harbor district should feel proud of The Tavern at Wilmington, recently opened by "Jack" Adler and "Ralph" Buhrman. The boys are putting up a wonderful sixty-cent lunch and a full-course dollar-twenty-five dinner. The famous Tavern jazz players are on deck every evening from 8 o'clock. "Jack" and "Ralph" extend an invitation to all Native Sons and Daughters, their families and friends, to visit The Tavern. "It's Just as Good as the Best."

officers of the Parlor and a few other Natives at a delightful supper at the California Yacht Club.

During the course of the meeting several applications for membership were filed. The trustees submitted their report, which showed the "baby" Parlor to be in a most healthy financial condition and growing just like the southland numerically. A donation of $25 to the community chest was voted. A committee of Native Daughters was admitted, during a declared recess, to dispose of dance tickets. The "gang" was in good spirits and there was considerable goodnatured crossfiring that created no little amusement. Sepulveda Parlor wants the 1927 Grand Parlor for San Pedro, and a committee composed of James Mee, William Reuter, Edward Baldwin, Robert Wayne and Robert Snodgrass has been appointed to devise ways and means to get it.

President Dodson extended the welcome of Sepulveda Parlor and San Pedro to Grand First Vice-president Welch, who spoke from his heart, and stated that he just could not help being a Native Son. He related many incidents in California history, and suggested that in the California section of the National Capital's gallery of fame there be placed statues of Father Junipero Serra and Rev. David Starr King. Among the other speakers were Past Grand President William I. Traeger, Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, John J. Keveney, James V. Carroll, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, Edward Reese and Judge Robert M. Clarke. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the rousing good meeting.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS SOCIALLY ACTIVE.

The Hallowe'en "hard times" dance of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. October 30 was a great social and financial success. Prizes for the "tackiest" costumes went to George Smith and Anna Clark.

The Parlor has moved to the new I.O.O.F. Hall, where a card party was enjoyed November 6. In charge was the November good of the order committee, Gertrude Riepe, Catherine Ross, Alma Werner. Prizes for high scores went to Catherine Ross and August Riepe, and the consolation to Mabel Lisman and John Ross. November 20 the good of the order committee staged a carnival dance and disposed of a live turkey. Initiation was featured the 27th.

October 29 the Poppy Thimble Club, composed of members of Rudecinda, met at the home of Carrie Kuhlmann, and November 5 at the home of Catherine Ross.

THE COMMON LOT.

If times are hard and you feel blue
Think of the others, worrying, too.
Just because your trials are many,
Don't think the rest of us haven't any.
Life is made up of smiles and tears,
Joys and sorrows, mixed with fears;
And though to us it seems one-sided,
Trouble is pretty well divided.
If we could look in every heart,
We'd find that each one has its part;
And those who travel fortune's road
Sometimes carry the biggest load.

SANTA PAYS ADVANCE VISIT TO SAN DIEGO

John H. N. Adams
(SAN DIEGO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

"SANTA CLAUS, ARRIVING BY PLANE at Mission Beach, San Diego, California, is greeted by a bevy of beautiful bathing beauties."

This rather unusual caption will be flashed upon thousands of silver screens in all parts of the world during Christmas week, and it is expected that about 75,000,000 people will learn, thereby, that swimming enthusiasts in sunny California will indulge in their favorite pastime in celebration of Christmas.

This effective publicity for the southland has been made possible through the co-operation of the Mission Beach Company with the publicity department of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

AN INTRIGUING SPOT IN WORLD-FAMOUS BALBOA PARK, SAN DIEGO.
With One of Stately Exposition Buildings, Now Permanently Restored, in Background.

Several weeks before Christmas, cameramen for the various motion-picture news-reels in Los Angeles received letters stating that Santy would arrive by plane at Mission Beach, San Diego's new all-year seaside playground, and that he would be met by a bevy of California's justly famous bathing beauties. Did they so desire, it would be arranged for them to "shoot" the unusual event for the millions of movie fans throughout the world. They did, and a few days later they did—"shoot" the scenes enacted by Santy.

Thousands of San Diegans lined the beach-front on the appointed Sunday, when it had been announced that Santa Claus would make his first stop in the United States at Mission Beach and that, this year, he had deserted his old-fashioned and very slow reindeer for the more modern means of transportation—a snappy, 100 horsepower DeHaviland aeroplane. And the youngsters—they were there en masse. With heartfelt delight and soaring expectations, their cries of "Here comes Santy!", "Santy, what did you bring for me?" and "Here I am, Santy," left nothing to be desired in the nature of a vociferous and sincerely enthusiastic welcome for the popular visitor from the ice-bound North.

Landing on the beach the plane soon taxied to a position directly in front of the bath-house, amid the cheers of thousands of young and old San Diegans, and a group of winsome bathing girls rushed out to greet Santy—and the cameramen ground away. Then Santy dismounted and with a huge pack of gifts slung over his shoulder he was immediately surrounded by the youngsters, many of whom shook hands with him and told him what they wanted for Christmas. Oodles of doughnuts and candy galore were distributed by Kris Kringle to the delighted youngsters who, during the next two weeks, were the envy of all their schoolmates and who did rightfully boast, "Sure I saw Santy Claus and he gave me some candy and some doughnuts and is going to bring me just what I ast him for for Crismus!"

Immediately following the advance Yuletide celebration, staged for the benefit of California publicity, San Diegans seriously took up the matter of a real honest-to-goodness community party this Christmas. Among other features contemplated for this year's observance are an extensive musical program at the Spreckels out-of-door organ pavilion in Balboa Park, a huge Christmas tree in the Plaza and the singing of carols on the streets. Last year record-breaking crowds flocked to San Diego for the holidays and hotelmen expect that this year an equally large number of visitors will spend Christmas here. It would be wise, probably, for those planning to come here to make reservations as far in advance as possible.

Eastern travel agencies, as well as Western railroad officials, predict that a new high mark in winter travel to California will be set this season—and San Diego expects to share in this travel. Attractions for the tourists—and the Native Sons in other parts of the Golden State—are greater than ever before. Californians who have not been to San Diego this year have great surprises in store.

Last May the newest and, eventually, the finest, seaside resort in the state was put on the map when Mission Beach swung its doors open to an expectant city. John D. and Claus Spreckels have expended in this development about $2,500,000, and their money has been well invested. Leaving the center of the city on one of the newest-type interurban trains, one arrives at the Mission Beach station in a little less than twenty minutes. This remarkable running time has been made possible by the installation of a new short-cut route and is a great saving over the old, which took just twice as long. Enroute, one is taken over the only three-way grade crossing in the state,—which has eliminated one of the most dangerous local intersections,—where formerly the tracks of the Santa Fe, and the street car, as well as the motor highway, all crossed at different angles but on the same level.

Leaving the train at Mission Beach the visitor arrives, via a subway under the main highway, at the finest bath-house in the world, representing an investment of $750,000. With every conceivable convenience provided, and done in a style of architecture of the finest type, the bath-house has lived up to its claims to distinction. In addition to the main plunge, about 300 feet long and 60 feet wide, there has been provided a smaller shallow pool for the youngsters. The main pool is equipped with diving boards, a fountain and powerful under-water searchlights. An instance of the type of accommodations are the electric hair-dryers, provided for the convenience of the women patrons.

About the same exterior size as the bath-house, the dance casino is immediately north. It, too, is splendidly appointed. On the mezzanine there is a cafe, where one may dine as well as dance. Patio smoking-rooms, providing the maximum ventilation, are found at each end of the huge building and ample seating accommodations. And the music—Carrs' San Diegans—keeps the floor well filled with dance lovers.

Then, too, there is the giant dipper, which dips and turns—at a hair-raising angle—at the same time—it, also, deserves a superlative description. I am not sure that it is the biggest in the world, but I am quite convinced that it certainly must be one of the most thrilling—if not, the "thrillingest"! Yes, I do speak from experience—an experience, by the way, gained several hours after sundown, and I couldn't tell where I was going—or, rather, being taken, in such a tremendous and no uncertain hurry. If any of my readers crave excitement, I do not hesitate to recommend most highly the aforementioned giant dipper at Mission Beach. And that isn't all—there is a very fine roller-skating rink and concessions aplenty.

NATIVE SONS' FRIENDSHIP APPRECIATED.

The officers of San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.S.G.W. exemplified the ritual for the benefit of a class of candidates November 16, the ceremonies being followed by an entertainment. November 23 officers for the ensuing term were nominated, and a Thanksgiving turkey was given away. November 30 a dance was given under the auspices of the entertainment committee, Henry Burkhardt chairman.

Through Secretary Dan Shaffer, Mrs. John Kingston has extended to the Parlor her thanks and deepest appreciation for the true friendship displayed by the members during the illness of her lately-deceased husband, a member of Humboldt Parlor No. 14 N.S.G.W., Eureka.

Now that the Board of Grand Officers has appointed a committee to act with a committee of PROPOSED CABRILLO MONUMENT.

San Diego in furthering the Cabrillo monument project, an effort will be made to raise the required funds, and from the expressions of cooperation by San Diego's businessmen success is foretold. The Grand Parlor at the San Bernardino session last May appropriated $10,000 toward the monument.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS SEW FOR KIDDIES.

Several members of San Diego Parlor No. 208 N.D.G.W. had an all-day gathering November 7 at the home of Rosina Hertzbrun and sewed for the homeless children. The hostess served a delightful luncheon at noon, and the day was spent in making slips, nightgowns, bibs, etc. Among those present were Sisters Buski, Finley, Burgert, Crolic, Robinson, DeVoe, Williams, Hertzbrun.

Elsie Case was hostess at the Parlor meeting November 10, and served a tamale supper at 6 p. m. San Diego is looking forward with much pleasure to the official visit of Grand President Sue J. Irwin of Berkeley, December 17.

DANCING A FEATURE.

San Diego is noted for its modern and attractive hotels and eating-places, and heading the list in hospitality is the Pacific Cafe. Amidst an atmosphere of merriment, one is made to feel at home there.

The Pacific is the only cafe in San Diego featuring dancing every day at noon and every evening from 7 p. m. to 12:30 a. m. The Native Sons and Native Daughters and their friends are cordially invited by the management to make the Pacific their headquarters.

TO DEDICATE MEMORIAL BUILDING.

During the month of December the grand officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West have been invited to conduct the dedication ceremonies of the new memorial building erected by the State of California, at a cost of $10,000, on the battlefield of San Pasqual. State Commissioner F. M. White has extended to the Order, through San Diego Parlor No. 108, the courtesy of holding the dedication services, which will mean that the members of the Parlor will have an opportunity to take the lead in marking this most important historical landmark in the early history of the state.

Three years ago San Diego Parlor placed a bronze tablet over the graves of the sixteen soldiers who gave their lives in this battle, which up to that time had only been marked with a single tombstone, reading "Sixteen Unknown Soldiers." Through the War and Navy Departments the Landmarks Committee of the Parlor secured the names of all of these men and they are now engraved upon the tablet.

Dan, "I have met Mr. Forbes, also Mr. Barclay of Grass Valley, whom you probably know." "No," said she, "I do not know ze Barclay but I have heard him speak of." Then, after a few moments of reflection, she asked, "Did you speak with Mr. Forbes?" "Yes," said Dan., "he knows all about the mine and if you want to talk with him you had better go back to Grass Valley to see him, for he is now on his way here." With a crimsoned face she gave a gasp and then, in a rage, shouted: "I have been betrayed!" and stalked out of the office. Dan never saw her again.

Dan heard from the Barclays off and on for a number of years, but Mrs. Barclay sent no more poems. George probably found a market for them, if she wrote any more. They continued to call prosperity by its first name, and in the last letter Dan received was mentioned the fact there was a little son in the Barclay family and his name was Dan.

Such are the lives some of the people on this earth must live. As Shakespeare says, "All the world is a stage and men and women merely players."

MASSACHUSETTS HILL TRAGEDY AROUSES NEVADA COUNTY INTEREST.

"Editor Grizzly Bear—The November number of The Grizzly Bear is in demand and is receiving much attention in Grass Valley, especially from those interested in the early history of Nevada County. I inclose editorial from the Morning Union' regarding the Brennan tragedy, which concludes with 'Mr. Jones promises an 'aftermath" of the tragedy in the next issue of The Grizzly Bear. The nature of this can only be surmised, and its appearance is awaited with interest.' Mr. Jones' article is very interesting, and I wish he would write more of our county history; there is plenty of material.

"The Brennans could not be buried in the Catholic cemetery, so were laid to rest in the City cemetery, on the hill near the railroad depot. For many years the graves were neglected, but a few years ago the lot was enclosed and a marker placed at each of the five graves by a generous citizen.

"Sincerely yours,
"ALISON F. WATT,
"Past Grand President N.D.G.W.
"Grass Valley, November 9, 1925."

Writing to The Grizzly Bear from Sacramento Clarence E. Jarvis, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., says:

"I hear much favorable comment on the de partments of the magazine devoted to Lon Beach, Pasadena, San Pedro, Hollywood, San Diego, etc. The value comes from the magazin being kept on reading tables, and read and re read many times. The people of California in general, and of those places featured in partic ular, should appreciate the value of The Grizzl Bear as a 'booster' medium."

JOSE FRANCISCO ORTEGA

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton

(DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA.)

ONE OF THE LESSER FIGURES OF early California who attained fame was Don Jose Francisco Ortega, sergeant in the Monterey company. He earned recognition by his deeds. But not everybody who deserves renown achieves it. One is fortunate to have a good historian as well as a good record; they make a successful combination. This was Ortega's happy fate. Many readers of early California history to whom Ortega's name is familiar as the discoverer of San Francisco Bay, do not know that he had as a biographer no less a person than Father Serra. No wonder he became famous.

Pedro Fages, commander at Monterey, was objectionable to the missionaries, and President Serra urged his removal. In his place he recommended the appointment of Sergeant Ortega. Viceroy Bucareli did not grant the request, but Serra's testimonial, written to the viceroy, fixed Ortega's name in California history. It is here translated, together with Serra's complaint against Fages. It is taken from Father Palou's "Noticias de Nueva California," of which an English edition is being prepared:

"6. It seems to me very desirable to remove and retire the officer Don Pedro Fages from the command of the presidio of Monterey and put another in his place, for if this is not done there will be no cessation of the desertion among the soldiers and so many other people, which up to now has caused and is causing so much censure; nor will those who cannot do more, fail to continue to be very dissatisfied, as they have been from first to last, not so much from excessive labor or want of food, as I have often heard many of them say to various people, as from the ill treatment and bad manners of that officer. I have known this for a long time from personal experience.

"I have just received, with the last letters, copies of the representations made on the one hand by the volunteer soldiers of that presidio, to their captain Don Agustin Callis, whom they suppose to be in this Court, and others by the Leather-jackets, to their captain Don Fernando Rivera, whom they also suppose to be in Mexico. Both bodies beg their respective officers to rescue them in whatever way they can from such oppression and subjection. If I were to speak, not of what concerns his person or the other friars, for this will be passed over in silence, but of the hindrance that his conduct has always caused to the missions, it would be a long discourse. If it should be necessary to write it in more detail and to give more reasons for urging what is asked for here, it will be done on the least hint from your Excellency. But if what has been said above, together with the information given by the reverend father guardian of this College in writing, and what I gave by word of mouth, is enough for the purpose, I beg your Excellency to let him retire with honor and without disgrace, and may God bless him.

"7. I am of the opinion that it is not best for the present that the officer placed in command of that presidio shall be one of the regular troops, for, as those gentlemen are not accustomed to such service as that of the Leather-jacket soldiers, which is totally different from that of the other troops, we might find ourselves in the same difficulties as heretofore. And if your Excellency will grant me the great favor of your permission to propose a suitable person for the office, I will say that, in my opinion, among all those who compose the company none is more suitable for it than its sergeant, Don Jose Francisco Ortega.

"The reasons for my opinion are his services and his ability to discharge the duties of the office. First as to his services: After having served the king for some years as a Leather-jacket soldier in California, at the time of the regulars of the Company who were later expelled, when he was distinguished by the appointment of sergeant, he resigned his place and devoted himself to working in the mines in the southern part of that Peninsula. At that time, as he seemed to be the most suitable person of that department, he was made lieutenant-justice of all those mining camps, and he administered that office with equity for some years. The new governor, Don Gaspar de Portola, came to attend to the expulsion of the Jesuit fathers and to take the governorship of the provinces; and, having met and talked with Sergeant Ortega he offered him his former post of soldier and sergeant, and, having obtained his consent, he took him in his company to Loreto. There he served the governor and the king as accountant and manager of the royal storehouse for more than a year, during which time the royal exchequer was in charge of Senor Portola. Afterwards came the new commissary, Don Francisco Trillo, and he made use of Sergeant Ortega's pen all the time that it was needed.

"The time came for the expedition to Monterey, and Sergeant Ortega was designated for the second division, in which I went, and also the governor. We sallied forth, and just as we were setting foot in this country of the heathen, we received the last letters from the illustrious visitor general, and in the one that was for the governor, which he read to me, his Lordship said that Sergeant Ortega might accompany the expedition, with the consolation that he had reserved for him, upon his return, the position of lieutenant of the company, which Don Blas de Somera was leaving, having asked for retirement. This promise we all celebrated, giving him hearty congratulations.

"He went with the expedition, and as soon as we came to the end of the short stretch of road which some of the soldiers knew because they had been over it on a preceding expedition, the governor appointed the sergeant to go every day, accompanied by a soldier, and to explore the route that we were to take on the following day. And thus he continued for the space of more than a month that our journey lasted, going three times over the road the rest of the expedition traveled but once. He went to look for the watering-place and the camping site, returned with the information, and then went with all the party to the place selected. The soldier who accompanied him was sometimes relieved, but the sergeant never. The danger of going in this way among a heathen people who were now resisting us, as we saw afterwards, kept me in constant anxiety; and in fact, on some occasions his escape in safety could be attributed only to the saints of his devotion.

"After our arrival at San Diego, where everybody was surprised at the manner in which we had come, the departure from that port in search of the harbor of Monterey was determined upon. The sergeant went with the rest; and, according to what I was told by fathers Crespi and Gomez, who went with that expedition to the harbor of San Francisco, in the whole of it the work of Senor Ortega was notable. For although Captain Rivera was named chief explorer, the sergeant never left off serving in the same office; and especially when they went out in various directions to look for the harbor, it was he who penetrated farthest in the examination of the estuaries of San Francisco, looking for a passage to the other shore, which was not found.

"After the expedition had returned to San Diego and the governor had been informed of what had happened to us on the day of the Assumption of Our Lady, when the heathen had killed one of our people, wounded others, and tried to kill us all, and it became necessary to return to Monterey, as was done after the arrival of the bark, and it seemed to him that a person of complete confidence was required to command the guard that was to remain at that mission, he designated Sergeant Ortega for the place.

"When I went to Monterey, suffering the pain of leaving the two fathers among so many perils and equally great privations, the chief consolation that I had in regard to the first was that the sergeant was staying with them, and in fact my confidence was not violated. After the expedition was concluded they transferred him to [Lower] California. There the governor has employed him in journeys to Sinaloa for provisions, and in going back and forth to San Diego to look for and mark sites for the five missions which are to be placed in the intervening country. While he was performing that duty, climbing mountains and following ravines, he discovered, besides the principal object, a road from Vellicata to San Diego by which about fifty leagues are saved, and in future the distance will be shortened still more.

"This is a brief resume of the services of the person whom I propose to your Excellency. And as to his qualifications for the office, I will say that in commanding the soldiers, as far as I have seen, he is firm without anger, prudent and judicious. I believe that they will love him without ceasing to fear him, and that they will fear him enough without ceasing to love him. And since in all the duties that he has performed and that I have related he has conducted himself with honor, I expect that he will do the same in others that may be entrusted to him. Because in his youth he was employed in the city of Zelaya, his native town, in the management of warehouses and stores, he is acquainted with this business and is expert at it. He has a good pen, and so I am confident that the warehouse will be well managed; and because he has a God-fearing conscience the accounts will be correct.

"Don Pedro Fages entered the office which he has today with only the title of lieutenant, and with the same title this worthy person might enter the office, if it seems well to your Excellency, and if not you will determine, as always, the best course."

THE NEW YEAR

(HORATIO NELSON POWERS.)

A flower unknown; a book unread;
A tree with fruit unharvested;
A path untrod; a house whose rooms
Lack yet the heart's divine perfumes;
A landscape whose wide border lies
In silent shade, 'neath silent skies;
A wondrous fountain yet unsealed;
A casket with its gifts concealed—
This is the year that for you waits
Beyond Tomorrow's mystic gates.
Oh, may this flower unfold to you
Visions of beauty sweet and new;
This book on golden pages trace
Your sacred joys and deeds of grace.
May all the fruits of this strange tree
Luscious and rosy-tinted be;
This path through fields of knowledge go;
This house with love's consent o'erflow;
This landscape glitter with the dew
Of blessed hopes and friendships true;
This fountain's living crystal cheer,
As fail the springs that once were dear;
This casket with such gems be stored
As shine in lives that love the Lord.

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

NEW YEAR'S DAY 1876, COMING ON Saturday, was more convivially observed than for some time, as the celebrants had the day following to "think it over." With noise, fun and frolic in all the cities and larger towns of California, the old year was bid farewell to and the new year welcomed. No tragedies occurred to mar the propitious time.

A heavy rain put dampness, to some extent, on the festivities. While about eleven inches of rain had already fallen, the wet month was welcome because the state had experienced the difficulties of a dry one. A succession of storms brought the rainfall at the end of the month up to eighteen inches, and every part of the state was soaked. A storm set in January 20 that was one of the worst the state had ever experienced. On the 22nd a cold gale fiercely prevailed, compelling the abandonment of church services in many towns. Although there were high waters all over the state, no damage resulted from floods.

Mrs. Alvinza Hayward obtained a divorce and settlement in San Francisco from her millionaire mining husband. The settlement was said to amount to $3,000,000.

The bank of Temple & Workman in Los Angeles failed January 13. Great excitement resulted, as it was the principal bank in Southern California.

The Nevada County narrow-gauge railroad was completed to Grass Valley, January 17. Nearly the whole town assembled at the depot to welcome the first engine.

The third annual bal masque of the Eureka Social Club of Sacramento January 30 was a brilliant success. At least 600 maskers were on the floor.

The records of the Oroville, Butte County, Wells-Fargo office showed that during 1875 gold-dust to the amount of $978,903 had been shipped through that agency. During the preceding three years the shipments amounted to $3,674,990.

Adam Jackson, prospecting three miles from San Andreas, Calaveras County, struck a vein of decomposed quartz that was yielding three ounces of gold, or about $50, to the pan.

LEGISLATOR ATTACKS REPORTER.

Six miles from Ventura a large ledge of natural soap was discovered. It made a fine lather for shaving and other purposes.

A. M. Fryer had invented a process for the reduction of refractory ores. He made a success of it at Grass Valley, Nevada County, and became noted. Mining men and capitalists so besieged him in San Francisco, he had to leave that city. The invention was considered a money-maker.

Henry de Groat reported having found in Fresno County rocks, several acres in extent, with inscriptions carved upon them. The carving had been done by a prehistoric race.

John Muir, the eminent scientist, was lecturing on "Glaciers of California." He declared that the Yosemite Valley was the result of glacial action, and said the largest glacier in the state, on Mount Whitney, moved an inch a day.

The State Legislature convened at Sacramento after the holiday recess January 3. The session was enlivened the 15th by Assemblyman J. W. Wilcox, popularly known as the "Mariposa Blacksmith," arising to a question of privilege and denouncing a reporter of the "San Francisco Chronicle." He announced his intention, if there was another attack, of taking the offending reporter by his neck and the seat of his breeches and throwing him out of a window. The "Chronicle" of the 18th had a facetious article and commented on Wilcox's bravery. Wilcox went to the senate chamber and there assaulted the reporter, Fred Somers, with a heavy cane, breaking it over his head. Both then drew guns, when Senators Farley and McCarthy jumped in and stopped further hostilities. Wilcox was arrested and let out on bail, while Somers was in bed suffering from his injuries, at the end of the month.

James Anthony, one of the former publishers of the "Sacramento Union," died in the Capital City January 4. He came to California on the ship "Humboldt" in 1849, along with C. P. Huntington and other notable Pioneers.

A revolution reported in progress in Lower California caused a company of United States soldiers to be sent from San Francisco to San Diego.

A footrace at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles, for $1,000, between Adolfo Colis and John Westley, was a big event. Westley won, running the 100 yards in ten seconds.

JOKE VICTIM "LICKS" CROWD.

A woman came forward this month with a cure for baldness. It required the hair-seeker to wash his head in a decoction of black tea into which should be poured an ounce of tincture of cantharides.

Under the new code of California a man and a woman living together as man and wife for a certain number of years were to be considered legally married. The declaration created quite a stir.

The passenger and freight depots at Hollister, San Benito County, were burned January 6, with a $15,000 loss.

A Chinese riot in Watsonville, Santa Cruz County, that started January 30 over a Chinese new year game, resulted in the decapitation of one Chinaman; six others were badly injured.

John Ragan was killed by Frank E. Selby at Marysville, Yuba County, January 16, as the result of a quarrel over a card game.

At Weaverville, Trinity County, a party of youths took a young Irishman out snipe hunting. About a mile from town he was left, with a piece of burning candle, to hold a gunnysack while the youths retired to drive in the snipe. Waiting nearly three hours and no snipe appearing, he returned to town and, finding he was the victim of a popular joke, licked the whole crowd.

A miner named Kidder, whose sluice-boxes at Iowa Hill, Placer County, had been robbed several times at night, employed a watchman. Going to his claim at 2 a. m. of January 17 to see if the watchman was on duty, he was shot and killed.

In a fire which started in the kitchen of Edward Varey's Oakland home January 15 an infant, fastened in a high-chair, was burned to death.

E. W. Smith, a Dutch Flat, Placer County, miner, was blown up and killed January 15 while tamping a blast.

Joseph Ellis, a 16-year-old Sonoma County lad, was killed by the accidental discharge of his rifle January 8.

In a controversy January 13 over road repairs at Glenwood Park, near Grass Valley, Nevada County, Peter Innert was shot dead by Andrew Fryer.

The agent of a San Jose tombstone manufacturer, in search of orders, was informed by a friend that a certain woman had lately lost her husband. Hastening to the residence, he was informed that the husband had lately eloped and that she would gladly purchase a tombstone when he was buried.

ROBBER OVERLOOKS SAFE.

January 24, in one section of Sacramento, the Scottish residents celebrated the birthday of Robert Burns with song and dance, while in another the Chinese ushered in their new year with a salvo of firecrackers.

January 10 a masked man held up the Amador County stage from Fiddletown (now Oleta) to Latrobe, near Plymouth. He got the portable express-box, but overlooked, or was unawares of, the iron safe attached to the stage-bed. The latter contained several thousand dollars, while he got less than a hundred.

The El Dorado County stage from Placerville to Georgetown received the attention January 17 of two highwaymen who got about $100. James Smith and George Wilkins, ex-convicts, were arrested at Folsom, Sacramento County, for the robbery.

January 31 an attempt to hold up the stage from Jackson, Amador County, was made west of Drytown by two masked men. Tom Magee, the express messenger, responded with a shot from his sawed-off shotgun and a passenger began using a pistol. This caused the horses to go on a run, and no stop was made.

An 18-year-old boy, accompanied by a Negro valet and an enamorita of the underworld, was taken off an East-bound train at Sacramento January 12 and returned to San Francisco. He had robbed his father there of $3,000 and started East.

A Napa County woman, whose husband had prospered since early days and was dealing quite extensively in real estate, was now required to affix her signature to a deed. She had always signed her name with an "X". An explanation being required, she stated that "since the time she had broken her collarbone she was unable to write her name."

All Records Broken—Carload shipments of commodities from California broke all records during 1925. Approximately 1,500,000 carloads were sent out of the state from January 1 to December 1.

WHO WAS CABRILLO?

Winifred Davidson

"Unbroken stillness where our canyons wind—
Before vast Spanish herds came here to browse;
Before these hills made wander-ways for cows—
A breathlessness; while putting Time behind
Throughout that long old waiting and a kind
Of awful spell among the rigid boughs,
Where ancient oaks from dreams could not arouse,
Our Loma lay unnamed. Years, years declined."

"Who heard the ringing of Cabrillo's bells
Where naught but lonely breezes breathed before?
Who saw the magic lifting, quickened swells?
Three frightened wild men leaped along this shore—
The first to greet those stately caravels,
'Victoria' and high 'San Salvador'."
—"Point Loma Sonnets."

For this interesting story, written by Winifred Davidson, The Grizzly Bear is indebted to San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.S.G.W., which is furthering a movement to erect on Point Loma a suitable monument to commemorate the discovery of San Diego Bay and California by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo.—Editor.

LOMA, "THE HILL", AS THE OLDER settlers named it, is today a promontory. It is the index finger of a large hand that is the City of San Diego, a slender and tapering pointer to the south.

For ages, Point Loma was an island, cut off from the mainland by the San Diego River which mingled with the bay at high tide and spread over an area of about four square miles. In the seventies, after many disappointments and mislaid plans, the San Diego River was finally turned into the False Bay and Point Loma has since then assumed the aspect of a promontory. Mariners the world around know it for the southwesternmost point of land in the United States, marked unmistakably by the vast bed of kelp that in earlier times crept to the very face of the precipitous cliff.

The sky was probably cloudless that afternoon of September 28, 1542, when the Portuguese gentleman, Estevan (called also Juan) Rodriguez Cabrillo, commanding two light, round, old-fashioned, galley-rigged ships, made first Table Mountain, then Coronado Islands, finally reaching this headland now called Point Loma, the "hill point."

What he saw was an island, officially described some years ago as "the termination of a remarkable spur of coarse, crumbling sandstone, which rises south of Puerto Falso and west of the old town of San Diego to the height of three hundred feet and after stretching south for about five and a half miles, gradually increasing in height to 457 feet, terminates very abruptly."

Looking out from Roseville heights along the harbor entrance almost any blue afternoon of the year, one can fancy that old picture: the two top-heavy caravels, so small that one wonders how even the bravest of seamen dared in them to venture out of sight of land, awkward and unseaworthy as they were—gallant and proudly sailing none the less!—slowly rise out of the ocean on this side of the nearest of the Coronados.

Of these ships Professor George Davidson in his "Spanish Explorations," says: "They were poorly built and very badly outfitted. Their anchors and ironwork were carried by men from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific; they were manned by conscripts and natives; were badly provisioned, and the crews subject to that deadly scourge of the sea, scurvy." But these small boats were the largest of Alvarado's exploring fleet, of which they formed a part!

On they crept, league upon league; over the kelp bed; over Gammon Shoal; into Middle Ground; past "Cobblestone Point," or "Guijarros," as our Ballast Point was long known; and thence around into La Playa, there clumsily to cast those clumsy anchors. "It is the eve of San Miguel," said the pious Cabrillo, as they gathered ceremoniously on the level beach. "To the bay beyond I give the name of the great archangel." (Note: Vizcaino in 1602 gave it the name San Diego).

In 1542! We must remember that it was here on Point Loma where our feet know familiar ways that the feet of White men first trod; that here, in the name of his august majesty, Charles of Castile and Aragon, brave Cabrillo, nearly four hundred years ago, took possession of earth that we can today lift and hold in our hands.

Who was Cabrillo? Of his birth somewhere in Portugal no entry has come to light. He appears in Spanish history as a navigator whom Alvarado had employed to aid in explorations to the west. It is told that he arrived in Mexico about the time that his employer was killed by a native. There he was placed in command of the northern party of exploration, his appointment being confirmed by the viceroy, Mendoza.

Cabrillo sailed out of Navidad accompanied by Bartolome Ferrelo, as pilot, on June 27, 1542; and that summer and fall of 1542 was, as far as the modern world knows, his whole career. Coasting from place to place, anchoring at night and sailing by day, he came in October to the Island of San Miguel in the channel of Santa Barbara, there fell and broke his arm; and there returned to die, January 3 of the next year.

The log of Cabrillo reveals his character; and it is pleasant to find recorded of him none but noble deeds. A map that he made was published in Spain in 1770; and in an old Spanish book, printed in Madrid, there is his own account of his travels. In it he speaks of the signal fires on these hills of Point Loma.

Soon after coming in sight of a prominence, a slender thread of smoke ascended and they in the ships knew that Indians over here were watching and reporting to other watchers on other hills; a marvel—two great gray-white birds were moving northward over the waters!

Cabrillo's treatment of the Indians was generous. He wrote that on the night of that first day here, his men came ashore, meeting three people to whom they gave presents. Certainly that should mean something to our imagination. The scene is at old La Playa on Point Loma. Three Indians tarry while their more timorous brethren flee. Can you not fancy the pantomime, the lively gesturing, the friendly smiles, the mute interchange of news?

It was that night that Cabrillo learned that he natives knew of Coronado's wanderings in ne interior.

"Next day, in the morning," his old diary goes n, "they went with the boat farther into port, hich is large, and brought two boys who unerstood nothing by signs. They gave shirts to oth and sent them away immediately."

Two stupid boys they must have been—and ightened, no doubt, out of what wits they had ome into the world with. Unclothed, and took ack to their astonished people two nice new hirts their first and only we may say.

This incident should be as much a part of the istory of the United States and as familiar to ll American children as that story of Massasoit's orn kernels. It is one of our beginnings; auhentic; and there is a touch of nobility in it, oo; for, though on the night of that first day ur Loma Indians fetched arrows and shot, rounding three of the ships' men, Cabrillo's enry here was in peace. The Guacamal, as the atives called the visitors, came not to conquer, or seeking gold; but bearing gifts and speakng in kindly tones came to see and to learn.

The "Victoria" and "San Salvador" remained afely anchored within the bay for six days; hough during that time their first storm, a eavy gale from the southwest, raged outside.

When all was calm they sailed northward; and ien once again for another sixty years, while he little boys with the new shirts had time in hich to grow to be aged men, this stretch of and— an island sometimes, if San Diego River appened to be flowing across Dutch Flats, a eninsula when the river went out to sea on the ther side—returned to its primeval silence.

A CLOSE-UP OF THE GOLD DISCOVERER JAMES W. MARSHALL

COLUSA (COLUSA COUNTY)—A "close-up" of James W. Marshall, discoverer of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County, was given the members of Fred H. Greely Assembly No. 6 Past Presidents' Association of Native Sons of the Golden West at the meeting of that organization December 21 by Robert P. Dixon, past president of Silver Star Parlor No. 63 N.S.G.W. of Lincoln, Placer County. He explained that his close contact with James W. Marshall came through his employment, when a boy away back in 1879, by James Smith, a retired miner, who had succeeded by purchase from a man named A. C. Frink, his first boss, to the tract of land then known as Long Garden Ranch, located about four miles from Coloma, the spot where Marshall discovered gold.

"Smith was an old bachelor who had made his fortune around Coloma," said Dixon. "He was in need of a choreboy and I was engaged at a monthly salary $2 in excess of what I was receiving from Frink. After a few lonesome Sundays spent in his new location Smith pined for his old friends at Coloma, so decided to spend a day there. To my delight, I learned that I was to go along. As I had never visited in Coloma, I hailed the opportunity with delight.

"Passing through Michigan Flat, where Smith had owned a good claim, we went on to Lotus, then called Uniontown, and then to Coloma, where I heard the true story of the discovery of gold in California and came face to face with Marshall, who later became a customer of mine through my connection with a butcher's delivery wagon.

"It was on the Othick place, across the river from Coloma, on a vineyard formerly owned by Marshall, that I first met this historic character. Othick was a married man with a family of three girls and a boy. While we were enjoying a glass of wine, who should call at the Othick home but Marshall. 'Hello, Jim,' was the way Smith greeted him. Then, from Marshall's own lips, I was given the story of the gold discovery at Coloma. Smith had already pointed out the spot where the old mill stood.

"I confess that I was somewhat disappointed at the sight of Marshall, having pictured him as of different appearance. I compared him unfavorably with some of the old mining characters at Pilot Hill, where I was reared. I thought we could produce a hero more typical of those days. Marshall was of the long, lanky, ordinary type, and a lover of tobacco, proof of which was to be seen in almost every line of his face; it was all over his physiognomy.

"On leaving Long Garden Ranch in 1880, I went to Greenwood to live, and there entered the employ of James Dobbas, to learn the butcher business. Among my duties was to drive to Kelsey three times a week with beef, and there I again met Marshall, working at mining in a claim that made history. He became a regular customer of mine. Friday was his day for a soupbone, which he got for the asking. I had not the heart to take his money. He had come to be regarded by me as a hero. He craved the soupbone on Friday or Saturday, for the reason that he would have Sunday to make 'a good pot of soup.' I recall the time when Marshall received money from the state. There were not a few who waited to get that money before he had a chance to see it himself. In fact, that was the reason the state discontinued the donation; the money was doing Marshall no good."

Dixon said Marshall was spied on and watched to see where he got his gold. Marshall also had his eye open, and often was amused at the antics of the Easterners who came to California to get rich quick and return home. He used to tell of one fellow who came prepared to get gold easy. This man brought with him a shovel drilled full of holes in the blade. Armed with the shovel, the newcomer thought he could go to the river, strain the water with his shovel and have gold left. He would direct those who doubted this story to Jimmie Kanes, a neighbor who fell heir to the shovel.

Dixon recalled an invitation extended to Marshall in 1884 by the Legislature, which body wanted him to take part in the Admission Day celebration. He was to be the guest of the state with all his expenses paid. Gallant and chivalrous, Marshall agreed to go, but first he must have assurance that he be accompanied by two of El Dorado's Native Daughters, with their expenses also paid. The state consenting, Marshall chose Miss Margaret Kelly and Miss Polly Seisnop, both of Kelsey. It was a big day in Greenwood when Marshall and his girls arrived there to take the stage to Auburn. Everyone turned out to greet the trio. "If it had not been for the influence which his girl friends held over him, Marshall would not have reached Sacramento for the parade. They exerted that power on the trip to Sacramento, but on the way home they lost out," Dixon said.

When the stage arrived at Greenwood on the homeward trip the girls went on to their homes, but Marshall, arrayed in a long Prince Albert coat and the other habiliments of stylish gentlemen in those days, stayed over two days. It was his time to celebrate, and he gave the boys a "hot time in the old town" that night. He would have stayed longer, but a friend, John Smith, induced him to go with him to Garden Valley, where he met the Placerville stage. The Margaret Kelly who was Marshall's companion on the visit to the Capital still is a resident of El Dorado County, in charge of the old cabin and blacksmith shop so closely related to Marshall's history, relics of bygone days. "Marshall was all that we are told of of the Argonauts of California,—ever ready to share with friend or stranger. I have heard him tell of his ups and downs," said Dixon. "Of the gold he found, and how it always got away from him, is the same old story told by the majority of the Pioneers."

ARCHITECTURE
ART AND LORE OF THE MISSION CHURCHES
Dr. Owen C. Coy

SO MANY ARE THE BOOKS THAT HAVE been written on the subject of the old Spanish missions of California that those familiar with the field look with justified suspicion upon any new publication on this subject until they can be satisfied that the author has made a real contribution. Rexford Newcomb, however, is not new among the authors in this field, although this is by far the most pretentious of his publications. Articles in architectural periodicals have appeared over his name and many may know of his "Franciscan Mission Architecture."

Although the author is now associated with the school of architecture of an Eastern university, he is not a foreigner to things Californian. Some years ago, while a teacher in one of the high-schools of Southern California, he became interested in the subject of mission architecture and developed the theme in a thesis in the seminar in California history at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles. This led to further research until, after six years of field work among the old missions and Spanish houses of California and more than a dozen years in general study of the subject, he has prepared a work of more than ordinary value.

The presentation of the subject matter, quite naturally, is from the standpoint of the architect, and the author disclaims any great historical contribution. In spite of this, however, it must be said that his collection and presentation of historical material has been carefully done, and when he has drawn upon the research of historical scholars he has shown commendable familiarity with the latest and best in that field. This is, without doubt, due to the fact that he had developed a power of discrimination through his own work in the leading libraries in California and the Southwest and his travels in Spain and elsewhere.

The volume is divided into three parts, each with its own half-title. The first part, "Environmental Backgrounds," takes up in six chapters the geographical and historical background of Spanish California together with the rise and development of the mission system. In chapter five the author gives a very excellent treatment of mission life as it was in California.

The second part contains the author's chief contribution. To this section, entitled "The Old Missions," he devotes nineteen chapters, or about two-thirds of the volume. The first two chapters in this part consider the architecture of the missions in general under the headings "Materials and Construction" (chapter VII) and "The Development of Mission Architecture" (chapter VIII). The writer feels that in these two chapters the author has made a very excellent contribution to the subject of the California missions.

Although much of this has appeared in the author's earlier writings, he has here presented it in a more complete and finished form. Attempts have been made by many others to handle this interesting subject, but unfortunately these were too often people who knew but little about architectural development or, being architects, had but little understanding of historical perspective. A third class, even more common, have been those who, possessing a facile pen, have not deemed it necessary to know either history or architecture. It is regretable that so much of our so-called mission restoration has been done by people not qualified to consider both the historical and the architectural values of these old structures.

The subsequent chapters in this part of the volume are given over to a more detailed study of each of the missions. To the more important ones, a full chapter is given, some of the lesser ones are grouped together in a single chapter. For the purposes of his study the author has included among the mission churches the church of Our Lady of the Angels, Los Angeles, and San Carlos church in Monterey. In the preparation of these chapters he has drawn upon the published monographs of Father Zephyrin Engelhardt for the southern missions, upon the report of the California Historical Survey Commission for San Carlos (Carmel) Mission, and upon other historical works. His own familiarity with the missions themselves is, however, apparent throughout all of his work, as shown by the many measured drawings, ground-plans and halftone illustrations prepared by him.

The last five chapters make up the third part of the volume, entitled "The Historic Houses." One chapter is devoted to the Estudillo house in Old Town, San Diego; one chapter each to the old Spanish houses of Santa Barbara and Monterey; while another is given over to the consideration of buildings of the Camulos rancho, the home place of the "Ramona" of literary fame. The concluding chapter takes up the topic of "Modern Hispanic Architecture."

In a work of this character it is but natural that there should be a few cases of errors that have escaped the scrutiny of the editor and proofreader. Attention is called to the following unimportant instances: Juan de Fuca (p. 5) and de Croix (p. 67) should be spelled with a small "d"; Tehachepi (p. 8) is given for Tehachapi; Filipe for Felipe (p. 67); and the name Crespi should have the accent. These points, at most, are unimportant and in no manner detract from the real value of the work.

For more than a dozen years the reviewer has devoted his time almost exclusively to the field of California history and has given a considerable portion of this time to a study of the old missions. A new book in this field is, therefore, to him a thing of great interest. Far too many mission books are unworthy of a place upon library shelves, because they contribute absolutely nothing of value to the subject. He is, however, glad to discover that this volume is not among this class. Newcomb has done a great service to all interested in the old missions of California. In this work he has summarized in a careful manner the results of the latest and best historical research and in addition has brought to the subject the keen and sympathetic mind of the trained architect. It is a welcome contribution to the field of California mission literature.

A BIT O' FARMING

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING WILL SUCCEED

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING OF FARM products did not begin in California, but the movement has reached the height of its efficiency in this state. Most of the fruits, both deciduous and citrus, move to markets through co-operative channels, and other products as well are sold through organizations owned and operated by producers. The co-operative movement, generally speaking, has been successful and the trend of agriculture today is in the direction of co-operative selling.

However, in thinking of co-operative marketing, it must not be presumed that all the team work among farmers leading to the disposal of their crops, is among those of California. There are perhaps fifty co-operative marketing organizations in California, not counting the various local branches of the statewide concerns. There are more than 1,200 active co-operative associations in the United States, with a membership of more than 2,000,000 farmers and doing an annual business of two and a quarter billion dollars. This represents nearly one-fourth of the total value of farm products marketed in the nation. Seventy percent of these associations are in the North Central states, six percent are in the Pacific Coast states. The increase in the number of these associations in the last ten years has been about 200 percent, with a membership gain of 300 percent and a business increase of about 200 percent.

When co-operative marketing is run as a business and on business principles, it can, and will, succeed. Farmers, generally speaking, are not business men. They are producers. Recognizing this, they are turning generally to the employment of men trained in selling methods and executive management, to direct their operations. Such associations as have done this have been notably successful. From the Scandinavian countries comes the confirmation of the soundness of this theory. There they insist on paying high salaries to their executives, not overlooking the making sure, however, that the men so paid are worthy of the pay.

Co-operative organizations must succeed on sound business principles. They cannot hope to set prices, the law of supply and demand always will do that. They cannot hope to operate more cheaply than private concerns. But they can, if wisely managed, promote sales by advertising, get the last penny for their products to which they are entitled, and while they cannot expect to eliminate the middleman, they can watch sales channels and see that the margin between the producer and the consumer is narrowed as much as possible.

PRUNE SOON.

Fruit trees must be pruned soon, if the work already has not been done. Whether it be the one much watched and much loved tree of the backyard or the many comprising the large orchard, care must be taken to see that some of the last season's growth is removed, and that the tree is put into the best condition for the coming season. Just how to prune is a question much discussed and not settled. However, it is safe to recommend that the tree be pruned so that sunlight may get into its center and make the producing area cover the entire limb area rather than the outside shell. It is also sound advice to recommend that a limb should never be "stubbed," but always cut to a lateral or at least a bud, that the cuts be made close to such lateral limbs or buds, so that they will heal over and not leave an end to rot and afford an entry to fungus diseases. How much the tree should be cut back depends upon the tree's wood growth. If it has made little growth, little cutting will be required. In other words, the tree or trees must be watched and the production recorded, so that it may be definitely known to just what treatment the best response is received. In most cases, trees have been pruned too much to get the best results.

TIME FOR MODERATION.

Is California over-developed from an irrigation point of view? Perhaps not, replies Professor C. H. West of the College of Agriculture of the University of California, but there is a time for moderation. At present, the proportion of irrigated lands to the irrigable lands is the best California has known in many years. Development of new projects has been slow in the last five years, attention being mostly devoted to the improvement of the irrigation projects already under way. There is room for more irrigated farming in California, but as in many other agricultural lines, moderation always must be advised.

SMALL FARMS.

In this connection, many farmers have found they have increased their profits by cutting down the size of their farms. It does not require very much fertile soil in California, properly farmed, to yield a fair profit, to lead to independence at the time independence should be reached. On the other hand, it does not require so very many acres, improperly farmed, to bring about bankruptcy.

H. C. Carr of Porterville, formerly president of the California State Bankers' Association and one of the financiers of the state closely in touch with agriculture, gives this sage and sound maxim: The shadow of the farmer on the soil is the best farming practice. In other words, the farm should be small enough that the farmer may know every bit of his land, every one of his trees and superintend personally every bit of the work. Better yet it is, if he can do most of this work.

POULTRY PROFITABLE.

With the rapid increase of the poultry industry in California, a knowledge of the most common and most destructive poultry diseases has been accompanied by their control, if not cure. Coccidiosis, perhaps the worst in California, can be handled satisfactorily by the use of skim milk, whether sweet or sour, or dried. Chicken pox is controlled by vaccination, and progress is being made in further research on this disease. The common round worm, the best known poultry pest in the United States and common in California, is easily cared for now. Nicotine, administered in a capsule after being mixed with a reagent, is cheap and effective. The poultryman has but to be sure of his breeding, to see that his houses are warm and well ventilated, watch his feeding, keep the yards and houses clean, and success is quite certain. Hardly a farmer in the state but who is interested in poultry, many of the residents of towns and cities are, and more would be if they knew how to control or combat disease. That poultry is profitable is shown from a report in San Joaquin County, where forty farm flocks, not commercial poultry enterprises, averaged a profit of $1.10 a hen a year.

PLANTING TIME.

Planting of trees and vines for the season is under way. Early planting is at all times to be recommended. As soon as the trees can be put into the ground, the better. They will make a more vigorous growth if given a chance to get settled and ready for the spring and summer by being planted early in the winter. Fortunately, the state is well protected now against the introduction of tree pests and diseases, through the inspection of the county horticultural commissioners. If by any chance, however, trees should be delivered uninspected, the buyer should see to it, for his protection and that of his neighbors, that they are examined before planting.

RABBIT INDUSTRY.

An industry that has been making its way unobtrusively into California agriculture, is that of the production of rabbits, both for meat and fur. There has been much discussion as to the merits of the rabbit as a table possibility, and even more as to its value for fur; but while the discussion is going on, the number of rabbits has steadily increased. The facts of the matter are, that rabbits command a good price, dressed, as meat. There is a lot of competition in the fur end of the business, but the production of fur-bearing rabbits, that at the same time dress out well, has been found by many producers quite profitable. No large amount of capital or land is required for the industry, and from the back yards of city homes, as well as from farms operated especially for rabbit production, is coming an increased production that is bringing a constantly increasing price.

TWO METHODS TO INCREASE PROFITS.

There are two methods of increasing profits for the farmer. He may get more for the produce he sells, or he may produce his crops more economically. Either has its possibilities, both should be goals attained in some measure. The farmer can increase his receipts by better quality or more efficient marketing. The first of these two is directly up to him. The efficiency of marketing is a matter to which he can contribute if he gives the subject careful study. He may produce more economically by keeping better stock or growing better trees, there are as many loafer trees in most orchards as there are boarder cows in the dairy herds. Better practices may be employed, increasing the volume of production and hence reducing the relative cost per unit. The case of the farmer has been none too good during the last few years, but after all, the remedy is pretty much in his own hands. Better sires for livestock, better feeding and more adequate housing, will be found profitable. Pulling out of trees that are poor producers, working over of trees that are of varieties not desired by the markets, intelligent pruning, spraying and thinning, all with an eye to quality, can be practiced by most farmers to advantage.

COTTON PRODUCTION SPREADING.

California this year produced 126,000 bales of cotton on 172,000 acres, an average yield of 351 pounds per acre, which is the highest acre-yield of any state in the Union, 62 pounds better than the next nearest. The production of cotton spread this year to the Sacramento Valley, where a considerable acreage was harvested. An unusually cool, late summer and fall retarded maturity, however, and the yield was disappointing in many instances. Cotton, however, has come to stay as a staple crop in California, and affords an annual cash crop that has solved the agricultural problem of rotation in many localities.

SPRAYING ADVICE.

In spraying the hen house to rid it of lice and mites, care must be taken to see that the work is done in such a manner that no trace of the odors of the sprays will taint the eggs. Spraying in the afternoon, following the laying day, is advisable, with a thorough airing of the house. Eggs absorb the odor and flavor of disinfectant sprays, and their marketability often is ruined in this way.

STATE MILK QUALITY HIGHEST.

California now has the highest milk quality in the world, since the bureau of Dairy Industry of the State Department of Agriculture has been organized and put into working order. More than eighty cities of the state now are being supplied with milk produced under the supervision of the agencies authorized to handle the work. More than 85 percent of this milk will score close to 95 percent in general quality.

SHEEP OF ADVANTAGE.

Sheep on the farm, it has been pointed out many times, are valuable as a by-crop if not as one of the main branches of agriculture undertaken. Right now, sheep can be used to a great advantage in cleaning up weeds and grass that afford a shelter to insect pests that need such protection for the winter. The grape leaf hopper, for instance, has been controlled in some districts through the use of sheep by the vineyardists. Ditches can be cleaned, roadsides kept neat and a good profit returned on the operation.

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

FROM A START INITIATED IN 1922, and which was believed to have reached its zenith in 1923 and 1924, Hollywood has maintained a pace of progress throughout the year 1925, and bids fair to far outdistance the records made in those two momentous periods. In every department, according to statistics carefully compiled by the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, an increase in business is shown. This increase is revealed in the value of buildings proposed under the construction permits issued, clearing-house records, postal receipts, bank deposits, school enrollments, telephone and other utility installations, and in every other department of community life.

As an example of this progressive increase, the value of structures for which permits were issued up to December 1 was more than two million dollars in excess of the entire year 1924. The total up to the last day of November was $17,268,876, as against $15,150,437 for the entire year of 1924.

Bank deposits, which up to August 1, 1924, were approximately $33,000,000, on the same date this year were estimated at $38,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000.

Bank clearings for 1925 up to the close of November were $291,473,000 as against $291,-186,000 in 1924. The December clearings in 1924 were $27,954,000, bringing the year's total to $319,140,000. Carried on by the sweeping impetus of a tremendous local Christmas shopping movement, clearings for the month of December, according to R. B. Odell, should reach considerably over thirty millions. Odell's estimate is that the total clearings for 1925 will reach $322,000,000 at least, showing a substantial increase for the year.

Notable along the line of advancement is found the encouraging increase in enrollments for the sixteen public-schools in Hollywood. At the close of the school year 1924-25 the enrollment in grade- and high-schools reached 12,-694, with 495 teachers. On October 1, according to figures issued from the office of the city superintendent of schools, the enrollment for the same schools was 13,530, with 517 teachers. This is an increase of approximately 1,000 pupils. Another notable increase in the educational department is shown by the enrollment at the University of California, Southern Branch, in Hollywood. In 1924 this enrollment was 5,017, with 234 educators employed; on October 2 of this year the enrollment was 5,721, an addition of more than 700. The increase of teachers was about twenty.

While total figures for Hollywood postoffice receipts this year are not available, substantial increase of business in that department is indicated in a comparative statement issued by Postmaster P. P. O'Brien for September and October, 1924 and 1925. In the former year the total for those two months was $35,688; the latter, $44,-043.49. This reveals an increase of $8,355.49 for the two months involved.

SPLENDID YEAR ANTICIPATED.

With these established marks to shoot at, it would appear that the year 1926 has a singularly difficult job marked out for it if continuous increase of business in Hollywood is to be maintained. However, indications are definite that the wave of prosperity started in 1922 will continue unabated throughout the coming year. This anticipated situation is particularly marked in building plans for Hollywood, plans that presuppose the erection of many limit-height buildings before the close of 1926. Theatres, commercial blocks, huge apartment houses, limit-height modern hotels, churches and similar structures are in the plans.

In fact, these plans have progressed so far as to almost preclude the possibility of failure for any of the projects. Already building proposals contemplate a program of not less than $20,-000,000 in expenditure. These structures are not proposed for any particular district, but are pretty well scattered over much of the twenty-five square miles inside the boundaries of the motion-picture capital.

Several buildings valued at from a million dollars to five million dollars are slated for erection this year. The Royal Palms hotel and apartments, to be erected on a site at Sunset boulevard between Olive drive and Fountain avenue, and the Roosevelt hotel, to be erected on Hollywood boulevard and Orange drive, are representative of the buildings planned for 1926 construction.

ing forward to a splendid year in the coming twelve months. About March 1 the chamber will dedicate its new building at 6522 Sunset boulevard and immediately thereafter will occupy this building, which is to be community administration headquarters. Not less than $50,000 will be expended on the building and equipment of this structure, which is designed to be one of the most artistic and attractive of edifices of this character in the southland. One of its features will be a large public auditorium which can be used for entertainments, conventions and similar pursuits.

It is the plan of the executive board of the chamber to install a motion picture apparatus and to present motion-picture studies of Hollywood for the benefit of those tourists who desire to know more of the motion-picture capital, and who cannot spend a great deal of time in making a tour of the community. The pictures will present scenics of Hollywood and also show "The Movies in the Making," the latter presentation being designed to meet the demand for entry into the motion-picture studios and to relieve studio operators of an embarrassing situation caused by continuous application for admission by sightseers.

Hollywood's population now is estimated at a minimum of 130,000. It has grown at a rate of more than 20,000 a year, and can reasonably be expected to reach 150,000 at the close of 1926.

NATIVE DAUGHTER MONUMENT TO BE IN NEW NATIONAL RESERVE.

Alturas (Modoc County)—By executive order of November 30, President Calvin Coolidge created the Lava Bed National Monument, embracing a region, approximately sixty-five miles from this place, containing fantastic examples of Nature's handiwork in lava.

The area included is known as the Modoc lava beds. It was the stronghold of Captain Jack, warring Indian chief, and was the scene of the death of General Canby, killed in Indian fighting. It is located in Modoc and Siskiyou Counties.

Alturas Parlor No. 159 N.D.G.W. has well under way a project for the erection of a monument to the memory of the United States soldiers who lost their lives in this section of California during early-day Indian uprisings. It will be located within the new national reserve.

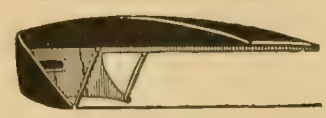
Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. ¶In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.



If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

SAN PEDRO, HUB OF THE SOUTHWEST

Lowell E. Jessen

PROGRESS, IN ITS MODERN MARCH, has wiped out many of the cherished features of a decade ago in San Pedro, and replaced them with commercial enterprises that are the pride of the southland.

Thomas H. Peck, general passenger agent for the Union Pacific, who visited San Pedro in connection with the opening of the new depot on Terminal Island, recalled the days when Los Angeles was a city of 50,000 population and 12,000 of its residents came to the local beach in one day to bask in the sunshine and enjoy the surf.

Those were the days when Redondo and Santa Monica were looked upon as possible centers of shipping, while San Pedro's beach on Terminal Island, the quietest and most pleasing of all in Southern California, was the popular resort. Long Beach was a village.

Judge William H. Savage, one of the older and most prominent attorneys of this city, recalls the days when the Palos Verdes hills were covered with a huge forest, which burned in the latter part of the nineteenth century. The hills have been practically barren since.

The old Drum barracks in Wilmington, located on the street named after them, are still standing. They are remnants of a former day when a contingent of soldiers from the United States army was posted there for protective purposes. Now that protection is afforded the southland by Fort MacArthur, located on one of the most strategic points on the Southern California coast.

Many other points of historical interest could be pointed out, but those are sufficient to remind San Pedrans of today what may be expected of San Pedro in the future. Changing from a resort to the business center shows the divergent possibilities of this city.

Indications point to a continuation of San Pedro as a business center—the hub of the whole southwest. Shipping here is increasing constantly, and the development of the "back country," which is surely though slowly progressing in a satisfactory manner, means more calls at this port by vessels from all corners of the world.

Far-sighted individuals sense this port as the center about which Southern California must develop and point out that San Pedro, now a factor in world shipping, will become the New York of the Pacific. This is all the more evident from the fact that commerce and interest of the world is shifting from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. Just as the Pacific will be the "battle ground" of the future, so will San Pedro be the industrial hub for the greater expansion of commerce on the Pacific.

Real estate values in the harbor district will be doubled within a few years. That is the confident prediction of one of the best-known local realty brokers, and it is the opinion of all who have studied conditions in the port district.

Business property near the waterfront can now be purchased for $300 a front foot, while similar property in inland cities that are without the bright futures San Pedro and Wilmington enjoy is practically double that amount.

worth of property here, have been quietly investing their capital in harbor district real estate during the past year.

Several years ago desirable business lots on Pacific avenue were obtainable for the price of a good residential lot. Now that property is worth around the tens of thousands of dollars instead of a few hundred. This same property will be worth hundreds of thousands instead of tens of thousands within a few more years, and real estate all through the harbor district will be correspondingly higher.

TRIBUTE TO N.S. PRESIDENT.

Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. elected officers for the January-July term December 3, William A. Reuter becoming president. Installation will take place January 7. Several autoloads of the members attended the institution of Glendale No. 264 which now takes Sepulveda's place as the "baby" Parlor—in the foothill city December 16. The Parlor wants the 1927 Grand Parlor to meet in San Pedro, and J. W. Mee heads a committee to get it.

December 17 Sepulveda had the largest attended meeting in its history—and that is saying a whole lot, for the meetings are always well attended and full of "pep." The outpouring was in tribute to President James H. Dodson Jr., soon to relinquish his office, and in appreciation for his services "Jimmy" was presented with a token.

N.D. THIMBLE CLUB BUSY.

Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. met jointly with Los Angeles 124 December 16 for the official visit of Grand President Sue J. Irwin. Sheriff William I. Traeger won the turkey at the November 20 dance and, as per promise, Gertrude Riefe, chairman of the committee, had to deliver it to him at his "hotel." A number of the members of the Parlor attended the institution of Santa Ana Parlor in the Orange County metropolis December 19, and also visited Long Beach 154 December 23.

December 3 the thimble club of Rudecinda had an all-day session at the home of Gertrude Riefe, and an afternoon meeting December 10 at the home of Doral Baly. At the meeting-place in I.O.O.F. Hall, December 14, the club members served all day for the homeless children.

At public ceremonies January 8 the newly-elected officers of Rudecinda, with Charlotte Bennett as president, will be installed by D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas. Following the ceremonies refreshments and a social time will be in order.

PRINCESS POPULAR DRESS OF TODAY

AMERICAN WOMEN, IT HAS BEEN said, are the best shod in all the world. Travel for an hour in any kind of a public conveyance, and learn if this is not true. American shoes are built on both comfortable and artistic lines, and thereby add to the appearance of the foot itself. It is probable that we have never before had such a wide range of smart shoes from which to make selection.

Little feet go twinkling up and down the streets, and whether they are clad for afternoon, evening or street, attractive buckles are imperative. On dress shoes the buckles are oval, round or square, set with glittering brilliants in the form of dainty flowers, ornamented with crystal cabochons, returning, occasionally, to the old-time cut-steel. They set off any foot, foiled by some lovely shade of silken hosiery.

All shoes for formal wear seem to come with a spanish heel and with rounded toe. Combinations of two materials and two colorings are much in evidence for sports and genuine walking.

The stouter the shoe, the better oxford, as a rule. This shoe may be of plain leather or show a combination of leather and colors. Soles are heavy, heels are low and finished with rubber tips. Toes are decidedly rounded, or even better, somewhat square. That shoes cost more than we have been accustomed to paying the last few years, goes without saying, since the degree of workmanship is evident. All in all, shoes have not been so dainty and fascinating for many years, as at the present time.

Was there ever anything so charming in the way of a hand covering as the foolish gloves that women wear today in both fabric and kid? And the prices, in kid, are surprisingly high. In colors, the general preference is for shades of light tans and light grays. This holds good in both fabric and kid. It is hard to separate one from the other, for certain practical women will wear fabric while others insist on some variety of kid.

A strong preference is being evidenced for the variety known as slipon, which come in english suedes, calfskin or doeskin, and are washable. Some elaborate examples of the slipon come in white glace kid with gold embroidery. For conservative women, there are always dark and medium shades, with self or contrasting stitching, and these have one or two clasps.

Spring's fancy breezes in with gay prints and borders and walks hand in hand with delicate colorings and soft outlines. No more exquisite weaves could be wrought for adapting these novel selections than the sheer crepes and chiffons with their light and airy texture. There are also unusual treatments of borders, printed in sheer fabrics and on crepe and soft flat silk.

Borders are to be a vogue in themselves on both narrow and fifty-four-inch fabrics evolved from many sources. We find them on sports, silks and fabrics for evening wear, in combinations of wide and narrow on the same width, one for the skirt and one for a trimming. Others run strikingly up into the dress in wedge-shaped panels, and still others are strung out in wide-flung clusters of figures, glowing in color, resting on pastel grounds.

In bolder, more colorful handlings are the indian designs, wide and narrow. Some of these are raised above the former position of the border near the hem and are placed on the fabric so as to surround the hips. Sheer fabrics are covered with designs that are twined in scrolls that flower against a lacey or outlining ground of spreading color and combination. The question of color in spring fabrics is more delicate than ever, with pastels giving their fragile tone to the situation.

A lower key is taken than last season with a collection of monotones of soft shades. These include as their leaders dainty shades of green, blue, burgundy and also rose and voline, instead of the high vivid tones of last season.

Some scenic treatments are noted in sports prints, with such charming designs as trees and flowers. Checks and stripes are woven into many combinations, forming either all-over effects or borders large and small. Others are two-toned or shaded.

The expression, "one-piece gown," is dropped from the dress vocabulary, and is being superseded by the old term "princess gown." The former expression suggests the tubular dress, which was far too long in vogue. The "princess" far better describes the popular dress of today, which, although it makes a single garment from throat to hem, is put together in many parts.

The jumper frock, in wool, silk and crepe, is suitable for daytime wear. The jumper top has been a prominent feature of winter sports an morning dresses and is now appearing on ever ing gowns. This jumper is slipped on over th head and attached with cords on the sides t make it fit closely over the hips. The skirt, the same material, is finely pleated.

Embroidery still continues to hold high plac in embellishment of all costumes, and developed in beads or silks is equally beautiful. Each material calls for a special treatment. Work is kept quite simple and is used more for a dinner or afternoon gown. The corsage will not be very complicated in style.

All the interest of the frock will be in the skirt, which will be much ruffled, with the flounces or tunics held by a band of more or less fur.

Quite a new effect, used on these frocks of silk or voile, is the bayadere sash—a wide band of goods encircling the waistline and tying in front. This sash gives a great deal of suppleness to the silhouette. Some times the sash is tied on the hip instead of in front and gives an indication of a bustle, which is finding its way into very clever dresses. The streamers extend below the bottom of the skirt.

Another point that deserves attention, is the skirt's length. This is short, but will not stay so much longer. The tendency is toward irregular effects and shorter in back than in front. Even if the bustle is not exaggerated it will remain one of the most striking novelties of the season.

BOOK REVIEWS

(MARGERY BOYD.)

"CALIFORNIA MISSIONS AND LANDMARKS." By Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes; Published by the Author, Los Angeles; Price, $2.50.

The introduction to "California Missions and Landmarks" is so expressive of the character of the book and so splendid a review of it that a few lines are quoted below: "The chain of Franciscan missions, Father Serra's rosary, is an heirloom left to us by Spain. The precious legacy was linked together by a ribbon of a roadway, called El Camino Real. There were twenty-one missions, four presidios, three pueblos and seven hundred miles of roadway. The history and description of these missions, presidios, pueblos, roadway and some of the landmarks, together with certain incidents connected with the discovery of California and a brief summary of later events, is the subject of this book."

No pains have been spared to make "California Missions and Landmarks" historically perfect, even to the minutest detail. The chronicle is traced from the year 1769 to that of 1925, recording the recent earthquake at the Santa Barbara Mission in June. A complete list of the missions, in order of their dedication, together with their founders and the dates of their founding, is another helpful feature of the work.

Mrs. Forbes is peculiarly adapted to write such a book, as a brief summary of her activities shows. She was state chairman of the California history and landmarks department of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. She became a director of El Camino Real Association of California and, with this authority and the assistance of Mrs. C. R. Olney, outlined a plan for a state organization toward the restoration of the mission roads. This organization, later termed El Camino Real Association, Mrs. Forbes became president of. It is to her we owe the beauty and symbolical design of the now-famous mission-bell signposts which are placed along the seven hundred miles of El Camino Real.

"California Missions and Landmarks" is a book which will give the tourist invaluable guidance and aid. More, it is a book which every Californian should take a worthy pride in. It is, indeed, a lasting tribute to the undying faith and valor of the men who gave their lives that Christianity and Civilization might live in California.

"BOOTH AND THE SPIRIT OF LINCOLN." By Bernie Babcock; J. B. Lippincott Company, Publishers, Philadelphia; Price, $2.00.

John Wilkes Booth, what sad romance and mystery shroud that historic name. Rumors have persisted through the years that Booth escaped and was not, as history has it, shot and killed in the old Garrett barn near the Potomac. Using this theme, the escape of John Wilkes Booth, as a keynote, Mrs. Babcock has constructed a realistically convincing novel.

Soldiers surrounded the dingy Garrett barn and commanded Booth to come forth to meet his judgment. From the shadowy interior a voice pleaded, "Captain, give me a chance, there's a mistake." But the barn was set on fire and the prisoner, trapped, started towards the door. A shot rang out, and the man, sup-

WORLD COMES TO PASADENA FOR THE WINTER

(PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

FROM EVERY STATE IN THE UNION and almost every important country on the globe come the winter guests of Pasadena's five internationally-famous resort hotels. A perusal of the registers at these hotels in January is a splendid geography lesson. The name of every state is there, and the names of from two or three to twenty or thirty cities in every state. There are guests from London, from Paris, from Berlin, from Brussels, from Brazil and the Argentine, from Haiti and Java, from virtually all of the world's great metropolitan centers, and from a score of distant places with strange names that one dimly recalls having some time seen in an atlas or a newspaper.

Such a perusal of the hotel registers not only constitutes a liberal education in geography, but it also resembles a reading of "Who's Who" and the international bluebook of smart society. Many of the names of persons are almost as well known as the names of the states or countries from which the guests come.

Pasadena in January and February is a rendezvous for notables and society folk from all over the world. More than a few of the names are readily identified with big achievements in the world of art, of literature, of science, of international diplomacy, of business and of politics. Virtually all of the names are familiar to the reader of the society columns in the daily newspapers.

Pasadena, with its beauty and culture, its marvelous homes and gorgeous gardens, its ideal climate and perfect location, its magnificent hotels and many facilities for recreation, is a logical mecca for cosmopolites and wealthy folk whose playground is the world. In former years, they came the first of January and stayed until the middle of March, but now they are coming earlier and staying longer. While the gathering is still especially large and notable during the winter months, when so much of the world is braving blizzards and thawing frozen fingers, Pasadena is fast becoming known as an all-year resort. Three of the five big hotels—the Maryland, Vista del Arroyo and Green—have been open the year around for several years, while the Huntington, largest of the five, figuratively threw away the keys when it opened on Christmas Eve 1925, and from now on will never be closed.

In keeping with custom and tradition, however, the brilliant formal openings of all five of the hotels occur during or near the holiday season. These functions are scintillating high-lights of the Southern California social season.

The Vista del Arroyo started off this year with its formal opening on December 15. As a part of the lavish program of entertainment, a pantomime was enacted in the huge ballroom, the theme being the banishment of winter by California's magic sun. Symbolic figures representing snow and ice frolicked for a time in a glistening snowstorm to the tinkle of sleighbells. Then came the California sun to rout them, and presently flowers sprang up, filling the air with their fragrance, while the music swung into joyous cadence and the dancing chorus appeared clad for outdoor sports that can be enjoyed only in California when winter holds sway. Brilliant electrical effects and appropriate music added to the effectiveness of the scene. The program included dancing and a cabaret in the dining-room during dinner, and later a concert and dancing in the ballroom.

Openings at the other four hotels are similar in sumptuousness and brilliance. The formal opening of the Raymond occurred on December 26, while the openings of the Maryland, Huntington and Green will be held early in the new year.

The formal openings are merely the forerunners of a continuous round of functions and entertainments held at the Pasadena hotels during the winter season. There are dinner dances, concerts, bridge parties, tennis tournaments, breakfast rides and other affairs galore.

Two of the Pasadena hotels—the Huntington and Vista del Arroyo—are under the management of D. M. Linnard and his associates, who also operate the Fairmont and Whitcomb in San Francisco, the Samarkand and El Encanto in Santa Barbara, the Winthrop at Tacoma and Lake Tahoe Tavern at Lake Tahoe.

The Linnard theory is that a hotel is merely an enlarged home. Providing lodging and meals is only a part of the duty that the host owes to his guests. Therefore, an atmosphere of sociability prevails at the Linnard hotels, and the furnishing of entertainment for the guests is a big part of the service.

As social director of the Huntington and Vista del Arroyo, Miss Marjorie Day is entrusted with the task of providing entertainment for the guests and creating for them a home atmosphere. As a result of her efforts, the two hotels are famous for the diversity and ingenuity of the entertainment they offer, and for the manner in which they cater to the individual hobbies of each guest.

When a guest at one of the Linnard hotels has a birthday, a beautiful bouquet of flowers is delivered to his room with the hotel's card and a birthday greeting. When he goes down to dinner that night, he finds a big birthday cake on the table. Naturally, the guest is pleased, but he wonders how on earth the hotel ever knew it was his birthday. Probably he had forgotten it himself. He doesn't recall a little game that was played in one of the hotel parlors some time ago and which was somehow concerned with birthdays. Miss Day recalls the game, for the arranging of the game is a part of the work she has outlined for herself, and it is only one of many ways in which she contrives to create a home atmosphere at the Linnard hotels.

Catering to the social, cultural and recreational needs of the guests is a major thing at the Linnard hotels. The large staff engaged in the work includes specialists in ballroom dancing, bridge instruction, horseback riding and tennis. Virtually all of the service is free. A new feature introduced at the Huntington and Vista del Arroyo this year is a free circulating library of the latest fiction.

Linnard goes to much effort and expense in order to cultivate community activities that will interest the guests at his hotels. He subscribes liberally to the lecture courses, concerts, pageants and other community efforts, as well as publicizing these activities in his hotels and organizing parties to patronize them.

Situated on a plateau overlooking the orange and lemon groves of the San Gabriel Valley, with the Sierra Madres rising like a sheer wall two miles to the north, the Hotel Huntington is set in the center of a beautiful garden of twenty-one acres. It comprises four hundred guest rooms and sixty rose-embowered villas, the latter scattered throughout the grounds, apart from the hotel proper, but receiving hotel service in all of its many phases. The main buildings are constructed of concrete and steel. In the interior of the hotel are luxurious lobbies and lounges, a huge ballroom, a vast diningroom, children's playrooms, a gymnasium and a host of other provisions for the comfort and convenience of the guests. The grounds include tennis courts and a miniature golf course, while the gardens are filled with gorgeous trees and flowers, with tinkling fountains and trickling streams.

The Vista del Arroyo is set in the midst of twelve acres of gardens overlooking the picturesque Arroyo Seco. Wonderful vistas of the mountains and the Arroyo Seco are had from the hotel, with the beautiful Colorado-street bridge in the foreground. The grounds comprise sunken gardens, spacious lawns, rockeries, flowers in profusion, and trees of many varieties. There are tennis courts and a putting green on the grounds. Bridle trails lead from the grounds into the Arroyo Seco and up through the dry bed of the arroyo into the wooded canyons and recesses of the mountains. Surrounding the central building are many artistic bungalows.

The Vista del Arroyo is open all the year. During the summer months, buffet suppers in the lounge are followed by concerts on the lawn. There is a regular weekly dinner dance.

The Hotel Maryland is situated in the downtown section of Pasadena, within a few minutes' walk of the principal churches, clubs, theatres and shops. Many shopping accommodations are located within the Maryland building.

The front end of the Maryland lobby, 140 feet long, opens onto Pasadena's principal business street, and the other end opens onto a magnificent garden, nearly one thousand feet long, almost a fifth of a mile of beautiful lawns, tropical plants, vines and shrubs, flanked on either side by the Maryland bungalows. Teas, dinners, card parties, dances and other functions are frequent at the Maryland.

The Hotel Raymond is situated in its own private park of seventy-five acres on the crest of a hill between Pasadena and South Pasadena. On the grounds are tennis courts and a golf course, spacious lawns and shaded walks.

Walter Raymond was one of the pioneer discoverers of Southern California as the great winter playground of America. He built his first hotel on the present site of the Raymond in the early eighties, later replacing the original building with the present modern structure.

The hotel has its own playground for children, a big ballroom with stage, and many lounges and lobbies. A subway entrance permits pedestrians to enter the hotel without climbing the hill on which it stands. Countless social activities and entertainments are arranged for the guests at the Raymond.

The Hotel Green, situated in the downtown district of Pasadena, is of Moorish architecture, with wide porches, and is surrounded by velvety lawns. It is open all the year.

NATIVES HAVE DELIGHTFUL GATHERING.

Pasadena Parlor No. 259 N.S.G.W. had a delightful gathering December 3 at the home of President John Breiner on the occasion of the official visit of Grand Third Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi. Secretary Vincent Savory announced that $217 for the homeless children cause was netted from the children's society vaudeville of November 20.

Affairs of the Order in general and the Parlor in particular were discussed. Grand Vice-president Welch gave a most interesting account of his visits to various Parlors and offered suggestions which the Pasadenans received with pleasure. Other speakers, among the visitors, included Past Grand President H. C. Lichtenberger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer and Marshal Walter Slosson of Ramona 109. Refreshments were served.

Early in the new year Pasadena will inaugurate a campaign to increase its membership.. At the institution of Glendale Parlor No. 264 December 16 the Parlor was represented by several members.

LIBERAL POLICIES TOWARD TOURISTS.

California's motor vehicle license fee is the lowest of any state in the union, with the exception of the District of Columbia, according to Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles. The average fee received by the state is $5.30, and that will be further reduced during 1926, when an amendment to the law will become effective permitting owners of commercial vehicles to register on rates based on the remaining number of months of the year the license is to run.

California has one of the most liberal policies toward tourists of any state in the union, permitting them to remain here six months without obtaining a license.

NATIONAL FORESTS THE PEOPLE'S.

The national forests are not "reserves"; they are not "locked up." They belong to the people, and may be used without monopoly or destruction. Selfish interests, seeking to exploit the public wealth for private gain, are curbed, but legitimate use of the national forests is encouraged.

There are eighteen national forests in California, each in charge of a forest supervisor and his staff. The forests are divided into ranger districts, in charge of district forest rangers. The district office for California is in the Ferry Building, San Francisco, and the chief forester for the whole United States is at Washington, D. C. The forest service is a branch of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

1926 License Fees—Except for electric motor vehicles, the 1926 schedules for renewal of California licenses are exactly the same as those employed last year, says the State Division of Motor Vehicles. The ordinary passenger auto will pay a flat fee of $3.

RARE TREASURES OF HISTORY IN THE BANCROFT LIBRARY, BERKELEY.

The history of California is stored away in famous manuscripts, rare books, old letters of the early pioneers and the first newspapers of the state, all of which comprise the unique treasures of Bancroft Library at the University of California, Berkeley. These possessions of the historical library can be found in no other collection in the world, according to J. J. Hill, cataloguer.

Among the treasures of the manuscript room is a case containing thirty-six volumes of letters received by M. G. Vallejo, the last commandant-general of Northern California under the Mexican government, and another case of the letters received by Thomas O. Larkin, the only consul sent by the United States to California during the Mexican period.

Besides these documents of political importance, there are many letters from old Spanish families which give an interesting picture of the social conditions of the pre-pioneer days.

Curious examples of the book-making art may be seen in various of these historical relics. One of these unusual books is a hymn-book which belonged to the padres. The volume is two feet long and a foot and a half wide. It contains the songs which were taught the Indians by the faithful Spanish priests. The music and the words are written on vellum and bound in leather-covered boards more than half an inch thick.

Another valuable possession is the two-volume set of original drawings of the Pacific Coast birds by A. J. Grayson. There is also the collection of tinted hand drawings and etchings of the California missions of the sixties made by Grayson when he paid them a visit.

Of importance to the student of California history are the letters with their original seals sent by Mexican officials to their superiors in Spain, some with dates as early as 1584; a book written by Villagra, who was Onate, the conqueror of Mexico. This book, published in 1610, gives an account of the conquest.

Millions Exempted—Property tax exemptions totaling $68,656,652 for the 1925-26 tax year have been granted 117,114 war veterans by California, according to the State Board of Equalization.

WORLD'S LARGEST AUTO CLUB HAS QUARTER-CENTURY ANNIVERSARY.

The Automobile Club of Southern California, with headquarters in Los Angeles, celebrated the twenty-fifth year of its usefulness to the autoing public December 13. It was launched by forty-six men in 1900, and in membership has grown into the largest club of its kind in the world, numbering more than 110,000. Its president is W. L. Valentine, affiliated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W.

The club, which has thirty branch offices throughout the southern counties, is vitally interested in every question concerning the use and ownership of automobiles, in good roads, in public-safety movements and in all matters either directly or indirectly connected with those matters. It is strictly non-political, and through its notable record of service has become deservedly popular and influential.

A letter from President Valentine, commenting on the club's twenty-fifth anniversary, concludes with: "The Automobile Club of Southern California takes genuine satisfaction in rejoicing over its silver anniversary. Twenty-five years of individual and collective service for its members, for Southern California and for motorists throughout all America is a memorable achievement. The club faces the future in the certainty that a loyal membership and a united directorate and force of employes will enable it to celebrate, in a quarter of a century to come, its golden anniversary in the Golden State of its beginning."

WHITE CERTIFICATE ONLY IS REQUIRED FOR 1926 LICENSE PLATE.

Do not send pink certificate of ownership to the State Division of Motor Vehicles at Sacramento when applying for license plates for 1926. This will not be necessary, as the law has been changed.

To secure new plates take the white certificate of registration from your car and mail it, with a check, money-order or bank draft for the amount of the fee, to Sacramento. The plates will be mailed about January 1. Be sure that name and present address are on the certificate.

Keep the pink certificate in a safe place. It is the title to your car. The state requires it only in case of a transfer.

"A man ought not to be so reticent as to sit like the owl and think and blink his wisdom away in silence."—"Hudson Maxim."

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS STATEHOOD THEME FOR NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.

OROVILLE — AFTER SEVENTY-FIVE years of happiness and prosperity, Uncle Sam and California celebrated their diamond jubilee by a mock wedding under the auspices of Gold of Ophir 190. As the strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March" echoed throughout the hall the wedding bell (Timothy Bell) entered and took his place among the decorations of evergreens and holly. Then came in turn the ushers, Hazel Stover, Irene Lund, Della Helphenstine, Arthur Smith, Corlie Nisbet, Harry Wormley; the bridesmaids, Thelma Huffman, Mary Slissman, Nadine Walker, Lloyd Johnson, Harry Torrey, Ed Nathan, carrying bouquets of fruits and vegetables; the matron of honor, Earl Ward, representing the state's golden wealth; the ring bearer, Fern Damon, carrying golden bands upon a satin pillow; the flower girls, J. Emory Sutherland, Ruth Layton, who made a path of flowers for the bride, California (Florence Boyle), leaning upon the arm of her father (P. J. Binet), followed by Gladys Cress and Frank Boyle, train bearers. They were met at the altar by the groom, Uncle Sam (Whitney Porter), supported by the best man, William Nelson Paxton. Al Blum, in priestly robes, approached the altar. The ceremony was interrupted by the objections of the bride's mother (Bernice Renfrow), on the grounds that Uncle Sam had already been married many times before to Maryland, Georgia, Virginia and many others, but her objections were soon overruled. Uncle Sam then renewed his vow to love and protect California, and the golden bands (given by Sheriff R. N. Anderson) were snapped around the wrists of the bride and the groom. After many hearty congratulations, the bridal party and guests adjourned to the banquet-rooms, where the tables were laden with products of the land in keeping with the Thanksgiving spirit. The bride and groom were then showered with wedding gifts to over 100 in number, in charge of the house detective, John Toland. The bride, deeply affected by the remembrances, called upon her daughters, Butte, Yuba, Plumas, Sutter and Glenn Counties, to distribute them to those assembled. While they were being inspected Pansy Demes and William Gilbert, accompanied by Alta Baldwin, rendered a song composed by Mrs. Alta Hengy. An immense wedding cake, donated by Mrs. Alta Hengy, was then presented to the bride; as Irene Lund found the ring, the members are looking for an announcement in the near future. As a final feature the bride called attention to many of her sons and daughters who had become famous, and called upon the following to explain how they "got that way": Bert Baldwin, Pansy Demes, J. Emory Sutherland, Robert Strang, Mattie Lund, Hattie McCoy, William Paxton. In charge of the evening's entertainment were Florence Boyle, Alta Hengy, Bernice Renfrow, Thelma Huffman, Hazel Stover, while Mmes. Sutherland, Nathan, Hartman, Prince composed the refreshment committee. On behalf of the American Legion, Frank Boyle presented to President Fern Damon of Gold of Ophir and President Gordie Nisbet of Argonaut 8 N.S.G.W. an engraved silver loving cup, the first prize won by the Parlors in the Armistice Day parade. The legion boys were given three rousing cheers.

Officers of the Parlor for the ensuing term, with Mattie R. Lund as president, were elected December 2 and will be installed in January. Several candidates were initiated. Mrs. Lillian King-Graham and Mrs. Vivian Brooks, recent brides of the Parlor, were the recipients of many gifts at showers arranged in their honor, at the homes, respectively, of Katherine Gilmore and Mrs. Frank Boyle. Helen Smith, queen of the recent Oroville Orange and Olive Exposition, is a member of Gold of Ophir.

Order's Progress Told by Grand President.

Daly City—Grand President Sue J. Irwin was extended a most cordial welcome on the occasion of her official visit December 2 to El Carmelo 181. Among those present were Grand Trustees Sallie Thaler and Josephine Johnson, D.D.G.P. Rena Mathias, and Mrs. Margaret Steele, the Parlor's charter president. The initiatory ceremonies were conducted in a very creditable manner for the benefit of a class of candidates by the officers of the Parlor, Annie K. Bauer president.

Miss Irwin's address was instructive and inspiring; she told of the progress being made by the Order and praised the members of El Carmelo. Gifts were presented Grand President Irwin, D.D.G.P. Mathias and Mrs. Christine Michelsen Hume, the Parlor's latest bride. Miss Irwin was also the recipient of a bouquet of red carnations with greetings from El Carmelo 256 N.S.G.W. At the meeting's close refreshments were served from tables prettily decorated in holly, greenery and red candles.

Sons Hosts at Feast.

Sutter Creek—Amapola 80 responded to the invitation of Amador 17 N.S.G.W. to partake of a turkey and raviola supper December 3. The tables were beautiful in Christmas colors, hollyberries and mistletoe, with red bonbon surprises as favors. Ninety-three did justice to the wonderful menu.

After the feast all adjourned to Fraternal Hall, which was also beautifully decorated, and here joy reigned supreme. Members of both Parlors performed "stunts." Music, games and dancing were features. On behalf of Amapola, President Castle thanked the boys for their thoughtfulness and hospitality, and President Marre responded for Amador. The evening was voted by all a most delightful one.

Generous Sum for Homeless.

Taft—Miocene 228 elected officers for the ensuing term December 1, Evelyn Gilbert Towne becoming president. Among the visitors were D.D.G.P. Josephine Barboni of Visalia. The bazar held by the Parlor was a wonderful success and a generous sum was turned over to the homeless children's fund for Christmas. January 9 the Parlor's newly-elected officers will be installed, and on the 23rd a class of candidates will be initiated.

County Parlors in Joint Session.

Ferndale—Members of the Humboldt County Parlors Occident 28 (Eureka), Oneonta 71 (Ferndale), Reichling 97 (Fortuna), Golden Rod 165 (Alton)—gathered here in large numbers November 27 to welcome Grand President Sue J. Irwin on the occasion of her official visit to the Parlors in joint session.

Following a fine supper the Grand President made a splendid talk, and there were brief remarks by others. All the Parlors remembered Miss Irwin with gifts, that from Oneonta being a handsome clock.

Christmas Party Happy Occasion.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell 168 is making numerical progress and has prospects of a new home in the near future. During 1925 fourteen candidates were initiated. The building fund is steadily growing, and while the Parlor now owns a choice building lot it will be retained as income property and another lot will be purchased to build upon. January 10 the Parlor will receive a handsome silk American Flag, purchased with funds earned outside the Parlor.

The Christmas party of December 10 was well attended. The committee in charge—Clara Tatman, Hazel Long, Evadne Gray, Myrtle Bernardo, Sophia Pendergast—gave a very clever program, which opened with the old Christmas song, "Jingle Bells." Sophia Pendergast, in costume, presented a sketch, "The Turkey Party," each member supplying a part of the story. A "Bridge Party" featured four members in early-day costumes playing bridge, with the usual gossip confined to members of the Parlor. "Holy Night" was sweetly rendered by President Estella Forcum and Clara Tatman. Then came the tree, loaded with joke-gifts. As a fitting close to the happy occasion a committee of Lois Coleman, Annie Skelly and Annie Stockstill served refreshments in the banquet-room, which was decorated to represent a Christmas scene.

Bazar a Success.

Mariposa—The bazar and social featured by Mariposa 63 November 20 was in every particular a decided success. Sales of the various booths netted $140. A pleasing program of musical numbers was presented.

Many Visitors.

Byron—Donner 193, on the occasion of the recent official visit of Grand President Sue J. Irwin, was hostess also to delegations from El Pescadero 82 (Tracy), Stirling 146 (Pittsburg), Encinal 156 (Alameda), Antioch 223, and the following grand officers: Grand Vice-president Pearl Lamb, Grand Organist Estelle Evans, D.D.G.P. Loretta Kelley, D.D.G.P. Mabel Peterson. All were recipients of gifts from the Parlor.

With President Anna Pendry presiding, the ritual was most creditably exemplified by the Parlor's officers. The talks given by the Grand President and others were greatly enjoyed. At the meeting's conclusion a hot chicken supper was served.

Pioneer Women Entertained.

Stockton—Joaquin 5 held its annual Christmas tree December 22, each member bringing a child. The tree gave joy to all the "kiddies," old and young. The annual contribution of a box of Christmas cheer to the invalid soldiers of the government's base hospital in Arizona was made.

Masses of hollyberries and red carnations decorated the hall when the Parlor tendered a reception to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pioneers. President Catherine Wilson extended the welcome and presided over a delightful program, which included an address on the Pioneers by Past Grand President Carrie Roesch-Durham. The reception committee included Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Durham, Mrs. J. W. Willy, Miss Sarah Tully, Miss Lorraine Kalck, while the refreshment committee was composed of Past Grand President Mamie G. Peyton, Mrs. Maud Paynor, Mrs. Charlotte Lentz, Mrs. Emma Lee.

In Memoriam

FLOYD WATSON.

Whereas, The home of our sister, Calla Watson, has been so deeply saddened by the untimely death of her son, Floyd Watson, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the officers and members of Miocene Parlor No 228 N.D.G.W. do hereby extend our sincerest love and deepest sympathy to Sister Watson and her family in this hour of grief and bereavement, and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, that a copy be placed in the records of Miocene Parlor No. 228 N.D.G.W., and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear.

MARY B. HAMPSON,
LUCY E. KANODE,
ELMA NICHOLS,
Committee.

Taft, California.

NELLIE GERRANS.

To the Officers and Members of San Jose Parlor No. 81 Native Daughters of the Golden West: We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Nellie Gerrans, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has deemed it fit to call to the Heavenly Parlor on High our beloved sister, Nellie Gerrans, thus taking from us one of our most devoted and loyal members—a faithful and true friend, we feel our loss is measureless and, hard though it be, we resign ourselves to His greater wisdom and console ourselves with the memory of an honorable life just ended, we are sure that already she rests amid the rewards she has earned while on this earth.

"None knew her but to love her,
None named her but to praise."

Resolved, That in the passing of our sister the Parlor has lost an honored member, the bereaved family a devoted wife and mother, and the parents a loving daughter, be it further resolved, that we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, that a page of the records of the Parlor be dedicated to her memory, that this tribute of affection be sent to the bereaved families, and also that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

HELEN TRENGOVE,
KATHERINE NELSON,
NETTIE RICHMOND,
Committee.

San Jose, December 9, 1925.

PLEASED WITH THE GRIZZLY'S GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT.

"Editor Grizzly Bear: Thomas Jones' story of the Brennan family tragedy of early days in Grass Valley, published in the November and December issues of The Grizzly Bear, is a well-constructed and splendid recital of one of the real historical events of the youthful history of the mining section of California. Back in the '70s my parents, who resided in Grass Valley not far from where the once-happy Brennan home was located, frequently were called upon to relate the story of the Brennan family, and Tom Jones' story tallies with the recital of the tragic event as given by my father to his children almost fifty years ago.

"Permit me to congratulate you on the splendid magazine you are publishing. I have been a close reader of The Grizzly Bear for years, and it is with great pleasure that I have observed its continued development and growth, until now it is one of the leading magazines of the country. Tom Jones, since his retirement from railroad activities in Sacramento several years ago, has engaged himself in a literary task which stamps him as one of the most truthful and interesting relators of the early history of California.

"Yours respectfully,
"GEORGE G. RADCLIFF,
"Chairman State Board Control.
"Sacramento, December 4, 1925."

N. D. G. W. NEWS

Interest in Civic Affairs Urged.

Tracy—One of the largest attended and most enjoyable meetings of El Pescadero 82 was that of November 20, when Grand President Sue J. Irwin paid her official visit. The meeting place was artistically decorated by Claire Ludwig, Pearl Lamb, Eva Shaw, Flora Griffin, Effie Gieseke, Angie Barber. Prior to the meeting a turkey dinner was served by Mrs. J. D. Vogt, Emma Ludwig, Loretta Martin, Frances Mellin, Angie Barber, Lila Hewitson.

In the course of a splendid address Grand President Irwin urged the members to take a leading part in all civic movements for the general welfare and betterment. On the Parlor's behalf she was presented, by Grand Vice-president Pearl Lamb, with a silver candelabra. Among those in attendance were delegations from Stockton, Byron, San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell and Addie L. Mosher, Grand Vice-president Pearl Lamb, Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler, and the following charter members of El Pescadero: Claire Ludwig, Emma Frerichs, Susie Frerichs, Lena Steinmetz, Alice Murrell.

"Kiddies" Are Guests.

Petaluma—Petaluma 222 had a card party December 1 and realized a neat sum. December 15 eighty four invited "kiddies," along with the children of the members, were entertained at a Christmas tree. Mrs. Zora Tompkins impersonated Santa Claus, and to each child was presented a bag of "goodies" and a toy. Ice-cream cones were served. The members went out and brought in the children and saw that they were landed safely at home after the party.

As a Christmas remembrance the Parlor sent to the Native Daughter Home in San Francisco a box of Sonoma County's famous apples and twenty dollars.

Pioneer Spirit Exemplified.

Alturas—At its December 3 meeting Alturas 159 initiated several candidates, among them Cora Follett, who resides at New Pine Creek, Oregon State, a town built upon the California-Oregon boundary line. She is the daughter of a Modoc County Pioneer, and drove forty-five miles over rough roads to be present for initiation.

After the business session the members and their escorts were entertained at cards and dancing, and a midnight repast was enjoyed in the banquetroom, made gay with greens and holly. During the feast the Parlor's latest bride, Mrs. Vesta Davis-McCullough, was presented with a decorated bride's cake and the initiates were the recipients of mirth-provoking gifts.

Members of the Parlor attended the funeral of Pioneer William Dale, grandfather of President Effie Kauffman, and also that of the son

POLITICAL BOSSES AND POLITICIANS

DANIEL Q. TROY OF MISSION PARLOR No. 38 N.S.G.W. related some humorous political incidents in his address before the California Historical Society December 15. He referred to what is commonly known as the "double cross" in politics, and admitted that while it is possible to laugh at these happenings now, yet at the time they occurred they were considered matters of serious import.

A case in point was when, in 1890, Stephen M. White was a candidate for United States Senator against Leland Stanford. Troy supported White and was nominated for the State Assembly. At that time United States Senators were elected by the Legislature. Chris. Buckley was the Democratic boss and gave his "o.k" to Troy's candidacy, but a disquieting rumor soon got abroad that Buckley was in the pay of Stanford and was against White.

"A few days before the election," Troy said, "I met Steve White and he told me that a $50,000 Democratic campaign fund had been raised, $25,000 going to Bill English and $25,000 being put into the hands of Chris. Buckley.

"I told him that trusting money to Buckley in that fight was worse than throwing it in the bay, as I had proof that Buckley was supporting Stanford.

"I was defeated, of course, but I wasn't the only one who got the 'double cross'—only two Democrats were elected to the Legislature; so, of course, Senator Stanford won.

"Before the next election Boss Buckley had been indicted by the Wallace grand jury and had fled the state. With Buckley out of the way, Steve White was elected United States Senator."

Of all the political bosses in California, Troy said, only one kept his promises at all times and under all circumstances, and that man was Bill Higgins, whose word was his bond.

John W. Geary was the first boss known in San Francisco. He came in 1849 with his appointment as postmaster of the city in his pocket and authority to appoint other postmasters throughout the state. Geary had himself chosen alcalde and next was elected mayor, nearly every vote being cast for him. His reign was short as he soon went East, was appointed governor of Kansas Territory, and subsequently was twice elected governor of Pennsylvania.

Then followed a list of bosses and politicians, big and little, who took part in the state government. Among these were David S. Broderick, who was killed in a duel by Judge Terry, Bill Gray, John Bigler, B. Redding, Bill Stow, Phil Crimmins, Aaron A. Sargent and Wm. M. Gwinn.

The famous "tapeworm" ticket which was used at Vallejo for the "protection" of the Mare Island employees, just so they would be sure to vote "right," was credited to Buckley; and the "isinglass ticket" in San Francisco was ascribed to the inventive genius of Sam Braunhart.

George C. Gorham, the speaker said, was the most pestiferous, mischief-making politician ever known in California. Newton Booth came in for a panegyric, and Perry Kewen was referred to as doing business on the fame of his father, E. C. J. Kewen. Denis Kearny was described as a "terror." Wm. J. Gavigan had the distinction of being both an M. D. and an attorney-at-law, a distinction gained by only one other politician in California, Dr. Edward Robison Taylor.

Probably the most remarkable political happening in California was when Stephen J. Field aspired to the nomination for president of the United States and was repudiated by the Stockton convention by a vote of 453 to 19. Among the other patriots who gave their services to saving the city, the state and the nation were Jim Gannon, Dick Chute, Mannix and Brady and Sam Rainey.

The Iroquois Club was given prominent mention as having among its promoters such men as Judge Matt I. Sullivan, Judge J. F. Sullivan, J. J. Dwyer, Samuel Daniels, Peter F. Dunn, Barry Baldwin—who was an Irishman, although his political opponents "south of the slot" called him an Englishman—Judge James G. Maguire and a host of others.

The final catastrophe came when the county committee was formed with 450 members. It was found that the members were candidates for enter, we are attracted by a smiling face ng behind the bar, ready to serve all who care to purchase a smoke or partake of the various soft drinks on sale. Prices are reasonable. While we are there getting acquainted with Bro. Eugene Fisher, we hear music.

"Following the sound, it seems to get nearer and nearer, and the first thing that we know we are entering a huge library. We stop and look around. There to our left is a big radio set with a loud speaker. Around the radio are a few members lounging in the big easy chairs, enjoying the program. Then we walk over to the book shelves, glance over the various sets of books, pick out a good book, get an ash tray, pull up a big easy chair under a floor lamp, and read a good book in solid comfort. Sometimes we do not care to read, but want to look up something. There are the large encyclopedias, and in a short time our information is at hand.

"You will always find Bro. Fisher on hand to welcome you, and after meeting him you will say that you are going to be a frequent visitor to the Grizzly Bear Club. This is your club, and its doors are always open, regardless of what night or day it may be."

All members of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West affiliated with Parlors outside San Francisco are honorary members of the Grizzly Bear Club and are at all times welcome to the clubrooms.

BIG DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM.

With the final purchase of property, financing arrangements completed, and dredging contracts let, work will shortly be under way on a $5,000,000 bay development program which, it is asserted, will be the greatest industrial section in the state and one that will double the present industrial section of San Francisco.

The new section embraces 2,500 acres, located at Belmont, three miles from San Mateo, on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Seeking Knowledge—Figures made public recently by the state superintendent of public instruction show that one person out of every four in California attends public-school or a university.

ANOTHER PARLOR ADDED TO LOS ANGELES COUNTY CHAIN.

GLENDALE — ANOTHER LINK WAS added to the chain of Parlors extending throughout Los Angeles County when Glendale 264 was instituted December 16 by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler. Three hundred members of the Order witnessed the ceremonies, every Parlor in the county being represented by large delegations. The addition of this new link adds another accomplished undertaking to the record of Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, through whose untiring efforts the Order is rapidly attaining its place upon the map of California South.

The ritual was exemplified for the benefit of Glendale's fifty-one charter members by the following: Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, president; Grand Trustee Frank I. Gonzalez, senior past president; Past Grand President William I. Traeger, junior past president; Grand Secretary John T. Regan, first vice-president; Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, second vice-president; Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge, third vice-president; Grand Marshal Harry W. Gaetjen, marshal; Grand Trustee John T. Newell, inside sentinel; Julius W. Krause (Ramona 109), organist. Other grand officers in attendance were Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger and Grand Trustee John S. Ramsay. In addition to the Glendale candidates, nine candidates were initiated for Ramona 109 (Los Angeles) and four for Los Angeles 45.

Following the ritual exemplification, Glendale 264 was formally instituted, and then D.D.G.P. Ronald M. Ross, assisted by the officers of Los Angeles Parlor, installed the new Parlor's officers, as follows: Frank A. Townsend, president; Loring E. Kent, first vice-president; George M. Roach, second vice-president; Angelo Camillo, third vice-president; Leslie F. Schellbach, marshal; George P. Fraley, inside sentinel; Walter Butler, outside sentinel; William Felten, financial and recording secretary; Milton L. Wicks, Raymond J. McGrath, Clarence N. Lechner, trustees; Joseph A. Kleiser, treasurer; Dr. Frederick W. Loring, Dr. Emmet L. Wemple, surgeons; Walter C. Kent, junior past president; William E. Agard, senior past president. The Parlor was the recipient of the following remembrances: The Holy Bible, from Los Angeles 45; the map of California, from Ramona 109 (Los Angeles); the American Flag for the altar, from Corona 196 (Los Angeles); the ballot box, from Long Beach 239; the president's gavel, from Pasadena 259; the state seal, from Vaquero 262 (Los Angeles); the American and State (Bear) Flags, with pedastals, from Sepulveda 263 (San Pedro).

President Sidney B. Witkowski of Los Angeles Parlor presided during the good of the order, and brief addresses were made by Justice Thomas J. Lennon (Mount Tamalpais 64), of the California Supreme Court; Charles H. Smith (Ramona 109), the first secretary of the "father" Parlor of the Order, California 1 (San Francisco); Judge Robert M. Clarke (Ramona 109); Sheriff William I. Traeger (Ramona 109); Deputy Grand President Mayrhofer; Past Grand President Lichtenberger; Lee Payne Sr. (Los Angeles 45), at whose Glendale home those who formed the new Parlor held many preliminary meetings; Grand Trustee Newell; Grand President Cutler. Refreshments were served through the generosity of Los Angeles and Ramona Parlors.

Glendale 264 will meet twice a month at K. P. Hall in "America's fastest growing city—Glendale." January 13 it will have a house warming, to which all Native Sons are invited. Instituted under most favorable conditions and with a splendid personnel, it promises to grow and prosper.—C.M.H.

County Booster Committee.

Pittsburg — The Native Sons and Native Daughters of Contra Costa County have formed a joint booster committee, which meets in Martinez, the county seat, once a month. It was formed to promote social activity and to increase the membership in both Orders throughout the county. Charles W. Savage of Diamond 246 N.S. (Pittsburg) is the chairman and Miss Ruby Jeffers of Las Juntas 221 N.D. (Martinez) is the secretary. A social is held once a month in one of the various towns of the county.

The first social, held in Martinez, as a starter was a success. The second, in Pittsburg December 2, was well attended, among those present being Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge and D.D.G.P. Fulgham. The committee in charge was Chas. W. Savage and V. R. Carusa of Diamond N.S. and Mary Buckley, Theresa Gatto and Mrs. Susan McGrath of Stirling 146 N.D.

The next affair will be held at Crockett, January 13, in the Auditorium. It will be in charge of Carquinez 205 N.S. and the newly-instituted Carquinez 234 N.D.

"Boys" and "Girls" Frolic.

Sonoma City—Sonoma 111 and Sonoma 209 N.D.G.W. had a jolly time at their Christmas tree December 7. Red and green candles, and huge baskets of evergreens intertwined with Christmas lights were used most effectively in decorating. The "girls" appeared in sunbonnets, knickers, saucy bows, rolled socks and pigtails, while the "boys" were in sailor blouses, knee pants, etc.

Fred Hansen, the Santa Claus, presided ov a huge lighted tree and distributed comical to which created much merriment. Games, co tests and dancing were in order, and ice-cre cones and "suckers" were passed around. As conculsion to the much-enjoyed party substa tial refreshments were served in the beautiful decorated banquetroom.

Co-operation Sought.

San Rafael—Officers of Mount Tamalpais with John A. Streckfus as president, have be elected and will be installed in January join with those of Marinita 198 N.D.G.W.

Arrangements are being perfected to enal both Parlors to meet in separate halls of t I. D. E. S. building the same night. This w make possible the holding of joint socials least once a month. The sponsors of the pl feel that it will stimulate interest and incre the attendance in both Parlors. "Harmony a co-operation," they say, "will be the result."

GREATEST CONSTRUCTIVE PERIOD OF LONG BEACH HAS ARRIVED

A. A. Miller

(LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

LONG BEACH—PLAYGROUND AND ALL-year resort, home city, and cultural center.

Long Beach—cosmopolitan and metropolitan in character and in size.

Long Beach—to become great industrial point with steel, textiles and their affiliated activities as chief factors.

Long Beach—the logical Southern California gateway for world commerce through great harbor.

Such is Long Beach, not only of the distant future but of the immediate years.

All that modern civilization has to offer is to be found in Long Beach. The amenities of life afforded in this great city are nowhere greater. By its position at the sea, with its miles of splendid beach, its equable "all year" climate and its built-to-order harbor, Long Beach seems blessed with the fullest enjoyment of its rights as a recreation center, ideal homeland and industrial metropolis.

Superbly located with a southern frontage upon a beautiful bay of the mild Pacific Ocean, Long Beach covers thirty square miles. It has a population of 140,000 and is twenty miles south of Los Angeles. Its six miles of long, smooth, bathing beach, and admirable climate with temperature of 65 and 55 degrees in summer and winter, respectively, possess an irresistible appeal to the tourist and homeseeker alike. The fame of the winter season in Long Beach is widespread. The bright sunshine and bracing breezes day by day enable one to revel in outdoor sports and recreation all the year. The ocean beach is not excelled in attractive beauty by any other sea strand and is unequaled in convenience—right at the city's side.

More than that, Long Beach is a city where all the comforts of modern home life can be had within a few blocks of the ocean shore. Within a half-hour's ride the City of Los Angeles can be reached and within two hours the mountain heights may be scaled and views of a hundred miles enjoyed. Sea fishing is excellent, throngs of anglers lining numerous Long Beach municipal piers daily. Fine boulevards connect Long Beach with numerous golf courses within a few minutes' ride of the city. The range of varied entertainment practicable from Long Beach as a focus is scarcely surpassed in the world.

Alamitos Bay, part of Long Beach, is gaining prominence and fame as a smooth-water bathing and yachting center. The intense interest and activity in the areas surrounding its beautiful land-locked waterways, unpolluted boating and yachting harbor, indicate even now the marvelous future that it has for open-water pleasure and sports.

Santa Catalina Island, one of the most fascinating isles, is really a mountain at sea, located twenty miles off Long Beach shore. Its fishing is known to sportsmen the world over; flying fish delight the visitor; the submarine gardens are an unique attraction seen from glass-bottom boats. The wonderful trip to Catalina Island is but one of the many unusually attractive features near Long Beach.

Palos Verdes Estates, near Long Beach, is thoroughly planned as a large garden suburb. In beauty and elaborateness it compares with Roland Park in Baltimore, Forest Hills in Long Island, and Saint Francis Wood in San Francisco.

The educational advantages of Long Beach are an unfailing source of satisfaction and justifiable pride to residents. Visitors in the city are interested and pleased to note the excellence of the public-school system and the completeness of modern equipment. Long Beach schools rank second to none in modern, healthful surroundings, thoroughly equipped laboratories and study rooms, completely furnished gymnasiums, athletic fields available the year around, and a faculty of the highest rank. Long Beach has twenty-seven grade-schools, five junior and two senior high-schools, with a faculty of 1,137 members and an enrollment of 25,000 pupils. A $5,000,000 bond issue was voted for additional school buildings, twenty-two of which, including one new senior and one new junior high-school, are now under construction.

Long Beach is a music-loving city; it has a fine municipal band and a symphony orchestra. Singing societies and instrumental clubs are numerous. Great singers are constantly appearing at the Municipal Auditorium, and many smaller halls offer constant treats in music.

Clubs are numerous and represent every activity in search of knowledge and pursuit of pleasure. Numerous country clubs, many with huge acreages and large memberships, offer golf, polo, tennis and other outdoor recreations.

Four large churches have been built during the past year, bringing the total number to sixty, representing all denominations. In addition, the city has a Y. M. C. A. and a Y. W. C. A.

Long Beach has more than 800 hotels and apartments, all located within walking distance of the beach, shopping district and amusement zone. On the west beach promenade is located the magnificent Hotel Virginia, one of the most attractive seaside hotels in America. The new Breakers Hotel is under construction.

TIDE AND RAIL MEET HERE.

It occurs to few men that Long Beach, the "Queen of Beaches," is really soon to engage in a tremendous competition with the world's trade marts, when its twenty-seven miles of harbor berthage have been constructed. Big interests are doing big things. Millions are being spent to create here the deepest and best harbor on the Pacific Coast. Only a few minutes from the open sea to sheltered docks, which will offer forty-foot depth of water at low tide and will be served by the most complete railroad and highway systems in existence, expresses the appeal which the port of Long Beach will have for commercial carriers. This appeal already is bearing fruit.

Long Beach is the logical steamship gateway for Southern California. This is recognized by those who shape the marine policies of the Pacific, and routes are being arranged accordingly.

Located opposite the lowest mountain passes in the Coast Range, Long Beach Harbor is approached by easy railway grades and, with a broad hinterland susceptible of extensive agricultural, commercial and industrial development, is in a favored position with respect to competing ports of the Pacific.

Long Beach offers transportation an abundant supply of fuel, power and water, and labor and operating conditions necessary for such industries as may locate in the industrial areas of Long Beach. One of the largest petroleum and natural gas fields in America is Signal Hill in Long Beach, while other districts adjoining are developing new fields daily. Based upon a heat unit estimate, Long Beach has the lowest gas rate of any community within the entire United States. Within the city limits of Long Beach approximately 200,000 barrels of oil are being produced daily.

The water of Long Beach is extremely soft and analyzes 90 percent pure, with rates as low as five cents per 100 cubic feet.

The Southern California Edison Company has recently installed an additional 70,000 horsepower unit, the largest steam turbine as yet installed west of the Mississippi River, which will enable it to develop a total of 260,000 horsepower.

Tide and rail meet at Long Beach. One hundred world ports are reached by vessels sailing from Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor. Three transcontinental railroads, one intra-state electric railway, and a complete system of truck highways serve the harbor and Long Beach.

For purely local markets, there are over 250,000 people living within ten miles of Long Beach and over 1,000,000 within a thirty-mile radius. Fifteen years ago there were less than fifteen factories, representing a total investment of approximately $1,000,000, employing about 350 persons. Today Long Beach has 315 manufacturing plants, representing a total investment of approximately $67,500,000, employing 15,000 persons.

Long Beach enjoys a low tax rate—city $1.40, county $2.17, making a total of $3.57 on a 50 percent valuation.

No city has such a magnificent setting for the building of a great metropolis—a playground, a world port and industrial center. This is attested by the amazing growth of the past twenty-five years when, expanding from a settlement of sheepherders' huts, Long Beach in 1925 suddenly found itself to be the second city of Southern California, with a population of 140,000. During the last five years Long Beach built at a rate of more than $1,000,000 per month. The total 1925 building figures to November 30 reached $17,500,000; bank clearings $291,060,457. The assessed property valuation for 1925 totaled $176,000,000.

Long Beach is a city of favorable possibilities. It will doubtless attain a quarter-million population by 1930. With its ocean beach, its pleasing climate, its appeal to tourists and homeseekers; with its practical and comprehensive program for development of its great harbor possibilities, Long Beach realizes with gratitude the significance of the events which are building here one of the greatest of the world's ports and one of the largest cities.

N.S.G.W. were elected December 2, J. A. M. Schlemmer being chosen president. They will be installed in January. John Cadogan of Sacramento Parlor No. 3 provided the entertainment of the evening. Several members attended the tree-planting ceremonies in Recreation Park December 5, and a large delegation witnessed the institution of Glendale Parlor No. 264 December 16.

Jointly with Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., the Parlor had a holiday dance and card party December 30. The hall was appropriately decorated, and the large crowd in attendance enjoyed themselves immensely.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS VISIT.

Mrs. Roy Hitt, organizer of the Parlor instituted December 19 at Santa Ana, Orange County, was elected president of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. at the December 9 meeting. A full corps of assistants were also chosen, and all will be installed in January by D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas of Los Angeles.

A large delegation of the members were in attendance at the December 16 meeting of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W., when Grand President Sue J. Irwin of Berkeley paid her official visit there. The Parlor was also well represented at the Santa Ana institution ceremonies.

of Mrs. Annie Pierce of Likely. Irma Laird's many friends are congratulating her on the efficient and expeditious manner in which she presided as chairman of Modoc County's grand jury.

Santa Claus There.

Oakland—Miss Josephine Clark was chairman of a most successful turkey-whist December 10, the proceeds going into the general fund of Piedmont 87. Mrs. Augusta Huxsol was chairman of a committee which entertained the members and their families at a large, beautifully decorated Christmas tree. Santa Claus distributed candy and toys to the children and refreshments were served. An interesting program, contributed largely by the little folks, was presented. A grab-bag and fancy-work booth, under the supervision of Gretta Murden, netted a substantial sum.

Officers-elect of the Parlor and Piedmont 120 N.S.G.W. will be jointly installed January 14, Mildred Gluck and John J. Allen Jr. becoming the respective presidents. The past president's emblem will be presented to Edna K. Healy by Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher.

Annual "Kiddies" Benefit.

Hollister—The annual benefit for the homeless "kiddies" of California was given December 10 under the joint auspices of Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44 N.S.G.W. Tables were arranged for the playing of bridge and "500", and a large crowd was in attendance to aid in the worthy cause. Fourteen persons carried away attractive rewards for skillful playing. A turkey and several cakes prepared by prize-winning cakebakers were disposed of to add to the proceeds of the benefit. Appetizing refreshments were served at the close of the games.

December 12 the annual Christmas tree and yuletide festivities occupied the attention of the membership of Copa de Oro. Each person present contributed a "stunt" to add to the gaiety of the occasion. Santa Claus then arrived with a jingle of bells to distribute "gifts" from the attractively decorated tree.

Christmas Cheer Dispensed.

San Jose—The one-day bazaar of December 3 netted Vendome 100 five hundred dollars. Mrs. Lotta Koppel was the general chairman. The assisting chairmen were Sadie Howell, fancy work; Susie Bickford, aprons; Mattie Dean, country store; Catherine Corotto, candy; Julia Waddington, fortune tellers; Ida Stockton, plants and flowers; Alice Kady, dolls; Nellie Davis, white elephant; Huldah Buehren, Mabel De Smet, Georgia Fusco, grab bags; May Calice, diningroom and Christmas fruit cake; Clara Gairaud, publicity. George Ellwood, the radio man, entertained day and evening. Programs from everywhere delighted the audiences.

An enjoyable afternoon whist party was held December 17, with Miss Martha Waddington as chairman. The children of the members were treated to a Christmas tree party the same evening. December 23 Mrs. Mattie Dean, Mrs. Gertrude Mathers, Miss Tillie Brohaska and Mrs. Clara Gairaud brought Christmas cheer to the patients of the Parlor's ward in the United States Veterans' Hospital at Palo Alto. D.D.G.P. Mabel Southeimer entertained the Vendome Past Presidents' club in her lovely home December 9. All the officers of the Past Presidents' club were re-elected for the coming year.

posedly Booth, fell, mortally wounded.

Meanwhile the real Booth was galloping hastily toward the south, into Tennessee. Ever onward to the west and oblivion he pressed. In Salt Lake City he received a precious letter from his mother telling him that, "God willing," she would meet him in San Francisco that December. What heartbreak and joy of reunion crowded the short hours in which mother and son were together. She had a letter for him, from the only girl Booth ever loved, sweet Bessie Hale. Bessie had written before his supposed capture and death, telling him of her undying love. Now she believed him dead. It were better so. Bitter fate that, in gaining life, he must be dead forever.

China, the South Seas, Mexico,—the unhappy man lived for a time in all, haunted by his own guilt and the fear of detection. At last the futility of a broken life proved too great a burden for his weary heart. An overdose of a powerful headache powder, the tragic confession, a last breathed whisper of, "Mother!"—and the sad life of John Wilkes Booth was finished.

"THE OLD FRANCISCAN MISSIONS OF CALIFORNIA."

By George Wharton James; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

George Wharton James is the well-known author of several books on places of particular interest. Some of the most familiar are "In and Out of the Old Missions," "In and Around the Grand Canyon," "The Wonders of the Colorado Desert" and "The Old Franciscan Missions of California."

The latter is pleasingly illustrated with many excellent photographs of the missions and other famous landmarks of California. An historical introduction, dealing with the discovery of California, initiates the reader into the spirit of the West. There follows the story of the founding of the missions, their histories, a discussion on the architecture and the interior decorations of the missions; these form the most interesting contents of the book.

The romantic history of the birth of California is ever entertaining, but it is an unusual pleasure to read so comprehensive and interesting an account as presented in "The Old Franciscan Missions of California."

"In proportion as the years both lessen and shorten, I set more count upon their periods, and would fain lay my ineffectual finger upon the spoke of the great wheel."—Charles Lamb.

Past Presidents in Interesting Meet.

Colusa—Eight were added to the membership of Fred H. Greeley Assembly No. 6 Past Presidents' Association at the December meeting held in this city. It was decided to hold the January meeting in Oroville, January 20, the regular meeting night of Argonaut 8.

A feature of the Colusa meeting was the address by Robert P. Dixon, past president of Silver Star 63 (Lincoln) on his memories of James W. Marshall, discoverer of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County. Dixon was given a rising vote of thanks for his excellent paper, and the document was ordered preserved for the archives of the Order. His talk was in keeping with a rule of the organization to have a review of some state character or event of historical import made at each meeting.

Seth Millington acted as toastmaster at the banquet which closed the Colusa session. He brought talks from E. C. Fitch, president of Colusa Parlor, Judge E. P. McDaniel, Judge Frank M. Folgalsang, Past Grand President Fred H. Greely, William Duncan, John P. Colford, president of Sutter City Parlor, District Governor Richard Sinnott, Henry Schroeder and others.

Library Gets History Work.

Livermore—Las Positas 96 has presented to the California history section of the local public library the new work, "Pictorial History of California," reviewed in The Grizzly Bear for December. It is the product of Dr. Owen C. Coy, director of the State Historical Association, and Edward Mayer, secretary of the department of visual instruction at the University of California, Berkeley.

900 Bags Christmas Cheer Distributed.

Colusa—The annual community Christmas tree, sponsored by Colusa 69, was the attraction which drew a big crowd to the grammar school auditorium December 17. Nine hundred bags of "goodies" were distributed. A program, arranged by Miss Dorothy McCargar, music teacher of the school, was presented.

WILMINGTON
THE HEART OF LOS ANGELES HARBOR

Fred Richardson

WHEN THE HARBOR WAS KNOWN only as a port of call for the Yankee windjammers that came around the Horn every year in search of hides and tallow, Wilmington was the place where they met the native Californians. Here it was they spread upon the sands the habiliments of a New England civilization in exchange for the raw material that built the foundation of Boston and Lynn's present supremacy in shoe manufacturing. Dana in his "Two Years Before the Mast" speaks of other harbors being more spacious and beautiful, but it was at Wilmington that his ship secured the bulk of its cargoes. This was where the business was!

The same can be said today. There are several ports on the Pacific Coast more pleasing to the eye, perhaps, than Los Angeles Harbor, of which Wilmington is the heart. But this harbor DOES THE BUSINESS. It does so much business, in fact, that during the past ten years it has grown to be ranked in second place with the other harbors of the United States on the basis of tonnage handled. The Bureau of Research of the United States Shipping Board is authority for this statement and the Shipping Board ought to know.

Wilmington meant so much to Los Angeles way back in Civil War times and before, that it was to this community that the first railroad in Southern California was built. When Los Angeles finally was the terminus of a transcontinental line, that line touched Southern waters first at Wilmington. When Long Beach was founded in 1884, it reached the outside world by a horse-car line that connected with the railroad at Wilmington.

Again today, Wilmington finds itself the hub of the great transportation system, water and rail, that is being built up at Los Angeles Harbor. As such it is an outstanding factor contributing to the growth of Southern California. But let us get down to cases:

Even though in Dana's day this port was the greatest hide and tallow shipping port on the Coast, and even though there was enough business here more than a half century ago to justify the building of a railroad from Los Angeles, it must be admitted that even as late as 1900 the port was little more than a salt marsh and a river mouth. Again even as late as 1914 it had attained no special significance commercially, being a port of call for only four or five maritime companies at the outbreak of the World War. But then something happened, and within a decade this community of Wilmington finds itself on the shore of one of the really important harbors of this continent. During these ten years the Harbor increased its total commerce from less than 150,000 tons per month to more than 2,000,000 tons per month. This is an increase of 1233 percent. Additional evidence of the rapid commercial progress and development is the fact that in the fiscal year ending June, 1924, 6,215 commercial vessels entered the harbor, compared with 2,886 vessels in 1920.

The City of Los Angeles, in recognition of the growing importance of this port, has increased its investments in harbor property tremendously. In 1912 the city had an investment of $354,463 here. It has added to this steadily until today its investment stands at $20,131,538, an increase of 5,578 percent.

The bulk of the business passing through the harbor is coastwise or coast to coast commerce. According to the United States Shipping Board, the harbor receives more general cargo from the Atlantic Coast than San Francisco and Seattle combined. On the other hand, according to customs reports from forty-nine customs districts in the United States for the fiscal year 1924, the harbor ranked in the country as a whole thirteenth in foreign imports and seventeenth in foreign exports, valued at $37,298,152 and $52,974,959, respectively. The foreign commerce of Los Angeles Harbor is distributed principally among seven geographical areas, namely, Northwestern Europe, Asia, Japan, Canada, Mexico and Central America, South America and the Mediterranean, Balkan countries and Africa.

There is a great diversity in the foreign commerce of the port. In the export trade are found such items as petroleum, petroleum products, iron and steel manufactures, raw cotton, chemicals, canned fruits, oil cake meals, seeds, drugs, cement, automobiles, canned fish, citrus fruits, honey and beans. Among the more important imports are newsprint, silk, glass, crude rubber, flax and hemp manufactures, rugs, hides, wool, sugar, steel ingots, pigiron, fertilizer, copra and earthenware.

Critics of Los Angeles statistics of harbor commerce often speak disparagingly of the fact that so much of our port business consists of trade in lumber and oil. But this is no more a derogation of the volume of our shipping than is the large proportion of cotton exports from some of the harbors of the South. The fact remains that these two commodities have been and in a large measure will continue to contribute to the permanent wealth of our great metropolitan community.

The prospects for the future of Los Angeles Harbor and Wilmington will depend upon the development of industry to produce goods for the greater commerce of the harbor.

The vital elements of a great industrial development are raw materials, power and fuel, labor, transportation and markets. One of the most fundamental is transportation and markets. No community has all of the raw materials necessary for its needs. Transportation is vital for the bringing in of the raw goods it requires for industrial uses. Basic raw materials such as petroleum, lumber, wool, cotton, iron ore, rubber, silk, copper and sugar are either readily available within Southern California or can be shipped here in a dependable and economical supply. With this increased industrial development will come a harbor even more pre-eminent on the coast than the one we now have.

JANUARY CONVENTIONS.

Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce a large number of conventions have been secured for Los Angeles City for 1926.

Those that will be held during the month of January include: American Petroleum Institute, Association of Natural Gasoline Manufacturers, National Association of Minor Baseball Leagues, Southern California Retail Bakers' Association.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS' LUSTY INFANT

(OLIVE LOPEZ.)

A LUSTY INFANT WAS BORN INTO the world of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, when Santa Ana Parlor No. 235 was instituted at the Orange County metropolis December 19 with 100 charter members by Miss Sue J. Irwin, Grand President of the Order, assisted by Miss Alice Daugherty, Grand Secretary, and officers from Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Pedro Parlors.

The "baby" Parlor began life auspiciously, as the Native Daughters were given the privilege of officially lighting the giant out-of-doors Christmas tree in the garden of St. Ann's inn, the president of Santa Ana Parlor, Mrs. Louise Grouard Mock, touching the button which lighted the tree with its giant star atop its symmetrical branches. R. L. Bisby, on behalf of the management of the inn, gave Mrs. Mock the authority to light the tree, saying that it was particularly fitting that the Native Daughters should have the honor. Mrs. Mock extended thanks for the courtesy, and told the history of the lofty Norfolk palm, which was planted in the garden in 1877 by Clarence Meacham, a pioneer now deceased, for his mother, Mrs. Jane Andrews, who passed on many years ago. Mrs. Mock lighted the Christmas tree in honor of Grand President Irwin, who said that she hoped that Santa Ana Parlor, like the huge star lifting its light into the sky, would shed the white rays of light and joy, progress and knowledge into the world. The company grouped upon the velvety lawn surrounding the tree sang "I Love You, California." Fifty Native Daughters, including large delegations from Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Pedro, enjoyed a sumptuous dinner in the inn diningroom, where the magic lights from the Christmas tree shown into the windows, the banquet being in honor of the Grand President and the Grand Secretary. The tables were gay with Yuletide trimmings. Large red candles, showered with silver tinsel, were set inside Christmas wreaths of red, a huge poinsettia being placed at intervals about the festal board.

Knights of Columbus hall, where the impressive institutional ceremonies took place, was a symphony in red, with its large baskets filled with poinsettias, the queenly Christmas flower, and garlands of the graceful red-berried pepper branches. The beautiful banners at each station and the flags of our country and of the Order added to the scene. After the routine business had been accomplished, it was found that the new Parlor had not broken the state institution record, which is held by Rudecinda Parlor of San Pedro with 106, although 120 had signed the charter. The Grand President officiated at the ceremonies, assisted by the following: Clara Fay, Past Grand President Grace Stoermer, D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, Charlotte Bennett, Leonora Dodd, Charlotte Wharton, Nora Baly, Carrie Lenhouse, Grand Secretary Alice H. Daugherty, Jennie Raymond, Mrs. McPherson, Daisy Hanson and Mrs. Burbridge. Gifts to the "baby" Parlor were then presented: Rudecinda Parlor, a check for $15; Long Beach Parlor, flags for the altar, and Los Angeles Parlor a flag for the president's station. The Grand President introduced Mrs. Louise Mock, the president of the new Parlor, who received the gifts with a gracious word of thanks, after which the charter was given into her hands.

The candidates, numbering 100 of the representative women of Orange County, were then initiated by a ritual team made up of the following: Katherine Ronin, Bertha Hitt, Katherine Ross, Jennie Raymond, Irene Eden, Rose Ford, Gertrude Allen, Mary Halbertson, Ruth Ring, Mary Thomas, Anna Adair, Flora Haly, Edith Schallmo, Helen K. Cervantes. Then followed the installation of the officers of Santa Ana Parlor by D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, and presentations to Grand President Irwin, Grand Secretry Daugherty, Past Grand President Stoermer, D.D.G.P. Thomas, and Mrs. Bertha Hitt, the organizer of the "baby" Parlor. The end of a perfect day came with the rendition of vocal solos by Mrs. Helen Cervantes of Long Beach Parlor and the serving of refreshments.

The destinies of Santa Ana Parlor are in the hands of the following corps of officers: Pres-

MASQUERADE JANUARY 21.

The annual Christmas party of Los Angeles Parlor No 45 N S G W at Native Sons' Hall, December 17, will ever be remembered by the large number in attendance, and particularly the children, who were shown every attention and were especially entertained by Mrs. William Sagar and William G. Newell. From a beautifully decorated tree, Santa Claus, ideally impersonated by President Sidney B Witkowski, gave the "kids" all sorts of toys, candy, nuts, fruits, etc.

With the compliments of the Parlor, gifts were presented to the following grand officers, who were guests of the evening: Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Marshal Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge, John T. Newell, Frank I. Gonzalez and John S. Ramsay, Past Grand Presidents Herman C. Lichtenberger and William I. Traeger. A check for $25 was the Parlor's gift to Munro H. Keith, one of its members who for months has been confined to the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle as the result of an accident, and who was present in a wheelchair to enjoy the occasion. The successful affair was supervised by the Parlor's energetic good of the order committee.

Los Angeles' officers, with Andrew M. Stodel as president, will be installed jointly with those of Corona Parlor at 5402 Hollywood boulevard January 11. At Native Sons' Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street, the Parlor will feature a masquerade ball January 21. Every member of Los Angeles received an attractive holiday greeting card from the Parlor.

FLAGS FOR BABIES' HOME.

December 17 the Los Angeles County Native Sons and Native Daughters' Homeless Children Committee presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the Allen Junior Home for Babies, where the committee has its headquarters, in charge of Secretary Annie L. Adair, who was complimented on all sides for the success of the home-finding work in the southern part of the state.

Irving Baxter presided, and introduced Judge Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand President N.S.G.W., who delivered the presentation address, which was responded to by Allen Ratteree who, with his wife, built the home for the care of homeless infants. The flags were hoisted by Allen Ratteree Junior. The home, which is modern in every particular, was then inspected, and delicious refreshments were served.

be beautified with shade trees, shrubbery and flowers. Entrance to the enclosure is over ten broad granite steps leading from the Escondido-Ramona highway.

The monument consists of a huge boulder, estimated to weigh thirty-five tons, which was rolled down into the enclosure from the cactus-covered hillside. It was in the cactus that the American forces entrenched themselves before their slaughter at the hands of the Mexican lancers. In the boulder is set a bronze plaque, twenty-six inches wide by forty-six inches high, with the following inscription:

ie singing was led by Harold Hodge. Imomptu remarks were made by Colonel Ed.
etcher, James Webb, Ed Johnson and Juan autista Campbell. The two latter are descend-its of heroes of San Pasqual. Campbell, a mem-r of San Deigo Parlor N.S.G.W., was born at nta Barbara in 1845. Among those who witssed the ceremonies were many Native Sons id Native Daughters of San Diego City, John T. ewell of Los Angeles, Grand Trustee N.S.G.W., d Albert V. Mayrhofer of San Diego, Deputy and President N.S.G.W.

The bodies of the San Pasqual heroes were ried on the scene of action, but later were moved to the Benington government cemetery Point Loma where, for many years, their rial-place was marked by a plain slab labeled Unknown Dead." Not long ago the Native Sons d Native Daughters of San Diego, after much fficulty, succeeded in getting the names of ose who made the supreme sacrifice at San squal. Then they had a huge boulder moved om the battlefield to the government buryingound, and in it imbedded a bronze plaque with e names of the heroes. That monument took e place of the plain "Unknown Dead" slab, and nds in the Benington government cemetery
Point Loma as a memorial to those brave en who contributed their all that California ght become one of the United States.—C.M.H.

HOOL ENROLLMENT SHOWS CALIFORNIA'S POPULATION INCREASE.

Sacramento—California, according to State perintendent Will C. Wood, has a larger blic-school enrollment, based on population, an any other state in the union. The 1924-25 rollment totaled 1,118,830, compared with )55,752 for 1923-24.

The high-school enrollment increased from 6,148 to 347,979, the elementary-school total om 662,213 to 675,087, the kindergartens om 51,383 to 58,760, and the teachers' colges from 7,516 to 8,945. The total publicool enrollment has more than doubled since 16, when it was 557,350.

THE BARENECK DAME.

Sacramento—The State Department of Public struction received December 11 from an un-own source a parody on Whittier's "Barefoot y," with a suggestion that it be printed in the blic-school textbooks "to meet present condins." The lines follow:

"Blessings on thee, little dame,
Bare of neck and knees the same;
With thy rolled down silken hose,
And thy thin transparent clothes;
With thy pretty made-up face,
And thy bobbed hair's jaunty grace;
With thy red lips, reddened more
With thy lipstick from the store.
With all my heart I give thee joy.
Thank the Lord, I was born a boy!"

met in joint session at the former's meeting-place December 16 to receive Grand President Sue J. Irwin, the occasion being her official visit. Preceding the meeting supper was served under the supervision of a committee headed by Miss Grace Norton.

The meeting was attended by 200, including many visitors. Twelve candidates were initiated for Los Angeles, the ritual being effectively rendered by the Parlor's officers, headed by President Kathryn Ronan. Presentations were made to Grand President Irwin, Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer and D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, all of whom made addresses of response, and other speakers included Charlotte K. Bennett, Kathryn Ronan, Bertha Hitt, Florence Schoneman and Annie L. Adair. In the course of her remarks Mrs. Adair presented Mollie Wilcox-Hurd with an emblematic pin made from the gold of El Dorado County, where Mrs. Hurd was born. It was a gift from the Los Angeles delegation to the Placerville Grand Parlor last June, and was made in appreciation for the courtesies extended by the recipient at that time.

SURPRISE VISIT.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. has re-elected for the January-July term its present entire corps of officers, which means that Burrel D. Neighbours, as president, will continue to guide the Parlor's destinies for another six months. Before the expiration of his second term as president, Neighbours hopes to have Ramona's long-talked-of new home well under way. Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler paid a surprise visit to Ramona December 4, and delivered a greatly enjoyed talk on California.

January 15 Ramona will initiate a class of candidates, and on January 29 the good of the order committee, Leon J. Leonard chairman, will have charge. "Skinny" promises lots of fun that night, and all the "gang" are requested to turn out.

STUDENTS DELIGHTED.

Sheriff William I. Traeger, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., delighted the students of the Glendale Union high-school with a half-hour talk on the history of California, December 1.

He was accompanied by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V Mayrhofer, William E. Agard and Walter E Kent of Glendale Parlor.

At noon of the same day, Sheriff Traeger addressed the Glendale Knights of the Round Table, and won the hearty applause of his auditors.

RESPONSE GRATIFYING.

Irving Baxter, chairman of the Los Angeles County Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Homeless Children Committee, reports a gratifying response to the Christmas letter requesting funds to carry on the work of finding homes for homeless children.

For the benefit of this charity fund an entertainment will be given February 15 and 19 at the Philharmonic theater. All Natives and their friends are urged to keep these dates open.

JOINT INSTALLATION.

The new quarters of Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. at 5402 Hollywood boulevard were invaded by a big crowd from all the Parlors, December 14, when the official housewarming was held. Among the many in attendance were Past Grand President William I. Traeger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, District Deputy William Coffey. All expressed their delight at the selection made by Corona for its new home. The opening affair was in every particular a decided success.

January 11 the officers of Los Angeles and Corona, with John W. Topham and Andrew M. Stodel as the respective presidents, will be jointly installed at the latter Parlor's meeting-place. District Deputy Coffey will be the installing officer, and he will be assisted by a full corps of officers from Ramona Parlor. January 18, Corona will feature an enteratinment in charge of Justice Samuel R. Blake, who promises a knockout. February 8 has been selected by the Parlor as the date for a valentine dance.

OFFICIAL VISITS.

Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N.S.G.W. received an official visit December 3 from Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi, who delivered an address which aroused the enthusiasm of his auditors. Other speakers, among the visitors of the evening, were Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, Grand Trustee John T. Newell and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer.

Vaquero will hold an important meeting Wednesday, January 6, at Native Sons' Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street. At that time officers will be selected and a course of action for the Parlor's upbuilding will be outlined. A full attendance is desired.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The California chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution have a state committee on genealogical research at work, endeavoring to perpetuate all records of pioneer families of the Middle Western states who have removed to California. The records are to be typewritten and bound, and one copy is to be placed in the Genealogical Library of Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, D. C., and another deposited in the California State Library at Sacramento.

"There are portions of California," says the committee, "which were not settled in its pio-

RUSSIAN COLONISTS OF 1812

HOW CALIFORNIA WAS SAVED FROM becoming a Russian province through the famous proclamation of President James Monroe, was related by Laurance L. Hill, publicity manager of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, in a recent address at the Norwalk, Los Angeles County, Forum. Hill said, in part:

"Had it not been for Monroe we would celebrate Admission Day September 10 rather than September 9 and it would be a Russian rather than an American holiday. For it was on September 10, 1812, while America was busily engaged in war with England, that Russia took possession of the rich country around Bodega Bay and formally dedicated Fort Ross on a point on the coast about thirty miles north of San Francisco. Here the czar's envoys remained for thirty years in an attempt to get final possession of California.

"Most of us always think of the Monroe Doctrine in terms of Central and South America, but when that outstanding American president issued his famous warning to European powers to confine their spheres of influence to other continents than the American continents, he had Russia and its colonization of California as much in his mind as anything else.

"The czar's ukase of 1822 closing the North Pacific to foreign vessels and establishing the undisputed supremacy of Russia in Alaska and the northwest coast, undoubtedly hastened Monroe in taking his momentous step, for the very next year he proclaimed the doctrine that ever since has been the policy of each succeeding administration. That Russia took the United States at its word is indicated by the fact that in 1924 that country agreed to limit all future settlement to the territory north of our present northwest boundary.

"The colonists continued to hold Fort Ross until 1840, however, but made no attempt to extend its official influence. They held themselves aloof from all matters political, and occupied themselves in the fur trade, agriculture and dairying. In 1841 they sold out all their holdings to John Sutter of Sutter's Fort fame. As the historian says, 'In this undramatic fashion the threatened Russian control of California came to an end.' It is a mistake, however, to minimize the significance of the czar's enterprise or to overlook the potential menace it presented to the future development of United States. If Russian dreams had realized, how tremendously changed the wo history might have been!"

Hill said that anyone speaking along his ical lines in Norwalk "should do so with reverence, as this community is one of the est in Southern California and was a thri place before Pasadena, Long Beach, Glend Santa Monica and many other places of were even thought of."

He made a plea for greater knowledge of history of California in general, and of o own community in particular, and conte that no state or community becomes really g whose citizens are not acquainted with and p of its history. "The people who blazed the to California and established our cities towns were of heroic mold and we should k more of them," he concluded.

PACIFIC HIGHWAY DECLARED REMARKABLE ROAD ACCOMPLISHME

In selecting the series of transcontine roadways to be officially recognized as Un States highways, says the "National Motor the joint board on interstate highways, appo ed by the federal secretary of agriculture, given California two north and south li reaching from British Columbia to the Mex border. These routes are numbered 99 101, respectively, and follow the alignmen the Pacific highway and the road down the c

Route No. 99, the Pacific highway, is on the most remarkable road accomplishments istent, supplying 2,000 miles of pavement w is practically all completed, the exception b from Redding, in Shasta County, California the Oregon State line, with a few small lake the vicinity of Mount Shasta. This route inates in Blaine, Washington, crosses thro Tacoma, Olympia, Washington; Portland Grants Pass, Oregon; Yreka, Redding, Red B Willows, Davis, Sacramento, Stockton, and th through Los Angeles, San Bernardino an Centro to the Mexican border.

EARLY DAY INDIAN LORE WILL BE INVESTIGAT

The Lake Arrowhead Historical Societ going to launch an investigation into the In lore of early days in the mountain country the desert, according to H. M. O'Malley, ident of the society.

In 1847 Captain Jefferson Hunt, who leader of the Mormon battalion in the wa tween Mexico and the United States, visited valley and later returned with a Mormon tingent to lay out the City of San Bernardi

His party of 1851 camped for a time on wash of Lytle Creek before proceeding to valley and erecting log houses and stock In '53 and '54 Hunt received the governi concessions for the pony express from San nardino to Salt Lake City, but four years Brigham Young called his followers bac Utah in an effort to centralize his church i ests there.

The settlers followed much the same rou the well-kept Arrowhead trail of today wit 800 miles of good roads. In those days, ever, the journey was a hazardous underta and the ox caravans traveled through the M Desert and entered Cajon Pass with con vigilance against hostile Indians.

After the days of log huts and picket s ades the city was laid out and today's San nardino is practically the identical plan of ea days.

In order to build more pretentious struc sawmills were established sixteen miles up erman's Canyon—one at Seely's Flat, an at Houston's Flat and the third at Hunt's F nd the remains are interesting sights in the mountains today.

Even then the Indians had gazed with superstitious awe on the Arrowhead emblazoned in the mountainside a quarter of a mile in length and believed it to be the work of a good spirit.

Relics of early Indian days and authentic information about tribal customs will be the goal of the investigation to be undertaken by the Lake Arrowhead Historical Society, according to officials of that organization.

ter period and which have been settled in later years largely by the descendants of pioneers of the Middle Western states. The records of these families will not be preserved in the records of the Middle Western states, inasmuch as they have been removed to California; and they are just as valuable as are the records of the descendants of California Pioneers. The object is to connect these pioneers of California and of the Middle West with the place and ancestry from which they came, but records should not be discarded because they cannot be carried that far."

The information must be forthcoming by February 1, and the committee expresses the belief that "There is hardly any one living in this state who will not personally know the descendants of at least two California pioneer families or two Middle Western families."

Mrs. Evelyn Ford-Darling of Eschscholtzia Chapter, D. A. R., Los Angeles, has charge of this work in the southern portion of California, and seeks the co-operation of the general public. Her address is 1880 Rimpau boulevard, and on request she will furnish an outline of the information wanted for these records.

LOS ANGELES' POPULATION.

The population of Los Angeles City is now 1,153,346, compared to 576,673 at the time of the 1920 federal census, according to a survey of the "Times." The survey is based on the following statistics:

Report of superintendent of schools of public schools enrollment of 121,046 at the close of 1919, and 274,263 at the close of 1925, an increase of 153,217, or 126.6 percent.

Report of the city water bureau of 101,038 domestic water services in the city at the close of 1919, and 197,476 at the close of 1925, an increase of 96,438, or 93.4 percent.

Report of 90.8 percent increase in the number of names listed in the Los Angeles City directory at the close of 1925, as compared with the directory issued January 1920. Report of 95 percent increase in the number of residence telephones in the city.

The "Times" also estimates the population of the Los Angeles metropolitan district as 1,758,016, compared with 879,008 in 1920.

ASSIST IN HUMANE WORK.

Citizens are urgently requested to assist the Department of Humane Treatment of Animals of the City of Los Angeles in its efforts to more adequately handle the humane work. This is the official department of the city government for the handling of the humane work of the city, such as taking care of stray, diseased or abandoned animals, and for the collection of dog licenses.

Anyone knowing of any cruelty, anyone who sees an injured animal or has knowledge of any sick or suffering animal that is not receiving needed attention, is urged to telephone such information to the headquarters of this department at Forty-sixth and Alameda streets, either HUmbolt 4881 or MEtropolitan 5200, station 15.

THE DEATH RECORD.

"WORLD COURT" A TRAP!

UNLESS A NEAR-MIRACLE INTERvenes, the United States will be projected into the League of Nations, through the Court of International Justice—generally referred to as the World Court—transom, before this mber of The Grizzly Bear is circulated. A jority of the United States Senate will do projecting, not because the masses so deed, but because a minority of the citizenry, werful in influence, demanded that the proting-act be accomplished, and accomplished ore The People could be heard; hence, clo e.

Who will pay the enormous cost of this stupdous blunder this surrendering, in the one ndred and fiftieth anniversary-year of its indpendence, of the freedom of the United States a combination of European and Asiatic naons? Not that insignificant minority represted in the United States Senate by a major- but that vast majority of The People who st always, until they rise up in their might l demand their rights, pay the fiddlers' bills. d the price? War,—the cost of which, in n and money, will be foisted upon the United tes,—within the decade!

Despite the numerous propaganda smokeens that have been, and are being, sent out the advocates of the League of Nations, reted, so far as this country is concerned, by People and the Senate, the World Court is t and parcel of the League of Nations. Its ges will be those approved of by the league, they will do the bidding of the league. If re be any doubt on that point, it should be pelled by the written declaration of the gue's secretary-general: "The COURT is to the MOST ESSENTIAL PART OF the organion of the LEAGUE of Nations!"

The whole World Court scheme was conceived European and Asiatic wiseacres as an instrut through which the United States, contrary the will of The People, could be coerced into oming affiliated with the League of Nations. re was a proposal before the Senate to sub the court question to a national referendum. t should have been done, for The People st carry the additional burdens that adhesion the World Court will surely bring upon this ntry. But it was not done, for the court ponents know full well that a vast majority The People of the United States are opposed his country's entry into the World Court or liating, directly or indirectly, with the League Nations or any of its creatures, by whatever designated.

Two powerful factions have endeavored to e the World Court upon the United States— Federation of Churches of Christ in America e Protestant Church Federation) with its merous peace, good-will, etc., subsidiaries, the money-trust. To save the latter's for- investments prior to and during the early es of the world-war, this country was forced that conflict, and now, to protect its addi- al foreign investments since the war, the t devoutly desires that the United States me a party to the League of Nations, indily through the World Court. These figures, orted by The National City Bank of New k, are synonymous: During 1925, foreign s absorbed in the United States totaled $1,-,256,500; in the past seven years, the for- loans have mounted to almost $5,600,000,-, the past year's total being twenty-four per- of the whole. In exchange for protect- the money-trust's investments abroad, the ted States, of course, should comply with the es of the borrowing European and Asiatic ntries and become part and parcel of the rld Court! Then, the court will decide that e countries are not obligated to pay their -debts to this nation, and very likely means be devised whereby their obligations to the ey-trust will be assumed by the United es.

s for the American Church Federation, it ld consent to almost any sacrifice, on the part of the United States, to have repealed the Federal Immigration Law, and particularly that section which excludes aliens ineligible to citizenship. One of the very first questions that will be brought before the World Court, when this country becomes a party thereto, is that of racial equality. The international record on that question is sufficiently convincing to indicate, even to the most devout pro-courter, that the decision of the World Court will remove the immigration-bars set up by this country for its protection. Then the Japs can complete their "peaceful invasion" and claim California and the Pacific Coast for their own, and in return for the service rendered the Church Federation can continue its missionary endeavors in Japan!

All the reservations that the United States could possibly attach to its entrance into the World Court cannot prevent the court from rendering an advisory opinion on any question brought before it by a member of the League of Nations, and that includes every country that has an immigration or a debt grievance against this country. The statute creating the court specifies: "The jurisdiction of the court comprises all cases which the parties refer to it," and "The court may also give an advisory opinion upon any dispute or question referred to it." It is generally conceded, by both pro-courters and anti-courters, that the World Court, a creature of the League of Nations, has authority to consider any question brought before it by any of its adherents. As for the reservations on behalf of this country, an eminent British diplomat truthfully declared: "Let them [the United States] come in with the reservations. After they are in, they [the reservations] will amount to nothing."

Once the United States has entered into the World Court, all the reservations of the Senate will not amount to the paper written upon, so far as concerns preventing the court from passing judgment on any question submitted to it. Which means that, being led into the World Court by the Church Federation, the money-trust and other pro-courters, the United States will, in future, be governed by and its destiny will be entrusted to, a coterie of European and Asiatic diplomats who love the United States to the same degree that the devil loves holy-water. And as for California, this devil-invented World Court scheme being foisted upon the United States, the Alien Land Law will be nullified and this state, along with the balance of the Pacific Coast, will become completely Japanized!

The handwriting on the wall is very plain! When the World Court proposal was submitted to the United States Senate it would have been rejected, instanter, by that body—for a big majority of the Senate know full well that it is inimical to the country's best interests—had it not been for that provision in the 1924 Republican national platform which declared: "We endorse the Permanent Court of International Justice and favor the adherence of the United States to this tribunal." In that connection, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho,—more power to him—chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a staunch World Court opponent, well declared: "The senator who believes that this court is a dangerous proposition for his country, believes it inimical to the interests of his country and still votes for the court because it is in his platform, is the slimiest creature that ever wiggled his way across this Senate floor."

The Alturas, Modoc County, "Plain Dealer" rejoices that the new Lava Beds National Monument, in Modoc and Siskiyou Counties, has been created, for it believes that the vandalism which has been rampant in the area will now be stopped. It points out that, among other things, rocks upon which the Indian inhabitants left their messages have been painted over with fantastic designs, in places almost obliterating the original inscriptions.

"Such acts of vandalism," says the "Plain Dealer," "give the average citizen cause to wonder if the time is not coming when all interesting places in God's great outdoors accessible to the public must not be securely fenced and padlocked to save them from the few brainless idiots at large among an otherwise intelligent people."

Discovery was recently made, in a celery garden near Los Angeles, that a poison insecticide three hundred times as strong as the law permits, had been used by Jap celery-growers. Dr. J. L. Pomeroy, Los Angeles County health officer, said sufficient poison was used to kill the population of a large town.

The Grizzly Bear has frequently pointed out the danger to health in eating Jap-grown produce, particularly that which, like celery, lettuce, strawberries, etc., grows near the ground, for the Japs pay no attention to the health laws. They make a practice of using insecticides in deadly quantities and of fertilizing with human offal.

A law should be passed compelling the labeling of all Jap-grown produce as such. This should be done in the interest of the public health. Then, those who prefer the Jap products could purchase them knowingly, and those who do not care to endanger their health would be protected.

State Controller Ray L. Riley, in the course of a recent San Jose address, said "It is probably cheaper to rent a home than own one." This serious situation has been brought about by the ever-growing burden of taxation placed upon real estate. In 1924, $500,000,000 was required in California to pay the costs of state, city and county governments, and 75 percent of that vast amount came from the taxation of real estate and its improvements.

Real estate taxation, as the state controller says, "should have the consideration of every person who is interested in the future stability of the government, for home-owning is one of the greatest assets that a nation can have."

The State Immigration and Housing Commission, in its annual report, recommended legislation to restrict immigration from Mexico into California. It was pointed out that 7 percent of Los Angeles County's population is Mexican, of the common-labor variety; that 53 2/3 percent of the charitable work of the Bureau of Catholic Charities of Los Angeles City is among Mexicans, and that they claim 73 percent of the work of that city's maternity service. In Orange County, 50 percent of the county-aid cases are Mexicans, and they comprise one-half the inmates of the San Diego County hospital.

Heed should be given this warning! As a

NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW

E. M. Gore

CALIFORNIA'S NATIONAL ORANGE Show, presented annually at San Bernardino and considered the most magnificently colorful midwinter event of the Pacific Coast region, will open for the sixteenth consecutive year, February 18, for a ten-day exposition of the citrus industry, set to music, closing February 28.

A new record for both attendance and splendor of display was set last year when the National Orange Show was held for the first time in its fine new permanent home. But members of the executive committee predict that this year will establish a new precedent for expositions, both in number and enthusiasm of visitors, and in quality of presentation, from scheme of decoration to spacious accommodations for guests.

One of the most popular features of the National Orange Shows in past years has been the custom of allotting certain visiting days to certain communities and organizations. Each community plans to "invade" San Bernardino on the special day set aside for it, and give the Orange Show a rousing send-off. Much is made of this custom, and this year, even more attention than ever before is to be given to the various "special days."

ty, color and riches, representing California's great citrus industry, ruled by "King Orange," monarch of "Citrusland."

The new National Orange Show auditorium is one of the largest and most picturesque exposition buildings in the West. The front is designed after the mission architecture of early California, with wide-arched portals, mission bells, and a pillared portico surrounding a sparkling fountain. Covering a floor space of more than 100,000 square feet, the new exposition building is about 1,000 feet long, about 140 feet wide, and is laid out in two divisions, joined by a broad corridor.

In the first section is displayed the citrus fruits and their by-products. Each display is the complete work of a master designer and artist, assisted in most cases by all the girls and boys of the community from which it is sent. Truly a community product into which has been woven the real hopes and happiness, as well as the ambitions of the citrus-growers and their families.

With more than twice as much money appropriated as has ever before been expended on interior decorations, the citrus section will this year assume the appearance of an ancient East Indian palace garden, pervaded with that mystic

TYPICAL FEATURE DISPLAY AT SIXTEENTH NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW.
This Year's Citrus Classic at San Bernardino is the Crowning Achievement in Exposition Beauty.

One day will be set aside as "Military Day," in honor of the One Hundred Sixtieth Infantry, California National Guard. The One Hundred Sixtieth Infantry band is to be the official "Orange Show band" and will give daily concerts afternoon and evening. Since N. Lo Forti, world-famous band leader, took charge of this musical unit about a year ago, it has come to be considered one of the finest military bands in the West.

Thousands of people from the various communities in the state band together on their "Special Orange Show day" and literally storm the Orange Show in carload lots, in long motor caravans, and often in costume, headed by their own municipal band. Leading citizens take part in these visitations, and the best speaking and entertaining talent of each city is sent to boost the particular community represented.

No more democratic institution could be conceived. It smacks of the old-time custom back on the farms, when there was an auction or some neighbor invited all his friends from around the country to help him build a new house or barn, or the village minister rounded up his flock to set up a new church.

The carnival spirit fills the air, and old friends who have not met for years often find each other at the Orange Show, each gazing in a daze of wonderment at the overwhelming array of beauatmosphere that seems to ever hang over those strange corners of the Far East.

Huge elephants, in gay trappings, will carry on their broad backs tall columns, which will support a vaulted canopy in deep blue, sparkled over with thousands of twinkling ornaments, representing stars just breaking through the dusk of an Oriental sky to announce the fall of another mysterious night in India.

Grotesque chandeliers, spreading their multicolored lights over rich draperies hung from massive beams overhead, will be suspended from the starlit-sky, and at the sides, above the golden banks of choicest California citrus fruits, realistic reproductions of ancient gardens of historic East Indian princes will depict the early culture of the orange in the private citrus groves of the fastidious royalty of a thousand years ago.

Balconies above, with comfortable seats, have been provided so that visitors may sit above this golden fairyland and feast their eyes upon the colorful activities in full play below them,—a dream pageant, celebrating the sixteenth coronation of "Citrus Princes" in the "Court of King Orange."

Rich awards for the finest fruits displayed have again been posted by the executive board, and citrus-growers from all over California will vie with each other for the honor of being pronounced the producer of the best citrus fruits in the world.

Government and state experts will preser series of demonstrations, giving intensive struction in all phases of citrus culture that be both spectacular and interesting to both itors and exhibitors.

There will be an industrial and transporta display in the second division of the auditori where modern mechanical methods used in ci culture will be demonstrated and explained, the newest automobile, truck and tractor mo will be shown.

Feature entertainments, presented from a h stage in the citrus section, will include solo n bers by internationally famous opera stars, instrumental pieces by leading members of Orange Show band. In addition, a typ "Broadway Music Box Revue," presenting s of the real "Follies" girls of recent New Y productions, will be given daily production.

Every convenience and comfort of the g has been anticipated by those in charge. An dining accommodations in restaurants, cafes, and lunch rooms have been provided. Telepb and telegraph offices have been installed; c modious rest-rooms are available, and doc and trained nurses will be on duty day and n in first-aid stations to take care of everybo health and safety. Parking space for thousa of automobiles has been arranged, and in urban and railroad accommodations are so l dled as to deliver visitors right at the gate the new National Orange Show auditori standing as a monument to unique commu co-operation under the mystic sign of the Arr head, which points significantly toward San l nardino Valley, called, in Indian legends, "C chama," "Place of Plenty."

EXPERIENCES OF A PIONEER MOTHER

[illegible] the interesting story of California Pioneers [illegible] Bear is entitled to Mrs. Olive J. Wilkes of Alameda City, a Pioneer. It was a surprise gift to Mrs. Wilkes from Mr. McKinnon, who arrived in San Francisco in 1852, and was written by her the morning of June 9, 1911, her seventy-ninth birthday anniversary.

Mrs. McKinnon, now nearly ninety-four years of age, resided for several years in and about San Francisco and then went to Salinas City, where she spent twenty years. At present she is residing in Berkeley. Her daughter, Mrs. Susie McKinnon Middlemas, is a resident of Alameda City. Her deceased son-in-law, George Middlemas, was a prominent shipbuilder, he constructed the "Cassandra Adams," one of the largest ships, a three-decker to sail from San Francisco, and also the "Transportation Standard," the first steamer used on beautiful Lake Tahoe. Editor.

THIS MORNING, SUSIE TOLD ME I WAS to sit down in a quiet place and write a sketch of my life. I think that might be considered quite a "stunt," to be performed at a moment's notice by a person of my age. But as she is almost as strenuous a person as "Teddy" himself, I succumbed at once and began my task.

I must admit that my knowledge of affairs on the 9th of June, 1831, is very indistinct—so very dim and uncertain that I can say nothing positive about them, but presume they were in the same line as such events at the present time, missing, however, many of the helps and facilities for comfort that are now considered indispensable.

My first recollections are connected with my grandparents on my mother's side—old-fashioned Christians that taught me to love and trust in God. Conditions were so very different that part of the world, and at that period of the world's history, that the people of today can scarcely conceive the difference. I learned to read, standing between my grandfather's knees, with his arms around me. The Bible was my primer." There were very few books in circulation at that time, and none were of a light and trashy kind. He also taught me to knit, and I continued the reading and knitting till the present time, and always with increasing pleasure.

The place of my birth was Nova Scotia, in a small settlement known as Little River, noted principally for stumps and boulders. It was a hard country to make a living in, but there were strong, helpful men and women raised there. My parents having removed to Saint John, New Brunswick, I remained with my grandparents for three years. Then my mother and three little sisters came to take me home. I remember perfectly the day, and how astonished I was at the two little black-eyed girls with blue dresses who would not let me touch the baby, who was their little sister. My mother, I thought, a most lovely person, when she took me on her lap and hugged me. I was only a little girl, and it was such a strange experience. In those days, letters were not written as often as they are now, and three years was a long time to be separated from one's mother.

I had been very happy. The stumps and boulders represented people and places to me, and after my stent of knitting was finished I could play. Of course, my playmates were all imaginary, but I had company and went visiting in a very primitive fashion, no doubt, still quite happily, as I remember spreading my little feasts of good things and talking with my friends. There were never any quarrels, as there was no one able to answer back—possibly a good thing. At the end of the summer we all returned to Saint John, and I began my school life, so different from school life here and now. There were no public-schools in that country, and I doubt if there are many now. Our school opened with the reading of a portion of Scripture and prayer. We were all admonished to close our eyes during prayer. One morning, by some means, my eyes opened. A small boy near me also opened his eyes, but as he was not friendly with me at the time we were no sooner settled in our seats than he held up his hand. "What is it, Master Hewett?" "Miss Kinney had her eyes opened during prayer." "How did you see her?" And then the climax—he was punished for telling tales, and I went free with a slight reprimand.

I lived in Saint John till I was grown up, and was married there. Susie [Mrs. Susie McKinnon-Middlemas] was born on a bleak, blizzardy day in February—I won't say what year, as she might object—she is getting a little particular. For myself, I feel rather proud of the number of my years.

My father [Captain Simeon Bartlett Kinney] sailed for California in April of the same year on the ship "Duke of Wellington," bringing with him my sister, Fanny, the eldest of the little black-eyed girls mentioned before. Then my mother began preparations for coming to California—that wonderful unknown country that all the world was talking about. All our belongings were disposed of, and we moved to Boston and began to be Americanized. After a few months, my mother became ill, and in a few weeks died and was buried in Copp's Hill cemetery. My husband [Captain John Osborn McKinnon] had arrived from Liverpool while she was ill, and remained a short time after her death. Then his ship was ready for sea, and of course he had to go.

I was alone in almost a strange land, with two sisters and a brother in my care to bring to my father in California,—my mother's last request. It was a great undertaking for one who had always depended on mother, but God helped and guided me, and one year from the day she died, the 12th of October, 1852, we sailed from Boston on the ship "George Raynes" for California, where we arrived safely on the 19th of February, 1853—a voyage of one hundred and twenty-seven days. I had gained a new member for my family—a dear baby girl was born on the Pacific side of Cape Horn, and was a great pleasure to all on board. She was named for the ship, and Captain Penhallow presented her with a silver cup on our arrival in San Francisco.

We went from the "George Raynes" to the brig "Ruby," my father's vessel, in which he had just returned from Valparaiso with a cargo of apples. They were sold, I remember, for one dollar a pound. After three months, the brig was sold and we moved to the "Pleiades," an old whaler from New Bedford. At that time there were hundreds of ships lying in the harbor, deserted by their officers and crews. Several of them had families living on them, others had keepers. The masters of them were used as storeships for all kinds of merchandise, and the goods of whatever nature were lightered on shore as they were needed. There were then no warehouses.

When we went on board the "Pleiades," she was lying at Stuart-street wharf, with her bow resting on Drumm street. The people who claimed the lot wanted the ship to be moved. The people who owned the ship were trying to hold the lot which, even then, was considered valuable. One night we were aroused from our sleep by the noise of a pile-driver at work. On looking out, we discovered we were being "piled in." There was quite a rumpus, much swearing and loud talking. But the next day we were towed into the stream, and later onto the flats, near what was then known as "Boiler Straits," just at the end of Rincon Hill. The "Pleiades" was afterwards sunk at the end of Beale street, filled with rock for a bulkhead.

We spent many pleasant days on the "Pleiades," at anchor in the open roadstead, though sometimes we would have rough weather, when a good southeaster would blow and there would be a heavy sea on. She had a two-story house built on her that reached to the maintop. It was made of doors and windows that had been sent from China for houses that were never completed, and looked exactly like a "Noah's Ark." I have a pencil drawing of her.

After we had been there some time, Stuart-street wharf was built, and piers on the inside of it were piled, timbered and planked. One of these piers came so near to the stern of our ship that a plank out of the stern window of the ship made a way for us to walk to the wharf and so go ashore without going in a boat. Often when the afternoon wind would blow the vessel,

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

A SUCCESSION OF HEAVY STORMS during February 1876 piled up a record rainfall in California. On the 8th an unusually heavy storm broke over the southern portion of the state. Four inches of rain fell in Los Angeles, making a total of twenty inches for the season.

When crossing Ono Creek, the stage from San Diego was swept out to sea. The horses were drowned, but the driver and two passengers swam ashore. At Wilmington, two vessels were wrecked.

In the northern section of the state, the flood submerged Grizzly Island, in Suisun Bay, and drowned 600 cattle and several thousand head of sheep. The levee broke above Colusa City and a large portion of Colusa County was overflowed.

In a spirit of economy, the Assembly of the State Legislature, in session at Sacramento, abolished the position of chaplain February 11. Several of the members went on an excursion to Truckee, Nevada County, the 19th, as guests of the Central Pacific directors, and frolicked in the snow. Washington's Birthday, February 22, was observed by adjournment. A bill was introduced in the Assembly forbidding the sale of liquor of an intoxicating nature within a radius of four miles of the University of California, at Berkeley.

State Controller J. W. Mandeville died at Sacramento, February 4, at the age of 52. He came to California from New York in 1849 and was prominent in politics since 1850, when he represented Tuolumne County in the State Assembly.

On the 10th, the governor appointed W. B. C. Brown of Sacramento to fill Mandeville's unexpired term. This was an exemplification of the fact that there is some times luck in politics. Brown was defeated for the nomination of secretary of state at the Democratic state convention by a narrow margin after a hard fight. Now he got a better state office, for within a few months of the four-year term, without the expense or the labor of a state campaign.

W. W. Pendergast, one of the most popular public men of the state, died at Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, February 29. His last public service was as a member of the State Senate from Napa County. He was a brilliant orator and posessed such dramatic ability that his rendition of the character of "Richelieu" was considered unequaled by any professional.

NO CHINKS WANTED.

General Martin Shuey died at Oakland, February 13, at the age of 91. He left a wife 88 years of age, eleven children, the oldest son being 70, and forty grandchildren.

Dr. T. M. Logan of Sacramento, a physician and scientist of high ability, died February 13. He came to California in 1849 from South Carolina. He located in the Capital City and kept a meteorological record since that made him an authority on weather conditions.

James Lick, the philanthropic San Francisco Pioneer, notified the Board of Supervisors of Santa Clara County that if one Chinaman was employed in the construction of the wagon road to the observatory on the summit of Mount Hamilton, he would not give a dollar.

Lompoc, Santa Barbara County, established as a temperance colony, now had a population of 200 families, with 4,000 acres under cultivation.

A peculiar fad of the times, claimed to be due to the big influx of silver money from the Comstock Lode's extraordinary production, was the five percent premium on gold. For a $20 gold-piece, one had to pay $21.50 silver; but, if one had a $20 gold-piece to sell, he could get but $21 in silver for it. The Israelites in the money changing business—for currency was bought and sold like any other commodity—made the premium from Gentile necessities and were waxing wealthy.

Charles Page picked up on Main street, Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, February 4, a chispa worth $14 washed out by the rain.

Rich placer diggings, reported found on Coso Creek, gave Bakersfield, Kern County, much excitement.

Thomas Wagner picked up in El Dorado County a gold nugget weighing seven and one-half ounces, worth $130. A short time previously he found in his placer one that weighed fifteen ounces.

Don Mateo Keller, on the Malaga rancho in Los Angeles County, had an oyster bed in a bay there with millions of spawn visible.

A farmer named Nealy, at Healdsburg, Sonoma County, claimed to have raised the champion pumpkin in California. It was six feet eight inches in circumference and weighed 205 pounds.

COUNTRY PRODUCES STAR DEFAULTER.

Spearing salmon-trout ascending the Napa River was one of the amusements of Napa Valley people.

It was rescued in time to g[et] the ax and be fit for the dinner table.

Susanville, Lassen County, reported a mete[or] about eight feet long passing over that locali[ty] February 1. It left behind a streak of pur[ple] light.

A cub grizzly captured in Shasta County year before had now grown to 700 pounds size. It was shipped February 14 to a Liverpo[ol] England, zoo, which purchased it from Capt[ain] Burns, its owner.

While a small defaulter developed nea[rly] every day in San Francisco, due to fast livi[ng] conditions there, it remained for the country produce the star performer this month. La[ngs]ing, the cashier of the Kern Valley bank Bakersfield, working on the books until late night the 17th, was found lying insensible at t[he] back door in the morning and claimed he h[ad] been summoned there and then hit on the he[ad] with a club. The bank had been robbed of $2[3],000, of which $22,000 was county funds, a[nd] had to suspend. Subsequently Lansing w[as] forced to confess and some of the money w[as] recovered.

February opened with a stage robbery on 1st near Comptonville, Yuba County, where Downieville, Sierra County, stage was stopp[ed] by three men, and the express-box with $2[,] taken.

At Colusa, February 2, a man named Jar[vis] was thrown from a horse and had his leg brok[en] While on the ground, disabled, he was rob[bed] of $29 by a passing reprobate.

MEN THE WALLFLOWERS.

Fire at Chico, Butte County, February 27, stroyed a dozen buildings, mostly busin[ess] places, and caused a $25,000 loss.

A big fire at San Quentin State Prison F[ebru]ary 28 destroyed several shops and caused loss to the state and the contractors of o[ver] $300,000. No prisoners escaped, but a la[rge] force of policemen were sent from San Franc[isco] to act as guards.

Two miners were engaged in a game of sev[en]s up in the rear room of a Downieville, Sie[rra] County, store when the town minister came and looked on a few minutes. Laying a h[and] gently upon Sam's shoulder he asked: "[My] friend, do you think this is the way to save y[our] soul?" "No," replied Sam, "but it is the o[nly] way I could have played to save my jack."

This being a leap year, February 14, Valen[tine] Day, was replete with leap-year balls at w[hich] the women ran things and the men were wallflowers.

At Sacramento, February 20, a Mother G[oose] party, sponsored by the wealthy Crocker f[amily] for the benefit of an orphan asylum, wa[s] fashion novelty and a great success.

David Turley, who killed a man at a horse a year before, was hanged February 25 at Sacramento jail.

In the settlement of a dispute in Colusa C[oun]ty, February 17, D. R. Graves instantly k[illed] Daniel Morgan.

Quarreling over personal matters, Step[hen] Baker killed Mose Robinson at Red Bluff, T[eh]ama County, February 1.

Thomas Wilson, 23, and Minor Wallace, [20] started on snowshoes for Susanville, La[ssen] County, from Lassen Valley, February 8, [and] both were frozen to death on the way.

being so high out of the water, would list over as if under a heavy press of canvas, and so would make a bed for herself. Then when the tide went out, she would roll to leeward into the bed she had made, and we would roll out of ours and have to put our mattresses to leeward also till she floated again. At that time my sister, Fanny, lived on a ship called the "Oracle." She would come with her baby and sewing and spend the afternoon with me, and I would return the visit with my two little ones. We traveled by boat then; perhaps our children's children will fly on their afternoon visits.

Young women were very few and far between at that time, consequently at evening our ship would have a string of boats made fast to t float alongside—visitors of my sisters, who we very presentable girls at the time we were the One of them, my sister Kitty, was married board, and sailed the next day with her husba for Sitka, and was the first American woman enter that historic town.

While we lived there, the building now kno as the "Sailors' Home" was erected by the g ernment for a hospital. I remember on Thanksgiving Day the first patients were tak ashore from the "Polk" and carried to the n hospital. How many recollections of the p come to my memory!

After a few years, we moved to a house Second street, near Mission, a four-room "cl and paper" affair, as the houses were known those days, two rooms downstairs and two roo upstairs. They were very small, so I had ro attached to the ends of my baby-carriage, wheels and top removed, ring-bolts screwed t the studding through the cotton ceiling, a when my baby was made comfortable for the c she was hoisted up so that we might have ro to move about. These difficulties and ma shifts would seem very hard now, but those w pioneer days, and we had not become acc tomed to the ease and luxury that everyb claims as their right now.

Second street was on the extreme limit of town of San Francisco. Across the street fr us were sandhills, chaparral and poison-o which my sisters discovered to their sorr when they found their faces swollen beyond r ognition.

After living there awhile, we went to Rin Hill, which at that time had several very g house on Harrison street. We lived there the last Vigilance Committee took a hand in city government. We moved from there Hunter's Point. At that time there was a v small water-supply for the city. You bough by the bucketfull. Water for the shipping brought from Sausalito in boats and pum into the ships before sailing. A new comp was formed. Fine springs had been discove at Hunter's Point, so situated that, by the of chutes laid on the ground, water would to the beach into tanks, and from the tanks i the boat. The scow-sloop "W. H. J." was fit with tanks and the company was started. for many years did a good business supply ships in the harbor. My husband had charg the boat and was a member of the compa We lived there thirty years.

Our house was almost entirely built from old ship. At that time a great many of the sh that had been abandoned years before w being broken up for the copper. The bott of some of them were used as foundations sloops and schooners, that were in great dem in the bay at that time, and lumber was v hard to procure at any price. A vessel belo ing to a member of the water company being broken up, and he told my husband to t anything that would be useful for his ho The builders took the top of the cabin, sawe in two, and that was the floor of the ho When they took it from the boat at the b they said, "We will carry it as far as we and when we have to drop it, there we build the house." The house was built not from the water! The doors were of solid hogany, quite narrow, to be sure, as they v the doors from the staterooms. The wind were the stern windows of the cabin. The h was built by two sailors and a ship-carpen and it was so near salt water that we felt q at home.

The sea-temperament is very strong though I have lived for twenty years in this terior town. I always go down to the bay pleasure, and look out through the Golden and enjoy the smell of the ocean. I have m five trips up the coast, and one down south steamer and ship, and always enjoy the so of the water under the keel.

My daughters grew to womanhood and v married—my eldest to George Middlemas, a neer shipbuilder of this coast, now deceased; other to Edmund Mumfrey, a pioneer pri still living. I am happy to say I have s randsons, all men of worth and good character, oing their part in the world's work. Five of hem are married to good women, who are my anddaughters-by-marriage. I have one "real- truly" granddaughter, fitting herself for a oble share in caring for others as a trained urse. One great-granddaughter is left me. I ad another, but she has gone to the "Better and."

My husband died seven years ago. We four sters are all living on this coast, in good health nd able to enjoy all the good things that come us.

As for myself, each year as it comes to me and es into the past seems a happier, fuller and ore perfect year. And I know that whatever e future has in store for me, I can never be parated from the love and guidance of my eavenly Father, who has been with me in all e past, and to whom I shall go when the call mes, without fear or faltering, "Because I ve trusted in Him."

As soon as possible after I arrived in Califor- a, I went on a Sunday morning to the First aptist church of San Francisco. It was a very nall building, situated on Washington street ear Stockton. Benjamin Bierly was the pastor. he first public-school was organized and car- ed on for some time with John C. Pelton as incipal, and the first Protestant Sunday-school as also organized then on the last Sunday of ly, 1849, and is still in good working order.

Next, I went to the Second Baptist church, uated on Pine street between Montgomery and arny. It was a small, wooden building. The inity Episcopal church was close beside it, d together they about covered the ground ere the California Market now stands. I ited with the Second church by letter from e Bethel Baptist church of Boston, Rev. Phi- is Stowe, pastor. Rev. William Rollinson was tor of the church here.

Later a fine new church was built on Bush eet near Stockton and, as usual, the women the church did their part in securing funds. emember that we gave an entertainment in basement on a Fourth of July. The decor- ions were not as they would be now, flowers greenery, for there were none, but "Old ory" and flags from ships in the harbor were d instead. As I was living on a ship at the e and knew several captains that could help t, I was appointed to secure something to cover bare walls and was very successful, so that room presented a fine appearance. One very white silk burgee with the name "Matilda on" in black letters and a wreath of bright vers wrought in silk at the end, covered rly one whole side of the room. The flag been presented by the woman for whom the sel had been named, a popular actress at that e. I sold ice-cream that evening and handed ninety-six dollars as the result. Our pastor's ith having failed he was obliged to return t, and no other minister being secured the rch disbanded. The building was sold to French Catholics and went out of existence the big fire of 1906 with so many other rches.

n September, 1859, I united with the First rch on experience, there being no one left to t a letter from the other church. My ghters, a brother, a brother-in-law and two ers were baptized in the Washington-street rch. Two nieces were baptized in the Eddy- et church.

am happy that I am still a member. I love "old home." I have heard every pastor the st church has ever had, and have been more ss connected with the building of each of houses, except the very first, and have re- ed at their completion and have mourned r loss as, one by one, they have disappeared. nd now the "new church" building is fin- d and a new era of usefulness is before the bers. I pray that it may be a long, vig- s and successful one. There is one charter ber still living, the only person who was a ber when I joined, Mrs. Malvina Pope. The y pleasant memories of the days of worship service spent in each and all, except the last rch, are very dear to me, but my working are almost over.

"And so beside the silent sea,
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me,
On ocean or on shore."

OM RANCH TO RANCH IN CALIFORNIA," NEW MOVIE.

ie story of a traveling conference, showing county agricultural agents and leading ers from their respective counties travel to- er over selected territory to learn improved ing methods, is shown in a new United s Department of Agriculture four-reel mo- tion picture, "From Ranch to Ranch in Califor- nia."

The picture was made in co-operation with the University of California. It depicts a tour through the San Joaquin Valley, the upper half of the great central valley of California. It shows glimpses of many phases of agricultural extension work, including crop and animal im- provement, home demonstration work, rural co- operation, boys' and girls' club activities, and diversified farming.

The film also contains scenes of the campus of the University of California at Berkeley, and of the farm at Davis, Yolo County, operated by the college of agriculture. The governor of Cal- ifornia, the director of the state agricultural ex- tension service, the president of the state farm- bureau organization and a representative of the federal extension service take part in the film.

The primary purpose of the film, outside of California, will be to show the method of agri- cultural extension work involved in a traveling conference, but it is expected to prove of educa- tional value to general audiences in all sections of the country.

"WORLD COURT" IS OPPOSED

AFTER A THOROUGH DISCUSSION OF the effect the Court of International Justice (World Court) would have on the future wellbeing of the United States and California, provided this country becomes a party thereto, the directors of the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association January 20 adopted the following statement and resolutions, which were sent to United States Senators Hiram W. Johnson, Samuel M. Shortridge and William E. Borah, and copies of which were given to the daily press:

"The Directors of The Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, a nonpartisan organization whose principles are those of the patriotic societies of the State of California, and whose purposes have been endorsed by the people of California by a vote of more than two to one in the Alien Land Law campaign of 1920, believe that the moral international attitude of the United States was correctly stated by the late Senator Lodge when he said that we are the best friend of humanity when we preserve our own independence of action free from all such entangling alliances as the League of Nations seeks to impose. That estimation has been vindicated in every instance where we have been a factor in international affairs—by the maintenance of peace within our borders, and by our influence for peace among the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

"We believe that neither the moarl nor coercive influence of any other nation can raise our standard nor enhance our influence.

"The World Court is camouflaged by the high sounding and misleading title of the Court of International Justice. It is not a court in the sense that the term 'court' is understood. It is exclusively a creature of the League of Nations, which was created not to ascertain justice, but to enforce peace along the lines of the Treaty of Versailles. Its members are appointed and all its expenses are borne by the League. There are no laws for the Court to adjudicate, unless the decrees of the League are to be understood as laws. The Court is clothed with no powers to make or enforce decrees. At the best, it can but advise the League upon what the League has equal, or better, means of ascertaining. It adds nothing to the power or justice of the League. The League can abolish the Court whenever its members become refractory.

"We believe that behind the agitation for the United States to become a member of the Court is the purpose of having that tribunal become a portal through which we are to be forced into the League, and that without the support of that faction the move for the Court would die aborning.

"We are not unmindful of the fact that among the most vociferous advocates of the Court are those who opposed state and national legislation seeking to maintain the social, moral, political and industrial standards of the White race.

"California has the longest coast line facing the most menacing seat of international trouble, where some of the nations are looking with greedy eyes upon our fair acres and have already given notice in diplomatic language that cannot be misunderstood that they resent our announced intention to be the sole judge of our domestic affairs. It is no secret that issues involving such matters will be among the first to be presented to the Court of International Justice. If we object on the ground that we have reserved such question, the Court will be asked to pass upon the question as to whether the equality of races is a domestic question. Be it, therefore,

"Resolved, That we are opposed to the United States' entry, with or without reservations, into the Court of International Justice, believing that the welfare of our country and of our state will be best subserved by the United States remaining free from any and all entangling international alliances.

"Resolved, That we heed the warning of him whose name is synonymous of the principle for which our government stands, and that the nation is not true to itself if it regards the welfare of any other nation as tantamount to that of the members of its own family.

"Resolved, That any alliance that is or may be a step toward assuming either moral or legal international obligations to sacrifice the lives of

TO OBSERVE IMPORTANT ANNIVERSARY.

The Historical Society of Southern California plans a fitting observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the coming of the first United States citizen, Jedediah Smith, to California. Smith arrived at San Gabriel, Los Angeles County, November 27, 1826.

The committee that will arrange for the celebration of the centenary of the arrival of this early-day pathfinder is composed as follows: Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, president of the society and dean of the graduate school University Southern California; Dr. Waldemar Western, professor of history University California Southern Branch; Dr. Robert G. Cleland, head of the history department Occidental College; Roland A. Vandegrift, professor of history University Southern California; Dr. Owen C. Coy, director California State Historical Society and professor of history University Southern California; Walker Romain Bacon, E. A. Brininstool.

SURPRISE IN STORE.

The first social function of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. under the administration of President Andrew M. Stodel was a masquerade ball at Native Sons' Hall January 21. There were several attractive costumes; first prizes went to Mrs. Howard Bentley and President Gabriel Ruiz of Vaquero Parlor. The Parlor has under way a campaign for members, which will terminate March 11, when there will be a class inititaion. To stimulate interest Junior Past President Sidney B. Witkowski will present the member responsible for the most initiates with an emblematic gold ring.

Los Angeles plans caravans to neighboring cities during February. The first will be to Sepulveda Parlor at San Pedro, early in the month, and the latter part of the month the "gang" will go to Santa Ana to give encouragement to the new parlor in process of formation there. February 18, following initiation, the good of the order committee, Howard Bentley chairman, will spring a surprise and those not on hand will regret their absence. At the Santa Rosa Grand Parlor in May, the Parlor will urge the re-election of its treasurer, John T. Newell, as a Grand Trustee.

CAMPAIGN FOR CATHOLIC SEMINARY.

Activities have been launched throughout Southern California in behalf of a junior seminary to be erected in Los Angeles for young men studying for the Catholic priesthood. Rt. Rev. John J. Cantwell, D. D., bishop of Los Angeles and San Diego, has named March 1 as the date for the campaign, which has for its objective the raising of a minimum fund of $1,000,000 to defray the cost of the building.

The solicitation is to be conducted throughout the entire diocese under the direction of Rev. William S. Corr, who will have the aid of the pastors of the diocese, as well as a large group of prominent Catholic men and women, now being enrolled as campaign leaders and workers.

Through the generosity of one of Los Angeles' most prominent citizens a site for the proposed seminary has been donated, the land embracing two acres lying at the intersection of Third and Detroit streets in Hancock Park, Los Angeles. Plans for the seminary have been prepared, and the new institution is to be completed and ready for occupancy by fall.

Until now it has been necessary for young men of Southern California desiring to study for the priesthood to go north to Mountain View or

HOME OF CALIFORNIA'S FIRST GOVERNOR BEING DEMOLISHED.

San Jose—Another California landmark—the home of California's first governor under American rule, Peter H. Burnett—is being demolished to make way for this city's progress. The house was originally built at Alviso, Santa Clara County, in 1850 by Governor Burnett, and moved here in 1854.

The lumber used in the house's construction was brought around Cape Horn and the building itself, two stories in height, containing twelve rooms, and covering an area of 29x48 feet, was constructed of the best Eastern pine lumber. The heavy hand-hewed timbers for the frame of the house, however, were obtained from the Santa Cruz Mountains, and hauled by ox-team to the Alviso site. Governor Burnett and his family moved into it from the "executive mansion," which was their first San Jose home and which stood on the east side of Second street, between William and San Carlos. The "executive mansion" was of one story and was later moved in two sections to Orchard street, where as two dwellings, it—or they—still remains in use.

Among the reminders of early days found in the course of demolishing the landmark was a letter from Peter Rogers of Clay County, Missouri, dated June 15, 1854, and addressed to Governor Burnett, Rogers' son-in-law.

PROMISING OUTLOOK FOR "CITY OF BALANCED PROSPERITY."

The beginning of 1926 found Los Angeles City in an exceedingly sound and prosperous condition, says a Chamber of Commerce pamphlet. A big 1925 points to a greater 1926. And then these facts regarding Los Angeles, "The City of Balanced Prosperity," are set forth:

Bank Clearings for 1925 reached $7,945,493,930, an increase of $750,968,552 over 1924.

Postal receipts for 1925 were $8,226,710.21, an increase of $310,369.50 over 1924.

Assessed valuation for 1925 was $1,783,167,751, an increase of $151,244,132 over 1924.

Building permits for 1925 amounted to $152,646,436, an increase of $2,498,920 over 1924.

Ocean commerce for 1925 totaled 20,100,000 tons, valued at $746,000,000, an increase of $80,000,000 over 1924.

Los Angeles began the new year with the most promising outlook of any period of its remarkable development.

Better Home Week—April 25 to May 2 is the date selected by President Calvin Coolidge for celebrating "better home week" in each city of any size in the country.

Farmers' Outlook Good—"California's agricultural outlook for 1926 is sound and full of promise," according to Director G. H. Hecke of the State Department of Agriculture.

HEAVY PENALTY FACES MANY DELINQUENT MOTORISTS.

January 20, but a little more than one-half the motorists had made application for 1926 license-plates. This laxness, the State Division of Motor Vehicles believes, is due to the fact that motorists have been accustomed to renewing their licenses in February.

The new law, however, moved the period back a month, so that the license-renewal period now expires January 30. After that date delinquents will be compelled to pay a 100 percent penalty.

Motorists who have already mailed in their applications but have not received their plates have nothing to worry about, as from ten days to two weeks are necessary to complete the transaction.

ONE AUTO IN CALIFORNIA FOR EVERY THREE PEOPLE.

California, with 1,475,915 registrations for 1925 is second among the states of the union in number of motor vehicles, according to the January announcement of Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles. New York, with 1,627,025 registrations, leads the list. The 1925 registration gain in California, compared with 1924, was 125,154.

"Judged on a population basis," says Marsh, "California is far ahead of any part of the country, for this state has one automobile for every three people. The pleasure cars in the state total 1,224,887, as compared with 1,304,462 in New York."

"BOX BACK" AUTO OWNERS MUST FURNISH AFFIDAVIT.

Owners of "box back" small cars who last year paid the commercial weight fees for licenses but who are relieved of this fee by the amended law must submit their pink certificates of ownership as well as their certificate of registration in making application for licenses this year. The State Division of Motor Vehicles so advises farmers and others with such cars. The pink certificate is necessary to reclassify the motor vehicle so as to give it the lower fee.

Owners of "box back" cars will also be required to sign an affidavit that the vehicle is not used "primarily" for the transportation of proprety and that the owner does not intend to use it except incidentally or occasionally in the transportation of property.

PASADENA'S ORDERLY GROWTH

STAGGERING FIGURES AND STARTLING statistics rarely emanate from Pasadena. The world has never been invited to stand by, with mouth agape, and watch Pasadena's population grow, its bank clearings mount, its realty values soar, and its new skyscrapers shoot up like weeds in the garden after a drenching rain. For Pasadena has never had a boom; it has never had anything even approaching a boom. Perhaps this may partially be attributed to the fact that Pasadena is neither an industrial giant nor a commercial behemoth. Instead, it is a city of homes—of homes and flowers and trees; a city that hundreds of cosmopolites and globe-trotters have been pleased to call "the most beautiful city in the world."

Yet, Pasadena is not exactly standing still. It is growing, but its growth is steady, unhurried, decorous. This is the only manner in which Pasadena cares to grow. For fifty years Pasadena has been slowly acquiring the beauty for which it is now famous throughout the civilized world. To let growth—bustling, feverish, roaring growth—come along now to devastate that beauty would be unthinkable. Pasadena welcomes growth, but it does not intend to let growth have the upper hand.

Nevertheless, Pasadena is growing. During the five years since the 1920 federal census figures were announced, telephone connections in Pasadena have increased 71 percent, public-school enrollment 69 percent and water meter connections 80 percent. Postal receipts for 1925 were 85 percent more than for 1920, while bank clearings showed a gain of 137 percent and building permits an increase of 154 percent during the same period. Bank deposits on the last day of December 1925 were 72 percent more than on the same day in 1920, and the assessed valuation of taxable property in 1925 was 85 percent more than in 1920.

These records are not startling, but the growth that they reflect has been steady and substantial. Pasadena's bank clearings for 1925 amounted to $310,599,694. Compare that figure with the total for several cities of from 100,000 to 150,000 population. Although the population of Pasadena is not more than 80,000, and the Chamber of Commerce estimate is only 75,000, the city's bank clearings compare favorably with those of much larger cities. This, in spite of the fact that there are no large industries in Pasadena.

The growth of Pasadena's bank clearings has been consistent. In 1920, clearings passed the $100,000,000 mark for the first time; in 1922 they reached $200,000,000; in 1925 they passed $300,000,000. The five-year record for bank clearings is as follows:

|---|---|
| 1920 | $130,724,824 |
| 1921 | 161,701,122 |
| 1922 | 200,271,022 |
| 1923 | 268,829,267 |
| 1924 | 293,184,216 |
| 1925 | 310,599,694 |

In bank deposits, too, Pasadena ranks alongside cities of much greater population. On the last day of December 1925 Pasadena residents had a total of $48,914,025.11 on deposit in the banks of the city. If the population is 75,000, as estimated by the Chamber of Commerce, the bank deposits on December 31st averaged $652 for every man, woman and child in the city. This very likely is one of the largest per-capita bank-deposit figures in the country. The total of approximately $49,000,000 is more than half as much as was on deposit in the banks of the entire State of Florida in 1924. At that time Florida's population was estimated at more than 1,000,000 and the bank deposits of the entire state totaled $90,000,000. Pasadena, with less than one-thirteenth the population, has more than half as much money on deposit in banks as Florida had a little more than a year ago. That this money is not lying dormant is indicated by the total of more than $300,000,000 of bank clearings in 1925. The steady growth of bank deposits is shown by the five-year table:

| 1920 | $28,459,790 |
| 1921 | 30,068,624 |
| 1922 | 33,781,302 |
| 1923 | 40,089,938 |
| 1924 | 44,958,584 |
| 1925 | 48,914,025 |

The assessed valuation of taxable property in Pasadena has increased from $73,363,977 in 1920 to $136,207,355 in 1925, a gain of 85 percent. The year-by-year record has been as follows:

|---|---|
| 1920 | $ 73,363,977 |
| 1921 | 86,820,850 |
| 1922 | 92,824,527 |
| 1923 | 104,201,600 |
| 1924 | 131,038,010 |
| 1925 | 136,207,355 |

A similar gain—85 percent—has been made by postal receipts in the five years elapsing between 1920 and 1925, as follows:

|---|---|
| 1920 | $273,207 |
| 1921 | 317,604 |
| 1922 | 351,057 |
| 1923 | 409,001 |
| 1924 | 463,262 |
| 1925 | 506,789 |

Building permits for 1925 fell below the record for both 1924 and 1923, but they achieved a total 151 percent greater than the 1920 total, as follows:

|---|---|
| 1920 | $ 3,834,725 |
| 1921 | 6,685,435 |
| 1922 | 9,412,480 |
| 1923 | 12,095,444 |
| 1924 | 12,040,956 |
| 1925 | 9,633,746 |

That the 1925 slump in building permits was only temporary, and without any bearing on the expansion record of the city, is indicated by the fact that more new homes were built in 1925 than in any preceding year. The decrease came about because no big building projects were instituted during the year. The largest permit issued during the entire year was for $350,000.

Already several big projects have been announced for 1926, and it is likely that this year will more than make up for the loss in 1925. New buildings to be erected this year include a $1,000,000 city hall, two telephone buildings to cost around $800,000, two new hotels, three big apartment houses, a new Masonic Temple, two new theatres and six new schools. January building permits had passed $1,000,000 before the month was half gone.

Enrollment in the public schools of Pasadena increased from 9,521 in 1920 to 16,074 in 1925, a gain of 69 percent. Telephone connections increased from 15,985 in 1920 to 25,785 in 1925, and water meter connections from 13,026 in 1920 to 21,783 in 1925, gains of 71 percent and 80 percent, respectively.

Since Pasadena had a population of 45,354 at the time the federal census was taken in 1920, these gains indicate that the present population is between 76,648—the population indicated by the percentage of gain in school enrollment—and 81,637, the latter being the population indicated by the percentage of gain in water meter connections. The Chamber of Commerce, however, has adopted the conservative figure of 75,000 as its estimate of population. The city directory estimate, which includes suburban communities not within the city limits, is 103,056.

During 1925, 7,831 realty transfers were made in Pasadena and vicinity, the cash values of the property involved totaling approximately $25,000,000.

CHERISH THE MEMORY OF THE CALIFORNIA PIONEERS.

California was pioneered splendidly. Its pioneers were exceptional men and women. They had to be exceptional, to brave the perils and to meet the obstacles of life in this state in its early, formative years. Many of them passed through extreme dangers from hostile Indians and desert aridity, to get here. And the struggle for existence and to bring about fruitful development here, would have daunted weak souls. But these pioneers were stout of heart and strong of courage. They had their faults—many of them. But, in most cases they were generous faults. And they had their rugged virtues, too. They laid the foundations of a great commonwealth—they laid the foundations deep and strong. And the superstructure has grown and thrived and become the marvel of the world.

It is a most excellent work the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West are doing in preserving the chronicles of the early days of California; in collecting and making available to the world data on the romantic history of pioneer days in California; and in erecting tablets and memorials to the hardy pioneers.

These empire-builders of the young days of the Golden State deserve to be memorialized. They wrought gloriously. They builded better than they knew. This generation has come into the golden fruits of their wise and courageous building. It would be rank ingratitude and unpardonable ungraciousness for the California of today to forget or to ignore the California of the middle of the nineteenth century, and the brave bands who came here and became the founders and developers of modern California.—Editorial Pasadena Star-News, January 18.

THE FORESTS MUST BE PROTECTED

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT ABOUT the forests, in which every good citizen should take an interest, comes to The Grizzly Bear from E. F. Porter of Georgetown, El Dorado County, affiliated with Georgetown Parlor No. 91 N.S.G.W.:

"From my own experience of over thirty years, I can state positive facts on the condition of the forests in this section of El Dorado County. Also, that of my father, Captain W. M. Porter, who served under General Fremont in the Mexican war, was captain of the homeguards in the rebellion and came to the mines in forty-nine. He told me that there was but little underbrush, but beautiful trees, saw timber, grass, and plenty of feed for cattle. Also, my three uncles stated the same. They said the Indians kept the land burned off, also the lightning. My father kept quite a few acres burned off. I have also kept the same burned off for thirty years.

"The timber looks as if planted out, with spaces between, and with no limbs till ten or more feet high. One can ride horseback any place through it. Grass, and peavines grow between the trees. If kept burned there are but the leaves and the limbs that the snow has broken off to catch fire. Under this condition, if burned off every year or so, the fire only burns a few inches high, killing the grubs, beetles, rotters, wooly aphis ticks and diseases that infest trees.

"And we had our average rainfall in the early days. The rain, striking the ground, penetrates it immediately. Now, on the other hand, where the land has not been burned over for years debris has accumulated several feet deep in places—limbs the snow has broken from trees killed by disease and grubs, etc., and leaves, also deep, which act as sponges to hold a rain shower. Then the water evaporates before another rainstorm, not penetrating the earth.

"Go out to the foot of the pine saw timber, yellow pine that are dying in strips for miles, dig the leaves and debris away, and you will find all kinds of insect life and the grubs that are boring into trees. The birds can't even get at them. Let this debris fill up for years longer, and there will be fuel enough to make such a fiery furnace that no fire engine or equipment can get near it. Even if the ridges were kept burned off in proper time, fire in the canyons could be easily controlled. Under present conditions, care to keep fire out of forests in the dryest time of the year must be observed.

"Fire in the hottest part of summer under present conditions would burn holes through the bark, also kill some trees; although if the ground be kept burned over yearly but few more trees would be killed. But let the leaves, the limbs the snow breaks down and the logs accumulate for several years again, and next time the same places will finish burning the trees off where they were burned before. Any fireman can burn green wood if he has plenty of dry wood; it won't burn without.

"Now, if young timber comes up after saw timber is cut off and properly burned over, there will be nothing to burn under them for several years. They will then be high enough so that the burning of their own leaves won't destroy the largest of them, only the young and the dwarfs, as the hardiest always kills out the youngest. If burned over yearly they will look as if set out with spaces between them. Every year or so burning forests leave a few inches of black fertilizer on the ground. If not burned for years the earth is burned to a brick dust and the richness of the soil is destroyed. . It then takes years to grow anything on it, and rains wash off the dust in gutters. We know that hot and cold currents cause lightning; and fires help to make gases, and with the smoke help to make rain clouds. When these conditions come about, rain."

WORLD WAR BOYS SEND GREETINGS TO GENEROUS WOMAN.

Pasadena—In recognition of her gift to the families of disabled world war veterans of California of the daily proceeds received from visitors to the famous Busch Garden of this city, the state officers of the American Legion sent Mrs. Lillie Busch, widow of the late Adolph Busch, an engraved certificate bearing the Christmas greetings and best wishes of the organization.

More than $50,000 has been received by the ex-service men from the gift of Mrs. Busch and the money is being used to aid the families of needy veterans.

CALIFORNIA'S 1925 MINERAL OUTPUT

THE VALUE OF THE GOLD, SILVER, copper, lead and zinc produced in California in 1925, according to the estimate of J. M. Hill of the Bureau of Mines, Federal Department of Commerce, was $22,893,500, a decrease of only $44,657 as compared with the value of metals produced in 1924. There was a decrease in production of gold, silver and copper, but considerable increases in the output of lead and zinc, as compared with the previous year.

The production of gold in 1925 was $13,015,600, a decrease of $134,575 as compared with 1924, which is a very good showing considering the decrease in yield of several of the larger gold quartz mines and from copper ores. That the decrease was not larger can be attributed to the increased yield of dredges, though there were fewer boats in operation in 1925 than in 1924.

The production of silver in 1925 was 459,053 fine ounces less than the previous year, but totaled 3,096,080 ounces, valued at $2,136,295. The decrease was largely due to the fact that the California Rand Silver Inc. was short of mill water during the summer and was not able to produce at capacity. The decreased yield of silver from copper ores was offset by the increased yield from lead ores produced in the southern part of the state.

The production of copper in 1925 was 45,808,200 pounds, valued at $6,458,956, a decrease of 6,298,971 pounds and of $367,083 in value, as compared with 1924. The decrease was largely the result of the closing of operations at the mines of the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company, at Kennett, in the late summer. The Engels and Walker mines were producing normally, and there was an increase in yield from the Bully Hill and Calaveras mines. The Mountain Copper Company resumed production of copper ores, though its smelter was not operated.

The lead mines of Southern California increased their production, as compared with 1924, by 2,247,194 pounds to a total of 7,011,000 pounds, valued at $635,196 in 1925. Most of the older well-known mines, with the exception of the Darwin, were in the producing class, and a number of newly-opened properties helped swell the total.

The yield of zinc was nearly treble that of 1924, the output in 1925 being estimated at 8,651,900 pounds, valued at $652,353. Most of the zinc production was from the Bully Hill mines, in Shasta County, but zinc concentrates were also made from ores from Los Angeles and Inyo Counties. By far the largest part of the zinc was carried in the form of concentrates, which were shipped abroad for reduction. Only a few tons were treated at Mississippi Valley smelters.

Nevada County was, as usual, the most important gold quartz producing county in the state. Placer mines in the county were not particularly active, though some gold was taken from drift mines and from hydraulic operations. Alleghany continued as the chief gold-producing center in Sierra County. The Grigsby mine, near Calistoga, Napa County, was reopened and silver ores were produced.

In the central counties and along the Mother Lode, development was under way at various places, but the chief production came, as usual, from Amador County. In El Dorado County, an interesting experiment in community financing apparently resulted in the successful reopening of the Guildford mine at Poverty Point, two miles from Placerville, and there was some activity at various quartz mines near Georgetown and Greenwood. There was little mining in Placer County, the largest production being made by various drift mines on the Forest Hill Divide. Placer mining in Calaveras County was not important in 1925, the Calaveras Copper Company, at Copperopolis, was the largest mining operation in the county.

In Siskiyou County, the largest hydraulic operations were on Salmon River, in the vicinity of Sawyers Bar and Forks of Salmon. Very few of the placer mines on the Klamath River were productive. Several quartz properties were active. In Trinity County, quartz mines were operated near Carrville, Coffee, Helena and Junction City. The largest output of gold was made by the dredges working above Lewiston, though hydraulic mines were operated, and the Bazet (old Beaudry) hydraulic, near Minersville, was reopened. In Shasta County, several of the gold mines in the French Gulch and nearby districts were worked by lessees. In Butte County, several drift mines at Magalia were operated. The Cherokee tailings north of Oroville were taken under lease by a new company. The Yuba Consolidated Gold Fields, at Hammonton, Yuba County, continued operation with five boats on the Yuba River and had a successful year. Prospecting of quartz mines near Dobbins was under way. Chief interest in Plumas County was, as usual, in operations at the Engels and Walker copper mines. There was not much activity among the gold quartz mines of the county. Near La Porte several placer mines were operated.

In Mariposa County, lessees at several localities on the Mariposa Grant recovered some gold. In Mono County, development was principally centered in the Blind Spring Hills district, out from Benton, and a considerable amount of prospecting for lead-silver deposits was done, which resulted in opening a number of deposits of promise. In the Rand district, on the Kern-San Bernardino County line, there was a revival in gold mining. Several mines on Kern River were worked. Siliceous ore was shipped from various properties in the vicinity of Mojave, Kern County. The Santa Catalina Island mine produced lead-zinc-silver ores. Several small mines in San Diego County produced free milling gold ores.

LOS ANGELES CHAMBER COMMERCE ARRANGING INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is planning a general industrial exposition in the late summer embracing products of manufacturers and industries in the metropolitan area of the city.

The purpose of this exposition will be to acquaint store buyers throughout the Pacific Coast states with what the Los Angeles market affords, and to educate the public as to the immense variety and the high quality of the products.

During 1925, products manufactured in Los Angeles had a value of $1,252,683,000, according to the Chamber of Commerce. This is an increase of approximately $50,000,000, compared with the value of the 1924 manufactured products.

Largest University—With an attendance of 16,282 full-time students, the University of California is the largest institution of its kind in the United States. Columbia, with 11,836 students, is the second largest.

Los Angeles Led—Farms operated in California during 1925 totaled 136,413. Los Angeles led all the counties of the state, with 12,380 farms; Fresno County came next with 10,463.

VALUABLE HISTORICAL MATERIAL FOR MUSEUM

THE EXTANT ORIGINAL LETTERS and diary of the California Pioneer, Frank Lecouvreur, together with the translator's copy of translation of these materials, entitled "From East Prussia to the Golden Gate," have been presented to the Southwest Museum of Los Angeles by the translator, Professor Julius C. Behnke.

Professor Behnke believed that these valuable materials should be housed in a fireproof building, accessible to the public under proper supervision. With this thought in mind, he gave these documents and translation to the Southwest Museum, which is becoming one of the chief depositaries in California for historical materials dealing with the southwest.

The museum submitted the materials to Professor Rolland A. Vandegrift of the History Department of the University of Southern California for his opinion as to their value. Professor Vandegrift has specialized in the history of California and the Pacific Southwest and from his study and experience in handling source material is well qualified to pass on them.

Professor Vandegrift returned the following report to Dr. Johnson: "The Frank Lecouvreur materials, consisting of one original letter and manuscript copies of two additional letters of the fourteen published letters and the four original volumes of the diary or diaries, the translator's copy of the translation of the letters and extracts from the diaries inscribed by the translator, together with his photograph and an announcement of the publication of the translation given to you for the Southwest Museum by Professor Julius C. Behnke, are unique not only in themselves, but also in coming in the collected form as they do. I hesitate to place any monetary value upon them, for such materials can only be priced from what collectors will give for them when offered for sale. These items are decidedly unique and of especial value, since Professor Behnke tells me that the original letters, with the exception of the one in this collection, were buried with Lecouvreur's mother in Germany in conformity with her wishes.

"The Southwest Museum is very fortunate in securing this material, for it fits into the general plan of the library of the museum devoted to the southwest. It can be added very appropriately to the recent collections given to the museum. In fact its nature will properly place it with the well-known collection of Californiana of the late Judge Grant Jackson. You will realize the value and proper place filled by this gift by a brief survey of the life of Lecouvreur and especially that part covered in the diaries:

"Frank Lecouvreur was born in Ortelsburg, Prussia, June 7, 1829. His father was a French Hugenot and his mother the daughter of Mayor Minuth of Bartenstein. He received a thorough education as a civil engineer. Desiring a greater degree of liberty than was possible under the German government, young Lecouvreur determined to migrate to the United States and to visit California.

"The letters published in the translation by Professor Behnke cover the period from the time Lecouvreur left home, April 28, 1851, to October 22, 1868. Gaps in the story are filled in from the diaries in which Lecouvreur very carefully detailed his voyage and experiences and life in the then undeveloped California.

"Lecouvreur arrived in San Francisco on January 15, 1852. He spent almost three years in Northern California before coming to Los Angeles in 1855. His diaries concerning Northern California include among other things: A Description of San Francisco, People, Work of the Vigilance Committee of 1851, Western Business Methods, Miners, Mining Experiences on the Yuba, Description of Land and Forests, Sacramento, Indians, Alameda Boom of 1853, Missions.

"In Southern California, Lecouvreur soon became identified with public service. He was made deputy county clerk of Los Angeles County, which office he held for three years. Later he served as deputy county surveyor under Major Henry Hancock. He then served two terms of two years each as county surveyor. Under his direction many important surveys were made. He declined a third term as county surveyor and entered business as cashier in the Farmers and Merchants bank.

"His diaries concerning Southern California include descriptions of great interest. Among other subjects are: San Pedro, The City of the Angels, Desert Survey (of the Mojave), Catalina Island in 1856, Anaheim a Settlement of Stockholders, Wilmington, Local Coal Oil Wells Discovered in 1865, Los Angeles Vigilance, Chinese Massacre (in Los Angeles).

"The value of the translation itself may well be judged by the remarks made in 1906 by Benjamin Ide Wheeler, then president of the Uni-

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

HANDBAGS VARIED AND ALLURING

FASHION HAS BECOME MORE INTERESTING this season, because the straight-line silhouette has been supplanted by one that is infinitely more beautiful. The flared skirt and the molded bodice bestow on frocks a feminine charm that is positively enchanting after such a siege of severity.

It is a more fluttering mode. There are more drapes, more graceful lines, more trailing scarfs, more plaits and more godets that are delightfully chic and do not mar the simplicity of the mode because of the delightful ways in which they are introduced.

It is so easy to bedeck ourselves in frills and furbelows. Will power is an urgent necessity for most of us in the selection of our wardrobes, and without it we are quite likely to fail in making the most of our appearance.

In every walk of life today, whether it be social or business, appearance is of such importance that it has a great influence on success. Women are better dressed in this decade than ever before. Those who are indifferent to their clothes and personal appearance are decidedly in the minority and are gradually disappearing.

Color is of first importance, and is the factor in attaining smart effects. Harmony between the dress, coat, hat, shoes and stockings is an absolute necessity. This sounds extravagant at first, but analysis shows it to be in reality the most inexpensive way of dressing.

Wool plaids in brown and red tones are occupying a prominent place in the mode and will be worn extensively in smart street ensembles this spring. Many of them are bordered in indian or geometrical designs and are extremely effective for one-piece frocks.

As for cottons, they have never been more decorative. Like the new silks and woolens, cotton prints show partiality for animated effects with bright colorings. Indian designs have inspired a number of the newest spring silks.

The dress with the flare is ultra-smart, whether in tailored types or more elaborate afternoon and evening frocks. Basque effects with full skirts flaring from natural waistline are chosen by debutantes and older women with youthful figures.

The gypsy girdle is a picturesque means of accentuating the new molded silhouette. Draped low about the hips, the girdle ties in a soft bow at the side or directly in front. The full-bloused waist is worn over a skirt quite full.

Elegant gowns have triple skirts of different shades, such as red for the underskirt, topped by velvet and rose mousseline. We see the full flounce raised at the back and finished with a large bow, giving the "puff" effect which is sure to be favored in the near future.

The "puff" effect is often accomplished by ruffles of lace. All details seem to point to back fullness, such as fringe crossed at the back and girdles tied at the back.

The fashionable coats have godets and flounces cut on circular lines, giving the necessary fullness at the hemline. Capes are shown on traveling coats and also on afternoon and evening gowns. Chic coat suits for morning wear remain simple and employ godets at back. Tailored coats and suits are usually made of elegant silk or wool "tricot," bordered with silk or fur, and if care is taken in the choice of color they are elegant and serviceable.

For afternoon, there is the moire silk gown trimmed with almond-green silk. It is rather pleasant to see so many red dresses. Women seem to be wearing them everywhere, regardless of complexion or type.

The great show is of artificial blossoms, now so in evidence on coats and dresses and worn by every woman. Again the chrysanthemums are bewildering, but not always for their beauty.—such strange unnatural hues and such combinations of futuristic coloring surely were never seen before.

Printed crepes promise well for summer. Combinations of printed designs with plain fabrics are in vogue and are worn with bodice and skirt contrasting. Kasha is sometimes used as trimming on crepe-de-chine, while sheer and heavy silks combine readily in the new styles.

At this time the two-piece jumper frock is the outstanding sports type. It often, and gracefully, invades the realm of the afternoon frock and is seen made up in sheer materials.

The bodices are a trifle low-waisted and some charming models have been seen reaching as low as the finger-tips, with short, full skirts.

The new bodice molds the shoulders and may be finished with a snug-fitting high collar or a reversible style.

The newest collar we recognize as the revived sailor type, hanging flat in the back and finished with a knotted tie in the front.

The scarf lives in a reincarnated state this spring, forming ends to collars that tie in bows in the back, or that slip through slashes, or that fold neatly in a flat high effect about the throat.

Trimmings have receded into the background, and a tendency to simplicity is uppermost. Some light touches of embroidery are seen of silk and gold, and also the occasional use of lace collars and cuffs.

In the sports realm, fabrics are soft and conform to the tailored treatment with crepe-de-chine and other silk crepes. Lustrous and versatile chinese damask, tussah weaves and georgette lead in silks, and kasha and tweeds come first in woolens.

The afternoon frock of sheer fabric will t season be shown with lace, which often adds distinctive annd enriching touch.

Printed weaves have the leading position the gay frock that is indispensable in eve wardrobe. In colors, the softer tints are chos with a leaning in favor of rose from the lig to dark shades, while fuschia, green, blue, orchid and lavender tones are also definitely sponsored.

Handbags are varied and alluring. Some are small, some large; some entirely of rows of tiny sparkling brilliants, and some of petit point, damask brocade, figured tapestry, chinese historical patterned silk, satin, leather, moire or velvet. There are sensible ones and frivolous ones, all waiting to be carried by some kind of woman, for we must have different handbags for different occasions.

The shops show a bewildering array of every example of daytime bag, and a few minutes at any afternoon function will reveal the whole gamut of colorful bags.

No matter how fashionable any article of dress may be, if it be ugly, then it should be let alone. Beauty is always its own excuse for being and in the matter of handbags it is always as easy to select an attractive one as one that is commonplace. There is no excuse for failure now in having a charming bag.

Accessories, including gloves, shoes, hose and neckwear, have assumed more prominence. Gloves must harmonize and be an essential part of the complete costume, and for this reason new designs of wide variety have been created.

Cuffs are especially important. Chamois and doeskin continue to be the most in demand, being the best known washable leathers in soft finish. The newest slip-ons are perfectly plain, with or without the pinked edge. Usually the stitching on the back is plain.

Gloves for sports wear are made of little heavier leather and have outsewn seams. There is no better selection for golfing than natural chamois.

THE SEA GULLS

(DELMAR H. WILLIAMS.)

Come sail with me Francisco's bay,
And watch the wily sea gulls play;
See how they poise, and start, and glide,
And gaze forever on the tide.

With slender downward drooping head,
And graceful, pointed pinions spread,
While tail and tightly folded feet
In nature's perfect rudder meet.

From depths rebounds their raucous shriek,
They're darting downward like a streak;
Battling to seize a morsel on a swell
They fight "like all the fiends of hell."

The decks with eager watchers lined,
The rudder parts the foam behind;
We head where deep-craft vessels go
And tides by proud Vallejo flow.

But see that sleek and snowy breast
That puts to shame old Shasta's crest;
Is this that awkward, stumbling flock
That roams forlorn about the dock?

Oh! bird that soars so far and free
You've brought a lesson home to me:
I must forever on the wing
Or be an awkward, stumbling thing.

And bravely face each task that's sent
Nor hug repose to find content,
Soar for aye where God intended,
Alert until the journey's ended.

BISCUITS WITH SWEET MILK OR SOUR.

When a housekeeper finds herself with a tried and trusted recipe for biscuits, or cake, or cookies, that calls for sour milk and soda and she has only sweet milk and baking powder on hand, or vice versa, the following rule may be used for substituting, says the United States Department of Agriculture:

When proportions are given in terms of sweet milk and baking powder, an equal quantity of sour milk may be substituted and enough soda used approximately to neutralize the acid, or a scant half teaspoon for each cup of sour milk. In the case of thin batters the soda and sour milk generally furnish enough leavening, but for thick batters or doughs baking powder is usually needed in addition.

When sweet milk is to be used in place of sour, baking powder is substituted for all of the soda in the proportion of 4 teaspoons of baking powder for 1 teaspoon of soda if no other acid ingredient such as molasses is used. If such an acid ingredient is used, as in gingerbread, some soda is required.

HOLLYWOOD REVIVES DEMAND FOR TRAFFIC ARTERY

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

WITH THE OPENING OF ONE-HALF of the new Cahuenga Pass boulevard from Highland avenue to the summit of the pass, a new demand has sprung up for a revival of plans for a similar road on the east side of the Pacific Electric railroad tracks, agitation for which was started through the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce nearly two years ago.

The highway through the pass on which city forces are now engaged, and which construction is being done by city and county funds amounting to nearly half a million dollars, will be, over all, eighty feet in width and about half a mile in length. The roadway itself is to be seventy-two feet wide, with an eight-foot sidewalk on the east side. This road eliminates entirely the old and narrow winding road through the pass which has been in use for many years, and which at its widest point was never more than thirty feet. This road ended in a steep pitch near the apex of the pass, and from one end to the other was difficult of negotiation by traffic and the scene of many serious traffic accidents.

All sinuous curves have been eliminated in the new road, and the rise from the Highland avenue takeoff to the summit has been reduced by spreading the grade over the entire length of the road. Any car can now make the passage in "high" and without material reduction of speed at any point. With the completion of the east half of the pavement, which will be about May 1, the road will be able to care for all normal flow of traffic to and from the San Fernando Valley, with a guarantee of material reduction of accidents and an additional warrant of faster transit from Ventura boulevard to Hollywood. The road surface is concrete ten inches thick in the center and twelve inches at each side. Over the old arroyo, formerly known as the Indian Village, a high retaining wall has been erected to carry the grade. The wall is approximately 500 feet in length and is 40 feet high.

With the opening of the new road the old route, established on the original trail through Cahuenga Pass, has been abandoned and will revert to the donors of the right-of-way for the new road. The latter line cuts diagonally across the old trail both at the upper and lower ends, thus effectually establishing a blockade which renders the old road useless for traffic purposes. The new owners propose to devote the land to subdivision purposes, it is stated.

Through the pass the Pacific Electric operates a rail line which reaches the important sections of the San Fernando Valley, passing through Lankershim and Van Nuys and reaching out to Owensmouth. Establishment of this transportation system resulted in the construction of a number of grade crossings in and near the pass. One of these is at the intersection of Lankershim boulevard and another at Pass avenue, formerly known as Dark Canyon road. Almost daily reports of accidents of a major nature reach the police department of Hollywood, and it was with the object in mind of removing these hazards that the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, through Carl Bush, its executive secretary, made a tentative survey of the east side of the tracks for the purpose of determining the feasibility of establishing another major road through the pass.

The survey developed facts which determined the chamber to press the point of establishing

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. ¶In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

a traffic artery east of the tracks from Cahuenga avenue to make a connection with Lankershim boulevard. Such a road would effectually eliminate the dangerous hazards at grade intersections, and would materially relieve congestion of traffic on the west-side road, as well as entirely removing the necessity for cutting into traffic developing at Ventura boulevard and at the Hollywood end of the pass.

City engineers have already completed a tentative survey of the ground proposed to condemn for the right-of-way and have reported favorably on the proposed project, and a recommendation has been made to the City Council favoring the plan.

This road, besides eliminating dangerous grade crossings, would provide a safe route on an easy grade from traffic developing in the east section of the San Fernando Valley, including not only Burbank and Lankershim, but extending its benefits to Glendale. It would also tap Mulholland drive, east of the pass, and take care of the traffic emanating from that important scenic road. Officers of the Chamber of Commerce are pressing the project with the City Council in the hope that actual construction can be started by the coming autumn, at least.

Although arrangements had been completed for a formal opening of the Cahuenga pass road January 21, after a conference with City Council executives and officers of the Board of Public Works it was determined to postpone the ceremonies until the entire road west of the old pass route is completed. This idea suits the wishes of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, and further arrangements will be held in abeyance until some time in May when, it is believed, the entire road will be finished and ready to receive all the traffic developing in the San Fernando Valley and on the Hollywood side.

Initial plans included a joint celebration of the opening of Cahuenga Pass road and the initiation of rail traffic to Hollywood through the new Pacific Electric tunnel and the Park avenue cutoff. A celebration of the latter event will be conducted about February 15, it is now understood.

LOS ANGELES BANK DEPOSITS BREAK ALL RECORDS.

The thirty-three national and state banks in Los Angeles City had on deposit December 31, 1925, the record total of $1,046,436,467.16. This was the first time in the history of the city the total bank deposits exceeded the billion-dollar mark, in response to calls as to their condition issued by the federal and state banking departments.

The deposits represented an increase of 7 percent—$67,623,495.17—over the September 28, 1924, total, and an increase of 11 percent—$107,935,018.05—over the December 31, 1924, total. Of the $1,046,436,467.16 December 31, 1925, total, the state banks had $757,011,418.40 on deposit, and the national banks $289,425,048.76. The Security Trust and Savings Bank headed the list, with deposits of $222,315,315.43.

PUBLIC-SCHOOL PUPILS INCREASE.

At the close of 1925, 213,533 pupils were enrolled in the public-schools of Los Angeles City, 17,000 more than the enrollment at the end of 1924. Another evidence of the population-growth of the state's metropolis.

Native Sons of the Golden West

THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS

(ALBERT V. MAYRHOFER,
Deputy Grand President.)

"MEMBERS OF THE ORDER OF Native Sons of the Golden West are banded together to render service that is threefold in its scope—service to the state, to the nation and to humanity—and, incidentally, it is the only fraternity in existence whose membership is made up exclusively of White, native-born Californians.

"Leagued together to advance the interests of the commonwealth, the Native Sons of the Golden West are pledged to keep intact the Paradise of the Pacific for the White man and thwart the efforts of Asiatics to control her destiny. Perhaps no other organization or body of citizens was more active in the passage of the California Alien Land Law than the Native Sons of the Golden West. Founded by General A. M. Winn, a California Pioneer from Kentucky, the Order has grown from a handful of faithful sons into an Order of nearly 300 Subordinate Parlors, with a membership of 30,000 and assets of a million dollars.

"In addition to taking an active part in the restoration of the California missions, the Native Sons of California have done more than any other body of men to preserve the historic Spanish names for which this state is renowned the world over. The bell signposts that mark the way along El Camino Real were sponsored by the Native Sons, as was legislation creating the California Historical Survey Commission for historical research in every county-seat in the state.

"Established in loyalty and born under the Stars and Stripes, the Order should have the support of every native-born Californian. Every native-born male of the age of 18 years, or upward, who is in good health, whose character is above reproach and who believes in the Supreme Being, is eligible to join."

Coming, Annual Ball.

Sonora—Tuolumne 144 is busily engaged making arrangements for its annual grand ball, a masquerade, to be held February 13. Cash prizes amounting to $100 will be awarded.

Orphans Are Guests.

Sacramento—Sutter Fort 241 had its second annual Christmas tree for younger orphans from the Sacramento Orphanage December 23. After each child had been presented with a gift, candy, nuts, etc., from a beautifully decorated tree an entertainment was presented for the guests' pleasure. For the evening, a member of the Parlor acted as "daddy" for each orphan.

In charge of the event was the following committee: Bert Katzenstein (chairman), Harley Frederick, Dr. D. L. Durst, J. V. Hines, Lou P. Ferron.

Parlor Commended.

San Rafael—D.D.G.P. Albert M. Taxeira of Sausalito paid a visit to Mount Tamalpais 64 January 11, and in the course of an address commended the Parlor on the successful term just ended. He called special attention to the importance of the visiting committee functioning regularly, and expressed approval of the Parlor's plan to discuss each meeting the general laws of the Order. "This course will be educational and highly beneficial to the Order," he said, "as many misunderstandings arise through ignorance of the law."

Schools To Be Dedicated.

Ventura—Under the auspices of Cabrillo 114, the new high-school of this city will be dedicated the morning of Sunday, February 14. In the afternoon of the same day the new high-school at Santa Paula will be dedicated. It is expected that Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler and other grand officers will officiate at both dedications.

Active Year Planned.

Oakland—With D.D.G.P. Ansell officiating, officers of Piedmont 120 were installed January 14 jointly with those of Piedmont 87 N.D.G.W. Frank Vargus, retiring junior past president, was presented with a buffet mirror, Past Grand President William J. Hayes making the presentation address on the Parlor's behalf. Dancing followed the installation ceremonies.

Piedmont plans a very active year. Special effort will be made to increase attendance at the meetings and to that end programs are being prepared for each meeting.

Grand Trustee a Visitor.

Folsom—Grand Trustee Richard M. Hamb of Oakland officially visited Granite 83 January 12 and delivered a fine talk. Lunch was served at the meeting's conclusion.

"Baby" Parlor Gets Busy.

Glendale—At its first regular meeting January 13, Glendale 264, the "baby" Parlor, decided to take an active interest in landmarks work, and appointed a committee composed of Joseph A. Kleiser, Paul E. Richardson, William E. Agard, Albert K. Boeckman to co-operate with the local Chamber of Commerce in preserving the historic Verdugo home. It was also de-

The Parlor voted to affilia with the Los Angeles County joint homele children's committee and named as its represe tatives Milton L. Wicks, W. E. Kent, Dr. F. V Loring, Angelo Camillo, Dr. Edward T. Abbo Dr. Emmet L. Wemple.

Officers of Ramona 109 (Los Angeles) pr sided during the session, and instructed Gle dale's officers in their several duties. As is t custom in Ramona, First Vice-president Leon Leonard of that Parlor presided during good the order, and among the speakers were Pre ident Burel D. Neighbours, Secretary John Scott and Outside Sentinel Ralph Harbison Ramona, President F. A. Townsend, Dr. Lorin and Milton Wicks of Glendale; Pete Gaudin Sepulveda 263 (San Pedro); Deputy Grand Pre ident A. V. Mayrhofer. R. J. McGrath of Gle dale favored with vocal solos. Refreshmen concluded a very enjoyable evening.

Officers of Los Angeles 45 filled the Parlor chairs January 27 and initiated several cand dates. February 10, Glendale will have its fir social function—a sort of housewarming—wh all the Los Angeles County Parlors, which a sisted in its institution, are requested to be we represented.

Organizing Drum Corps.

Selma—Officers of Selma 107, with John Hansen as president, were publicly installed Ja uary 6 by D.D.G.P. George Haines. A progra and dancing concluded the ceremonies. E. Laughlin, F. Morgan and L. J. Price compos the committee in charge.

The Parlor plans a lot of activity in publ and community affairs during the term of Pre ident Hansen. An effort will be made to i crease the membership. A drum-corps is beir organized and to raise funds with which to pu chase instruments a dance was held January 2

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. R gan reports the standing of the Subordina Parlors having a membership of over 400 Ja uary 20 as follows, together with their membe ship figures January 1 1926:

Wants Federal Building.

San Bernardino—A committee from Arrowhead 110 went to Crestline January 10 and cleared the Parlor's clubhouse property there of several pine trees which had been killed by the western pine beetle. The action was taken to prevent the bug attacking other trees. After the trees were felled they were burned by forest rangers. In the party were Charles McElvaine, Charles Doyle, Grand Director John Andreson, Joseph Shellenberger, Byron Benson.

The Parlor has passed a resolution urging the National Government to make an appropriation for a federal building in this fast-growing city.

Major World Problems Analyzed.

Stockton—Two hundred members of Stockton 7 enjoyed a turkey banquet, arranged under the supervision of President J. A. Fisher. Warren H. Atherton was the toastmaster, and among the speakers were George F. McNoble, who analyzed major world problems; Past President Charles Devine of Lodi 18, who headed a large delegation of visitors from the Tokay City; Harry A. Mazzera. As a token of appreciation for his services to the Parlor, Past President Louis Dentoni was the recipient of a gift of silver.

Anniversary To Be Celebrated.

Byron—Byron 170 had an official visit January 19 from Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson of San Francisco, who gave a very interesting talk for the good of the Order. At the banquet which followed the meeting several addresses were made by members of the Parlor.

February 13 the Parlor will celebrate its thirty-fifth institution anniversary with a masquerade ball. It promises to be the event of the season and is eagerly looked forward to.

Orange County to Have Parlor.

Santa Ana—Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer has met with such success in his efforts to have a parlor in this Orange County metropolis that a petition for a charter was forwarded to the office of Grand Secretary John T. Regan, January 22.

The parlor here will, in all probability, be instituted the latter part of February or the first of March.

BEAUTIFY THE FARM HOME.

Nothing improves the farm home more than a little effort devoted to the home grounds. There is no reason why the farm home should remain bare. Residents of cities pride themselves in keeping lawns and shrubbery to complete the picture of the home. One farmer in the San Joaquin Valley, lacking a pressure line to operate a sprinkler, leveled his lawn and surrounded it with a six-inch bank, so he could flood it once a week. Shrubs and trees were on this level and all were irrigated at the same time.

Make the lawn large, especially in the warmer valleys. "Tie the house down to the ground" with shrubs, putting taller ones next the house and lower-growing ones in front. Make the contour irregular and do not break up the lawn with trees or shrubs dotted through it. Use shrubs against the house, to hide any unsightly views, and in the corners, if desired. Make the farm house a home, and a desirable one, outside as well as in.

MILLIONS FOR PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

The Municipal Art Commission estimates that during 1926 more than $15,000,000 will be spent in Los Angeles City on various municipal structures. Included in the estimate is $5,000,000 for the new city hall, $6,000,000 for extending the ornamental street-lighting systems, and $2,500,000 for bridges.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

"LET'S ALL GO TO PARLOR,"
THE SLOGAN FOR 1926.

"MAKE THIS A BANNER YEAR for our beloved Order," says Mrs. Clara Gairaud of Vendome 100 (San Jose), one of the most enthusiastic workers in the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West. "Adopt the slogan, 'Let's All Go to Parlor!'—everybody.

"Make it a practice to go to meetings, and remind every member you meet. Each one take it upon herself, as a committee of one. Enter with whole-hearted zest and enthusiasm every undertaking your Parlor is fostering.

"Tell every Native Daughter to go to the meetings, whether or not she belongs to your Parlor. You will be doing your duty, and co-operation in this world means everything. Ready? 'Let's All Go to Parlor'!"

Sewing Club at Work.

Alturas—The Christmas spirit of happiness and good-will entered the Modoc County Hospital with members of Alturas 159, who carried there Christmas baskets, laden with candy, nuts, fruit and personal gifts, for each of the five aged inmates. The Christmas ball given under the auspices of the Parlor was a success, both socially and financially. The door receipts netted about $200 for the Parlor.

Past Grand President Catherine E. Gloster, and her sister, Miss Dorothy, were hostesses to the Native Daughters' sewing club in their home January 2. Beginning January 9 the club will meet every Saturday afternoon at the Elks' clubrooms until the number of layettes decided upon have been completed. Mrs. Willie Hughes, Mrs. Irma Laird and Mrs. Hazzie Spicer have charge of the sewing.

The Modoc monument committee is in receipt of a donation of $150 from the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, San Francisco.

Splendid Talk.

San Francisco—La Estrella 89 was hostess January 11 to Grand President Sue J. Irwin on the occasion of her official visit. Other visitors in attendance were Grand Outside Sentinel Evelyn Carlson, Past Grand President May C. Boldemann, D.D.G.P. Mabel Scally, D.D.G.P. Margaret Griffin, and representatives of Minerva 2, Alta 3, Berendos 23 (Red Bluff), Fremont 59, Buena Vista 68, Presidio 148, Dolores 169, Linda Rosa 170.

Miss Irwin gave a splendid talk on the achievements of the Order, and brief remarks were made by others. As a memento of her visit, the Parlor presented Grand President Irwin with a gift of silver.

The Parlor's annual Christmas tree party was a wonderful success, being attended by over fifty "kiddies" and their parents. Santa presented each child with a toy and a bag of candy and refreshments were served to the big "kids." A turkey netted $70 for the Parlor's funds.

Members Entertained.

Sutter Creek—Mms. Dennis Madden, Clifford Buzza and Matilda Dennis entertained the members of Amapola 80 at a social affair January 14. Delicious refreshments were served and games were played. The sociables are to be featured each month.

At the firemen's annual ball February 20 the Parlor will serve the supper, and the proceeds will be turned into the homeless children fund.

"Baby" Parlor Initiates.

Santa Ana—The recently-instituted Santa Ana 235 initiated six candidates at its January 4 meeting. Knights of Columbus hall was fixed as the meeting-place, sessions to be held the first and third Mondays. Mrs. Cora Huntington-Ross read an account of the planting of the pepper trees on South Sycamore street by Mrs. Maria Hill, Santa Ana Pioneer. The Parlor hopes to make one of the trees a landmark by having parking placed about it.

It was decided to keep an historical scrapbook, which will be presented to the Parlor by the president. Each member is asked to contribute something of interest, which can be handed down to posterity.

CO-OPERATE!

News material for all departments of The Grizzly Bear MUST BE SENT DIRECT to the publication office, 309-15 Wilcox Building, Los Angeles, not later than the 19th of the month, as forms close the 20th.

Don't wait until about the 18th and then send in your news, that might just as well have been forwarded much earlier, for The Grizzly Bear force cannot do the impossible.

Send in your news promptly, when it is "alive," and it will be given due attention. Otherwise, otherwise.—Editor.

Joint Meeting for Order's Head.

Sacramento—The four local Parlors—Califia 22, La Bandera 110, Sutter 111, Coloma 212—met jointly at Coloma's meeting-place January 22 to receive an official visit from Grand President Sue J. Irwin. Four officers from each Parlor had charge of the evening's festivities.

Officers Entertained.

San Jose—January 11 Mrs. Edwina Buffington entertained the officers of Vendome 100 at dinner, after which a theater party was enjoyed. To each officer she presented a framed art subject and was, in turn, presented with a silver compact by Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael, on behalf of the officers. The following evening the officers were entertained by Mrs. Marian Dellwig at her home. Radio music was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

D.D.G.P. Mabel Sontheimer, assisted by Past Grand President Carmichael, installed the Parlor's officers January 14, Marian Dellwig becoming president. Presentations were made to D.D.G.P. Sontheimer, P.G.P. Carmichael, Past President Edwina Buffington, Financial Secretary Lotta Koppel, Organizer Tillie Brohaska, President Dellwig. Mrs. Nellie Davis was general chairman of the evening. A Spanish banquet was enjoyed.

The Thursday club entertained January 14, Mrs. Clara Gairaud and Mrs. Gertrude Mather being the hostesses. A very large crowd o friends accepted the hospitality of the Parlor Phonograph records for a blind girl and th Santa Clara County hospital, as well as machine loads of magazines, were delivered by Miss Tilli Brohaska last month.

Bride Showered.

Daly City—The Christmas holidays were mad brighter for several of the "boys" at the Pal Alto base hospital by members of El Carmel 181, who visited them and presented basket laden with "goodies." President Anna K Bauer, Mrs. Rena Mathias, Misses Alice Mathias Esther Forsell, Freda Christen, Theresa O'Con nor comprised the committee in charge.

Mrs. John Hume (Christine Michelson), th latest bride of the Parlor's drill-team, was re cently tendered a shower at the home of Sylvi Haubrich-Fischer. Many lovely gifts were pre sented and delicious refreshments were served

New Citizens Welcomed.

Oroville—Officers of Gold of Ophir 190 and Argonaut 8 N S G W were jointly installed January 6 by D D G P Irene Henry and D D G P Arthur Smith, Mattie R. Lund becoming the president of Gold of Ophir. Presentations were made to D D G P Henry, President Lund, Past President Fern Damon, and refreshments were served.

January 13, immediately after examination of applicants for citizenship in the Superior Court, the newly-made citizens were welcomed in behalf of the local Native Sons and Native Daughters by Florence Boyle, who urged them to make a thorough study of local and state history. She spoke of the nation's flag, pointing out that every citizen must at all times be ready to defend the Stars and Stripes. Irene Lund presented each with a copy of the "American Creed." The ceremonies concluded with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," under the leadership of Clara Tatman of Annie K. Bidwell 168 (Chico).

Cards for Landmarks Work.

Santa Barbara—Reina del Mar 126 had a card pary January 5, the proceeds going into the Parlor's fund for landmarks work. The committee in charge was made up of past presidents, with Mrs. Floyd Stewart as chairman.

Officers were installed during the month by D.D.G.P. Anna E. McCaughey, Mrs. M. C. Harrison becoming president.

Good Fellowship Prevails.

San Francisco—After the December 28 meeting of Golden Gate 158 an entertainment and exchange of gifts among the members resulted in a great deal of pleasure and again showed the spirit of good fellowship prevailing in the Parlor. The Christmas tree party for the children of the members and the friends of Golden Gate proved a very delightful occasion.

January 11 officers were installed and Past President Bessie Severns was presented with beautiful linen, in appreciation for her excellent service. The Parlor is now making plans to celebrate its eighteenth institution anniversary.

Past President Gets Jewel.

Petaluma—Officers of Petaluma 222 were installed January 19 by D.D.G.P. Florence Alder of Sonoma. Past President Ella Sebasta was presented with a jewel of the Order, Mrs. A. Miner making the presentation address. A banquet was served after the meeting.

The Parlor will have a party February 2, when four pairs of hand-embroidered pillowcases will be given as prizes. Attractive prizes will also be awarded February 16, scheduled as the date for another party.

BEST PLACE

(MISS ESTHER CRONE.)

I like to go to places
Out beneath the sunlit dome,
And my presence often graces
The mountains where I roam.
I visit plains and valleys,
The desert and the sea;
The cities with their alleys
All have a charm for me.
But the place I like best to go,
When all is done and said,
Is home, when I'm away you know,
And next, it's just to bed.

In Memoriam

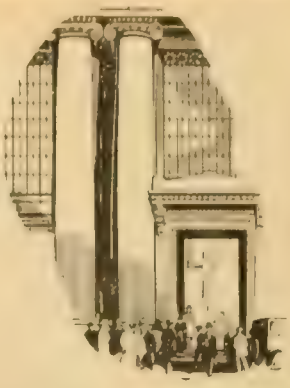
ELIDIER F. SMITH. ADALINE I. DANZ.

To Bonita Parlor No. 10 Native Daughters of the Golden West—Dear Sisters: The Angel of Death has entered the portals of Bonita Parlor No. 10 Native Daughters of the Golden West and taken from our midst our sisters, Elidier F. Smith and Adaline I. Danz. They were loyal and enthusiastic Native Daughters and loved California with true love, and our Order has lost two faithful members. Therefore, be it



Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to their bereaved families, and that they be published in the "Redwood City Standard" and The Grizzly Bear.

"May the California winds blow gently,
May the California rain fall softly,
Where sleep our sisters dear."

Respectfully submitted in P.D.F.A.,
DORA WILSON
SOPHIE OFFERMANN,

TOMORROW LOOKS BRIGHTER THAN YESTERDAY FOR SAN PEDRO

Edward Reese

SIX MILLION DOLLARS IS THE GAIN registered in exports from this harbor during the year 1925. Such is the report which Collector of Customs Louis M. Schwaebe announced. Imports jumped in value from $29,820,553 to $38,732,481, while exports rose from $65,992,999 in 1924 to $71,792,434 in 1925.

These figures, startling as they seem, do not include intercoastal, coastwise or non-contiguous coastwise exports or imports. The exports, of course, consisted chiefly of oil and its by-products, raw cotton, canned fruits, fish, dried and fresh fruits, while the imports were of a greater variety.

These figures are hardly comprehensible by the citizen who is not accustomed to large sums, but they indicate a growth and importance that is second to none on the Pacific Coast. However, figures soon show the commercial progress of San Pedro's harbor.

Total business for the year 1925 exceeded by $78,852,987 the amount handled through San Pedro port in 1924; 20,145,422 tons of merchandise were handled in comparison to 19,528,718 tons in the period previous; oil exports increased from 101,666,466 barrels in 1924 to 104,629,097 barrels in 1925, and ship arrivals for the year showed the marvelous growth in number from 5,798 in 1924 to 6,151 in 1925. Startling as those figures are, they do not show the real growth of the harbor district.

The greatest single achievement during the year was the marked recognition of this port as a world-shipping center by more than 100 steamship companies which are clamoring for dockage space and arranging their schedules so as to include San Pedro as a port of call.

Though shipping, naturally the greatest single industry in the harbor district, showed the most substantial and far-reaching growth in its history, San Pedro, as a city, has made some notable advances in civic spirit and accomplishment aside from the industrial point of view.

Success in the Cabrillo beach project looms as far more than a probability, for arrangements are now being completed wherein actual work on the beach may be started within a few weeks. Completion of this project will mean that San Pedro will have its own pleasure resort—a vital need of the community.

Recent laying of the cornerstone for the new $750,000 Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. building marks another step forward for this community. The 15,000 sailors with Uncle Sam's battle fleet and the 1,500 soldiers at Fort MacArthur will soon be adequately cared for. San Pedro has become more strongly entrenched as the base for the United States battle fleet, the biggest single unit of the American Navy.

Postoffice receipts for the past year were greater by more than $7,000 the amount ever taken in during a single year before. The receipt increase was more than three-fourths the increase registered by a larger neighboring city which has vaunted its growth, but now appears to be falling behind San Pedro.

These are but a few items which indicate the progress San Pedro made during 1925. This year will witness important shipping and fishing developments, the probable spending of millions of dollars by the Federal Government on local improvements, and the continued fight against the outfall sewer project. Tomorrow, indeed, looks brighter than yesterday to San Pedrans.

N. S. CHANGE MEETING TIME.

Officers of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. were installed January 21 by Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, William A. Reuter succeeding James H. Dodson Jr. as president, and James V. Carroll succeeding Ben Sepulveda as recording secretary. Four candidates were initiated.

The Parlor decided to change its time of meeting to the second and fourth Tuesdays, in American Legion Hall. The next meeting will be February 9, when more candidates will be initiated and President Reuter will outline a program of activities for the term. Visitors were in attendance from Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Diego and Sacramento. Refreshments were served.

BIG CROWD AT INSTALLATION.

The public installation January 8 of the officers of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. was a great success. Over 200 were in attendance, including fourteen visitors from Los Angeles, eleven from Long Beach and eight from Santa Ana Parlors. D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, assisted by Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, was the installing officer, and Charlotte K. Bennett became the new president. The newly-installed officers were the recipients of a beautiful floral basket, presented with the good wishes of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. On behalf of Rudecinda, emblematic rings were presented D.D.G.P. Thomas and Past President Margaret Dever, the presentation addresses being made, respectively, by President Bennett and Second Vice-president Gertrude Riepe.

Supper was served following the ceremonies, the banquet-hall and tables being adorned with the Order's colors. Speakers of the evening were Past Grand President Stoermer, President Katherine Ronan of Los Angeles, President Clara Fay and President-elect Bertha Hitt of Long Beach, President Louise Mock and Second Vice-president Olive Lopez of Santa Ana, Florence Schoneman of Rudecinda. Accompanied by Organist Florence Bostic, Marshal Alma Werner of Rudecinda sang "I Love You, California." In charge of the festivities was the following committee: Gertrude Riepe (chairman), Amy Hagenow, Abigail Hagenow, Victoria Folz, Carrie Lenhouse, Carmen Ardiaz, Theo. Walsworth.

The January 15 card party of Rudecinda was in charge of the following committee: Clara Burbridge (chairman), Edna Galgani, Carrie Kuhlmann, Amelia McWilliams. First prizes were awarded Mrs. Bonnie Board and Edw. Nillson, and the consolations went to Mrs. Mary Godfrey and Frank Hersh. Refreshments were served.

The Parlor's program for February includes open house the 12th, card party the 19th, initiation and social the 26th. Hazel Boston (chairman), Hazel Raines, Cora Dwight, Mabel Weir compose the committee in charge of the month's doings.

RESTORATION SONOMA LAND-MARK TO BE COMPLETED SOON.

Santa Rosa—Plans are ready for completing the restoration of the ancient Russian church and fort at Fort Ross, Sonoma County, erected in 1812, and which for many years has been owned by the State of California and upon which some restoration work has been done to preserve it possibly for a century more.

The recent Legislature voted $2,500 for the work, which will be carried out under the direction of State Architect George B. McDougall, who has announced that he will give the landmark his personal attention early in the spring.

LONG BEACH: The Forward-Looking City Where Native Resources Grow With The United Enterprise Of All

QUEEN OF BEACHES TO ALL

HERALDED AS WORLD'S MOST DAZZLING ROYAL LADY, SHE IS TRUE TO NAME AND HOLDS COURT FOR THOUSANDS OF COURTIERS YEAR AFTER YEAR

J. C. Chuck

(MANAGER LONG BEACH AMUSEMENT LEAGUE.)

LONG BEACH, THE "CALIFORNIA RIviera," is not only the West's leading seaside resort, but it is also a city where reigns supreme the "Queen of the Beaches," with her long ermine-white sand that reaches for seven miles as her robe; the warm gray promenade, her far-strung necklace; the flashing piers, her jeweled earrings, and the green shore heights, sprinkled with low California bungalows, constitute her crown, in which the business buildings are the massive diadems.

That is why Long Beach, the longest and finest surf-bathing beach under the sun, is known throughout the wide, wide world as "Queen of the Beaches."

And a right dazzling royal lady is she! All the year she holds court, and from every land and from every clime come her courtiers, thousands upon thousands. Some come merely to gaze, but remain and settle down as her devotees. Some come to flaunt and scoff, but remain to pay her homage. Some come praising her already and then, having gazed upon her great beauty, redouble their fealty. All who have known her wondrous embrace are forevermore her slaves, and even though they leave her they go through the land chanting and singing of her marvelous and alluring charms. The memory of her long blue robe with its snow-white collar, her far-flung necklace, her jeweled crown and her matchless loveliness haunts them, sleeping and waking, to the end of their days.

No siren of the sea, no mermaid of the deep, no nymph of river nor naiad of brook, in legend or in story, enthralls the wayfarer of the world as much as this fair one does this "Queen of the Beaches."

Exhilarating, yet soothing, is her embrace; never too warm and never too cold. In summer, the temperature of the water that makes up her azure robe is 65 degrees, and in the other season it is but 10 degrees lower.

Her courtiers love favorite spots along the white collar of her gossamer robe of blue. Their homage is paid in groupings, mainly at the foot of Cherry, Orange, Molino avenues and Belmont pier, and, last but not least, within a few steps of that great amusement center "The Pike," the "Walk of a Thousand Lights." But on week-ends, when she holds high court, her people are presented the length and breadth of the seven miles, sometimes up to the number of 100,000.

Since she is a queen, it is her royal privilege to wear earrings. The Silver Spray pier, the Municipal pier and the Belmont pier with all their lights ablaze at night adorn to her splendor. A thousand beams more flash out on her necklace, which is called "The Pike," where "King Fun" entertains and supplies amusements of every sort, so that both young and old may have enjoyment during their stay here.

The City of Long Beach has set aside a certain portion of its wonderful beach front for an amusement zone, known now all over the world as "The Pike," where nearly $15,000,000 have been spent to provide all that is good and clean in amusement.

The Silver Spray pier, one of the largest pleasure piers in America, occupies over six acres of decking right over the Pacific Ocean, on which is located the "Jack Rabbit Racer;" the largest and most expensively equipped "Dodg'em" in America; a scenic "Mill-Shutes," "Over-the-Falls," "Apache Trail," a new "Fun House" costing $40,000, and a number of other high-class attractions, including the new $30,000 skating rink, which is one of the most complete in the country, equipped with a spectators' gallery, two large band organs, and will be the scene of polo games and various contests. In addition, there are many other attractions, rides, games and shows. The Silver Spray Pier Company contemplates spending $150,000 on new improvements this year.

"The Pike," which is often designated as the "Walk of a Thousand Lights," follows the contour of the ocean front, and the glistening white beach sands which invite the visitor to relax in the sunshine are not the least of the attractions to be found here. A million-dollar bath-house provides one of the largest indoor salt-water plunges on the Pacific Coast. Here, from early morning until late in the evening, thousands enjoy indoor swimming and water sports. Fishing may be enjoyed on either of the two great piers, which extend far out over the ocean near "The Pike."

"The Pike" last year was the scene of the great Long Beach bathing beauty parade, with more than 300 contestants on exhibition. This was the largest affair of its kind ever held in Southern California, and exceeded by a great number the beauty contest held in Atlantic City. A crowd of approximately 300,000 people swarmed to "The Pike" to view this extraordinary event. It has become a yearly affair, attracting people from far-distant cities. Baby parades, fun carnivals on the Fourth of July, Hallowe'en, Christmas, New Year's and many other picturesque events are staged throughout the year.

Owing to the fact that fine hotels and many-storied apartment houses on the ocean front are within a few steps of this great amusement center, it is possible for the tourist to enjoy his vacation without going any distance at all. The Virginia hotel on the ocean front is a million-dollar hostelry, and one of the largest on the Pacific Coast. The Blackstone and Sovereign, two of the leading apartments, are also within a few steps of the ocean promenade, while such apartments as the Cooper Arms, the Cliff Dwellers Inn, Caldwell and the Barker Arms are within easy walking distance.

Eastward from the Municipal pier is the bandstand, where concerts are held twice daily, under the leadership of Herbert L. Clark, director. This band is composed of fifty of the finest musicians to be had, and is very popular in parades, special concerts, state picnics and radioland. The Municipal Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 3,000, is maintained for the free use of the people for concerts, entertainments and political meetings, with a picnic pavilion located on the lower floor that will accommodate 2,000 people and having a kitchen equipped with facilities for cooking, etc.

The men who are responsible for this all-year entertainment have combined together under the name of the Long Beach Amusement League. The purpose of this organization is to supervise and promote clean amusement and, together with the Department of Public Recreation, maintained by the City of Long Beach, to co-operate in providing continuous entertainment for visitors.

Long Beach, "Queen of the Beaches," provides wonderful toys and amusements; she has no superior, north, south, east or west; she leads all. Long Beach IS the "Queen of the Beaches" and, together with "King Fun" on "The Pike," reigns supreme.

NATIVE SONS' OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Following the initiation of a candidate January 20, the officers-elect of Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W., with J. A. M. Schlimmer as president, were installed by D.D.G.P. Ronald M. Ross of Los Angeles. He urged the officers and members to co-operate in pushing the Parlor to the front in Long Beach fraternal circles and in carrying on the Order's unselfish work in behalf of the homeless children, for the preservation of landmarks and in creating an interest in California history.

Other speakers included William B. Van De Car, an "old timer" who has been on an extended tour of the state; Andrew G. Beazell, first vice-president Los Angeles Parlor; "Bill" Reuter, president-elect Sepulveda Parlor (San Pedro); Clyde Stinson, W. H. Trollinger, John Cadogan. President Schlimmer appointed Edgar McFadyen and Dr. S. T. Luce to represent the Parlor on the Los Angeles County Homeless Children's Committee of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. At the meeting's close refreshments were served by a committee composed of C. E. Crowell, J. A. M. Schlimmer, E. C. Crowell, H. D. Meier.

E. W. Oliver, one of Long Beach's original members who now resides at Palomar, San Diego County, spent the Christmas holidays with his son, Harold Oliver, also a member of the Parlor, and enjoyed renewing old friendships.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS ENTERTAIN.

Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. entertained December 23 in honor of Grand President Sue J. Irwin of Berkeley, the occasion being her official visit. Visitors were present from Los Angeles, San Pedro and Santa Ana. Two candidates were initiated. Baskets of poinsettias decorated the hall.

Supper was served from tables made gay with Christmas candles and colors. Mrs. Edgar McFadyen was toastmistress, and the scheme of the responses typified the journey of the Pioneers across the plains and their vision in founding California. Responses were made by Mrs. Clara Fay, Mrs. Charlotte Bennett, Mrs. Anna L. Adair, Mrs. Olive Lopez and Grand President Irwin. The latter, in the course of her remarks, emphasized the desire of California to unite with the movement toward better education, particularly along the line of the country's history.

Other speakers included Mrs. Robert Schonemann, chairman of the Grand Parlor committee on history and landmarks; D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas; Mrs. Mary Ronan, president Los Angeles Parlor; Mrs. Josephine Burns, past president Long Beach Parlor. During the evening Mrs. Helen Cervantes entertained with vocal selections and Miss Lovely Dodd with a group of dances.

home in San Pedro, died in Long Beach, January 5, at the age of 11, survived by a wife and a daughter. Funeral services were held from the Edgar McFadyen chapel.

CALIFORNIA SENATOR URGES PROTECTION FOR VALUABLE WATERSHEDS.

Many fruitful valleys in the southern portion of California would become worthless if they lost the watersheds afforded by the Santa Barbara, Angeles, San Bernardino and Cleveland National Forests, E. A. Sherman of the United States Forestry Service, testified January 12 before the Senate Agricultural Committee.

He was put on the stand by Senator Hiram W. Johnson to tell of the need of fire protection in the national forests of the southern section of the state, as provided for in a bill before Congress calling for an annual appropriation by the Federal Government of $200,000 for five years, to be duplicated by the state and the counties and municipalities affected.

The fire hazard to Pasadena and other cities and towns on the fringe of the forests was brought out by Senator Johnson. "We are trying to protect too much territory with too small a fund," said Sherman.

FEW MEXICAN WAR HEROES ON FEDERAL PENSION ROLLS.

According to information from the Federal Pension Bureau January 19, only eleven survivors of the Mexican war, which resulted in the United States' acquisition of California, remain on the country's pension-rolls. The survivors, their ages and places of residence include:

Amasa Clark, 100, Bandera, Texas; Thomas P. Ballard, 98, Saint Joseph, Kentucky; William F. Buckner, 98, Paris, Missouri; Owen T. Edgar, 95, Washington, District of Columbia; Jacob M. Fleming, 97, Mount Pleasant, Texas; Uriah Gassaway, 96, Reelsville, Indiana; Richard A. Howard, 95, Sterling City, Texas; Samuel Leffler, 97, Saint Paul, Indiana; George T. B. Meadows, 95, Checotah, Oklahoma; Calvin E. Myers, 96, Livingston, Tennessee; Uriah Rose, 98, Thaxton, Virginia.

CALIFORNIA'S 1925 FIELD CROPS SHOW BIG GAIN OVER 1924.

According to the annual crop report of the statistician of the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture, both the quantity and the value of California's field crops for 1925 were far in excess of the 1924 record. Hay is listed as the most valuable crop, its 1925 value being $75,796,000, and oranges come next, $68,640,000; the value of the cotton crop is set at $12,980,000.

The total value of the 1925 crops was $405,193,000, and for 1924 it was $388,976,000, or an increase of 4.2 percent. The production for the year was 11,460,260 tons, as against 9,709,722 tons in 1924, an increase of 18 percent.

The total acreage of field crops harvested in 1925 was 14.3 percent greater than in 1924, and the acreage of tree fruits, nuts and vineyards of bearing age for the 1925 crop was 9.4 percent greater than the previous year.

Canned Products—The total pack of fruits and vegetables for All California during 1925 amounted to 24,159,743 cases, according to canners' reports. The northern part of the state packed 21,100,346 cases and the southern 3,059,397 cases.

FARM LANDS AND BUILDINGS IN CALIfornia have increased in value nearly $100,000,000 in the last five years, according to the 1925 farm census of this state, recently released by the United States Department of Agriculture. Hand in hand with this development, is another very reassuring fact, that only 14 percent of these farms are operated by tenants, and that the number of farm-owners has increased from 87,000 in 1920 to 109,000 in 1925, while the number of tenants decreased from 25,000 to 20,000. The number of farms has increased from 117,000 to 136,000.

This indicates a most healthy condition in California agriculture. More farmers owning farms, fewer owners leasing their holdings. This is due in part, of course, to the anti-alien land law, but to whatever fact it may be attributed, it remains an evidence of an improved state of agriculture, when farm-owners operate their lands. The increase in the number of farms is due, for the most part, to the tendency to smaller farms, for there has been comparatively small acreage developed in the last five years. This again indicates a tendency of owners to give personal attention to their property.

On the other hand, this increasing number of farms also is an evidence of the tendency of California agriculture toward fruit production. What the future of this trend will be, remains for the future to see. But if California continues to plant fruit and vines at the present rate, some method of disposition and consumption, not now in vogue, must be found.

These figures bring to mind others bearing on the same subject. The fruit acreage is increasing 15 percent faster than is the population of the United States, while the per-capita consumption remains the same as it was ten years ago. Some new means of getting this fruit consumed must be found. Advertising will do it, says one group. But all advertising has done so far has been to swing the demand from the unadvertised product to that popularized by publicity campaigns, without increasing that demand. Export the surplus, say others, which is harder than it sounds. Make for greater consumption by more economy of production, which will lessen the cost to the consumer and enable him to buy more, says a third group, and this may be well. Prof. W. V. Cruess of the Fruit Products Division of the University of California believes the ultimate solution of the problem must come through the using of fruit in new ways.

If fruit products could replace 10 percent of the 750,000 tons of sugar used in candy, Professor Cruess points out this would care for 300,000 tons of fresh fruit. Eight billion bottles of carbonated drinks, if flavored with real fruit, would take care of almost any increase in production. Fruit flakes, similar to grain flakes and used in the same way for breakfast food, are another possibility. As a matter of fact, if plantings continue at the present rate, these methods suggested by Professor Cruess, and all the others, probably will be required to absorb the crops; but that this crop always will be taken into trade channels, there is not the slightest doubt, or that fair profits always will accrue to the growers.

A BOUNTIFUL HARVEST.

California's harvest of last year brought to the farmers of the state $405,193,000, which is $16,000,000 more than in 1924. These figures are taken from the annual report of E. E. Kaufman, agricultural statistician of the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service, and indicate what is a satisfactory gain for the twelvemonth. The total tonnage was 18 percent above that of 1924. However, it must be remembered that 1924 was a year of unprecedented drought, and the tonnage comparison with 1923, a more nearly normal year, shows a decrease of 2.1 percent, although the value of these crops in 1925 was nearly $30,000,000 more than two years previous. This increase in value is due, in part, to better economic conditions in the United States and the world in general, but no less to the improved marketing methods that are being developed by the farmers' co-operative organizations in California.

The tonnage figures of this report show another most encouraging condition. The tonnage of field crops was within 250,000 of any year in the previous six, although the tonnage of fruits showed an increase of 25 percent over 1919. In other words, while the horticulture of the state is being developed, the agriculture is not being neglected and a good balance is being maintained.

HUMBOLDT DAIRYING A SUCCESS.

Five hundred people attended the annual banquet of the Humboldt County Dairymen's Association, the biggest event in the agricultural life of that district. Here cow testing, progressive breeding through the use of pure-bred sires and other such methods, have made dairying a success, with a per-cow production and a per-cow profit well above that of the state at large.

Prof. E. C. Voorhies, who spent last year in the dairying districts of the Scandinavian countries, was the speaker of the occasion, telling the Humboldt dairymen what they can learn from Scandinavia and what these European districts have to learn from American milk producers.

This dairy improvement program, in which Humboldt County is leading the way, is noticeable throughout the state. Production records in California have increased, due in a large measure to better methods of feeding, conditioning and caring for the animals. Pure-bred sire campaigns have become common, and cow testing associations are showing the dairymen which animals are profitable to keep and which merely are being supported by the rest of the herd. Selective breeding naturally follows, and California dairymen are on the way to lead the world in the per-cow production of milk and butterfat.

PESTS MUST BE KEPT OUT.

The United States should lift the quarantine on Almeria grapes and other fruit from Spain, says the retiring ambassador to that country, if the best relations are to be maintained with that country. California fruit-growers today are footing a bill of $28,000,000 a year in losses caused by pests, to say nothing of the cost of the continual war to control these enemies of horticulture. Orange-growers, with a crop valued at $40,000,000, spent four and a half millions to control pests, which nevertheless did dama amounting to four millions of dollars. App growers, with a crop worth $9,000,000, spe two millions in controlling pests, but still lost million dollars' worth of apples.

Few of these pests are native. Most of the and the worst ones by far, are imported. the Mediterranean fruit fly was to be introduc into California, the fruit crop of this sta worth close to $100,000,000 annually, could shipped only in cans. Never has this pest be eradicated, once it has gained a foothold. T state must respectfully decline to become t dumping ground for any more pests, even if t grape-growers from Almeria cannot ship th products into the already oversupplied mark of the United States.

WATER CONSERVATION NECESSARY.

Concern is felt throughout California at t deficiency in precipitation for the season. the present time, the snow storage in the mou tains, where the summer's irrigation water su ply is stored, is but a fraction of normal. T soil is not moistened to any extent; conditio are worse, in fact, than two years ago in t year of the drought.

This does not indicate that California is have a water shortage that will mean a cr failure, but it does mean that careful conserv tion of the supply must be practiced from t beginning of the season to the end. Spring rai very likely will go far to restore the normal su ply, but care in the use of water will do harm, and will make for good habits in the u of water.

ture in Berkeley in January, Dr. Thomas Forsythe Hunt, former dean of the college, urged larger farms as a means of increasing agricultural prosperity. In the same conference, H. C. Carr, a banker of Porterville and an agricultural economics authority, urged smaller farms, to this same end. The two opinions were deemed really opposed, yet reconcilable. Dr. Hunt's viewpoint is that the average farmer is not operating with enough capital that he must increase his output to increase his income. Mr. Carr's stand is that now farmers own farms so large they cannot give personal attention to their operation.

Perhaps both are right. Let the farmer increase his holdings, if he must operate in a slipshod way, but if he will farm right and give his attention to it, he can operate on a smaller acreage at a better profit. A combination of the two ideas ought not to be impossible, whereby the farmer could operate a ranch large enough to make his profits reasonable, yet could give enough attention to operation to make his farm profitable.

FIG GROWERS IN CONFERENCE.

Three hundred farmers attended the ninth annual convention of California fig growers, held in Dinuba last month. The program was composed of talks by the representatives of the College of Agriculture and the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, and by practical growers of figs in the state, as well as men familiar with the marketing problems of the industry. Pests, orchard practices, marketing and similar problems were discussed, and the convention, taken from the standpoint of information given, was one of the most successful of its kind that has been held.

DEMONSTRATION TRAIN VISITS.

The Santa Fe railroad, co-operating with the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, last month ran one of its famous "cow, sow and hen special" demonstration trains through the southern part of the state, starting at Blythe and ending at Escondido. Livestock exhibits from the University Farm were used to emphasize to the farmers the need of diversification by means of livestock on the farm.

BLACKBERRY MITE.

Many growers of Himalaya blackberries, both in back-yard gardens and commercial plantings, have been troubled with "red berry," the fruit never ripening or developing beyond the red stage. This is caused by the blackberry mite, and a lime-sulphur spray, applied just after the pruning and trellising, and before the buds open, will be found to aid in the control. The strength used should be 4 to 8 percent or its equivalent in dry preparations.

During blossoming, follow up sprays may be used; and in cases of severe infestation, a summer treatment will be found effective. Summer or fall spraying, followed by dormant spring sprays, will insure complete protection from the pest.

FIRST TO CROW, BEST TO BREED.

With the approach of spring, those who maintain a poultry flock are considering the replacement of old stock. For those who simply buy baby chicks, the problem these days is simple. The accredited hatchery movement has spread through the state until it is possible to buy chicks from stock that has known production records and the purchaser has but to determine just how much he is willing to pay to guarantee his production.

Fortunately, good stock from accredited hatcheries comes no higher than that from just chickens. However, to the poultryman who likes to breed his own layers, a different situation is presented. He must use eggs from his most productive stock. If he trapnests, the hen side of the problem is solved. If he does not, he usually is safe if he selects the pullets that lay first, and bands them so he will be able to select them at breeding time. He usually will make no mistake if he selects for breeding the cockerels that develop early, as indicated by their combs and crow. The first to crow are the best to breed.

GRAFTING SUCCESSFUL.

Concord grapes grafted on Thompson Seedless stocks have been successful in many parts of the state where this practice has been tried, and the grafts have proved strong enough to bear out the claim there is a strong affinity between these two varieties. The Concords make good growth on the Thompson roots and frequently have been reported as outgrowing ungrafted Thompson Seedless in adjoining rows. Low grafting is advised by some of the growers, while others say the unions may be made above the trunk of the vine.

WILMINGTON GATEWAY OF PACIFIC SOUTHWEST

E. M. Beattie

(PUBLICITY CHAIRMAN, WILMINGTON CHAMBER COMMERCE.)

EACH DAY WILMINGTON BECOMES more and more secure in its position as the gateway of the Pacific Southwest, and the harbor is the controlling factor. Ships of the seven seas moor at the docks of Wilmington and countless workmen swarm their decks, discharging cargoes from far-distant ports and reloading their holds with the Southwest's contribution of mine, mill, field and factory.

During the year of 1918 six steamship lines made this harbor a port of call. At the close of the world war it became apparent that federal aid, which had naturally lain dormant during that great conflict, would be available and the City of Los Angeles lost no time in matching dollars with Uncle Sam on a development program that has never been equaled for progress.

Growth has been steady, consistent and well planned. So much so, that today we have the most modern harbor in the world, and business has kept pace with physical development.

Today one hundred thirty-eight steamship lines are regular patrons of this port and about half of this business is handled in the Wilmington district. The harbor stands pre-eminent as Los Angeles' best-paying municipal investment; it is a two-hundred-million-dollar concern; backed by bonding ability, brains, business and an unconquerable spirit of commercial enterprise. Founded on necessity rather than on luxury, its permanence is beyond question.

In addition to waterways, docking and ships, harbors require a corresponding amount of steam, rail, electric and motor transportation facilities. Wilmington has these in abundance.

An exceptionally favorable condition exists in the matter of railroads having terminals here. The Union Pacific-Salt Lake, the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, the Pacific Electric and Municipal Terminal railways give Wilmington twenty-four thousand and sixty miles of direct rail connections, covering millions of square miles of the most desirable trade territory in these United States.

Three of California's famous boulevard highways provide outlets from the harbor district through Wilmington, and another is well on the way to completion. Motor-vehicle transportation is easily at its pinnacle here. Express and freight trucks, busses, delivery and private cars combine to present a permanent moving picture that is almost bewildering in its intensity. A recent check on motor traffic on Anaheim street, Wilmington, showed a car for every four seconds, which record qualifies this wonderful thoroughfare as a husky contender for the title, "The Busiest Street in the World."

This is the transportation part of our story, and Wilmington is a transportation town. Where can you beat it?

AN IRRESISTIBLE INVITATION.

Speaking of industry: Wilmington has fifty-two manufacturing concerns of various kinds, ranging from shipbuilding to soap makers, and from oil refineries to fish canneries.

In export oil and import lumber it exceeds any port in the world, and to this wonderful record is added fish, having passed Boston with an output of 154,000,000 cars. Advantageous location, cheap municipal power, transportation, living conditions, soft water supply, and an ideal labor market combine in an irresistible invitation to industrial plants.

Any industry, great or small, to which water transportation is an asset, will prosper here. We are especially interested in locating small units and plants with which diversification may be accomplished.

Many of the best and shrewdest business executives in America have been sold on this locality and have backed up the purchase with payments aggregating millions of dollars. Here is a tip for the wise ones.

Wilmington's growth is not a boom! The Wilmington Harbor District is the economic dynamo of the entire Pacific Southwest. In it are the wheels of commerce that pump the lifeblood into Los Angeles and all surrounding cities. It is the chosen spot for the great industrial center because of its railroads and its harbor. Factories need water transportation as well as rail, and in Wilmington they get both—and liberally at that.

Our activity is a normal, healthy and permanent growth, brought on by a natural combination of economic and trade conditions. We would be glad to have you come and look us over. If you can't come, write. Our police are courteous, and our citizens the kind of folks you would be glad to live among and call your friends.

versity of California, when he wrote of it: 'A natural addition to the Bancroft Library; an admirable work of continued human and historic interest for all who know California and love it.'

"The diaries themselves for historical purposes are still of great value for not all of their content has been used in the translation. It is indeed fortunate that they are now to be placed in the Southwest Museum, where they will be properly cared for and made available for the student. It is a commendable spirit which prompted Professor Behnke to give these materials to the museum. And it is to be hoped that other such valuable materials in private possession, stored away and forgotten, and likely to be destroyed by fire or the many other agents which year by year lessen our historical sources, will be deposited in our public institutions like the Southwest Museum where they will serve the public at large and be preserved for posterity."

FIFTY YEARS AGO

County, February 10 attempted to thaw a giant-powder cartridge in hot water. It exploded, and blew him and the building he was in into hundreds of pieces.

A young man named Hickey, a ditch-tender at North San Juan, Nevada County, February 6 was swept away in a snowslide and killed.

Joshua Goden of Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, was troubled with catarrh and began doctoring by mail with a female curist in the East. February 14 he took a dose of the cure sent him and immediately began having convulsions. After having twenty-three of them, in as many hours, he died.

There was a school exhibition this month in a mining town and a description of a part of the exercises, written by one of the young women present and sent to a friend, shows that the talent for exaggerating the importance of small doings was as great then as it is now: "Our dialogue came next. The teacher's eyes shot fire when Nellie Jones coughed to split her sides, and Kittie nearly died from laughter; Nellie recited so loud she nearly knocked the roof off the house, but Ellen was so bashful she nearly sunk through the floor, and Susie thought she would burst a bloodvessel; this made Louis boil over with rage. Bobby's eyes were as large as saucers, and Tommy almost ran his feet off moving about the stage. I knocked down a persimmon when I sang, and we brought down the house with a thunder of applause that, no doubt, you would have given the world to hear."

EARTHQUAKE PREVENTIVE MEASURES

"EARTHQUAKES CANNOT BE MET with discreet silence," says Dr. Perry Byerly, seismologist of the University of California. "The thing to do is to plan preventive measures to lessen the damage that results. It is wiser to take advantage of the interval between the earthquake just passed and the one to come, to increase building restrictions than to spend time in 'hush work.'

"The real work of the booster is to get earthquake-proof building restrictions written into the cities' building laws. The unfavorable publicity that results from an earthquake is due to the damage it causes, and not to the fact that there was an earthquake.

"Although California has had earthquakes, and probably always will have them, there is not a section in the United States that can claim full immunity. In fact, one of the worst earthquakes in the world was in Missouri in the nineteenth century."

Although exact dates of earthquakes are not predictable, according to the seismologist's statement, earthquake zones and strains can be located by means of seismographs; and it is certain that earthquakes occur in these regions periodically. California is the site of two major faults, the Haywards fault that extends through the foothill region, and the San Andreas fault that runs through the state along the coast north to Bolinas and Tomales Bay and south through San Bernardino.

Building restrictions that will limit damage, he says, are most important for large office or public buildings, as the average small home in California is well suited to an earthquake region. A frame and stucco home which is well tied to its foundations is little subject to damage, and fireproof roofs would afford additional protection.

The San Francisco Bay district affords a particular problem to geologists, says the expert, as it is near two faults, and small earthquakes and upheavals that are registered frequently at the University of California cannot be placed at either fault without the assistance of three other seismographic stations to record and check results.

"If a tube is ever built in the bay," says Dr. Byerly, "It will be of vital importance to the engineers to know the exact location of any active faults, or it will be in danger of destruction."

WATCH YOUR STEP, JUDGE.

"I suppose you remember," says a letter to The Grizzly Bear editor, "the woman that ran the 'tea garden' at the Cliff House that married the Jap 'artist'? She had a tough job putting it over, until Mayor Rolph's messenger came into the marriage license bureau and told Harry Gough she was really, truly Negro. So she got tied to her Jap 'artist' and went out to the beach and clouted the woman in the next 'tea garden' on account of selling sandwiches, etc., cheaper. She was arrested, and Judge O'Brien gave her six months for disturbing the peace and battery, without even apologizing or notifying the mikado."

NEW PLAYGROUNDS.

Plans for the establishment of five new playgrounds, at a cost of $350,000, have been announced by the San Francisco Playground Commission. They will be in Chinatown, in the Excelsior district, Ocean View district, on Railroad avenue near South San Francisco and in the Presidio district.

The work will be carried out under the fund now available to the commission by virtue of the charter amendment voted a year ago allowing five cents of the tax rate for playground purposes.

DINNER DANCE.

The closing of the jubilee year, 1925, was celebrated January 2 with a dinner dance by Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 N.S.G.W. More than 300 couples were in attendance. Between dances artists from the leading vaudeville theaters entertained.

Among the honor guests were Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand Third Vice-president

UNUSUAL INCIDENT.

The July-December term was a most successful one for Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185 N.D.G.W. Gains of sixty-four in membership and $500 in finances were registered. All the initiates came in through voluntary application, there being no membership drive of any kind. As the result of the Christmas tree bazaar, a beautiful State (Bear) Flag has been secured by the Parlor.

Twin Peaks' officers along with those of Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 N.S.G.W. were publicly installed January 6. An unusual incident was the installing of sister and brother as presidents of the Parlors, Ruthe Sandell-McDonald becoming the head of 185 and Angie Sandell of 214. Alice Hearne, who retired as past president, is the youngest past president to go through every chair-office.

NEW SKYSCRAPER.

Construction will be started shortly in San Francisco on a thirty-story building, to be known as the Russ building, on Montgomery street, occupying the full block of frontage between Pine and Bush streets. The estimated cost of the building, including taxes, interest and ground rental during construction, is $6,000,000. This figure is exclusive of the value of the land, which is reported to be approximately $2,500,000.

Menlo Park, in order that they might attain education for the vocation. In the campaign to be launched for the financing of the project, Bishop Cantwell is receiving the support not only of the Catholic people of Southern California but of many prominent non-Catholic men and women who are interested in the movement as a vital factor in the civic and moral welfare of their cities and communities.

LOS ANGELES CITY'S WEALTH.

According to the recent report of City Controller John S. Myers, Los Angeles City, as a municipality, has property and equipment valued at $236,406,675. This figure does not include property and equipment under control of the board of education; their value is placed at an additional $73,482,976.

Of the municipal projects, the greatest value, $72,000,000, is credited to the water department. The harbor is listed at $55,992,680, and the power and light department at $40,000,000. Parks, playgrounds and equipment are given a valuation of $22,658,801, and $25,588,372 is invested in facilities for maintenance of health and sanitation. Property and equipment of the police and fire departments are valued at $4,738,327.

MOVE TOWARD NEW HOME MADE.

At the January 22 meeting of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. a committee composed of Lewis P. Russill, Joseph A. Adair Sr., Fred Stevenson, Calvert Wilson and President Burrel D. Neighbours was authorized, to prepare articles of incorporation for a building association. When this is done additional preliminary steps for the Parlor's new home on its Venice boulevard property will be taken. Life memberships, the funds derived from which source go into the building fund, have been taken out by the following: Harry J. Lelande, Calvert Wilson, Charles E. Ames, William J. Hunsaker, John E. Sullivan, Eddie Schmidt, George J. Kuhrts, Richard E. Barry, Isaac I. Lothian, Richard J. Dillon, Alfred H. Wilcox, Louis Sentous Jr., George S. Wilson, John M. Carson, Fred J. Fischer, George B. Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street. Refreshments are served at the close of each meeting. Visitors are extended an invitation to attend the meetings.

Officers of the Parlor were installed January 20 by D.D.G.P. William Coffey, Gabriel Ruiz becoming president. Plans are developing to increase the membership, and social features are to be made an important part of the program of activities.

VALENTINE DANCE.

The attractive new meeting-place of Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. in Hollywood was the scene January 11 of a joint installation of the officers of that Parlor and those of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. D.D.G.P. William E. Coffey, assisted by a full corps of officers from Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., officiated, and John Topham and Andrew Stodel became the respective presidents. There was a large attendance. During the evening there were addresses by Burrel Neighbours, Ed Lovie and several others, and on behalf of Los Angeles Parlor, Sidney Witkowski presented an emblematic ring to Ronald M. Ross, retiring past president.

January 25, Corona had an open meeting, which was attended by several eligibles. President Topham presided, and the speakers included Grand Trustee John T. Newell, whose subject was "The Order," Past Grand President William I. Traeger (Sheriff "Bill"), who gave an outline of California history, and Judge John M. York. Song and dance numbers were presented and refreshments were served.

Corona's February program includes initiation the 1st, a valentine dance the 8th, initiation the 15th, and a smoker, to which eligibles are specially invited, the 22nd. Judge Bertin Weyl will have charge of the latter event. Arrangements are already well under way for the Parlor's thirtieth anniversary banquet in April. A membership campaign is under way, and each of the eight team captains claims that his team will be at the top when the drive ends, just preceding the anniversary banquet.

REFORESTATION WORD CONTEST.

One word — "reforestation" — will provide Southern California schoolchildren opportunity to win $500 in prizes, according to a contest announced by the American Reforestation Association. There will be 101 prizes, varying from $100 to $1.

Contestants are to write as many words as possible from the letter in the word "reforestation" and mail them, with a brief essay on "What I Know About Trees," to the association's headquarters, 428 Bradbury building, Los Angeles.

Following are the contest rules: Write words plainly in alphabetical order. Use one side of paper. Number and write name and address on each sheet submitted. Mail to American Reforestation Association Contest Department. The contest closes February 15.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. Hattie Fickett, mother of William H. Fickett (Los Angeles N.S.), passed away December 27, at the age of 68.

Fred William Sweet, affiliated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., died January 14. He was born August 14, 1872, at San Luis Obispo, where the remains were interred under the direction of Gus Alvarez (Vaquero N.S.).

SAN DIEGO and Tributary Sections Opportunity's Gateway Extends A Welcome To All —

SAN DIEGO HAS EVERYTHING THE HEART COULD DESIRE

John Lawrence Fox

(EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, SAN DIEGO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

THE MANY ATTRACTIONS WHICH NATURE with so lavish a hand has bestowed upon San Diego and its environment, together with the embellishments of man in some instances to make spaces along the shoreline or in the uplands even more attractive to sightseers, are steadily pushing the fame of San Diego as a pleasant place into wider realms.

With points of interest historically, scenically and, because of development, the city and country surrounding it, San Diego has advantages as a place to visit or make a home far above that most localities can boast. Each year it is the mecca of thousands of tourists, who come both winter and summer to enjoy its charms. Many of these visitors are attracted primarily by the uniformly mild climate. Upon arrival they look about for something to entertain them and it is then they discover some of the beauty spots for which San Diego is noted.

Situated, as it is, on the ocean and yet only a few miles from the uplands, San Diego possesses the dual advantages of a beach city and a mountain resort, because of the easy access of the uplands over a comprehensive system of paved boulevards. These lead in various directions from the city and each serves as a route to several inns, lodges or camps tucked away in the higher altitudes, each of which has a charm all its own. Near some of these are large lakes which teem with game and fish and in the fall or winter months afford fine duck shooting. At others are golf courses where the devotees of that sport may test their skill surrounded by rugged mountain tops, which form an effective barrier against the wayward player getting too far off the fairway. Other amusements afforded are horseback riding, hiking, tennis, swimming, dancing and music. At all the upland places hospitality is lavish, excellent food is served most appetizingly and the comfort of the guest is paramount with the management.

As a beach city, San Diego has everything to offer the heart could desire. Within a few minutes' ride of the business district are no less than a half-dozen seaside playgrounds, so the seeker after beach pleasures may select the place favored. La Jolla is the most remote and at the same time one of the most attractive, because the coast is rockbound and rugged, yet possessing an ideal bathing place in a cove with a fine sandy beach. All along the shoreline from La Jolla to Point Loma is really a fine beach, and at some time not far in the future what is not natural will be highly developed.

Mission Beach, where a year ago there were only a few small cottages scattered over the sandy stretch of beach which separates bay from ocean, today is one of the most highly-developed amusement centers in the country. Within a few months over two millions of dollars were spent in erection of a group of buildings which are not only commodious and perfectly adapted to the uses they are put, but they are built substantially and are considered artistic triumphs by all who have studied their architecture. Housed in the spacious structures included in the amusement center are a big plunge, together with a small kiddies' pool; a roller-skating rink with a perfect surface for enjoyment of this sport, and a casino where both dining and dancing may be enjoyed any evening. A few paces from the bathhouse in one direction the bather may plunge into the surf of the Pacific, while at no greater distance in the other direction lie the still waters of Mission Bay, inviting the swimmer to enjoy a swim without having to combat the surf rollers which are encountered on the other side of the strand.

Just across the bay from downtown San Diego lies Coronado, with its world-famous hotel, Tent City and silver strand. Here, as at Mission Beach, the pleasureseeker has the advantages of surf bathing on one hand and quiet water for swimming on the other, while boating, aquaplaning and sailing are included in the list of sports which may be enjoyed. Free concerts and moving pictures, a long line of concessions and dance pavilion all help make Tent City a lively place through the long summer months.

Life at the beaches is particularly active during the summer months, as it is then the residents of the Imperial Valley, Arizona and other localities where high temperatures are experienced in summer, flock to San Diego to enjoy its coolness and the pleasures of its resorts. Helping to swell the throngs over the weekends are people from nearby cities and towns, who come in large number to avail themselves of the pleasures afforded on San Diego beaches. The water is cool and invigorating, while the sunshine tempers the ocean breeze so that conditions are ideal for pleasure.

The visitor, in either summer or winter, who is seeking something to interest does not have to go far to find it in San Diego. Balboa Park, an area of 1,400 acres, lies in the heart of the city and only a few minutes' walk or ride from the business center. Here is where the Panama-California Exposition was held in 1915-16, and many of the buildings which housed the exhibits have been maintained and today are housing places for art, science or natural history exhibits. In the center of the group is the famous Spreckels outdoor pipe organ on which concerts are given every day in the year by noted players. During the summer months these concerts are presented in the evenings, while in the winter months mid-afternoon is the hour for the concert.

Flanking the organ and its neighboring buildings, all of which are examples of the Spanish-Moorish type of architecture, are spacious flower beds which, at different times of the year, are filled with seasonable flowers which bloom in ofusion. A space that today is a riot of color m countless pansies, a few weeks hence will equally gorgeous, but dahlias or asters will ve replaced the pansies. Roses are found in veral sections of the great flower garden, but ere is one plot which is given over exclusively this flower, and there may be found numerous rieties, featuring every shade and color.

Not far away from the central group of buildgs are the grounds of the San Diego Zoologal Society in which are quartered strange asts, birds and reptiles from all quarters of globe. While the "zoo" was established ly four years ago, it is already recognized as e of the leading organizations of its kind in e United States and this distinction is largely e to the climate, which is not severe enough preclude even tropical animals living in perct comfort out of doors. As a result, open ttoes are provided for the lions, tigers and her ferocious animals, while elephants and mels are confined in compounds.

To the visitor who is making his initial tour the zoo, the sight of full-sized lions quartered a covern the front of which is open to the rld is somewhat startling, as there is appartly nothing to prevent the inmates from roamg abroad at any time they see fit. However, a ser inspection discloses a deep moat and a gh wall separating the ledge on which the anils bask in the sunlight, from the world at ge, so they are as effectually shut up as ough they were behind the stoutest of steel rs.

Many of the rare specimens of bird life have eir home in the huge flying cage, so high that der its roof of steel netting are fully developed es in which the birds build their nests and der the shade of which they enjoy life. The merous tribes of monkeys and apes are quared in cages of woven wire where they are ever dy to "do their stuff" for the crowds which always around the primate section enclosure. In ponds and pens scattered about the grounds found the waterfowls and wading birds, ng with seal, alligators and other specimens wild life which divide their time between land d water. Reptiles of all sizes and kinds are t in the "snake house," where a huge python enty-five feet in length is king. In a lagoon, ar the snake house, is an elephant seal which, e to its name, combines the features of both elephant and a seal, being almost as large as former and having the appearance of the ter.

Because of the number of exhibits in the zoo the amount of space it covers, an entire day not too much to devote to seeing it, and many dents of nature spend many days there, inasing their knowledge of the traits and chareristics of the zoo's inmates.

Winding through all parts of the park are ves lined with trees from every clime, while ng the roadway are flowering shrubs. Areas given over to flowers are covered with a fine vety lawn over which a generous shade is t by towering trees, affording ideal playunds for children.

To those interested in the early history of lifornia, or of the Spanish padres who were trumental in establishing the chain of misns which dot the landscape at regular inters between San Diego and San Francisco, Old wn, the site of the first White settlement in lifornia, will prove attractive. Within the lls of the quaint 'dobe structure known as amona's Marriage Place" will be found many ics of the early days. Nearby, a huge cross rks the spot on which the pioneer missiones started construction of the first mission, y to have their work destroyed by marauds Indians. A few miles toward the uplands, Mission Valley, are the walls of the first misn, and near it is a modern Catholic school.

To gain a comprehensive view of San Diego l its environment, one needs only take a trip the outer end of Point Loma, the high promory which forms one of the walls enclosing n Diego's landlocked harbor. Rising approxitely 600 feet above sealevel, the promontory ords a viewpoint which is unrivaled, and the ne gazed upon from its height is said by rld travelers to be equalled by few places in country.

The panorama spread out includes North Isd, where the aviation units of the army and y have their shops, schools and landingds, with planes hopping off or landing almost every hour of the day. Just beyond the island lies Coronado, the Crown City, with its great hotel gleaming white in a setting of palm trees and other semi-tropical verdure. Extending into the distance, bordered on one side by the waters of San Diego Bay and washed on the other by the surf of the Pacific, is the silver strand which connects Coronado with the mainland. Flanking the whole are the high tablelands of Baja California, a state of Old Mexico which is only fifteen miles away.

Turning to the left, the sightseers gaze on the City of San Diego, rising from the waterfront and spreading over the hills, while far to the east may be seen the rugged mountains of the Incopah Range, which separate San Diego from Imperial Valley, 100 miles away. Passing in and out of Silver Gate, the entrance to San Diego Bay, which is almost directly underfoot, are ships either of commerce or war, as this is the first port of entry in the United States for ships coming north from the canal zone.

Uncle Sam was among the first to recognize the advantage of San Diego, and as a result developments representing an outlay of many millions of dollars have been brought about by the Federal Government. San Diego is the capital of the Eleventh Naval District, headquarters for the Fourth Marines and a base for the destroyer fleet, while during a greater part of each year a large number of the fighting ships of the Pacific fleet are based in San Diego Bay. Among other governmental institutions are the naval training station and the naval base hospital. Each succeeding year sees the plans for development of government property enlarged, and soon San Diego will be recognized as the chief base on the Pacific Coast, as well as the most delightful city in the United States to call home.

During the last decade San Diego has shown a steady, yet rapid growth, and students of conditions give much of the credit for this development to the Panama-California Exposition held here in 1915-16. Through their visit to this great "fair," many people of the East and Middle West gained their first acquaintance with San Diego and learned of its attractiveness as a place of residence. Many of the visitors to the exposition returned home olny to later come here to live, while all those who enjoyed the exposition became boosters for San Diego, not only because of the beauties of the exposition and its setting in Balboa Park, but because of the delightful climate at all seasons of the year. Thus, the fame of the city was spread over a wide area and thousands were led to become residents of the city which has so many advantages.

The development by the government of one of its principal naval and air bases at San Diego has proven another important factor in the growth of the city. Many millions of dollars have been invested by the government in establishment of branches of the army and navy serve, and the annual payroll of the men stationed ere amounts to $25,000,000. A third factor, hich affects chiefly the industrial development, the completion of a new rail line, the San Di go and Arizona railway, which gives San Diego direct outlet to the east through connections f the new road with the Southern Pacific and he Rock Island lines.

With new industries being added to the list ch year and with a steady increase in the vol me of business transacted, the further growth San Diego is assured. As there are yet many sirable industrial sites affording freight serv- by either rail or water and fine tracts for omesites around the outskirts of the city, San ego has room to continue expansion for many ars without becoming cramped as are a large mber of municipalities which have not yet at- ined its size or importance.

ATIVE SONS WANT NATIONAL CEMETERY FOR SAN DIEGO.

The committee of San Diego Parlor No. 108 S.G W. appointed by Grand President Fletcher Cutler to carry on the project of erecting on oint Loma the Cabrillo memorial monument is utlining a program for raising the necessary nds. The Grand Parlor itself has pledged a bstantial sum. The committee is composed of dgar F. Hastings, Dan E. Shaffer, Rufus oate, Carl Heilbron, A. P. Johnson Jr., Eugene aney Jr.

January 18 officers of the Parlor were in- alled by D.D.G.P. Eugene Daney Jr., Harold lson becoming president. The Parlor has opted the following resolution, presented by a mmittee composed of Edgar F. Hastings, Ed- rd H. Dowell, Edgar A. Luce: "Whereas, n Diego Parlor No. 108 Native Sons of the lden West has been active in marking the aves of those who gave their lives to the end at California might become a part of these ited States; and

"Whereas, It was through the efforts of this rlor that the graves of those who lose their es in the battle of San Pasqual, and who now at in the post cemetery at Fort Rosecrans, were arked by a proper memorial; and

"Whereas, Congressman Phil D. Swing has in- duced in the National Congress a bill, H. R. 9, setting aside a plot of ground, not exceed- seven acres and including the present post metery at Fort Rosecrans, as a national ceme- y; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That San Diego Parlor No. 108 S.G.W. hereby indorses the bill, H. R. 379, and es that every aid possible be given Congress- n Swing in securing the passage of this bill."

PALOS COLORADOS

(MABEL ELINOR PHILLIPS.)

Have you heard the ancient legend
Of the sentinel so tall
That guards fair Santa Clara,
Rarest valley of them all?

In the days before Portola,
Or his joyous little band,
Ever dreamed of San Francisco
Or this sun-kissed flower land,

Dwelt two mighty Indian warriors,
Each the bravest of his tribe,
And each claiming Santa Clara
For his winsome, lissom bride.

But the dainty Indian maiden
Of the sainted Spanish name,
Baptized later by the padres,
When a convert she became,

Vowed she'd wed not either warrior
Till great prowess he could boast
In a bout with San Mateo,
The rich Spaniard of the coast.

So, for love of Santa Clara,
On a morning calm and bright,
Entered Palos Colorados
In a fierce and bloody fight.

But the rifle of Mateo
Was a match for any bow;
In a moment Colorado
By the creek was lying low.

At the downfall of his rival
Palo Alto whooped in glee;
Ne'ertheless the shock, subconscious,
Petrified him to a tree.

When the fair, sweet Santa Clara
Was bereft, all in a day,
The Great Spirit compensated
And gave youth to her for aye.

So, through all her years of blooming,
Garbed in gorgeous, radiant robes,
Palo Alto guards the maiden
Where San Francisquito flows.

—San Jose Mercury.

rule, these Mexican laborers are brought in by corporations because they work for a low wage. Their breeding proclivities are about on a par with those of the Japs. When in need of assistance, the general public, and not the corporations, have to "come through." Representative Bacon of New York has before the Congress a bill to restrict immigration from Mexico by applying the quota law to that country, and it should be passed.

No one who follows the trend of events was surprised at the outcome of the Washington court-martial, which found Colonel William Mitchell guilty. The verdict was necessary, to "save the faces" of the "higher-ups."

Colonel Mitchell, however, rendered service to the country that is appreciated by The People in general, and some good will surely come out of the fracas he precipitated. He forced into light "inside" facts revealing the awkward position this country has drifted into, through the guidance of incompetent and politically-protected swivel-chair officials and foreign-propaganda-influenced peace-at-any-price advocates.

Compilation of a new great register commenced with the new year's beginning, and every citizen of California who wishes to participate in this year's general election will have to get his or her name on the new register of voters. With the close of 1925, the old registrations ceased to be in effect.

Every good citizen, eligible to do so, will register. That is a duty, the performance of which should not be delayed. And the good citizen, too, will vote; otherwise, he or she is not a good citizen.

Registration for the August 31 primary closes July 31, and that for the November 2 general election October 2. Time moves rapidly, so do not delay, but register now, and be in readiness for the battles of the ballots.

The matter of husband and wife both holding public positions, at the expense of the taxpayers, is one that is engaging considerable attention now. The practice has become dangerously general, and should be promptly abolished.

No married woman with an able-bodied husband should be employed in any public capacity, and especially one whose husband is on the public payroll. It is unfair to those men and women who must earn their own livelihood to permit such a practice to continue, and it is not for the best interests of the home.

In the demise at Washington, D. C., of John E. Raker, California lost one of its most valued public-servants. In point of service the oldest member of the National House of Representatives from this state, his record is one that proves his worth to the nation and to the state. While not a native of California, no native-born could have been more faithful and loyal to the state than was Representative Raker.

Parlors of Native Sons of the Golden West should emulate the example of Las Positas No. 96 of Livermore, Alameda County, which recently presented to the public-library of that city a work entitled "Pictorial History of California." It is the joint product of Dr. Owen C. Coy of the History Department of the University of Southern California and Edward Mayer, secretary of the Department of Visual Instruction, University of California.

The "Pictorial History of California" should have a prominent place in every public-library of California, and the Native Son Parlors can promote interest in the state's history by placing it in the libraries of their several communities.

MUSICAL RECITALS.

On the evenings of February 15 and 19, at the Philharmonic Auditorium, two concerts of rare quality will be given under the auspices of the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' joint committee for homeless children.

It is only necessary to give the personnel of those who will be heard, to insure most delightful evenings of song and music. At the first concert, the artists will be:

VERA BARSTOW—Violinist; an American product wholly, yet few indeed are her peers among artists of either sex or nationality. Indeed, among the discriminating she is concededly one of the greatest of living violinists.

LENORE IVEY—Well-known Canadian mezzo-soprano who has recently come to Los Angeles from Toronto, where she achieved an enviable reputation, being possessed of a voice of rare charm and artistic interpretation.

JACQUELINE SUTER—A radio star read at the age of six years, and lately broadcasti over K N X. She will give the address of w come to the audience. During the last two yea she received twice in Washington the $5,0 prize for beauty, grace and dramatic ability. S is a native daughter of Los Angeles. She w also appear at the second concert, and in ad tion there will be heard:

GEORGE GRAMLICH—A native Americ tenor, who has come to Los Angeles from Ita where he studied with the best masters. Sin his arrival here, he has received an ovati wherever he has appeared.

RUTH WILSON—A child violin prodigy eleven, when she made her New York debut, a now a matured artist at fifteen. She is t

¶ The Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West is founded upon the same broad patriotic principles that have been the inspiration of similar organizations in older States of the Union. Each State has its history. Into that history is interwoven a narrative of deeds performed by a mighty race of men who frontiered and pioneered the pathway for the countless thousands to follow. They transplanted the spirit, the life, the institutions of the Colonists, and wherever a State was erected there were established the ideals of the Fathers of the Republic.

¶ Therefore, the membership of our Order is limited to those born within the State, because we believe that pride of nativity is inherent in the breast of every person and moves that person to a consecrated loyalty to his native land. We do not maintain that birthplace alone confers any special privilege; rather do we teach that this casts upon the citizen an increased obligation to become interested in all material matters affecting its development and progress. National strength and national greatness have been commensurate with State strength and State greatness.

¶ California was the thirty-first State to be admitted into the Union. She contributed a citizenship and a golden treasure at an opportune time in the affairs of the nation. The many events connected with its settlement and organization as a State played a prominent part in shaping the destiny of the American people, and geographically she occupies a strategic position in the world-wide problems of the present and the future.

¶ We have taken an active interest in the conservation of our natural resources; the preservation of our scenic wonders and making them accessible to all; the retention of the State and its soil for the White race; all legislation, Federal and State, affecting the State and its interests.

¶ In our Fellowship endowment at the University of California we have expended over fifty thousand dollars in the preparation and preservation of the history of California and the Pacific Coast, and it has become the incentive for the Student Body of that institution and of the high-schools throughout the State to learn and teach that history. In this work we have laid the foundation for a text-book to be used in the public schools.

¶ We visit places where important events transpired and we have identified and marked the same with tablet and monument. Responding to the patriotic objects of our Order, we observe each recurring anniversary day of the Admission of California into the Union by public ceremonies in the various cities of the State. We actively participate in public dedicatory ceremonies of grammar-school and high-school buildings, on which occasions the students and citizens are addressed by officials of our Order on patriotic subjects.

¶ We maintain a "Homeless Children" Bureau and have placed in the childless homes over twenty-six hundred homeless boys and girls, insuring their development into a splendid citizenship amid elevating environments. In this activity we have expended over two hundred thousand dollars, contributed generously and voluntarily by the membership of the Order.

¶ It thus appears that the work of our organization appeals to every citizen of the State, irrespective of place of birth. It matters not where we were born in this land of ours; we are all citizens of a common country, we pledge our allegiance to one flag, and we are best evidencing our love of country and our loyalty to that flag by deservedly wearing the badge of public service wherever we exist and have our home.

¶ We welcome to our Membership the sons of California, and we promise nothing in return, save that compensation which comes to the citizen who conscientiously endeavors to perform his part in the cause of a greater and better civilization.

FLETCHER A. CUTLER,

Grand President, Native Sons of the Golden West.

FIGHT IS ON

FROM UNITED STATES SENATOR William E Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of the staunch opponents of the "World Court," The Grizzly Bear is in receipts of the following, under date of February 9:

"Editor Grizzly Bear: I have just read your splendid editorial in your February number. It is about as comprehensive for so brief a covering of the Court proposition as I have seen.

"It seems to me there is nothing for us to do but to go ahead with this fight and undo what we have done and avoid doing what the forces who put over the Court intend we shall do, and that is, becoming completely involved in European affairs.

"We have now designed an institution which is devoted almost entirely to rendering advice and giving counsel to the League of Nations. This advice and counsel may be called for upon the part of the League upon any question which may arise in European affairs. In addition to this, it is conceded that the opinions and judgments of this tribunal may be enforced by the League and through a resort to war.

"It is evident, Mr. Hunt, we cannot remain in this position. We cannot be an adviser and counsellor of an institution over whose policies and directions we have no control. We must either get out as counsellor and adviser or we will inevitably become a member of the power which controls the jurisdiction with reference to advice and counsel. There is no alternative. The fight is on again to stay out of European affairs."

And in the thick of that fight will be United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, California's stalwart Native Son who has always battled for America's best interests, United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and others who know that, as Chester Rowell, a devout pro-courter, admitted in a letter to Senator Johnson, "It [the 'World Court'] will ultimately get us [the United States] in [the League of Nations]." May victory finally be won, and the United States thus be prevented from becoming embroiled in European and Asiatic affairs.

A press dispatch from Honolulu is to the effect that a Jap, born in Hawaii, is a candidate for the territorial house of representatives. The purpose is to test the Japs' political strength in that United States possession. If successful, other Japs will follow in his footsteps.

That identical situation confronts California. Some time, in the near-future, Japs are very likely to be seated in the State Legislature. To get there, is one reason why they have colonized in various districts. And then, through the combined forces of white- and yellow-Japs, loyal subjects of the mikado, citizens of this country by virtue of birth, will aspire to represent California in the National Congress.

Wake up, White Californians, before it is too late! Prevent this from coming about by putting into office at the coming fall election district attorneys who will drive out the Japs by having escheated to the state the land which they now possess and occupy unlawfully. And see to it, too, that no pro-Jap is elected to the State Legislature.

Commenting on the fact, disclosed by a nation-wide survey, that intoxicated auto drivers are still running wild and exacting a heavy toll of human lives, President Henry of the American Automobile Association says: "Organized motordom is doing its best to eliminate the intoxicated driver from the highways but it does seem that many cities and towns are treating them with a leniency that affords a sharp contrast to the zeal with which violations of petty regulations are prosecuted."

In Los Angeles, and throughout California, the prosecutors and courts are extra-lenient, if the drunken auto driver happens to be in the upper-crust of the codfish aristocracy or, perchance, has wealth at his command. Stiff prison sentences, meted out without regard to sex, social or financial standing, will cause drunken auto drivers to keep off the public streets and highways. And that is the only remedy which will cure the evil.

Charlotte Anita Whitney, in a San Francisco address before the National Woman's party, pleaded for the abolishment of all laws forbidding inter-racial marriage, saying, according to a press dispatch, "If a full-grown man and woman wish to live together as man and wife it is only decent to allow them to do it, no matter what their color."

Which is to say, that Whites should not be prohibited by law from intermarrying with Negroes, Japs, etc. Just as well argue that, if a full-grown man and woman wish to establish a home for the propagation of degenerates, the law should not interfere with their so doing.

This woman is the one who has been convicted in the California courts of violating the state's Criminal Syndicalism Law and faces a prison term. Her case is now before the United States Supreme Court on appeal. "Nuff ced!"

In retiring from the United States Army, Colonel William Mitchell said: "I shall always be on hand in case of war or emergency whenever I am needed." He will likely be needed in the not-far-distant future. Keep your eyes on the "rising sun," and be not unprepared.

There is now under way a movement to defeat for re-election those United States Senators who, contrary to the will of The People, voted to throw this country into the League of Nations via the "World Court" trap-door. It should be a complete success, and it will be, if The People will do their own thinking and then vote in accordance with their conclusions.

Among those who voted for the "World Court" is Senator Samuel M. Shortridge of California. When the question of excluding aliens ineligible to citizenship from this country was before the Senate, he worked and voted for the bill providing for their exclusion, because he knew that it was for the best interests of California to exclude such aliens. In the writer's opinion he has, in voting for the "World Court," aligned himself with forces that are not particularly concerned about this state's welfare.

When the United States is finally adhered to the "World Court," one of the first questions that will be presented for discussion and decision will be racial equality, a Jap "hobby." The safeguarding reservations attached to the United States' entrance—as a sort of peace-salve to The People, who are opposed to the "World Court,"—will be of no avail. In that, as well as in any and every controversy, the United States will lose out, for the cards are already stacked against this country. Result, this country, and particularly this state, will be flooded with Japs and California will eventually become a dependency of the mikado.

Tijuana, just across the border-line in Mexico, received a lot of newspaper publicity, due to the ravishing there of the Peteet women of San Diego. As a result, greater crowds than ever are going there, the visitors probably figuring, and hoping, they will witness something exceptionally shocking. The reputation of the town, which stinks like a dead mackerel rotting in the moonlight, appears to attract.

Tijuana is the child of American patronage, and many of the divekeepers, prostitutes and pimps who thrive there claim American citizenship. Uncle Sam, you know, is very generous and not overly cautious in dispensing citizenship rights.

Turn the stream of American dollars away from Tijuana, and the once-sleepy burg will purify itself. Let the stream continue meandering Tijuana-ward, and the social putrefaction will continue and grow more nauseating.

A University of California professor recently remarked to his class that he could see no more reason why the female students should "doll up" in the classroom than the males. The next day a couple of the latter brought along their tools and proceeded to shave during the professor's lecture.

The innovation leads to the thought that perhaps, if a curb be not placed on public primping, there is likely to develop another bitter "rights" struggle, for first call on all the mirrors and reflecting metallic signs now used almost exclusively by those of the female persuasion in the process of powdering, painting, lip-sticking, eyebrow-penciling, etc.

Surely this country is becoming nasty-nice. Witness the denial of admission to the "melting pot" of Vera T. Cathcart, an alien admittedly guilty of "moral turpitude." There are flocks of people already in who have committed equally immoral offenses—so many, in fact, that were they to be cast out there would be a considerable thinning out of the ranks of "prominent personages," both alien and citizen.

---

Thousands in Penalties—California traffic officers operating under the direction of the State Division of Motor Vehicles arrested 65,944 violators of the auto laws during 1925, and from them $382,398 in fines was collected. Five officers were killed in line of duty during the year.

WALK AROUND YOURSELF

(Author Unknown.)

When you are criticising others and finding here and there
A fault or two to speak of or a weakness you can tear:
When you're blaming someone's meanness or accusing someone's pelf—
It's time that you went out to take a walk around yourself.

There's a lot of human failures in the average of us all,
And lots of grave shortcomings in the short ones and the tall;
But what we think of evils men should lay upon themselves—
It's time we all went out to take a walk around ourselves.

We want so often in this life this balancing of scales,
This seeing how much in us wins and how much in us fails;
But before you judge another, just to lay him on the shelf –
It would be a splendid plan to take a walk around yourself.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

AN INTENSIVE STORM, LASTING over a week, burst upon California March 2, 1876, deluging the valleys and depositing twelve feet of snow on the Sierra summit. This was what was called wet snow, being almost rain. It soon began sliding down the mountain sides over the frozen crust formed on the winter snowfall and many miles of the Central Pacific snowsheds were crushed, numerous wrecks occurred, a number of fatal accidents happened, and the road was blocked for several days. Railroad traffic was more or less interrupted during the whole month.

A proposition to turn the Colorado River into Death Valley was being advocated by a number of Eastern newspapers, and the attention of Congress to it was demanded. It was considered one way to make the supposed Southern California desert bloom.

A large amount of Eastern capital, to be invested in mortgages and earn the large rate of interest paid in California, was reported arriving and seeking investment in San Francisco, Los Angeles and other cities of the state.

A real estater named Scott, in Santa Monica, Los Angeles County, had received and was planting along the streets of that place 1,000 eucalyptus trees.

Two carloads of oranges, received by steamer in New York from Italy, were offered for sale in San Francisco at prices less than Los Angeles oranges were selling for in that market.

Baldwin's Academy of Music at Powell and Market streets, San Francisco, was opened with a great crowd attending the evening of March 6. While the people were awaiting to be seated a gang of pickpockets plied a profitable trade. Gold watches were their principal loot, and a great many timepieces changed hands. Only one pickpocket was caught and one watch recovered.

The Legislature, in session at Sacramento, was principally occupied with the burning question of the day—reduction in railroad fares and freights. Sessions of corporation committees were being nightly held listening to testimony, pro and con, of railroad officials and shippers, and apparently getting nowhere with the problem, except endless discussion during the day in both houses.

J. W. Wilcox, the Mariposa blacksmith, assemblyman from Mariposa County, was tried for assault on Reporter Somers in a Sacramento court and found guilty by a jury. The judge fined him $500.

COLOR LINE DRAWN, GRIEF FOLLOWS.

San Francisco was afflicted with a number of bunco artists who were engaged in selling half-interests in business enterprises and obtaining victims through advertising in the daily press. One man invested $2,000 in what was called the Belfast Ginger Ale Company, apparently doing a rushing business. Appearing on the premises March 1 to look after his interest he found nobody in charge and nothing in stock but some barrels of empty bottles. Lodging-houses full of tenants that rapidly disappeared when new owners took charge, was another line of endeavor followed by the swindlers.

A gang of seven youths, organized with a captain, were arrested in San Francisco for committing numerous robberies. They were apprehended through their drawing the color line on membership. They refused to admit a Negro youth who desired to join, and he, in revenge, informed on them.

Saint Patrick's Day, March 17, was celebrated in San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles and other cities where the Irish population was numerous enough, in the usual elaborate manner of the time.

Ben Thorne, sheriff of Calaveras County, John Vogan, sheriff of Amador County, and a posse arrested near Jackson March 19 Anton, the leader of a band of Mexican renegades who were robbing stages, Chinese mining camps and stores in Central California.

Con Virginia mine, on the Comstock Lode, yielded this month $3,800,000, nearly all of which was disbursed in San Francisco.

The Blue Point gravel mine at Smartsville, Yuba County, was sold March 16 for $170,000, to dissolve a partnership.

A rich gold-bearing quartz ledge was discovered twenty miles from Visalia, Tulare County. Six dollars was obtained from one pound of rock. The ledge was on a hill above the Kaweah River, and the discovery caused a rush of locators to the locality.

The Gold Mountain mine, in San Bernardino County, on the other hand, had exhausted its ledge. Over $1,000,000 worth of its stock had been sold a few years before, and shares were hard to pick up at the then-prevailing price. Its mill cost over $100,000 to build and put in operation. It was sold March 5 at sheriff's sale for $11,000.

A great Chinese riot between the different tongs broke out in San Jose March 26. Several Chinamen were killed and a score wounded. While a dozen were arrested as participants, they were unable to give any information about the affair. "No sabbee" was their invariable reply to all questions asked.

The San Francisco police made a raid on faro games during the month. They captured five in operation with over fifty players and $5,000 in coin.

EAST VS. WEST IN PIGEON SHOOT.

A great two-mile-and-repeat race, that was a big betting affair, was run in San Francisco March 26 between "Golden Gate," "Revenue," "Hockhocking" and "Chance." Pools sold with "Golden Gate" a favorite at $300 to $180 on the others. "Chance," the "long shot" of the race, won both heats in 3:41. This race was followed March 30 by a mile-and-a-half dash between "Chance," "Katie Pease" and "Golden Gate," which was easily won by "Chance."

A pigeon match shoot for $500 a side was a big attraction at Santa Monica, Los Angeles County, March 5 between H. C. Wiley, considered the Los Angeles champion, and C. A. Lord from Massachusetts. Pools were extensively sold, with the Easterner favorite. They shot at twenty-five birds each; Wiley killed twenty-three and Lord twenty-two. The latter lost because the birds he killed fell outside the bounds.

A jumping match for $1,000 a side March 14 next occupied the sporting men of Los Angeles. It was between Wesley and Lucas, both jumpers of national reputation. Wesley jumped 18 feet and 3 inches, while Lucas could only negotiate 18 feet.

A fire in Lincoln, Placer County, March 30 destroyed a stable and cremated eleven horses. Mrs. Sawyer, a widow, fell dead from excitement during the fire.

Conductor Coster, passing over his freight train March 2 at Suisun, Solano County, slipped on the wet roof of a car, fell under the train and was cut to pieces.

Harry Guton, a 12-year-old lad flying a kite from the roof of his house in San Francisco March 6, made a misstep and fell off, being instantly killed.

Johnny Green, a 5-year-old boy taking a ride on the rear of an express wagon in Oakland March 29, fell off and was crushed to death under the wheels of a trailer.

An Indian driving a wagon March 19 attempted to convey Miss Jennie Payne and Miss Pierre across the Mokelumne River at Lancha Plana, Amador County. The wagon upset in midstream and the three were drowned.

Thomas M. Lilly, assessor of Santa Clara County, March 21 fell from a ninety-foot-high flume in the Coast Range and was instantly killed.

A woman investor in San Francisco gave her experience as a stock speculator for ten days. Starting with a tip, she spent each day in the vicinity of the stock market. At the end of that time she was out $4 for car fare and $6 for lunches, one pair of shoes worn out walking from one broker's office to another, was told a score of lies and hundreds of prevarications, listened to a thousand flights of imagination, quarreled with six other women, erstwhile friends, had a cry each night at home because she had been humiliated a dozen times, had learned a number of new swear words and had lost $65.

NAMES, FULL OF MEANING, ALONE REMAIN OF EARLY DAY GOLD CAMPS

Except for a half-dozen or so survivors, the picturesque California camps of the "roaring fifties" have followed into oblivion the gold seekers who created them. A few have prospered, a survey by Miss Eudora Garoute of the historical department of the California State Library reveals.

Hangtown, one of the settlements to weather the years, is now the City of Placerville, El Dorado County. Angel's Camp, Calaveras County, also has withstood the march of time. But the early-day camps that have joined the "ghost cities" of the West number at least 150.

Brandy Flat, Brandy Gulch and Delirium Tremens have gone the way of Dead Man's Bar, Chuckelhead Diggins and Hell's Delight. Lazy Man's Canyon and Loafer's Retreat are enjoying a long rest. Poverty Flat and Poverty Hill are poor indeed, now. Rough and Ready boasts but one family. Timbuctoo consists of but a single family, too, though once it was a bustling camp. Poker Flat lives on, but only because the name was perpetuated in a tale by Bret Harte.

Some of the other camps, stripped of their gold and lost in the years, are: Barefoot Diggings, Bogus Thunder, Chicken Thief Flat, Chivalry Hill, Churntown, Coarse Gold Gulch, Dead Man's Bar, Devil's Basin, Fair Play, Git Up and Git, Gospel Flat, Grave Yard Canyon, Growler's Flat, Happy Valley, Humbug Canyon, Hungry Camp, Lousy Ravine, Love Letter Camp, Miller's Defeat, Mugfuzzle Flat, Murderer's Bar, Pancake Ravine, Pepper Box Flat, Petticoat Slide, Piety Hill, Rag Town, Rat Trap Slide, Red Dog, Secret Town, Seven Up Ravine, Slap Jack Bar, Sluice Fork, Slumgullion, Squabble Town, Swell Head Diggings, Turnback Creek, Yankee Doodle and You Be Dam.

Heavy Toll—Motor vehicles in the United States took a total of 21,000 human lives during 1925; the increase, compared with the 192 casualties, was 5 percent. Los Angeles and San Francisco were among the few cities to record a decrease in deaths from autos.

PIONEER SCHOOLTEACHER HONORED

VENTURA — TWO PUBLIC-SCHOOLS of Ventura County were dedicated to truth, liberty and toleration by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West February 14. The ceremonies were under the auspices of Cabrillo Parlor No. 114 of this city, and were conducted by officials of the Grand Parlor—Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer.

In charge of the arrangements was the following committe of Cabrillo Parlor: President Adolfo Camarillo, Jean Bordeaux, Charles Daly, Charles Feraud, Edgar Orton, George Daly, James Hollingsworth, Charles Blackstock, Chas. Donlon, Lawrence Randall, Jack Morrison, Ed Henderson, Herbert Henderson, Jasper Barry, George Hartman, Frank Orr, Fred Noble, Fred Pico, Charles Elwell, Robert Sheridan and Frederick Hartman. At noon the visitors were the Parlor's guests at luncheon.

The Washington school of Ventura City was the first dedicated. Adolfo Camarillo presided, and the program included: "America," assemblage; invocation, Rev. Fred Trotter; address Superintendent Schools A. L. Vincent; presentation of American and State (Bear) Flags on behalf of Cabrillo Parlor, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson; vocal solo, Mrs. A. L. Vincent; dedicatory address, Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler.

In the course of his remarks, Judge Cutler outlined the history of California and urged its teaching in the public-schools. He called attention to the several flags which have waved over the soil of California, and said that vigilance alone would prevent the flag of any nation, other than that of the United States, from finding harbor here. "California," he said, "must be saved for the White race."

Santa Paula was then visited, and the Isbell school, erected in memory of Olive Mann Isbell, the first American schoolteacher in California, was dedicated. Mrs. Isbell made her home in Santa Paula for many years prior to her death in 1899 at the age of 75. She was the widow of Dr. Isbell, a Pioneer of 1846 whose name is also closely linked with the early history of California.

The program here included: National airs, Santa Paula band; remarks, Adolfo Camarillo; invocation, Rev. F. L. Massick; vocal solo, Miss Arley Mott; address, Superintendent Schools George A. Bond; selection, Santa Paula band; presentation of American and State (Bear) ags on behalf of Cabrillo Parlor, Grand Second ce-president Charles A. Thompson; dedicatory dress, Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler

Judge Cutler, in eloquent words, paid tribute the California Pioneers and called attention the splendid, unselfish endeavors being put th by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden st, at no little expense to its members, to serve the state's history, to protect the his-ic landmarks, and to aid the homeless chil-
n. He presented this brief biography of ive Mann Isbell, penned by herself in 1893:
"My first teaching in California was com-nced in the month of December, 1846, in a m about fifteen feet square, with neither ht nor heat other than what came through a le in the tile roof. This room was in the nta Clara Mission, near San Jose. There st of the families were housed by Colonel hn C. Fremont. I taught the children of my low emigrants under great difficulties. We d only such books as we chanced to bring with across the plains, and as superfluous baggage s not to be thought of, our stock of books was ry limited. I had about twenty scholars.
"When our soldiers were disbanded, some five six families moved to Monterey, California, ere the first American consul, Thomas O.
rkin, engaged me to teach a three months'
m. They especially fitted up a room for me r the jail. I had fifty-six names enrolled, at each for the term. Part of the scholars were anish and the others the children of emints. Those were the first American schools California.
"I came to California first in the year 1846,
d started on my return to Ohio on May 1, 50. In 1857 I went to Texas to live, but left re in 1863. I lived in the Ojai two years, d came to Santa Paula in March, 1872, where ave resided ever since. I am a Buckeye, born Ashtabula County, Ohio [in 1824]. I have n a widow since January 6, 1886. My only pport is a Mexican pension of $8 per month.

"THE SURRY FAMILY."

Helen R. Hull; The Macmillan Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

Franklin and Margaret Surry, with their small n and daughter, lived on a farm in Michigan.
anklin found in his daughter, Marjy, a satisng champion; but Margaret loved the most r son, Paul.
Seasons come and go swiftly on a farm—sum-r, autumn, winter, spring. Then, astonishgly, Paul was ready for college. The sale of me farm land enabled Franklin to send him the small denominational college not far ay. Mragaret was inordinately proud of her n until the news of his secret marriage reached
. It proved to be a heartbreak to them all,
t most to Paul.
After much persuasion Marjy was allowed a llege education, with many admonitions not repeat Paul's disaster. Her experiences and velopment, together with her widening circle friends, make of her a new Marjy. The cul-nation of her schooling she finds to be in the eping of Richard Savage.
The story of the Surry family, their problems d simple joys, is a vivid one. It is a novel ich deals with the ordinary life of the ordiry American middle-class family, but it is not ordinary book. The warm sympathy of Miss ll for her characters, her deep comprehension d sincerity, breathe life and vitality into all e personages in the book. Once introduced, he Surry Family" remains to stay.

"THE LITTLE WHITE HAG."

Francis Beeding; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

Apart from the interest of this novel—which a unique mystery story commands no mean are—lies the curious fact that the author of he Little White Hag" is practically unknown.
1925 a novel entitled "The Seven Sleepers"
s heralded as "the most exciting plot story the season." It was written by Francis Beed-
g. Who he is, where he is, or what he is, are estions which his books do not answer, and ich he, apparently, does not wish to reveal.
"The Little White Hag" is the story of a man ho unwittingly becomes entangled in the eshes of an unscrupulous gang of opium smug-ers. He finds it much more difficult to get out an in, epsecially when his sympathies are quickly aligned with Cyrus P. Claypole, Amer ican detective. Together the two Americans fight against the duplicities and intrigues of the Japanese, Italian and Swiss opium traffickers.
They have a jolly time flitting about from Geneva to the Alps, enjoying both the thrills and dangers of pursuing and pursued.

"THE BRONZE HAND."

By Carolyn Wells; J. B. Lippincott Company, Publishers, Philadelphia; Price, $2.00.

On a palatial ocean liner is not the easiest place in the world to find a murderer, particularly when the victim of the tragedy, though very wealthy, is peculiarly alone and, outside of the casual acquaintanceships usually formed on a big ship, little known. Yet, that was the problem Captain Van Winkle sought to solve before the boat docked in London.
Not until Fleming Stone's interest in the case caused him to reveal his identity does the mystery begin to lift. The grand climax comes, of course, in the last chapter, when the suspected proves the unsuspected's guilt, the lovers are happily united and the culprit loses his liberty health and life.
Surprise follows shock, in "The Bronze Hand."
If you wish to try your own ingenuity at solving riddles, find the answers to these two questions:

PROSPECTS RURAL PROSPERITY NEVER BETTER

RAINS DURING THE PAST MONTH have changed the whole outlook in California agriculture for the year 1926. In mid-January, with a precipitation that in most parts of the state was the lightest known for the fall and winter in many years, the state found itself at normal by the end of the second week in February, plenty of snow stored in the mountains, reservoirs filled or filling and the ground well saturated with moisture. Field and range responded quickly. Cattlemen are assured of pasture aplenty for the summer. Sheepmen immediately withdrew their bands of ewes from the market with the new prospect of abundant feed. Grain, dormant under the cool weather of the winter, responded quickly to the warm rains of the early spring. Orchards took life anew. Business everywhere revived, and the state has profited in every line.

It takes a prospect of agricultural disaster to bring home to the business men in the cities the fact that this is a state dependant upon its farms. When they feel a tightening of money, a slackening of sales, they generally find the condition but a reflection of the conditions in rural districts. Never was this more nearly true than this year. Overnight, with days of rain, the agricultural situation was changed, and with it the business and industrial outlook of the state. The prospects for rural prosperity never have been better than now.

HOW ABOUT THE FUTURE?

Despite the warnings of over-production and with marketing conditions increasingly difficult, hundreds and thousands of acres are being planted to grapes. Most of the plantings, it is true, are of the juice varieties, nevertheless they add to the complications of the situation. Vineyardists report the heaviest demand in five years for cuttings, and rooted vines have been almost impossible to secure.

How long this condition can endure cannot be foretold. There is plenty of market, apparently, for juice grapes, but present conditions do not necessarily indicate the future. Just now grapes may be a promising prospect, but the wise farmer is planting more staple crops.

TO EXTEND ELECTRICITY'S USE.

Thirty thousand electric motors are aiding the farmers of California in their work, making a percentage figure higher by far than anywhere else in the world. This is revealed in the postcard census being taken by the California committee on relation of electricity to agriculture, of which Professor B. D. Moses of the College of Agriculture, University of California, is managing. These motors use more than 554 million horsepower hours every year, an astounding total of electrical energy for the state's agriculture. But the work they have done so far, although important, is mostly that with which even the city dweller is familiar.

However, this committee plans to extend the use of electricity on the farm. Brooding by electricity, dehydration of fruits and vegetables through the use of electricity, electric vacuum cleaners for poultry houses, electric incubation, stationary orchard spray outfits and dozens of other new uses, are in contemplation. With the further development of hydro-electric plants in the mountains of the state, there seems no limit to the use to which electricity may be put by agriculture.

BEST RESULTS—BEST FEED.

In feeding the milk cow, give her all the good roughage, such as legume hay or silage, she will consume. Augment this with one pound of grain a day for every four pounds of milk. Some farmers figure to feed three pounds of silage per hundred pounds of live weight of the animal.

For the careful farmer, however, such rules form but the basis of feeding tests, variations being made with a close watch upon results. Climatic conditions alter such rules and the farmer feeds best who gets the best results for his feed. That can be determined best by him only through trial.

MODERN FARMER NOT A "RUBE."

Farming, in days gone by, was almost sure to be profitable. Even if the farmer made no more than his living, he would profit through the increase in the value of his lands. Those days are gone. Gone, too, are hit-and-miss methods in the press of keen competition. Come then, has the day of scientific farming, and the farm operator who has not studied his business is quite likely to be among those whose year-ends show no balance and whose lands are depleted, buildings run down and equipment deteriorating. It is not necessary to go to school, although short courses offered by the College of Agriculture furnish a cheap and effective means of increasing production and profit; there are bulletins on nearly every phase of California agriculture available at the college, and at no cost.

The successful farmer of today must know his soil, must know what practices are adapted to it, and he must run his farming business as a business. The modern farmer is a business man; he is not a "rube." He must know the fundamentals of farming, and must keep abreast of the times. This he may do at home, at nights or on days when work afield is not possible. The reading of bulletins, books and circulars, or the enrollment in a correspondence course of the College of Agriculture, will repay many times the time involved; there is no cost. In producing new crops this information is necessary, and in raising old crops it will cut production costs, increase yields and add to net profits.

CHICKS NEED "RAW" SUNSHINE.

Don't forget that baby chicks need the sunshine. Not sunshine filtered through glass windows, but "raw" sunshine, with its beneficial violet rays. If the days are windy in the spring, try to provide a place sheltered from the blowing air, yet exposed to the direct rays of the sun. It is as important for baby chicks as for baby humans. Without it, their development will not be satisfactory; with it, the poultryman will get strong pullets for his egg-producing campaign.

BETTER SIRES NECESSARY.

No matter whether it be the range cattleman with thousands of head of stock on the hills, or the backyard poultryman who raises but a few hens, if results are desired from livestock better sires must head the herds and flocks. Th initial investment represents but a small diffe ence, and a year or two of breeding will transla this difference into profits. Perhaps it is n always possible to start with high-grade female but always it is profitable to breed up just rapidly as possible. There is no better inves ment than a purebred sire of known antecedent

HOME GARDEN ESSENTIAL.

The gardening season in California is at han In most of the coast and valley districts th passing of the February rains has been the si nal for planting and gardens are being prepare everywhere. The home garden, whether in tow or country, is essential. It adds vegetables the diet—fresh vegetables, with their life-givin vitamines. It reduces the cost of living, whic nowhere is too low. It provides, particular for the city dweller with sedentary habits, a outdoor recreation that builds health and keep him fit.

There are rules without number for the plan ing of a garden, but a few, properly followe insure success. See that the seed bed is pro erly prepared. Whether plowed or spaded, s that the soil is well stirred, and fertilizer adde to maintain humus and productivity. Plant onl good seeds. Test them for fertility by taking few and watching them sprout in water or b tween damp blotters. Plant crops you like, an arrange the garden so the sequence of green foo is unbroken through the season. Two crops, three, may be grown on the same soil. Plan th garden carefully to utilize all the space to th best possible advantage. Keep the weeds dow see that the moisture is maintained, keep th plants free from pests, and success must follo farm, the "Cow, Sow and Hen" demonstration train, operated by the Santa Fe railroad in co operation with the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, met a response that astonished even the most sanguine University authorities lectured on livestock and illustrated their points with an exhibit brought from the University Farm.

The crowds throughout the week of the train's itinerary not only were large, but were attentive and earnest in their endeavor to learn. While the train was operated only through counties in the southern part of the state, it is quite likely it will be followed by more trains in other districts within the year.

TO SAFEGUARD THE STATE.

Farmers of California are spending more than five millions of dollars every year to fight pests and plant diseases. A large sum which, while relatively unimportant, no one cares to see increased. With this in mind, growers of the state are in no frame of mind to tolerate the introduction of new pests that are continually found at the ports of entry. This brought about recently the organization of the California Agricultural Protective Committee, formed to safeguard the state from the introduction of new pests and diseases.

George C. Roeding of Fresno heads the organization, which is composed of such men as Chester H. Rowell, A. C. Hardison, James D. Phelan, C. C. Teague, Paul Shoup, Charles Virden, J. L. Nagle and Harry Chandler. Federal and state plant quarantine measures generally are effective, but as between states and between state and nation, they are not always uniform. The newly organized committee proposes to bring about such unification, with a view of affording the greatest possible protection to the horticultural and agricultural interests of the state.

ECONOMICAL FEED FOR SHEEP.

Bean screenings as an economical feed for sheep have been demonstrated a success by the Animal Husbandry Division of the College of Agriculture, University of California. At a meeting held recently at the University Farm at Davis, attended by representative sheepmen of the state, it was shown that bean screenings will produce more pounds of meat, in feeding lambs, at less cost, than any other feed, under prevailing price conditions. The ration fed was .604 pounds of barley, .599 pounds of bean screenings and 1.707 pounds of alfalfa hay per lamb per day.

CONTROL FOR BLACK MEASLES.

Sodium arsenite, two or three pounds to fifty gallons of water, has been found by L. O. Bonnet of the Division of Viticulture, College of Agriculture, to be an excellent control for black measles of grapes. The spray is applied shortly after pruning. Tried in three counties of the state last year, this control method gave excellent results. And this year will be given trials in every part of the state, in the hope that another of the troubles confronting California agriculture may be eliminated.

MILK SUBSTITUTE FOR COFFEE.

Another foreign monopoly has increased its levy on the American consumer, in the increasing prices of coffee. It is doubtful if California can produce a bean that will make a satisfactory coffee. But, as Secretary-Manager Sam H. Greene of the California Dairy Council points out, milk is a substitute without headaches and nervous disorders resulting and a beverage far superior to coffee as a food. No more wholesome substitute could be found, and no greater boon to agricultural producers or urban consumers could be conceived, than the substitution of milk for coffee.

SANTA ROSA N. S. GRAND PARLOR

SANTA ROSA PARLOR NO. 28 HAS AN active committee at work arranging for the Forty-ninth annual session of the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, which will be held in Santa Rosa, the government-seat of old Sonoma County, the week of May 10.

County Tax Collector Thomas Virgil Butts heads the committee of the Parlor in charge of the arrangements; he has been given the title of director. Frank Berger is the assistant director, Leland S. Lewis the secretary, and J. Ralph Williams the treasurer. Sub-committees, to handle the numerous details, are made up as follows:

Finance—Frank P. Doyle (chairman), William H. Pool, John C. Smith.

Accommodations—Geo. W. Matthews (chairman), Lucien E. Fulwider, William E. Cook.

Program, Badges and Headquarters—Frank Berger (chairman), H. W. Jacobs, Karl Stolting.

Convention Hall—John Hawkes (chairman), Don McIntosh, Harry L. Hall.

Ladies' Entertainment—John C. Smith (chairman), Marvin T. Vaughn.

Entertainment—Chas. O. Dunbar.

Publicity—Mark Lee (chairman), Carl A. Patterson, Clement L. Miner.

Banquets and Luncheons—Louis Rossi (chairman), Thomas M. Robinson, Enrico Muzzio.

Auto Transportation—James Ramage (chairman), Thomas J. Hutchinson, Frank McNamara, John H. Williams, B. W. Farnsworth.

Decorations—Frank W. Luttrell (chairman), James Mailer.

County Committee—Herbert Sweed, Eugene Mangin, Petaluma; Irving Shepherd, Glen Ellen; L. Bosch, Sonoma; Hubert Scudder, William Borba, Sebastopol.

Some idea of the splendid program being prepared by the Santa Rosans may be had from this outline of events. The list will be considerably augmented when the complete program is finally announced, for to date the special features for the womenfolks have not been definitely decided on:

Monday, May 10, reception to delegates and visitors at Native Sons' Hall.

Tuesday, all-day auto tour through Petaluma, Sebastopol, along the Russian River, thence to Guerneville and back to Santa Rosa. Lunch will be served under the redwoods in the Armstrong grove.

Wednesday evening, the grand ball.

Thursday, another all-day auto tour, this time into Rincon Valley, through Sonoma City, Glen Ellen and the Valley of the Moon, thence back to Santa Rosa. A barbecue will be served at the General Hooker ranch. In the evening, the Grand Parlor banquet.

Friday, Santa Rosa's flower show starts, and it will be continued through Saturday, the floral parade being set down for the latter morning.

Sonoma County abounds in places of historic interest and scenic grandeur, and many of them will be visited in the two days of the week given over to outings.

Director Butts, in a letter to The Grizzly Bear, says: "We have had such generous requests from Parlors in this vicinity requesting a day in which to assist in the entertainment that it would take about two weeks to cover the ground. Our committees are hard at work, and everything points to one of the best sessions in the history of the Order. Santa Rosa always hits the nail on the head!"

GRAND PARLOR GOSSIP.

The Forty-ninth Grand Parlor will be called to order at 10:30 a. m. of Monday, May 10, by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, who will preside throughout the session. Delegates will be selected by the Subordinate Parlors the first meeting-night in April.

Following the usual custom to advance the vice-president, there is no cause to doubt that at Santa Rosa Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi will be chosen Grand President, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson of Santa Clara Grand First Vice-president, and Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson of San Francisco Grand Second Vice-president, without opposition in any instance.

Grand Secretary John T. Regan of San Francisco will be a candidate for re-election, and as he "delivers the goods" at all times, it is improbable that he will have an opponent.

All present grand officers and many "suspected" candidates have been communicated with as to their office-seeking intentions at the coming Grand Parlor, and the replies have made it possible for The Grizzly Bear to announce the candidacies:

For Grand Third Vice President—Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge (Carquinez 205) of Martinez.

For Grand Marshal—Grand Inside Sentinel J. Hartley Russell (Stanford 76) of San Francisco.

For Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel George A. Dethlefsen (Watsonville 65) of Watsonville.

For Grand Trustee (seven to be selected) Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez (Pacific 10) of San Francisco, incumbent; John T. Skelton (Sunset 23) of Sacramento, incumbent; John T. Newell (Los Angeles 45) of Los Angeles, incumbent; Seth Millington (Colusa 69) of Colusa.

Eureka, Humboldt County, and San Pedro, Los Angeles County, will, it is rumored, seek the honor of entertaining the 1927 Grand Parlor. The former's claims will be presented by Humboldt Parlor No. 14, and the latter's by Sequoveda Parlor No. 263. Rumor has it, too, that Lodi, San Joaquin County, and San Jose, Santa Clara County, are considering extending an invitation. The more hats thrown into this ring the better, for competition creates the life of a Grand Parlor session.

Not even a murmur of any place wanting this year's Admission Day celebration has reached The Grizzly Bear.—C.M.H.

ARGONAUTS' MEMORIES REVERED

SUTTER CITY (SUTTER COUNTY)—TWO California Argonauts had their memories revered at the February 15 meeting of Fred H. Greely Assembly No. 6 Past Presidents' Association of the Native Sons of the Golden West, following a regular meeting of Sutter Parlor No. 261. They were Mary Murphy-Covillaud, after whom Marysville, Yuba County, was named in 1850, and John Greenwood, from whom Greenwood, El Dorado County, took its name.

Included in a paper prepared at the instance of Superior Judge E. P. McDaniel of Marysville Parlor No. 6 was a glowing tribute to Mrs. Covillaud, the wife of Charles Covillaud, a Frenchman who helped found Yuba County, along with Theodore Sicard, General John A. Sutter, Michael Nye, Ramirez and others, in the day when Marysville was known as Nye's Ranch. The obituary was written in 1871 by the unknown author of "Letters From Juanita," published in the "Marysville Appeal." The author recalls William G. Murphy, and his sister, Mary Murphy, and adds, "who became the wife of Charles Covillaud on Christmas Day, 1848, and who subsequently gave the name to your now-famed city.

"I had the honor to become acquainted with the lady, and, now that she slumbers in the grave, say that never on the soil of California has a woman trod of purer nature, more amiable disposition, a more generous heart. When she went away from earth, it was with the regret and lamentations of thousands. And now, for those who love Marysville and the home, I feel that they would like to know that the one for whom Marysville was named was one of California's first homemakers—'shedding its quiet life far for those who else were homeless.'

"And from all that I have been told of her, she was one of California's first social workers—but one who made her home the center of all her good works. And, although she had servants in her home to send on her errands of mercy, she always went herself to carry what was needed to the poor, and with her own hands cared for and nursed the sick. And the books and pictures still in the family show that she found a way, although cut off from civilization, to put art and science and the best in literature into her home. And her worn books on plant life show the study she gave to her garden. Her garden, I have been told, was one of the most beautiful in early California days. So, this valiant little woman overcame all difficulties, realize her vision of a wife, of a mother and a home. And I have always believed that a light shone on the type of men who came to California in the early days."

Mrs. Covillaud's remains now rest in a Marysville cemetery. Each year, on Memorial Day, members of Marysville Parlor No. 162 N.D.G.W. place sweet flowers above her grave.

Past Grand President Fred H. Greely related how, in 1915, during the big exposition in San Francisco, he had the honor of holding in his arms a baby granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Covillaud, the child being there to release a homing pigeon carrying a message, to relatives across the bay, dwelling on the early associations of her grandmother. Greely was a member of the first class ever to graduate from the Marysville high-school. That was in June, 1876. A fellow graduate was the late Charles J. Covillaud, son of Mary Covillaud, between whom and Greely there was everlasting friendship.

Another historical number at the banquet in keeping with the rule of the association to have one or two stories covering early-day reminiscenses at each gathering, was the explanation by Robert Dixon of Silver Star Parlor No. 81 (Lincoln) for the name given to Greenwood, El Dorado County, first known as Louisville, because of the fact that the first child born in the mining camp was a boy and called Louis. When the government decided to give Louisville a post-

NATIVE SON ARTIST COMPLIMENTED

THE PIONEER DAYS OF CALIFORNIA teemed with thrilling romance. Hence, it is not surprising that the life experiences of nearly every Native Son of the Golden State, especially if he be of middle age or past, are intensely interesting. And if the Native Son happens to be the son of a pioneer native, the chances are he could fill a good-sized book with intensely interesting reminiscences.

Such a one is G. Nickell Smith, a member of Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N.S.G.W. He was born at Salinas, Monterey County. His father came to California on a sailing vessel in 1867, while his mother was born in the state, and his grandparents crossed the plains in a prairie-schooner in 1857. The journey lasted six months. His grandmother, who died several years ago at the ripe age of ninety, once told him that they literally floated their wagons across two great rivers, had the thrilling experience of being in a buffalo stampede, and had the unusual experience of finding a spring that tasted like beer. Probably the waters of that unique spring tasted as much like pre-war beer as does the present one-half-of-one-percent product.

G. NICKELL SMITH.

Smith is staff artist of the "Municipal Employees Magazine." In addition to doing all the covers and most of the illustrations, headings and cartoons for that publication for the past fourteen months, he has designed covers for several well-known publications. In addition, there are thousands of stores in the southern section of California containing posters which he designed.

Smith is also a landscape painter, and a former member of the San Francisco Art Association. His paintings have been on exhibition in some of the leading art stores in San Francisco and Oakland. From scores of different competent judges of art, he has received many compliments regarding the high merit of his work.

STREET NAME STAYS.

Due largely to the protests from the Native Sons and Native Dtughters of Los Angeles County, the Los Angeles City Council has refused to change the name of Temple street to Beverly boulevard. The street was named after John Temple, a California Pioneer prominent in the affairs of the state in early days.

'49 DAYS TO RETURN MARCH 25.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. had one of the largest attended and most enthusiastic meetings in a long time February 18, when many of the old-timers were out and the following past presidents occupied the various stations: Charles Bennett (presiding), Henry Brodek, Herbert Holts, John Newell, Charles Blumen-

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

SIMPLICITY THING OF THE PAST

ONE CANNOT TOO WELL UNDERstand the joy and sentiment of every woman as spring approaches and, above all, her adoration of the mode as it promises prettier models. As we see the new collections we find several dark gowns, but since they are fluffy and light we forget that they are black.

For example, models of black silk voile have the skirt entirely covered with petals of the material, and when worn over a rose slip the effect is very pleasing. A black dress worn over a slip of color usually has for relief a flower, drapery, drapery belt or string tie of contrasting color.

The mode shall be youthful and gay, owing to the lines of the costume. When the dress is of voile, the skirt is very wide and gathered to the bodice. It is certain the plain voile and faille silks make very graceful models, and embroideries on plain materials give a pleasing effect. But the tailored plain and fancy materials are made into classic models. Certain kashas may be used for combinations also. The coat or blouse remain straight.

Printed silks and voiles are being shown, and foulards will return to favor, as they are very effective when combined with satin as trimming. Very practical are the gowns made of these materials, with collar and cuffs of lingerie. A foulard gown may be worn for every hour of the day, hence its success.

Besides the gowns announced for the summer, we will see the tailored costume more comfortable and elegant.

Certainly, this is to be an elaborate season. The simplicity of the last few years is a thing of the past, and soft falling frills and furbelows are the rage. The feminine appeal is growing, and we are getting away from the mannish, even in our tailored two-piece suits, which are a decided feature of the spring wardrobe. Though we select models of simple cut, we nevertheless develop them in high colors.

The white serge, twill or broadcloth frock, while not practical, is very entrancing and not without use at the proper time and place.

It is pleasant in the spring to follow the trend of color. The rose range is in high favor, also the green. Striking combinations of both of these colors with deeper shades are frequently seen, while pale pink, with the watermelon shade, is very distinctive.

Both contrasting and blending colors are employed and the effects are very attractive and generally becoming, since one shade, at least, can be chosen for the type of the wearer. Ornamental interest is given to the frocks by the addition of colored appliques, embroideries, contrasting velvet ribbons or lace in some form.

The taffetas in high shades are almost sufficiently lovely in themselves, but lace is often selected for their trimming.

A really exquisite evening frock is developed in shell pink taffeta with a tight bodice and full skirt. The skirt is ornamented with three rows of flat pink velvet roses in a slightly deeper shade. A garland of roses across one shoulder completes this simple, charming dress.

It has been said that a good recipe for low spirits is to don the best one has in the way of raiment, not forgetting to start, quite properly, with something very lovely in the way of lingerie. Certainly if beauty has anything to do with cheerfulness and optimism, then the recipe of lovely lingerie cannot fail to have a marked effect.

Certain materials, like crepe-de-chine, radium silk, wash satin, voile and colored batiste, we have long had with us, and it seems a little strange to be confronted with the new visitors, in the way of field-flowered georgettes and chiffons of lavish design, brightly patterned with high ornamentation of lace and ribbon.

In plain materials, we see the loveliest shades of corn color, peach, pink, pistache green, delicate mauve and light lilac, either lace or net trimmed, or showing bindings of self materials of deeper shades. Colored linens are also coming in these new models.

The nighties are just lovely. In the hours of relaxation, a soft garment is more desirable with floating wisps of ribbons, the tiny bunch of flowers and lace trimmed.

Whether we quite accept the thin, flowered chiffons or not, there are many other lovely results of the lingerie maker's art offered us.

Spring millinery is gay and varied. The new models, coming as advance messengers, bring us a promise of novelty and variety that will make every woman eager to get her first spring hat.

Straws are light, and although many are made in the snug-fitting sizes of the present season, in texture they are airier than the usual straw, and many are put together with a crocheted stitch. They are of such delicate substances as visca, hemp and raffia.

Some have creased and nipped-in crowns, but the newest is the high square shape of uncompromising smoothness. This shape promises to be an important new phase. Trimming bands of straw and ribbon soften it a little, but rather stress the tailored severity.

A note of variety of the dress-up hats slips into the mode, even among the small shapes.

and is joyously colorful. Some are trimmed with bands of wool embroidery in attractive color combinations. We see the novelty trim, in the form of crocodile and snake skin cockades in ornaments on the chic small hats.

Ultra in its influence is the taffeta hat, particularly the wide shape. In fact, the large hat seems destined to play a leading role in summer styles.

The so-called mushroom shape, with drooping brim and rounded crown, is another model to be worn with a lace-trimmed georgette frock. It has a turned-up back, with wider or narrower cuff lying flat against the head, which provides the line belonging to short hair and abbreviated frocks.

Summing up the hats already seen, sponsoring the spring vogue, we find green, red and bois-de-rose the colors that will make this spring a joyous reality in millinery.

The hooked rug has returned. Anyone who has an old hooked rug in her chest of inherited treasures will bring it out and place it where it will draw attention. If not so fortunate as to already possess one, get busy and make one. Women everywhere are again hooking rugs just as did their great grandmothers.

The burlap is first hemmed, then stretched upon a wooden frame and fastened with thumb tacks. The design is stenciled or drawn by free-hand on the burlap and can be readily followed. The patterns have instant appeal. Baskets of flowers, borders set off by black or white edges, and designs that make use of masses of color and form against a plain ground, are very successfully developed.

MODERN DYESTUFFS VS. THE OLD.

Modern dyestuffs can be just as fast and give just as beautiful colors as any used in past times, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It is sentiment chiefly that makes us cling to the idea that the natural dyes obtained from plants and animals are best. Many of them are lovely colors, it is true, and the time that has passed since the cloth was dipped in the dye pot has in many cases mellowed the tones and made them even lovelier.

Many of the so-called artificial dyes used now are exactly the same from the chemical standpoint as those from berries and bark and other natural sources. In some cases the new dyes are better than the old. The modern manufacturer of dyestuffs knows exactly what is in them, and for that reason is surer of results.

In Memoriam

ALICE BASKERVILLE.

To the Officers and Members of Los Angeles Parlor No 124 Native Daughters of the Golden West Dear Sisters: We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Alice Baskerville, respectfully submit the following

Whereas, The angel of death has come again with brooding wing and sable train to a happy home of life and joy and taken from earth a darling wife and mother, whereas, sweet Alice Baskerville, you have ever been an inspiration in Los Angeles Parlor. In your late leadership for advancing the membership of our Order you have shown to us that you possessed fine and unselfish qualities. Sister Baskerville was an earnest, enthusiastic Native Daughter who knew well how all the traditions of our Order call us to the service of God, our state and our country, and that we are bound to do our duty, not by laws or by creed alone, but by the honor of the service to the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, therefore, be it

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, and that a copy be sent The Grizzly Bear Magazine, our official organ of publication.

May the California winds blow lightly,
May the California sun shine brightly,
May the California rain fall softly,
Where sleeps our Alice, dear."

Respectfully submitted in P.D.F.A.,
ANNIE L. ADAIR,
H. ADELE WHITE,
GRACE CULBERT YARWOOD,
Committee

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1860.)

MRS. JOSEPHINE HARBIN-MILES, native of Missouri, 84; crossed the plains to California in 1846, arriving in October of that year in Napa County, at the site of what is now Yountville; in 1866 she became a resident of Lower Lake, Lake County, where she died, survived by five children. The Grizzly Bear for June, 1921, published the early-day history of Mrs. Miles, prepared by herself; in it she recounted, among other things: "My brother, Matt Harbin, came to California in 1844. His train, for he was the guide, was the first wagon-train that ever got across the Sierra Nevada Mountains. His company built their cabins where some members of the Donner-Reed party two years afterward perished."

Altha Carter, native of Indiana, 90; came in 1846 and was a stagecoach guard, express rider and Indian fighter; died near O'Neals, Madera County.

Mrs. Eliza Hopper-Cook, 79; settled in Sonoma County in 1848; died at Santa Rosa, survived by four sons.

Jacob Kuhrts, native of Germany, 93; came in 1848 and engaged in mining in Placer County until 1857, when he took up his residence in Los Angeles City, where he died; surviving are a wife and three children, among them George J. BRET HARTE'S THREE "LOST" YEARS.

It is gratifying to know, says the "Trinity Journal," that historians have just learned that the "three lost years" of Bret Harte's life were spent at Union, now Arcata, in Humboldt County, where that immortal author was employed on "The Northern Californian" from 1857 until 1860, as printer, reporter and assistant editor. Many newspapermen, printers and others could have put the historians on track of this information long ago, had they but known that the three years were really "lost."

It is entirely probable that Harte received his real inspiration as a poet while in Humboldt County, and acquired his familiarity with miners and their vernacular by coming in contact with the pioneer gold-diggers who went there from Trinity County.

SAN FRANCISCO BULLETIN

THE GRAND PRESIDENT'S CLASS

FULLY APPRECIATING THE VAST amount of work placed upon the shoulders of a Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, and knowing how well Judge Fletcher A. Cutler, the present Grand President, has performed the service required of him and how much constructive work he has accomplished, the Native Son Parlors of San Francisco will honor him with a large class initiation. To this end, representatives of the Parlors met February 12 and organized a committee with these officers: Joseph Rose (Marshall 202), chairman; J. Minehan (Guadalupe 231), vice-chairman; Harry Schroder (Twin Peaks 214), secretary; George J. Nilan (South San Francisco 157), treasurer.

March 30 has been selected as the date for the initiation, and the grand officers will be requested to exemplify the ritual. All participating Parlors have been asked to secure candidates to the number of at least five percent of their present memberships. This being done, the Grand President Cutler class will number between 450 and 500. Until the night of the initiation the committee will meet every Friday night at Native Sons' Building.

January 24 a banquet was tendered to Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler by fifty prominent Native Sons residing in San Francisco. Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington presided and many of the grand officers were present. The affair was the occasion of a reunion of those who had been prominently identified with the Order in the past and who have always maintained an active interest in its affairs.

BAZAR NETS $226.90.

Mae L. Edwards, chairman of the Fairfax Wheelan memorial committee of the Grand Parlor N.D.G.W., announces that the recent bazar netted $226.90. The committee, she says, is "indebted to the following for aid in the bazar: Mrs. Carrie Franks, for a hand-made spread. Lorraine Kalck, Grand Marshal Louise C. Heilbron, Maybelle Tuggle, Helena Benvenue, Liberty Parlor No. 213, El Monte Parlor No. 205, Alta Parlor No. 3, for money received.

"Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Pedro, Gold of Ophir, La Bandera, Sutter, Califia, Victory, Joaquin, Golden State, Orinda, La Estrella, Golden Gate, Dolores, Genevieve, Twin Peaks, Buena Vista and Castro Parlors, and through Mrs. Augusta Huxsol, the various Parlors of Oakland, for many articles of fancy work received."

BAY EXCURSION.

Quite a novel condition exists in San Francisco Parlor No. 49 N.S.G.W. The president is Charles Hagman, while his father, Carl Hagman, is the outside sentinel. Al Watts is the senior past president, while his son, Arthur Watts, is the inside sentinel.

The Forty-niners are preparing for a bay excursion May 23. The arrangements committee includes: M. W. Pauder (chairman), I. B. Beban, D. A. Cuneo, H. K. Depangher, Louis Loo, Grand Trustee A. H. McKnew, J. E. Rigney.

ANNIVERSARY BANQUET.

The eighteenth anniversary banquet of Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W. was attended by sixty members who enjoyed the sumptuous feast at attractively decorated tables. The favors were beautifully dressed dolls on cards. Paper caps and noise makers added a carnival spirit to the occasion.

A valentine party was enjoyed February 8. There is "something doing" at each meeting of Golden Gate, and visiting members of the Order are always welcome.

FAMOUS MINSTRELS TO APPEAR.

South San Francisco Parlor No. 157 N.S.G.W. will have a Saint Patrick's Day banquet and entertainment March 17. "Irish turkey" will be the piece-de-resistance on the menu of substantial edibles. The Parlor's famous minstrel troupe, headed by President George J. Nilan, will furnish the entertainment and is rehearsing an Irish comedy and many of the old Irish songs. The committee of arrangements consists of Har-

VALENTINE PARTY.

The valentine party February 13 of Twin eaks Parlor No. 185 N.D.G.W. was one of the ost enjoyable affairs ever given by the Parlor. lembers of Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 N.S.G.W. ere guests of honor. The hall was decorated ith red hearts and streamers, and the table avors were valentines.

A minstrel show, under the direction of O. loody, and dancing occupied the early part of he evening. At midnight a hot supper was erved to the big crowd assembled. Being aclaimed "the best one yet," the party came to a onclusion in the wee sma' hours of the morning.

GRAND PRESIDENT GUEST.

Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 N.S.G.W. had a eception and banquet February 10 in honor of rand President Fletcher A. Cutler. The Parlor's fife and drum corps met Judge Cutler on is approach, and escorted him through the treets to the meeting-place.

Over 300 members of the Order, including everal grand officers and officials of the San rancisco municipal government, were in attendnce. An interesting program was presented. orty applications for membership are on file in he Parlor.

FOREIGN TRADE CONVENTION.

All the major factors entering into the expanon and development of commerce will be conidered at the fourth annual convention of the acific Foreign Trade Council to be held in San rancisco March 4 to 6.

The meeting is to be a three-day laboratory ourse on foreign trade, with outstanding men n finance, manufacturing, agriculture, transporation and kindred lines directing the study.

The convention, it is said, will be significant of the new spirit of solidarity and unity of purpose that prevails throughout the Pacific Coast and will represent the greatest co-ordination of foreign trade effort ever developed in the West.

There will be five business sessions, two luncheon programs and a banquet, at all of which the theme will be the expansion of the Pacific Coast's commerce.

CALIFORNIA DEER THOUGHT TO BE FREE OF DISEASE.

The eradication of the foot-and-mouth disease among deer in California is apparently complete, says the United States Department of Agriculture. During the 1924 outbreak of the disease among domestic animals in the state the infection reached deer in the Stanislaus National Forest. At that time many persons considered efforts to eradicate so virulent a disease from wild deer on the open range would be futile.

In undertaking the task federal and state authorities faced a new problem, which was further complicated by public sentiment both for and against the destruction of the deer. But consideration for the safety both of domestic animals and of wild life resulted in the official decision to reduce the number of deer in the limited area infected, thereby preventing the disease from taking a heavy toll later over large areas.

The systematic campaign of hunting deer in the infected area has apparently stamped out the disease, as no case of infection has been observed since June 10. Since the disease had been eradicated from domestic animals in California several months earlier, the eradication of it from the deer finished a very difficult veterinary task.

ASSIST MARYSVILLE PARLOR IN THIS LAUDABLE UNDERTAKING.

MARYSVILLE—MARYSVILLE 6 IS DEsirous of ascertaining how many Pioneers are still residing in the northern part of the state who came to or were born in California prior to 1855. Postmaster Ed Lewis heads a committee to procure the information, and when it is accumulated an endeavor will be made to get from the survivors first-hand accounts of the gold days, to be recorded in the archives of the Native Sons.

The following information is wanted: Name and address, age, date of arrival in the state, and from what state or city. Information of any character which will aid in this search will be appreciated. If there is no living member of your family who came to California in early days, but you know a neighbor who did, write Lewis.

"Old Boys" Show "Pep."

Sacramento—Sunset 26 celebrated its forty-second institution anniversary with a past presidents' night, and thirty-five of the "old boys" responded to the call. Walter Bassett, who presided in 1887, was president for the evening and was assisted by Walter Greer Sr. and Presley B. Johnson, first and second vice-presidents, respectively, during his administration. Four candidates were initiated; one, Ben Leonard, was a charter member and returned to the fold as a social member.

During the evening the present officers of the Parlor entered the semi-darkened room bearing an immense birthday cake illuminated by forty-two candles. As the roll of past presidents was called, each, as he responded, was fined for some law or by-law infraction by Bassett, and when he got through the homeless children fund was $70 better off. Several members, including Grand Trustee John T. Skelton, D.D.G.P. Dennis Leary (Courtland 106), Lou Breuner, Albert Elkus, Frank Heintz and Judge Malcolm Glenn were called upon, and then severely fined for responding. Art Strader put on a very clever radio broadcasting stunt, putting most of the past presidents in the "grease," and at midnight the meeting was closed, the birthday cake was carved and refreshments were served. It was a great night and everybody voted the "old boys" had a lot of "pep" yet.

"Damon" and "Pythias" Heard.

San Rafael—Officers of Mount Tamalpais 64 and Marinita 198 were jointly installed January 25 by D.D.G.P. Harry Thomas and D.D.G.P. Mary Ritter, John A. Streckfus and Mrs. Irene Griffin becoming the respective presidents. Organist Clarence Johansen played appropriate airs as the officers were escorted to their several stations. President Streckfus, on behalf of Mount Tamalpais, presented an emblematic ring to retiring Junior Past President George, in appreciation for his services to the Parlor. As a token of esteem, President Griffin, for Marinita, presented a bracelet to Miss Gussie Pedrotti, retiring junior past president, and gifts were also presented Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley, Grand Trustee Vida Vollers, Mrs. Lytton Covalt.

Assemblyman Charles T. Reindollar presided over the festivities following the installation. After bestowing well-merited praise on the installing officers and telling a few jokes he introduced Mario Regalia and Charles H. Locati, whom he termed the "Damon and Pythias of Mount Tamalpais," and they responded eloquently. Among the other speakers were Mrs. Irene Griffin, Charles T. Redding, George V. Ellis, Mrs. Lytton Covalt, Mrs. Emma Gruber-Foley, John A. Streckfus, Lester R. Knutte, Thomas E. Foley.

Arrangements are being made to have Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler address Mount Tamalpais and Marinita at a joint social gathering in March.

Good Work.

"Editor Grizzly Bear: At this time I wish to express my sentiments as to the good work you are doing and the great value of The Grizzly Bear Magazine to our Order. It is the only medium we have by which we are able to keep in touch with the members of the Order and keep them informed of the general activities. It also lends a dignity which may well be envied by other organizations.

"Every Parlor should subscribe for the magazine. In fact, I will suggest that the Grand Parlor subscribe for all the members and charge the Subordinate Parlors through the per-capita tax. No better work could be done for the good of the Order.

"In my work the magazine has been of wonderful assistance. It gave me a talking point, as well as providing something of value to give to the prospects interviewed. It clearly states the reasons for the existence of our Order and shows to those outside of our membership the wonderful constructive work which is being accomplished for our glorious State of California.

"With my every good wish for the growth and success of The Grizzly Bear Magazine, I am,

"Sincerely and fraternally yours,

"ALBERT V. MAYRHOFER,

"Deputy Grand President.

"San Diego, February 7, 1926."

Successful Gathering.

Plymouth—A large crowd witnessed the join installation February 6 of officers of Plymout 48 and Forrest 86 N.D.G.W. D.D.G.P. Thoma D. Davis and D.D.G.P. Elmarie Hyler officiated and Grover C. Deaver and Ellen Packard becam the respective presidents.

Following installation brief addresses wer made by the district deputies, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wright and others, and Mrs. Hyler favored wit vocal selections. A fine banquet concluded th successful and enjoyable gathering.

Good Aim.

Palo Alto—Officers of Palo Alto 216 were in stalled by D.D.G.P. Caton of San Jose Januar 25, O. L. Minor becoming president. The ai of the new officers will be to increase the attend ance at meetings, and with that end in view special attraction will be featured each meetin night.

The past few weeks card games have been i vogue following the meetings and light refresl ments were served. The cost to the Parlor ha been very little, and there has been an appr ciable increase in the attendance.

Five Initiated.

Livermore—Las Positas 96 initiated a class five candidates January 28. February 4 the Pa lor's officers, along with those of Angelita 3 N.D.G.W., were jointly installed, F. S. "San Francisco, February 6, 1926."

Public Installation.

Fresno—At a public ceremony January 29 D.D.G.P. George Hames installed Fresno 25's officers, J. M. Wilson becoming president and W. C. Guard taking over the duties of recording secretary. At the conclusion of the ceremonies a banquet was served and dancing was in order.

Eleven Initiated.

San Bernardino—Each month Arrowhead 110 has a birthday party for its members born in that particular month, and the membership responds in large numbers. The February party, held the 17th, was in charge of Dwight Bryant. On the occasion of the San Bernardino Pioneer Society's thirty-eighth birthday, January 23, Secretary R. W. Brazelton extended the Parlor's greetings. A membership campaign is under way and the results are gratifying. At the January 27 meeting eleven candidates were initiated, among the number being the son of Grand Director John Andreson.

March 3 another large class of candidates will be initiated. March 10 is down on Arrowhead's program as family night. There will be dancing, cards and refreshments. The committee making the arrangements includes: Chas. Frost (chairman), Edward Jones, Edward Lewis.

History Related.

Redwood City—Redwood 66's officers were installed January 21 by Stanley E. Marcus, Al McKay becoming president. A large delegation from Menlo 185 were in attendance. A banquet concluded the ceremonies.

During the evening Historiographer Roy W. Cloud gave a historical resume of the life of Governor Leland Stanford, a California Pioneer prominently identified with the state's development.

Children's Benefit.

Ferndale—For the benefit of the homeless children, Ferndale 93 presented an enjoyable entertainment February 1. John Lund told of the work being done for the homeless children. Dave Delvin, Nora Canty, Chester Groom appeared in a one-act play, "Poor Old Jim," and an orchestra furnished several selections.

Others who contributed to the exceptionally good program included: Barbara Collins, Grace Gwendolin Shaw, high-school girls' glee club, Roberta Feenaty, Edward Culbertson, Viola Sanford, Sadie Ambrosini, Evelyn Brazil.

Grand Trustee There.

Modesto—D.D.G.P. R. Bush installed the officers of Modesto 11 January 20, O. A. Buletti becoming president. Grand Trustee Richard M. Hamb was present on his official visit and addressed the gathering. George Voight, retiring president, was presented with an emblematic watch-charm. A fine banquet was served during the evening.

Another Link.

Santa Ana—Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer expects to have the parlor here he has been working on the past month ready for institution during March. A charter has already been granted by the Grand Parlor.

February 25 those who have signed the charter list will hold a preliminary meeting to select officers, etc. A large delegation from the Los Angeles County Parlors, headed by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, will be in attendance.

Past Presidents to Banquet.

WILMINGTON HAS ARRIVED

MY DOLLARS AND THE CITY OF WILMINGTON

Carrol L. Post

(PRES. POSTUM CEREAL COMPANY, DIRECTOR WILMINGTON CHAMBER COMMERCE.)

MY FIRST TRIPS TO CALIFORNIA were made more for pleasure than business; that is, to escape the cold, rigorous winters of the East and Middle West. For several years I had been coming to Pasadena. Finally we decided to build a home there and since then have been spending more of our time in California.

During these many visits I had been watching the development of the wonderful man-made harbor at Wilmington, for the City of Los Angeles. Progress was made rapidly and under ideal conditions. This marvelous development seemed to materialize almost over night. After studying the various conditions, I finally decided to invest my money in what I felt was the surest and safest locality in our country, Wilmington, and will say now that things in general have gone away ahead of all my expectations.

Nature has been very kind to Wilmington. It is surrounded on all sides by the big oil fields of Southern California, the famous Signal Hill being four miles to the east, with the Dominguez and Rosecrans fields to the north, and the Lomita and Torrance fields to the west. All of this oil is piped into Wilmington, where most of the big oil companies have their storage tanks and refineries.

Some of this oil is refined and part of it is piped to the docks and then onto ships for shipment to all parts of the world. There is always an enormous amount of it in storage. For factories, this is an ideal condition. No coal to haul, just a pipe line with a meter on it right into your plant. Fuel costs are, therefore, very low.

POST THEATER BUILDING, WILMINGTON.
Owned by Carroll L. Post and Under Lease to the West Coast Theaters Company, Inc.

In addition, there is the natural gas from the oil wells, which is also used for fuel and for the generation of electricity. No heat is required in a factory here. It is never too cold and never too warm, making this an ideal spot for efficiency among the employees.

A nationally-known automobile tire company makes the assertion that its Los Angeles factory has fifteen percent more efficiency than its Eastern plant. It has also made the statement that it can make a tire here and deliver it to its Eastern plant for one dollar less than it can be produced there. Employees seem to be more satisfied, with a better chance to get ahead in the world.

Los Angeles is now working on the proposition of harnessing the Colorado River. This will bring more water and cheaper electrical power here and also take care of the future.

Right now, Wilmington is well able to take care of any industry that might care to locate here, and it will not be long until it will be one of the great manufacturing centers of our country, where the many conditions that help to make up the cost of production are at a minimum. In my estimation, Wilmington is the "City of Destiny."

NEWSY WILMINGTON NOTES.

Contracts for the Canal avenue-South Park boulevard have been let, calling for completion of the work some time in April. Allowing for possible delays, and consequent extensions of time, the boulevard should be ready for use this summer.

The directors of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce recommended that the park on Canal avenue be designated Terminal Park, and the Park Commission has approved the suggestion.

President O. J. Jacobson of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce advocates tree planting along the streets. It will beautify Wilmington and make it more homelike, as well as enhance the value of property at comparatively small cost.

The trackage between Wilmington wharves and uptown Los Angeles is one of the most lucrative in the United States. It carries an enormous tonnage.

The new Wilmington "booster" plates for autos are now being distributed by the Chamber of Commerce. They match the state license-plate, white on blue.

Many Wilmington taxpayers are emphatically protesting the assessments for the fill east of Broad avenue, on account of the inequality of the fill as left by the contractors. Legal proceedings will likely be brought to contest the assessments.

The latest estimate of the population of Wilmington places the number of residents at 12,680.

GROWTH OF LONG BEACH

A. A. Miller

(SECRETARY PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT, LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

AN OUTSTANDING ILLUSTRATION OF the vast growth of California and the Pacific Southwest is found in Long Beach. The development of Long Beach has only begun; its future is so tremendous as to challenge the imagination of the heartiest optimist. Its progress is perfectly natural, genuine, undeniable. In the City of Long Beach and the territory immediately adjacent thereto is found the fullest, finest and most compelling expression of California's alluring charms.

Long Beach is heralded as the fastest growing municipality in the United States, a distinction which probably none will gainsay when the fact is cited that in 1900 Long Beach had a population of just 2,252, but contains today approximately 140,000 souls. From 17,809 in 1910 the population grew to 55,593 in 1920, and the tremendous growth of the past five years has been more spectacular than that of any previous period.

Long Beach calls to the whole wide world. It calls to the passing tourist as well as the would-be resident of Southern California. It boasts unusual attractions for the first named and exceptional inducements for the latter.

Long Beach has the mildest and most equable climate in all of sunny California. Tempered by the soft breezes from the broad bosom of the blue Pacific Ocean that lies at its door, the weather is never too warm nor too cold in Long Beach.

Its size and location make it the ideal headquarters for the tourist. It is not too crowded to be uncomfortable. It is located in the exact spot that makes outings to all scenic points of interest in Southern California within a day's easy driving.

But it is to the person intending to take up a permanent residence in Southern California that Long Beach particularly makes a clarion call. A busy, bustling city that fifteen years ago numbered less than 20,000 souls and is seven times that today has a warm and glowing welcome in store for all its incoming citizens-to-be. Property within the reach of all for homes, business opportunities galore, industrial enterprises that thrive on and receive strong local as well as outside support, and trade possibilities in abundance are at hand.

These figures tersely give some idea to the prospective resident of what Long Beach has, —what an up-and-coming city it is today. Though brief, the figures are sufficient to emphasize the fact that Long Beach is both modern and progressive.

Long Beach today is on the threshold of a new and greater expansion,—opportunities are increasing, as population jumps ahead and industry and commerce thrive. With its $5,000,000 deep-water harbor program well under way, Long Beach is certain to take its place in the forefront of Pacific Coast harbors. Everything points to a greater advancement during the years just ahead than has characterized any previous period in Long Beach history.

Taking into consideration the surpassingly favorable conditions of location, climate, healthfulness, abundant water and gas supply, transportation and so on, and the fact that thousands upon thousands of people are constantly pouring into this favored section, can there be any doubt that Long Beach will not continue to grow in vast strides?

Nineteen twenty-five was a year of preparation and accomplishment for Long Beach. Nineteen twenty-six will be a year of greater accomplishment and further preparation. Nineteen twenty-five marked Long Beach's modest but definite and significant entry into the avenue of world trade. In other respects, also, it was a notable year—notable for a continuation of a building campaign which lists Long Beach with pleasing consistency among the twenty-five most progressive cities in the United States: for an expansion of tourist patronage: for an extension of oil drilling operations: for new industrial activities: for the construction of hundreds of homes at a cost of $8,000,000: for public improvements, of which street paving was the largest item, totaling $3,000,000: for the virtual completion of school building operations under a district bond issue of $5,000,000: for the inception of an elaborate program of park development, which will give this city one of the most attractive and serviceable recreational systems in America, combining marine and landscape features of the highest type.

By midsummer of 1926 construction will have been started on the first link of the Long Beach breakwater, which will reach into the sea a distance of between 6,000 and 7,000 feet, and which will so far enclose the outer areas of the port that dockage for thirty ships can be provided in that section of the local harbor. Ultimately, this breakwater will be extended to a total length of four miles, for one-half of that distance projecting directly south from the west bank of the flood-control channel, then turning southwestward to a point opposite the present terminus of the Point Fermin breakwater, which now partially protects the San Pedro entrance to the port.

As thus rounded out, Long Beach harbor will be one of the largest in the world. But this complete capacity, which will accommodate approximately 300 ships at outer docks, cannot be gained for a number of years, or until the federal program is carried through. When that day arrives, the combined ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles will be second, in size, only to the harbor of Greater New York, while the frontage of Long Beach harbor alone will total twenty-seven miles, and possibly more under the pressure of a demand which would justify the lengthening of slips.

Residentially, Long Beach may be described as a city of bungalows and apartments. Bungalows are given first place because the greater part of the population are housed therein. In recent years, especially since the advent of the own-your-own apartment idea, new construction of residences has been divided almost evenly between the multiple home and the single family dwelling. The bungalow court and the duplex, or double, house also have a growing popularity. A mild but invigorating climate, a friendly populace of highest type, splendid schools, active churches, varied amusements, and the finest bathing beach on the west coast, serve to attract homeseekers.

Long Beach's varied resources, interests and attractions make for stability and progress. They explain its notable expansion, and they confirm the faith of its people in that much greater development which is at hand. This confidence is based not alone upon the inflow of capital and energy, but also upon the initiative and the courage of Long Beach men and women.

During 1925 they constructed 1,000 new buildings or additions for industrial use, at a cost of $600,000. Some of these are small plants, but they have possibilities which will cause them to keep pace with Long Beach as it climbs the ascending scale of greatness, and they will contribute to that advancement.

Contrasted with these minor undertakings, one may profitably contemplate the many millions of dollars invested by the Southern California Edison Company in its giant power plant in Long Beach harbor, the 1,600 acres of land which the Union Pacific Railroad Company can offer for industrial and commercial sites, and numerous other major operations to which reference has been made in previous articles.

It is not an idle boast nor a vaunting spirit which asserts that Long Beach has entered upon the period of its greatest progress. The basic facts are here. Nowhere else can they be duplicated, in such orderly arrangement.

NATIVE SONS HAVE DANCE.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. gave a valentine dance February 17 which was largely attended. Several prizes were awarded. Arrangements for the successful affair were made by Harold Oliver and Dr. A. T. Luce.

Several members of the Parlor enjoyed the February 2 dance of the largely-attended Pennsylvania State Society. The invitation came through the Federation of States Societies, with which Long Beach recently affiliated, representing California.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS IN MOCK WEDDING.

Officers of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. were installed January 27 by D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, Bertha Hitt becoming president. The officers, past and present, carried beautiful bouquets. Marshal Jessie W. Boughner was delegated to organize a drill-team for the Parlor. Following a delicious dinner a program, arranged by Mrs. Kate McFadyen, was presented, as follows:

Addresses, Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, Florence Dodson-Schoneman, chairman Grand Parlor history and landmarks committee, President Louise Mock of Santa Ana Parlor, President Charlotte Bennett of Rudecinda Parlor, Mrs. Alpha Harper; dances, Maxine Pitts, Bret Harte reading, Miss Marie McFadyen; vocal solo, Mrs. Valentine; reading, Marguerite Lovett; vocal solo, Helen Cervantes. Many visiting members were in attendance from Los Angeles, Santa Ana and San Pedro.

At the February 16 meeting of Long Beach a mock wedding was featured. The participants: Mmes. Julia Arburn and Charlotte Wharton, respectively the bride and groom, Webber, Emory, Martin, Dillon, and Daisy Hanson. The bridal party were attired in '49 costumes, and a large cauliflower was used as the wedding bouquet. Mrs. Kate McFadyen played the wedding march and sang "Oh Promise Me."

Industrial County—During 1925 the several industries of Contra Costa County had on their payrolls 17,428 employes, and the total production was valued at $404,123,620.

More Cotton—During 1926, 7,000 additional acres of land in Glenn County will be planted to cotton.

PASADENA the CROWN CITY of the Great Southwest, Where Beauty Abounds to Perfection and Living is a Constant Delight

PASADENA HAS NUMEROUS DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Harry L. Roberts
(MANAGER PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

PASADENA, WINTER RENDEZVOUS for notables and wealthy folk from all over the world, is now entertaining more guests than at any preceding time since 1920. February 15 there were approximately 2,000 persons registered at the five internationally-famous resort hotels in the Crown City. This number has been surpassed only twice, once in 1917 and again in 1920, both of which were record-breaking tourist years in California. The increase over the same time last year is slightly more than twenty-five percent.

In addition to the guests at the hotels, hundreds of other visitors, including many celebrities, are domiciled in private villas and estates situated in the exclusive residential sections of Pasadena.

The winter visitors not only are more numerous, but they also are more distinguished than in past years. On the registers of the hotels are scores of names that the average person instantly recognizes. Famous writers, artists, editors, scholars, scientists, diplomats, doctors, lawyers, captains of industry, capitalists, merchants, bankers—in fact, it would be difficult to find a line of endeavor not represented by one or more distinguished persons in the Pasadena winter colony. In more than one instance, a single vocation is represented by several men and women whose names are known throughout the world.

Take the writers, for example. There are a score or more of them in Pasadena this winter, including Arthur Brisbane, whose daily column, entitled "Today," is read by millions of persons

BRIDLE TRAIL IN THE ARROYO SECO, PASADENA.
Early-morning canters along the miles of bridle trails that wind through the picturesque Arroyo Seco and up into the hills of Flintridge constitute a favorite diversion among the throngs of celebrities and society folk who are wintering in Pasadena.

each day in hundreds of newspapers. Dr. Frank Crane, writer of a daily column which appears in two hundred newspapers throughout the world, Arthur Sherburne Hardy, author of many books and a former editor of the "Cosmopolitan Magazine," and Alice C. D. Riley, famous for thirty years as a writer of songs and operas for children. Earlier in the season, Jules Eckert Goodman, who has written dozens of successful plays, was in Pasadena for several weeks, and Dr. Arthur Dean, writer of a daily syndicated newspaper column, entitled "Your Boy and Girl," also spent some time in the Crown City.

In addition to the winter guests, several famous writers make their permanent homes in Pasadena, the list including Zane Grey, Montague Glass, Earl Derr Biggers, Charles Francis Saunders, Grace Moon, Julian Hawthorne, Upton Sinclair, Hildegarde Flanner, Richard Walton Tully, Charles Saxby, Dallas Lore Sharp and James Foley.

Arthur Brisbane, accompanied by Mrs. Brisbane and their six children, arrived in Pasadena early in February to remain for four months. The family is occupying the R. A. Rowan residence, regarded as one of the finest homes in Southern California. Brisbane is writing his daily column at his temporary home. He brought with him from New York a staff of twelve secretaries and servants. The famous writer, who has traveled from one end of the country to the other and knows his America like a book, made it clear that he had chosen California as a winter home in preference to any other place in the United States.

Dr. Frank Crane has been in Pasadena since last fall. He, also, is writing his daily column in the Crown City. This is the fourth season in Pasadena for Arthur Sherburne Hardy, who is not only a writer but also a graduate of West Point, a former United States consul-general in Persia, and later envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Greece, Rumania, Serbia, Switzerland and Spain.

"My nephew tells me that the only difference between California and Florida is the mountains," said Hardy when he arrived in Pasadena to remain until spring. "Well, that is the only difference between Switzerland and the Sahara desert. One might as well say that the only difference between heaven and hades is the heat. I love the mountains."

Closely allied to the writers are the editors and publishers. One of the greatest of them, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, is in Pasadena for the winter. Curtis is president of the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, publishers of the "Saturday Evening Post," "Ladies' Home Journal" and "Country Gentleman." He also is owner of the "Philadelphia Public Ledger" and the "New York Evening Post." A reporter recently asked Curtis how old he was. "I was born in 1850," he replied, "but I do not know how old I am. You see, if I live as fast in the next twenty-five years as I have in the past twenty-five, I shall be a hundred about next week."

The Pasadena winter colony includes several newspaper publishers and editors, among them being D. W. Norris, publisher of the Marshalltown (Iowa) "Times-Republican;" Mentor A. Brown, editor of the Kearney (Nebraska) "Hub," and E. W. Jackson, founder of the Lima (Ohio) "News." Jackson has announced his intention to remain in Pasadena as a permanent resident.

Among the artists in the winter colony is Count Lattanzio Firmian, famous Italian portrait painter, whose home is the ancestral castle of Mezocorona, near Trento, in Trentino, Italy. Adolfo Muller-Uhy, noted Swiss portrait painter, has recently purchased a home in San Marino, where he will spend a part of each year; he also maintains studios in New York and London. Among the well-known artists who have permanent homes in Pasadena are Carl Moon, Benjamin Brown and Carl F. Smith.

To name, in one breath, all the distinguished captains of industry who are wintering in Pasadena would be rather impossible. There are literally scores—perhaps hundreds—of them.

To start in with the first letter in the alphabet, automobile and automobile accessories manufacturers in the winter colony include

Hugh Chalmers, a pioneer in the industry; Walter P. Chrysler, manufacturer of automobiles bearing his name; George M. Holley, head of the big Holley Carburetor Company and a director of the National Air Transport, the huge new aircraft corporation in which Henry Ford, William Wrigley, Clarence Dillon, William Rockefeller and others are interested; Chairman May of the Pierce-Arrow Company, and C. H. Foster, inventor of the Gabriel horn and Gabriel snubber, who recently sold his interest in the snubber company for $4,000,000.

Automobiles cannot run without gasoline and oil. Representing the oil industry in the winter colony are J. P. Landreth, Chicago oil man, and Amos L. Beatty, head of the Texas Oil Company and treasurer of the National Petroleum Institute.

Steel is represented by D. M. Clemson, Pittsburgh, one of the big figures in the industry.

The Chicago packing interests have two sponsors in E. A. Cudahy, head of the Cudahy Company, and A. R. Fay, an official in the Swift & Company organization.

Transportation companies of the nation are abundantly represented. Colonel Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and generally regarded as one of the greatest railroad executives in the country, arrived in Pasadena a couple of weeks ago. Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the board of directors of the Union Pacific railroad, is at his winter home for a four months' stay. Henry A. Blair, president of the Chicago Traction Company, is in Pasadena for the winter and spring months. R. E. M. Cowie, president of the American Railway Express Company, is at his winter home in Altadena.

Steamship men in the winter colony include A. T. Kinney, head of the Kinney Steamship Company; James L. Wallace, American Shipbuilding Company, and Capt. C. L. Hutchinson, Cleveland ship owner.

Grain is represented by George E. Marcy, head of the big Armour Grain Company, Chicago, and lumber by Frederick E. Weyerhauser, Saint Paul, one of the owners of the great Weyerhauser lumber interests.

Among the manufacturers of food products in the winter colony are Clifford S. Heinz, vice-president of the company that made "fifty-seven varieties" famous, and Irving S. Merrell, vice-president of the Merrell-Soule Company, manufacturers of a powdered milk. Carroll L. Post, former president of the Postum Cereal Company, is in Pasadena, but has announced that he will stay permanently. William Wrigley Jr., of chewing gum and baseball game fame, is at his winter home on Orange Grove avenue.

Makers of household and allied products at the Pasadena hotels include William Hamblin Childs, of the Bon Ami Company; G. D. Munson, vice-president of the International Silver Company, the largest concern of its kind in the world; John D. Larkin Jr., Larkin Company, Buffalo; A. C. Lucking, one of the owners of the Smith & Davis Company, manufacturers of beds; and C. C. Chickering, well-known piano manufacturer.

A. B. Kuppenheimer, clothing manufacturer, and C. D. P. Hamilton, vice-president of the International Shoe Company, operating forty-six shoe factories and sixteen tanneries which last year did a business of $166,000,000, represent their respective industries.

Among the many other industrial heads at the hotels in Pasadena are J. A. Joy, president of Ditto, Incorporated; W. H. McCurdy, head of the Hercules Corporation; J. K. Horowitz, president of the Thompson-Starret Company, one of the largest contracting concerns in America; A. G. Cox, a director of the William Wrigley Company, and J. E. Hamilton, president of the Hamilton Manufacturing Company, largest makers of printing furniture in the country.

stores in the country are represented by John G. Shedd, head of Marshall-Field & Company, Chicago, who is at his winter home in Pasadena. Charles Gimbel, Philadelphia, and Isaac Gimbel, New York, the famous Gimbel Brothers, operating stores in New York, Philadelphia, Milwaukee and Pittsburgh, who are at one of the Pasadena hotels, and George D. Dayton, owner of Dayton's, Minneapolis. Mrs. Montgomery Ward, widow of the founder of Montgomery Ward & Company, also is in Pasadena for the winter.

Nationally-known attorneys in the winter colony include Samuel G. Untermeyer, New York, one of the most famous lawyers in the country; former Mayor William W. Campbell, of Schenectady, New York; William M. Duncan, Cleveland, and John H. F. Lee, Chicago.

Famous physicians and surgeons include Dr. Robert Babcock, Chicago heart specialist; Dr. Harry A. Haze, Lansing, Michigan; Dr. B. A. Voorhies, New York; Dr. Flemming Carrow, for twenty years in the chair of ophthalmology at the University of Michigan; Dr. Jose Guillermo Diaz, Cuban physician and professor of pharmacy at the University of Havana, and Dr. V. Mott Pierce, Buffalo.

Among the distinguished diplomats are Colonel Charles O. Shepard, the first American consul to Tokio, later consul-general at Yokohama and still later United States minister to China, and Ricardo Edelstein, consul-general of Persia at Wiesbaden, Germany.

Famous scholars in the colony include Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, Berlin, and Dr. Maurice L. Ettinghausen, London and Paris, two of the world's foremost bibliophiles.

Among the many bankers are Herbert Coppell, president of Maitland-Coppell & Company, New York, and Norman Howden, English and Canadian banker.

Included in the hundreds of other guests are Sir Hugh and Lady Montagu Allan, Montreal, and Colonel Edward E. Ayer, director of the Field Museum, Chicago.

FOUR GENERATIONS NATIVES AT PASADENA FAMILY REUNION.

Four generations of native Californians are represented in this illustration. The picture was taken last Christmas Day at the Pasadena home of George W. Goodrich, a member of Pasadena Parlor No. 259 N.S.G.W., the occasion being a family reunion. Goodrich's parents came to California in 1849. At an early age he drove stage from Visalia to Hanford, and later was employed on the Southern Pacific between Lathrop and Bakersfield.

The center figure of the illustration is that of Goodrich, born at Chinese Camp, Tuolumne County, in 1855. To the left is his daughter, Ada Goodrich-Cline, born at Hanford, Kings County, in 1883. To the right is his grandson, Ray Stevens, born at Los Angeles in 1901. The infant, Goodrich's great-grandson, is a native of Los Angeles, born July 25, 1925.

Relief Bonds—The citizens of Pasadena have voted $100,000 bonds for the relief of victims of the New Year's Day grandstand accident.

"PACIFICO"

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE AUTHOR, IN HIS FOREWORD TO "Pacifico," a novel based on truth, fiction and possibilities, says: "Blood, faith, tradition, greed. Through the ages men have fought for what they believe in: it will ever be so. Universal peace is beyond the human mind; honor, without sacrifice, is an empty boast. National honor is the only shield to the immortality of a nation. For that reason, this book is dedicated to the uniformed navy."

"Pacifico" should be read by every citizen of these United States, and its contents thoroughly digested. It has a great deal of "meat," particularly for the thinker. It is largely concerned with the Japs and their government, and reveals, through the undeniable facts upon which the book is based, their treacherous nature, their deceitfulness and their ambitions. It exposes the inner workings of the elaborate Jap spy system, which stops at nothing, at home and abroad. It points out the condition of unpreparedness into which the United States has drifted at the behest of citizen pacifists and through the machinations of alien propagandists.

"Pacifico" is the story of a United States naval commander who is sent by the government into the Far East on an important mission. Knowledge of Japan's feverish war preparations is gained, and there comes into his possession a secret document of the Japanese general staff. "You have read this paper," says the Jap agent to whom it is returned. "In it there is set forth how Japan may arrive in the position as mistress of the Pacific. It gives, in some detail, each step to be taken. . . . You will see that the first few steps have already been taken and will argue to yourself that all the others will be taken in their turn. The paper advocates, as you know, the control of most of Russian Siberia, Manchuria, the provinces of Shantung and the coal and iron mines behind that province. The valley of the great river, the Yangtse, is to be our especial market for our manufactured goods. It advocates a navy equal to any other great power. It decides upon constructing airplane and submarine bases in all the captured German islands of the Pacific, despite the restriction placed upon doing this by the Versailles Treaty. What is most alarming to you, it advocates a close accord and understanding between Japan and the people of the Philippines, who desire to be free from the sovereignty of the United States; even recommending helping them secretly to gain their independence and coming under the sovereignty of Japan. After America, then Great Britain is to be turned out of Hongkong, and France out of Southern China. The paper considers war first with America and then with Great Britain. British sea power alone holds the Dutch East Indies to the Dutch Crown, for Holland has no navy. Therefore, to obtain possession of these rich Dutch islands, we must weaken the sea power of Great Britain.

"The paper considers that China will soon awake from its two-odd thousand years' sleep and, under our leadership, will drive out the British in the Straits Settlements and even in India, and Russia back to the mountains.

"When Japanese sea power has vanquished the navies of both the United States and Great Britain in turn, our empire will be extended to the white continent of Australia. Once we control the sea in the Pacific, we can pick whatever we desire. All of the islands of the Pacific will be within the range of our naval weapons. Even Alaska, with its untold wealth, will give up its treasures to the Japanese."

"Pacifico" has a mission—to arouse the people of the United States to the dangers confronting this country, so that they will demand of the Federal Congress appropriations sufficient to equip and to maintain an adequate navy. Unless that be done,—and it will only be done if the people are insistent and are not induced by the pacifists to cease their insisting,—just as certain as the night follows the days will the events pictured in "Pacifico" come to pass. It is known world wide that Japan is preparing for war, and war can be averted only through arousing the United States from its dream of world-wide peace via the disarmament—on the part of this country—course.

The author of "Pacifico" is well known to readers of The Grizzly Bear, for not long ago he delivered several addresses on preparedness in California which were published in these columns. He has traveled extensively and is in close touch with conditions at home and abroad. "This book," he says, "is dedicated to the United States Navy—they alone know the truth of this story." May "Pacifico" have the wide distribution it deserves, that the truth may become generally known and the ambitions of Japan thwarted.

"PACIFICO;" by William B. Shearer; G. Howard Watt, Publisher, New York; Price, $2.50.

BUTTE COUNTY TO ERECT MONUMENT FOR MOTHER ORANGE TREE.

Oroville (Butte County)—What is claimed to be the "mother" orange tree of California, planted at Bidwell Bar, then a prosperous mining community on the Feather River, in 1856, is to be honored with a monument. The tree is an attraction in what is now Bidwell Bar Park, the property of Butte County, and the Board of Supervisors has ordered the monument, suitably inscribed, to be erected.

The tree, reputed to be the fisrt orange planted in this state, came from South America. Despite its age, it still is a good producer. It is thirty-one feet high, with a thirty-foot spread of branches. One foot above the ground the tree is five feet in circumference.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY FETE FOR BELOVED MEMBER.

WATSONVILLE—EL PAJARO 35 Entertained January 27 in honor of Mrs. James G. Piratsky, one of its oldest and most-beloved members, the occasion being her golden wedding anniversary. It was one of the most brilliant and happiest occasions in local fraternal history, and was largely attended by members of the Parlor and out-of-town guests. The lodge-room was beautifully decorated in gold-colored flowers and ferns, and won the admiration of all. Mrs. Jas. Sheehy was general chairman of the evening.

President Julia Redman, on behalf of El Pajaro, presented Mrs. Piratsky with a set of gold-rimmed water and sherbet glasses, saying: "We trust that when you gaze upon this little gift we feel honored to present you with at this sacred time of your golden wedding anniversary, you will picture each one as brimful and flowing over with our heart's best love and prayers that you may dwell among us to be our pride and our inspiration for another fifty years." Mrs. Piratsky's response revealed the spirit that has made her so dear to the members of the Parlor and the Order. On behalf of Copa de Oro 105, Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs presented a gold mayonnaise set, saying that it was Mrs. Piratsky who gave the Hollister Parlor its name. A golden sugar and creamer set was the gift of Santa Cruz 26, the presentation address being made by Past Grand President Stella Finkeldey. A pair of gold-embossed book ends were presented by Mrs. Belle Lindsay, recorder of Santa Cruz County. To each presentation the honor-guest made eloquent response. A program of musical and dance numbers was participated in by Mrs. O. D. Stoesser, Mrs. H. G. Watters, Miss Lorraine Murphy, Misses Dorothy and Bernice Cracroft, the latter being attired in old-time costumes.

In the banquet-room, which had been transformed into a veritable fairyland, a delicious menu was partaken of. Viola Clough was in charge of this phase of the occasion's success. Eight of the younger members of the Parlor, adorned with gold paper aprons and golden head-bands, did the serving. At Mrs. Piratsky's place was a wedding cake, inscribed "50 years." President Redman was the toastmistress, and among those who responded were Past Grand Presidents Briggs and Finkeldey, Mrs. L. D. O'Neal, Mrs. E. E. Luther and Mrs. Piratsky. Messages of greetings and best wishes were read from Grand President Sue J. Irwin of Berkeley and D.D.G.P. June Lindsay of Santa Cruz, who were unable to be present.

Grand President Visits.

San Jose—Officers of San Jose 81 were installed January 28 by D.D.G.P. Mabel Sontheimer, Miss Mildred Stengal becoming president. Many visitors were in attendance. Under good of the order addresses were made by D.D.G.P. Sontheimer, D.D.G.P. Josie Barboni, D.D.G.P. Clara Briggs and President Delling of Vendome 100. Lovely gifts were presented Past President Genevieve Harris, President Stengal, D.D.G.P. Sontheimer and Miss Elsie Fisher, retiring past president, was the recipient of an emblematic pin.

Grand President Sue J. Irwin officially visited the Parlor February 4 and delivered an interesting and instructive address. Among the large number in attendance were Past Grand President Mamie P. Carmichael, Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler, D.D.G.P. Mabel Sontheimer, D.D.G.P. Clara Briggs. Presentations were made to Miss Irwin and the other grand officers. At tables attractively decorated in glowing candles and yellow blossoms, sumptuous refreshments were served. Mrs. Mary F. Mitchell was chairman of the Committee of Arrangements for the delightful gathering. The younger girls of San Jose are arranging a program for March 4. A trip around the world will be the chief entertainment "stunt."

Civic Activity Urged.

Santa Ana—Six candidates were initiated by Santa Ana 235 February 1 and sixteen applications for membership were presented. Among the large number in attendance were Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer and D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas of Los Angeles. On the Parlor's behalf Second Vice-president Mary Moore presented D.D.G.P. Thomas with a pair of book ends.

In the course of an address Past Grand President Stoermer urged the members to take an active part in the civic affairs of their city and to do their part in preserving its historic names and landmarks. Refreshments were served at the meeting's close.

Previous to the meeting Mrs. Louise Mock, president of the Parlor, entertained at dinner Miss Stoermer and Miss Thomas. Sweet peas and hyacinths were used in the table decorations. Other guests included Vice-presidents Mary Conn-Schonberg, Mary Dugan-Moore, Olive Waite-Lopez. At the February 15 meeting of the Parlor another class of candidates were initiated.

First Annual Highjinks.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell 168 staged its first annual highjinks February 11, under the direction of Mrs. Irene Henry, assisted by President Estelle Forcum, Frances Germaine, Helen Whipple, Harriet Eames. The extensive program included song specialties, a flower show, a scarf dance, a fashion show and other hilarous features. A banquet followed the program. A long table runner composed of newspaper comic sections adorned the table, with a cabbage in a red tin can as the centerpiece. With the comic papers as the keynote in the color motif, the supper itself was in harmony.

Members of the Parlor will motor over to Oroville March 6, when Grend President Sue J. Irwin pays an official visit to Butte County. Gold of Ophir 190 of the county seat will be in charge of the gathering.

Large Crowd Hears Native Sons' Head.

Salinas—A large crowd attended the joint installation of officers of Aleli 102 and Santa Lucia 97 N.S.G.W. February 1 by D.D.G.P. Mrs. C. C. Baker and D.D.G.P. John Souza. A musical program was presented, and Past President Pozzi of Aleli and D.D.G.P. Baker were the recipients of gifts. Among the visitors were Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs of Hollister and Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler of Burlingame.

Judge Cutler was the speaker of the evening. He related events associated with the early history of Western United States and told of the work accomplished by the Order of Native Sons.

Appreciation Appreciated.

"Editor Grizzly Bear: I am loaning my February number of The Grizzly Bear extensively, so that my friends may have the opportunity of reading your splendid editorial on the 'World Court.' Success to you and your efforts.

"Very sincerely,
"CATHERINE E. GLOSTER.
"Past Grand President, N.D.G.W.
"Alturas, Modoc County, February 8, 1926."

Handsome Decorations.

Merced—Handsome decorations featured the installation of officers of Veritas 75, January 19, when Mrs. Lena Guild became president. D.D.G.P. May Givens officiated. Remembrances were presented Mrs. Emma Hausard, retiring president, Mrs. Julia Halverson, retiring junior Committees in charge of the affair consisted of Supper Mmes. Fowler, Cunningham, Haussard, Daville, Shillington, Miss Mabel Keyes. Decorations Mmes. Vanden Heuvel, Reuter, Gambini.

Neighbors in Attendance.

Grass Valley—D D G P. Lottie Eden installed the officers of Manzanita 29, January 20, Beatrice George becoming president. A large delegation from the neighboring Parlor, Laurel 6 (Nevada City), was in attendance. Presentations were made to Past Grand President Alison Watt, Past President Melitia Hutchinson and D.D.G.P. Eden. Refreshments and a social session followed the ceremonies.

Good Things Promised.

Placerville—With D.D.G.P. Belle Bradford of Elk Grove and D D.G.P. Henry Lyon of this city officiating, officers of Marguerite 12 and Placerville 9 N.S.G.W. were installed January 20. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the ceremonies, and then dancing, to the most inspiring jazz music, was enjoyed until a late hour.

Maud Banning, the new president of Marguerite, promises some good things during her administration. Several candidates were initiated February 17 and the good of the order committee supplied entertainment.

District Deputy Entertains.

Santa Barbara—D.D.G.P. Anna E. McCaughey installed the officers of Reina del Mar 126, February 2, Mrs. Mamie Harrison becoming president. Preceding the ceremonies Miss McCaughey entertained at supper, and matters of importance to the Parlor and the Order were discussed. To Miss Edna Sharpe, retiring past president, was presented an emblematic pin, and to D.D.G.P. McCaughey a silver sugar and creamer. This is the silver jubilee year of Reina del Mar.

Pleasing and Practical Talks.

Hollister—Officers selected to preside over Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44 N.S.G.W. were installed February 4 by D.D.G.P. Pearl Baker of Salinas and D.D.G.P. Arnold Baldwin of Santa Cruz. Pleasing and practical talks were given by the installing officers, Supervising Deputy Justina Moran-Lewis, Grand Outside Sentinel George Dethlefsen, Past Grand President Thomas Flint, with Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs acting as master of ceremonies. D.D.G.P. Pearl Baker was the recipient of a gift from Copa de Oro as an expression of admiration and friendship. Dancing, cards and refreshments followed the ceremonies. The local membership were especially happy to greet and welcome large delegations from Salinas, Santa Cruz and Watsonville.

February 11 the membership of Copa de Oro enjoyed a well-arranged valentine party, the committee in charge presenting many novel games. Prizes were awarded for the best-made valentines, prepared in a given time, and for other "stunts." Refreshments appropriate to the season were served at prettily-decorated tables.

Past President Given Emblem.

Vallejo—Officers of Vallejo 195 were installed January 20 by D.D.G.P. Ella Ingram of Napa, Elvina Woodard becoming president. Mrs. Grace Birchmore, retiring past president, was presented, by Mrs. Agnes Hunter on the Parlor's behalf, with an emblematic pin. At the close of the installation ceremonies a banquet was served.

Grand Officers at Installation.

Pittsburg—With D.D.G.P. Mrs. W. Jones and D.D.G.P. T. Kelleher officiating, officers of Stirling 146 and Diamond 246 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed January 20, Vera Laederich and Armand Stow becoming the respective presidents. Past president emblems were presented Theresa Gatto and Vincent Carusa.

Judge Fletcher A. Cutler of Burlingame, Grand President N.S.G.W., delivered a splendid address. Other grand officers in attendance included Past Grand President Amy V. McCoy, Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge, Grand Organist Estelle Evans. A program, participated in by Mrs. Ellis Jones, Oro Anderson, Miriam Casey, Estelle Evans, was presented. Following a delicious banquet dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

MILLIONS FROM LICENSE FEES FOR STATE HIGHWAY WORK.

Accounting for its stewardship of funds collected for motor-vehicle license fees during the year 1925 the State Division of Motor Vehicles February 8 announced the apportionment of $6,506,218.30 to the State Highway Commission and the various counties of the state, to be used for road repair purposes during 1926 on California highways.

The division's report shows that $3,432,610.98 of this huge sum will go to the highway commission, while $3,073,607.32 will go to the counties. The difference between these two amounts, $359,003.66, is represented in the sum paid for salaries of traffic officers employed in the counties during 1925.

Fees collected during the first six months of 1925 have already been apportioned. The net amount for the last six months, which will be immediately apportioned to the counties, is $721,785.35. The amount paid each county is based on the number of motor-vehicles registered by each during the year.

The division's report gives 1,561,944 as the grand total of all vehicles registered. This includes the 50,439 vehicles registered from other states, as well as 22,280 vehicles exempt from payment of the license fee and 12,219 registered by dealers.

Los Angeles County, with total fee-paid registrations of 588,346, will receive the largest share of the money, its apportionment being $1,375,-395.17. San Francisco will receive $267,846.93, the second largset amount, on total registrations of 115,179. Alameda is third, with 95,499 vehicles and an apportionment of $235,028.25. Alpine is lowest; it will receive $76.33 on its thirty-six vehicles.

TIRE DON'TS.

(By A. H. Hoffman of the agricultural engineering division, College of Agriculture, University of California.)

Don't give tires unnecessary sunlight; they enjoy the dark.

Don't store tires behind the furnace; it cooks the life out of them.

Don't make emergency stops a habit; every slide takes a layer of rubber.

Don't see how quickly you can start; spinning wheels are out of fashion.

Don't "step on it" just because it's raining; speed plus sharp stones multiplied by water equals bills for new tires.

Don't round that curve on two wheels, even if your neck isn't valuable; rubber is.

Don't run with wheels out of line; the price of new casings is up.

Don't rim-cut that "down" tire by running it to a "free air" station; someone might suspect you were too lazy to use the hand pump.

Don't run over all the ash piles, broken bottles, naily boards and other rubbish you can find; even a harmless appearing paper bag may have a brick in it.

Don't park in that puddle of oil; oils eats rubber.

Don't use the curb as a brake; it may break a casing.

Don't stop on an old bonfire pile; it may still have some "kick" in it.

Don't destroy that old casing; for some uses the rubber in it is just as good as new.

LARGEST INDUSTRY.

The automobile industry is the largest one in the country, according to the United States Department of Commerce, the rating being based on the wholesale value of the products. The estimated value of the industry's 1925 production is $3,000,000,000.

The year 1926, viewed from the immediate automotive standpoint of the nation, or from the outlook of the average family, holds a world of promise. It will provide low-priced, high-quality motor transportation, as well as more efficient and more comfortable means of travel.

FREEZING RADIATORS.

Freezing of apparently drained radiators is due to neglect in seeing that the radiator is really free from water. A wire inserted in the drain-cock will insure proper drainage, which is often prevented by clogging of the cock. When the car is refilled, luke-warm water should be used, as cold water sometimes freezes before it gets through the pump.

Before the starter is used, the engine should be turned over by hand, to see that everything is free. If the motor does not turn over readily wtih the crank, the water pump is frozen.

FAULTY BRAKES CAUSE TROUBLE.

Faulty brakes are often the cause of rear-end trouble. A sudden stop due to faulty brakes or a grabbing clutch throws a strain on the driving pinion and master gear.

When brakes are applied too suddenly, a jumping of the rear-end results. If brakes are in good condition and the clutch does not grab, a snubbing device is recommended to prevent strain.

Prosperity Indicated—The State Highway Commission says that, on the basis of population, Californians are the greatest auto-owning people on earth. January 1 of this year there were registered 25,973,928 autos in the world, 19,999,436 being in the United States and 1,475,913 in California. This state, therefore, had at 1916's beginning 5.68 percent of all the autos in the world, and 7.58 percent of those in this country.

stalled the officers of Eschol 16. Frieda M. Lurman becoming president. Visitors were present from Vallejo. A dainty repast was served after the ceremonies, and the addresses of visitors and officers were greatly enjoyed. There is under way in the Parlor a drive for members. The bob-haired members are pitted against the long-hairs to see which team can secure the most initiates. The losers must banquet the winners at the drive's close.

District Deputy Remembered.

Tracy—Officers of El Pescadero 82 were installed February 5 by D.D.G.P. Nina E. Williams of Manteca, Flora Griffin becoming president. In recognition of her services D.D.G.P. Williams was presented with a handsome gift by the Parlor, and presentations were also made to Grand Vice-president Pearl Lamb and President Griffin, who is serving the Parlor a second term.

Mrs. Bertha McGee was chairman of the committee which served a delicious banquet at the ceremonies' conclusion.

Relics Museum Enriched.

Oroville—Gold of Ophir 190's museum of early-day relics has recently been enriched by several additions. The collection now numbers more than 300 separate pieces. Mrs. Florence Boyle is in charge of the museum. Among the recent acquisitions are derringers and gold-scales, in common use in California in the '50s, an ink well used in the Butte County Court House at Bidwell Bar in 1853, and a container for blotters and a spice-jar, these two latter being more than 125 years old.

Benefit Card Party.

Santa Cruz—The January 25 card party of Santa Cruz 26 for the benefit of the homeless children fund was a great success. Dancing followed the playing and refreshments were served. A committee composed of Mmes. J. F. Helms, J. R. Williamson, Otto Jensen arranged the party.

Artistic Setting.

Stockton—Officers of Joaquin 5 were installed by D.D.G.P. Nina Williams February 9, Anna Nielsen becoming president. Among those in attendance was Past Grand President Carrie Roesch-Durham. Appropriate gifts were presented D.D.G.P. Williams and Katherine Wilson, retiring president. Yellow flowering broom and fern gave an artistic setting to the meeting-room, while the refreshment tables were dainty in pink carnations and fern.

Anniversary Banquet.

Oakland—Gertrude Morrison was chairman of the thirtieth anniversary banquet of Piedmont 87. Following the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" President Mildred Gluck delivered a welcome address. Guests of honor included Grand President Sue J. Irwin, Grand Trustee Sally Thaler, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Past Grand Presidents Dr. Victory A. Derrick and Addie L. Mosher, D.D.G.P. May Barthold and the nine remaining charter-members. A delightful program was presented, including addresses by the honor guests, piano and vocal selections. In conclusion all sang "I Love You, California."

February 11 members of the Parlor were guests of Piedmont 120 N.S.G.W. at a get-together function. A most delightful evening was spent, despite the inclement weather which cut down the attendance.

Marshal's Services Appreciated.

Sonoma—Florence Robin became the president of Sonoma 209 when officers were installed February 8 by Florence Adler, acting district deputy. Members of Santa Rosa 217 were guests of the evening. The meeting-hall was tastefully

Flags Presented School.

Oakland—Fruitvale 252 presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the student body of the Oakland Technical high-school February 11. Having an attendance of 2,500 it was necessary to divide the students into two sections, and Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, who made the presentation for the Parlor, delivered two addresses. City Commissioner Moorehead presided, and the students presented an interesting Lincoln Day program.

FAITHFUL GEORGE COLLINS HAS GONE TO HIS REWARD.

Ferndale (Humboldt County)—George L. Collins, one of this county's best-known citizens and most active Native Sons, died January 24, survived by a wife and three children. He was born at Weaverville, Trinity County, November 2, 1855, but for more than sixty years had resided in Humboldt County.

Collins was the recording secretary of Ferndale Parlor No. 93 N.S.G.W., which office he had filled faithfully and well for many years. Much of the Parlor's progress is credited to him. He was well and favorably known in the Grand Parlor, where he represented Ferndale at several sessions.

SIERRA COUNTY NATIVE PASSES.

Piedmont (Alameda County)—William Eschbacher, a charter member of Downieville Parlor No. 92 N.S.G.W., died February 9 survived by a wife and three children. He was a native of Downieville, Sierra County, aged 61. At one time he was editor and manager of "The Mountain Messenger."

PIONEER NATIVES

Menlo Park (San Mateo County)—James L. Flood, born at San Francisco in 1857, died February 15 survived by a wife and two children. He was a son of James C. Flood, Pioneer of '43 who accuumlated a fortune on the Comstock Lode.

Franklin (Sacramento County)—Jess H. Rice, born in California in 1852, died February 16 survived by three children.

PROHIBITION BENEFITS GRAPE GROWERS.

Prohibition has had little effect on the production of California wine grapes, according to a recent state and federal report, which places the value of the state's wine grape output for 1925 at $22,910,000. California viticulturists declare that grapes of this type are suited to virtually no other use than wine making.

The report shows that 395,000 tons of wine grapes were produced in California during 1925, a gain of 45,000 tons over 1924. The value of the crop showed a jump of $860,000.

HOLLYWOOD'S FUTURE BRIGHTENED

Harry Barratt

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

As a man is known by the company he keeps, so is a community known by the character of its hotels. The foregoing statement is not in any way intended to be submitted as an epigramatic by-play but a simple statement of truth, especially as it may be applied to Hollywood, the moving-picture capital of the world.

Five years ago Hollywood laid no claim to distinction as a hotel center. In fact, it had but one hotel of importance at that time. Today it is distinctly a hotel and apartment city with more than eighteen modern hostelries in operation, others in process of construction and still others in projection stage.

Those hotels now being operated offer approximately 1,450 modern rooms and suites for the accommodation of the traveler, while the many apartment houses of Hollywood offer still more extensive housing accommodations.

It was about the year 1921 that Hollywood began to experience a need for hotels to accommodate the steadily rising tide of tourists this way, and from that time on, with the influx continuing apace, the hotel construction movement has not been subject to any degree of abatement.

Pioneering the plan for giving Hollywood additional hotels of modern character the Christies, then operating the Christie at Hollywood boulevard and McCadden place, added an immense deluxe section to the house, bringing their property to the fore, with the Hotel Hollywood, as a tourist housing institution. This hotel was opened to the public in 1923 and served as a pacemaker for many other modern structures of a like nature in Hollywood.

Since the opening of the Christie the Mark Twain, on Wilcox avenue, was projected and took its place in serving the public demand for hotel facilities. The Bonnie Brier, at 6806 Hollywood boulevard, came on the scene about the same time, and has been an important factor in solving the housing problem for travelers ever since.

In rapid succession since there has come into the Hollywood hotel field some of the best hostelries to be found on the west coast, with the Plaza, Hollywood, Mark Twain, Dupont, Gilbert, Christie, Rector, Regent, Iris, Bonnie Brier and others leading in the matter of size and available accommodations.

The Hotel Hollywood, owned by Miss Mira Hershey and managed by Edward M. Mullins, pioneered the hotel business in Hollywood, and for many years met all the demands for hotel accommodations coming from both tourist and regular guests. The old Christie and the Bonnie Brier were next in the field, with the Hotel Mark Twain entering the competition some years after. The latter hotel was constructed in 1924 and has proven one of the most popular hotels of Hollywood.

Catching the trade as it comes from Los Angeles proper the Hotel Rector, located at Hollywood boulevard and Western avenue, has established itself in popular favor since its inaugural less than two years ago, while the Hotel Regent, a few blocks to the west of the Rector, meets a demand created by the people of the motion-picture studios for hotel accommodations.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. ¶In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

The Hotel Iris, Crest and Village Inn are well established on Sunset boulevard, and enjoying liberal patronage, while the Mission, Hotel McCadden and the Studio hotel appeal to trade which prefers locations above the business thoroughfares and toward the hill sections. At Santa Monica boulevard and Western avenue the Eleanor and Palomas Hotels, both new institutions, are taking care of the field in that district, which is rapidly growing and developing a demand for hotel facilities.

Two new and important hotels have been opened in the business district of Hollywood lying between Vine street and Highland avenue within the past month. These are the Dupont, at Cahuenga and Wilcox avenues, and the Gilbert at 1550 Hollywood boulevard. The former has 130 rooms and the latter 70.

The Hollywood Plaza Hotel, one of the most imposing and important hostelries in the Los Angeles district, was opened about three months ago. It is located on Vine street near Hollywood boulevard and has 220 rooms and suites.

With hotel facilities of this character, quality and number available the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce feels that it has an agency through which it can appeal not only to the tourists and traveler, but to conventions which seek a place for annual or other stated meetings. And with this in mind is broadcasting, through the medium of an illustrated pamphlet, information having direct bearing upon the number, character and rates of the Hollywood hotels. Already some gratifying results have been recorded, lending the impression that the future of Hollywood is greatly brightened through its many modern hotels.

THREE BAD ACTORS DISPATCHED.

An opportunity to show what a government hunter can do recently came to Andy Bowman of the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, stationed in Mendocino County.

Shortly after Thanksgiving, when he was stopping at a ranch near Laytonville which had lost many valuable sheep from predatory animals, he was aroused before daylight by the ranch owner, whose sheep were running wildly down the hillside from the range. Calling his hounds, Bowman went up the hillside, and treed and killed a large cougar within forty-five minutes from the time he was summoned. While out he also got a large bobcat and picked up a coyote poisoned by one of his own baits.

The rancher summed it up by saying, "Three bad actors around my sheep! Good work!"

"Severity is allowable when gentleness has no effect."—Pierre Corneille.

decorated under the direction of Miss Dorothy Breitenbach. Mrs. Adler was presented with embroidered pillowcases, the handwork and gift of Miss Breitenbach, and in appreciation for long and loyal service as marshal Rose Bartoli was given an electric coffee percolator. In the banquet-room, made resplendent in spring flowers and smilax by Mrs. Bartoli, a banquet, arranged by Mrs. Dorellis Schmidt, was served.

Drill Team Entertained.

Sacramento—There was a large attendance at the February 12 meeting of Califia 22, when the Sacramento Native Daughter drill-team was entertained. Among the visitors were Past Grand President Eva R. Rasmussen, Grand Marshal Louise C. Heilbron, Grand Inside Sentinel Lillie M. Tilden, D.D.G.P. Maude G. Cook, and representatives of La Bandera 110, Sutter 111 and Coloma 212. Captain Tilden spoke of the team's origin for the San Francisco diamond jubilee parade and outlined its future plans.

At the meeting's close members of the drill-team, in their red and white uniforms, entertained with a drill, which was followed by cards. Viola Driver, chairman of the evening, had many dainty handkerchiefs, wrapped as valentines, for table prizes. Refreshments were served in the banquet-room, where the tables were decorated with red ribbons, hearts and candles.

Sons Entertained.

Georgetown—Officers of El Dorado 186 and Georgetown 91 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed January 30 by D.D.G.P. Jessie Lyons and D.D.G.P. Henry Lyons of Placerville. Splendid talks were made by Henry Lyons, Grand Trustee Mary Quinn, Margaret Kelly, May Clarisse, and songs were contributed by Mrs. Murdock, accompanied by Mrs. Breedlove. Old-time games were played until midnight, when a splendid banquet was announced.

February 13 El Dorado entertained the Native Sons at a valentine party. The grand march created much amusement, the boys being dressed in women's togs and the girls in yama suits. A mock court, conducted by Judge Ward, District Attorney Porter, Attorneys Leo Flynn and Clarence Collins, scored a hit in trying Louis Grover for speeding. Following games and dancing a delicious lunch was served. All departed wishing red-heart day came more often.

Joint Installation.

Oakland—Officers of Aloha 106 and Athens 195 N.S.G.W. were installed at a joint public function January 19 by D.D.G.P. Maude Sutton and D.D.G.P. James P. Cronin, Jennie Gannon and Robert Lewis becoming the respective presidents. The hall was beautifully decorated by the committee in charge: Gladys Farley (chairman), Past Presidents Carmelita Luhr, Florence McLean, Alice Miller, Ethel Shannon. Grand Trustee Richard Hamb was among those present.

Presentations were made to President Gannon, Past President Goldsworthy, Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler, Past Grand Presidents Addie L. Mosher and Dr. Victory A. Derrick, Supervising Deputy Gertrude Morrison, Past Presidents Florence McLean and Eugene Garrison, D.D.G.P. Sutton. Dancing and refreshments concluded the ceremonies.

Assisting Library.

Byron—Officers of Byron 193 were installed by D.D.G.P. Loretta Kelly, Anna Thomas becoming president. Grand Organist Estella Evans presided at the piano. Anna Pendry, on the Parlor's behalf, presented D.D.G.P. Kelly with a

In accordance with Grand President Sue J. Irwin's suggestion that all Subordinate Parlors engage in civic work, Byron has taken a membership in the local library club and has donated a month's rent. In the near future an entertainment will be given, the proceeds to go into the library building fund. March 3 the Parlor will dispose of its annual hope-chest at a card party.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Daly City—Miss Thelma Selmi of El Carmelo 181 won the popularity contest conducted by the Eagles. The victory adds $150 to the Parlor's uniform fund. Miss Selmi is a popular member of the drill-team and many social functions were held in her behalf. The Parlor will co-operate in presenting the proposed "Franciscan Festival" in San Francisco, the proceeds of which will go into the Santa Barbara Mission restoration fund. The California history club of the Parlor had a delightful gathering recently at the home of Mrs. Horace Fellows.

El Carmelo's sixteenth institution anniversary was celebrated with a dinner-dance at a San Francisco cafe February 25. Officers have been installed by D.D.G.P. Rena Mathias, Margaret McDonald becoming president.

WATERSHED PROTECTION VERY IMPORTANT PART OF FORESTRY.

Because of its beneficent influence through irrigation and hydro-electric power in developing new homes and industries of great western regions, it has often been said that "Water is King of the West." It follows, then, that the "Queen Regent," mother of "King Water," is the forest on the high mountainside where our western streams are born.

Pour a glass of water on a sloping piece of tin. Notice how the water rushes down the side in a flood. Cover the tin with a large desk blotter and repeat the experiment. The water is held by the blotter and trickles off slowly.

The forested hillside, or Nature's blotter, is a natural reservoir. It receives the rain and snow, and gives it out, little by little, in the form of steady streamflow. Water falling on a barren hillside rushes off in a flood, carrying with it soil, rocks and debris. This erosion clogs reservoirs and irrigation ditches, damages electric power plants, pollutes home drinking water and at times even hinders navigation.

So, it is seen that watershed protection is a very important part of forestry. Also, that young tree growth and underbrush which has no value for timber or recreation may still play a very important part in watershed protection, as is well illustrated in the mountains of California.

HOLLYWOOD DRY GINGER ALE.

William Lutz, for many years prominent in business and political circles of Venice, is now general manager and part owner of the Hollywood Beverage Company of Los Angeles. California may well be proud of this native son and of the native product of this enterprising manufacturing concern, Hollywood dry ginger ale, which is superior to any now on the market.

This product is manufactured from pure distilled water and the best-grade ingredients. Weekly inspection by the Board of Health insures cleanliness and hygiene to the last degree.

Livestock Value Increases—Livestock in California January 1 this year was valued at $203,674,000, according to the federal and state cooperative crop reporting service. January 1, 1925, the livestock was valued at $184,985,000.

SAN PEDRO FASTEST GROWING PACIFIC PORT

(LOWELL E. JESSEN.)

EVIDENCE THAT SAN PEDRO HAS BEcome a harbor of international importance was seen in one day, when three 'round-the-world vessels were in port. Four such craft arrived in a period of three days.

Twenty-five years ago San Pedro was nothing but a coastwise point at which lumber schooners and occasional tramp freighters stopped. Now, however, regular globe-circling schedules are maintained here by two lines, and all the huge excursion ships that make extensive tours into the Pacific during the winter months stop here to take on large lists of passengers and to allow those on board to see the wonders of the southland.

The "Resolute," an American ship flying the Panamanian colors, arrived here during February and was the object of much interest among shipping men. The huge craft brought 450 passengers and took on fifty passengers here before sailing. This is the first time the "Resolute" has stopped at San Pedro.

The liner "Laconia" departed after taking aboard fifty passengers here. She had 425 tourists aboard when she arrived.

The "Canada Maru," a Japanese boat in regular service here, arrived from Yokohama, east bound around the world. She had fifty passengers aboard.

Delayed by fierce storms which have swept the Pacific, the steamer "President Monroe" also arrived. This huge craft has called here a half-dozen times, and is in the only American round-the-world service.

Mention of these gigantic ocean liners stopping here on their 30,000-mile jaunts over the globe, indicates the importance of this harbor.

San Pedro is known as the fastest growing port in the Pacific. Already it is far better than San Francisco as a tourist center, with three-fourths of the passengers on the intercoastal run embarking and disembarking here in preference to the northern port. General freight consignments here and exports of products of the southern part of the state are growing rapidly, both in volume and in quality.

SAFE HARBOR

(BERT S. COLEMAN.)

Stormy weather along the entire Pacific Coast during February, which hampered shipping to a large extent, especially where harbors have breaking bars at their entrance, has driven home the fact that San Pedro Harbor is the one port on the Pacific, with the possible exception of the Puget Sound area, where vessels may enter and depart in any kind of weather, in the opinion of local shipping men.

During the stormy conditions along the coast, it is pointed out, vessels of all descriptions, both large and small, were held in other ports along the Pacific for hours, days or weeks. Liners were bottled up in San Francisco Bay because of the danger of crossing out over a breaking bar. The "Manchuria" was unable to put into San Diego with passengers and freight for the same reason. Vessels were held up in Eureka's harbor, that of Coos Bay, the Columbia River, Grays Harbor and smaller ports.

Even in the Puget Sound area the arrival and departure of vessels has been attended with considerable risk, because of the stormy condition north of Waddah Island, near Cape Flattery, at the entrance to the Straits of Juan de Fuca. The latter, it is claimed, becomes a dangerous body of water with a big outgoing tide against an incoming sea, and it is the channel to the Victoria, Vancouver and Puget Sound ports.

With the channel islands in Southern California acting as the outer protection for this port, and the breakwater to make the almost complete protection, vessels of all types have not experienced the least difficulty in passing in or out of the local port in any kind of weather, during the night or day. With exception of a lumpy chop stirred up occasionally by an easterly wind, which is to be eliminated on completion of the sea wall to Long Beach, the local harbor is as safe and convenient as any in the world, it is declared.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS' ACTIVITIES.

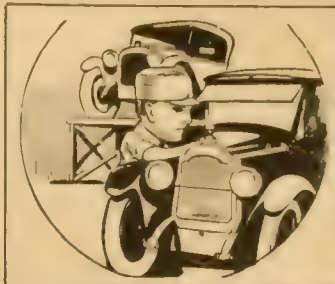
The social meeting January 29 of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. was in charge of Carrie Kuhlmann. In addition to a program of musical numbers and readings J. Kavenney gave an interesting talk on early local history. Among the visitors were President Andrew Stodel and Second Vice-president Ray Lemoine of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. January 27 fourteen of the Parlor's members, headed by President Charlotte Bennet, attended the installation of officers of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W.

February 12 Rudecinda voted to place The Grizzly Bear in the home of every member where it is not already received and also in the San Pedro public library. Following the business session the "outsiders" were admitted and dancing was enjoyed. A valentine box, with a "comic" for everyone, created a lot of amusement. Refreshments were served by Hazel Boston and Hazel Raines of the good of the order committee. The regular monthly card party was held February 19.



February 18 the Poppy Thimble Club of the Parlor met at the home of Mrs. Mary Halvorsen. The following day the club met at the hall and sewed for the homeless children; Gertrude Riepe was in charge. February 26 the Parlor had a reception for the initiates of the July-December term. The program was arranged by Alma Werner. In general charge of the affair was this committee: Florence Schoneman (chairman), Mary Godfrey, Mary Halvorsen, Alma Werner.

Rudecinda's program for March includes: Social, 5th; anniversary supper, members only, 12th; card party and dance, 19th; initiation and social, 26th. The good of the order committee for the month is composed of: Georgia Leonardo (chairman), Carmen Ardiaz, Lottie Sandstrom, Susie Alvarado, Emilia Pryor, Josephine Cappelle.

SECRETARY ADDS "KICK."

Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. had an enthusiastic meeting February 9, with President "Bill" Reuter presiding. The new recording secretary, "So-and-so" Carroll, added a "kick" to the proceedings, which were participated in by large delegations from Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 and Ramona Parlor No. 109. Two candidates were initiated, the ritual being exemplified by a team from among the visitors: Secretary Richard Fryer (45), D.D.G.P. William Coffey (109), President Burrel Neighbours (109), President Andrew Stodel (45), Second Vice-president Dwight Crittenden (109), Grand Trustee John Newell (45), Marshal Horace Bell (45), William Newell (45).

Under good of the order many matters of particular interest to the Parlor and of general interest to the Order at large were discussed, the speakers, in addition to several of Sepulveda's members, including these, among other, visitors: Grand Trustee Newell, Fryer, Neighbours, Crittenden, Stodel, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer. Refreshments were served, and the discussions continued after the feast.

Who is Mazie Forman? Who was the fatal wielder of the bronze hand?

"THE LANDMARK."

By James Lane Allen; The Macmillan Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

"My whole idea of the way to write was to write in a way natural to me"—thus James Lane Allen states his creed of writing. His stories are eloquent testimonies. This volume, "The Landmark," contains the last stories written by him. They are five in number, each a polished gem cut with such infinite care by the expert that no flaw can be found in the whole brilliant array.

The first story, "The Landmark," is perhaps the most perfect. Its beautiful diction, charming portrayal and grippingly intense plot make it exceptional. It is a tale of old Kentucky, of the pioneer days and aristocrat blue-bloods. But the real beauty of it lies in the delicate unfolding of the theme, the return of the prodigal son.

"The Ash-Can," "The Violet," "Miss Locke" and "La Tendresse" complete the book. Each of the four presents a viewpoint and a plot widely divergent. A fragment of an autobiographical preface and an introduction, which Allen had intended to complete, enhance the charm of the book.

The "Flute and Violin," "The Choir Invisible" and "A Kentucky Cardinal" are a few of the novels which have made Allen's name famous.

ORANGE SHOW AWARDS.

San Bernardino—Los Angeles County was awarded the first sweepstakes prize at the Sixteenth National Orange Show. Second prize went to the Riverside Chamber of Commerce, third to San Diego County and fourth to Orange County.

1925 Oil Production—The total production of crude oil in California during 1925 was 230,147,342 barrels. The Long Beach district, embracing Signal Hill, led all districts of the state, being credited with 40,173,375 barrels.

Numbers Increase—Compared with the previous year, sales of passenger autos in California increased 19 percent during 1925; the figures are, 207,372 for 1925 and 173,790 for 1924. The largest percentage increase was in the south-of-Tehachapi section of the state.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

(PUBLICITY DIRECTOR SAN DIEGO CHAMBER COMMERCE.)

SAN DIEGO, LONG RECOGNIZED AS ONE of the cleanest and most beautiful cities in the United States, promises to come even nearer the ideal if the plans which have been submitted for its future development are carried out. John Nolen, nationally known planning expert, has visited San Diego, studied its natural beauties and visualized its possibilities for even further beautification. He has submitted his report to the authorities and it has been enthusiastically received. City officials and leading business men are united in their praise of the plans as submitted and promise to work together to develop them.

ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S MIGHTY DREADNAUGHTS LYING AT ANCHOR IN SAN DIEGO HARBOR PROVES A CENTER OF INTEREST TO NATIVES AND VISITORS ALIKE.

Outstanding features of Nolen's plan are the development of the water front, with a fine, wide boulevard circling the bay; a system of drives connecting the park areas; the location of an airport for both land and sea planes close to the marine base; and the working out of a plan for a boulevard which will virtually circle the metropolitan area, with a shorter drive within the city. Naturally it will be impossible to work all of this out in a short time, because of the great expense and the large amount of work necessary, but the plan can be carried along with the growth of the city and thus not make a burden upon the taxpayers.

The city has many natural features which form a firm foundation on which to build. Its topography and its climate are both distinctive from the average American city. It has a wealth of historic interest, centering about the first mission and what is known as Old Town, the site of the first civilized settlement in California. Under the Nolen plan both these historic spots would be preserved for future generations. Another natural feature which helps in planning a city beautiful is Balboa Park, a tract of 1,400 acres located in the heart of the city and a part of which has already been developed to a great extent.

One peculiarity about San Diego is the comparative narrowness of its boundaries. It is about twenty-five miles long and not over one-quarter as wide. As a result, it has many miles of shoreline within its limits to the north, while to the south the line separating it from National City is comparatively near the business center of San Diego. According to Nolen, the natural way for the city to develop is to the south, and possibly to the east. The Nolen report suggests the forming of a commission which would include representatives of National City, Chula Vista and Coronado, with possibly representatives of the community east of the boundary line.

Under this commission a driveway circling the bay from the foot of Broadway, around the bay to Coronado could be developed. Leading from this would be a park driveway to Sweetwater Valley; to the southeast through Telegraph Canyon, another through Chollas Valley toward La Mesa, another toward Lemon Grove. Toward the north and east a park driveway through Alvarado and Murphy Canyons to connect up with drives making a network in that direction.

Reservoirs which furnish the water for both domestic and irrigation purposes would become beauty spots for recreational purposes, while the parkway drives leading to these would aid in the proper development of the great back country in which the reservoirs are located.

Turning attention to the main arteries for motor travel into the city from three directions, the Nolen plans strongly recommend improvements seeking to do away with two rather severe grades, as well as the development of still another route to relieve the already congested traffic over the coast highway.

While acknowledging the worth and extent of Balboa Park, Nolen points out the need of other recreational centers in sections of the city somewhat removed from the vicinity of Balboa Park. In other words, the formation of a park system, as one large park will scarcely serve a community covering as much territory as does San Diego; water front parks providing municipal bathing beaches; an outlook park on Point Loma; a large reservation both in and overlooking Mission Valley and a historical memorial park in Old Town.

In development of the bay front, not only beauty but utility must be taken into consideration, as shipping facilities by rail and water must be centered together. To meet this demand of industry, the bay front would be zoned to allow of intercommunication between the rail and water shipping units, as well as to provide a driveway along the water and the bathing places.

Development of the water front toward the northeast section of the bay, where the marine base and naval training station are located, would include the building of an artificial island directly offshore from the marine base, with a bridge or causeway connecting it with the mainland. This island would afford further bathing facilities as well as a parade ground for the marines.

Market street would be made the northern limits of the industrial area, thus leaving a wide space between that thoroughfare and the bay front for factories and railroad yards. The fish packing industry would be centered here, rather than in several different sections not so well suited. A special fishing wharf for use of the big fleet which plies out of San Diego should be constructed in this district to facilitate the handling of the catches which are destined for either packing in local plants or shipping in refrigerator vessels.

While it may be difficult for the average citizen, even though he has a thorough knowledge of the city as it is, to visualize what the appearance of San Diego would be with a population of a half-million or more and with the Nolen plan exemplified, anyone can have a fair idea of both the beauty and convenience which will result with the adoption of the plan. According to Nolen, San Diego possesses many natural advantages which will go a long way toward providing a foundation for its development. Under these circumstances the carrying out of the plans he outlines would not entail an expense out of proportion to the benefits to be derived, from both utilitarian and esthetic viewpoints.

PARADISE

San Diego is one of the fastest growing cities on the Pacific Coast today. But—it is not, nor does it desire to be, enjoying a so-called boom. Its growth, spectacular as it most certainly is, is sane, logical and consistent. In other words, San Diego's feet are on the ground—and they are going to stay there.

During the year 1925 building permits in excess of $18,000,000 were recorded in the city—breaking all previous marks by several millions!

A recent population survey, prepared by an Eastern, and therefore unbiased bureau, places the present number of people permanently residing in San Diego at 141,898—an increase of nearly 100 percent since the last decennial census in 1920, when the government figure was 72,000. If the city is able to maintain this same rate of growth during the next decade the population will be more than 500,000 in 1935! Analyze the fisrt part of this paragraph and you will then agree that the last sentence is decidedly not a pipe-dream nor the ill effect of a recent visit to quaint old Mexico.

That San Diego deserves, and is commanding, the attention of Easterners—as well as neighbors on the Pacific Coast—is quite evident, judging by the increasingly greater number of tourists who annually swarm to the "Garden Spot of America." A recent issue of the "Wall Street Journal," recognized nationally as an economic authority, carried two and a half columns devoted exclusively to a feature story by its editor, C. W. Barron, entitled, "San Diego—Gem of the Pacific." This unquestioned recognition of the status of this city is significant in that it reflects the trend of public opinion in the East and is a splendid omen of the era of development which is now under way and gathering momentum daily in San Diego.

Evidence of the evenly distributed progress of San Diego may be sketched briefly as follows, conforming as much as possible to a chronological and geographical portrayal:

HARBOR—Nineteen twenty-five marked the completion of a new 1,000-foot mole-type pier—the finest on the Pacific Coast. Congress has been asked to appropriate $1,000,000 for the construction of a badly needed naval pier here—this amount being the same as the new municipal pier cost. The city will adopt, in the near future, a definite plan of harbor development, setting aside various zones on the water front for definite purposes. It is apparent that San Diego's internationally famous port is in step with the balance of the community.

INDUSTRY—Each year sees the establishment of new industries of varied character. From a competitive standpoint, insofar as other cities on the western slope are concerned, this city has a tremendous advantage. Several years ago the San Diego Chamber of Commerce very wisely purchased, through public subscription, an area of 1,000 water-front acres for the sole purpose of industrial expansion. This land, which is available at cost—and a very low cost, too,—has often been the deciding factor in determining upon a new location for a plant. It is known that similar property further north commands prices as great as 300 or 400 percent higher than here. Gas, electricity and water rates, rail and water traffic, and other fixed industrial charges are on a parity with other Pacific Coast cities.

ARMY AND NAVY—San Diego is probably the most extensive military development in the United States and surely one of the more important. The Federal Government, in recognizing the strategic importance of this city, has expended millions of dollars in permanent con-

Among the many establishments are the naval air station, naval training station, naval hospital, naval radio station, submarine and destroyer base, marine base, naval headquarters and warehouse, Rockwell Field, Camp L. RECREATIONAL FACILITIES.—Mission Beach, the new $2,500,000 all-year seaside playground opened last May by John D. and Claus Spreckels, is indicative of the extensive development of additional tourist attractions here during this year and of the improvement and extension of present facilities. The finest bathhouse in the world at Mission Beach is an attraction to which many thousands of visitors have been drawn as to an irresistible magnet. Other deluxe units include an elaborate dance casino, roller skating rink, concrete esplanade and the largest roller coaster in the world—and one of the "thrillingest!"

To Californians, San Diego should mean the most favored spot in the most favored state in the union; to all others, PARADISE!

NOVEL CONTEST.

At the January 26 meeting of San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.D.G.W. Pearl Schachtebeck, on the Parlor's behalf, presented D.D.G.P. Sophia Finley with a pin. Questions relative to California history were asked, following which a contest was held, to see who could form the most words from the letters in the word California. Marion Stough won, with thirty-three words, and was awarded the prize, a small bear.

MISSIONS GIVE EVIDENCE EARLY CROPS

POSITIVE EVIDENCE OF CROPS GROWN by the Jesuit and Franciscan monks at the early California missions, has been established by George W. Hendry, assistant professor of agronomy in the College of Agriculture and associate agronomist in the experiment station, University of California, working with Margaret P. Kelly, seed analyst of the State Department of Agriculture. While there has been documentary evidence as to some of the crops grown, it was not until Professor Hendry and Miss Kelly dissolved bricks taken from mission walls and examined their contents that definite knowledge was secured as to crops and varieties.

Mission San Antonio de Padua at Jolon, and Mission La Soledad in Monterey County; Mission San Fernando Rey de Espana at San Fernando, in Los Angeles County; Mission San Jose de Guadalupe at Mission San Jose, Alameda County; Mission San Juan Bautista, in San Benito County; Mission San Francisco de Solano at Sonoma, Sonoma County; Rancho El Sansal, near Salinas, and La Natividad Rancho at Natividad, in Monterey County, and Vallejo Rancho, near Petaluma, in Sonoma County, were the sources from which this evidence was drawn.

Between 1697 and 1768 the Jesuit monks built a chain of fifteen missions in the peninsula of Lower California and between 1769 and 1824 this chain was extended northward to Sonoma by the addition of twenty-one Franciscan missions. These missions established the first civilization in this 1,100 miles of Pacific Coast territory and through them were introduced into California the first cultivated fruits, vegetables and field crops. The Jesuits are supposed to have introduced the orange, fig, grape, citron, pomegranate, olive and date into Lower California, and the Franciscans are said to have added apples, peaches, apricots, plums, cherries, wheat, barley, maize, garbanzos, horse beans, frijoli beans, flax hemp, cotton, peas, tobacco, onions, peppers and melons.

The investigators took adobe bricks from the walls of the missions and ranchos, immersed them in water for a few hours and found that the seeds and plant fragments contained were easily separated and, when washed, appeared light and well preserved.

As a result, little club wheat, thought to have been introduced into California from Chile about 1860, was found in every building, proving it was introduced by the missionaries at least as early as 1787, nearly a century earlier. Big club wheat, not known before to have been grown in California prior to 1866, now is known to have existed here as early as 1824. Propo wheat, thought to have been the result of a field selection by Mr. Proper at Sutter Station, about 1875, is now known to have been introduced as early as 1787. Sonora wheat, thought to have been a mission introduction, was not found in any of the buildings. Coast barley, the common California variety, was found in all of the missions. An unknown beardless wheat and two varieties of oats were found; but only one wild oat was found, that at Mission San Juan Bautista, in stairs built between 1805 and 1813. Carrots, garden peas and watermelons were found, as was an olive of a seedling variety, not the well-known mission.

Weeds found were the Napa thistle, wild mustard, red stem filaree, sowbane, prickly sow thistle, cheese weed, wild lettuce, curly dock and carrot. The mere finding of these plants does not prove they were introduced by the missions, say the investgiators, but when the same weed occurs repeatedly in widely separated localities and when it is remembered that many of these weeds characteristically follow in the wake of cultivation, it would seem that the missions must have played an important part in their dissemination if not in their actual introduction.

ANOTHER CALIFORNIA AGRICULTURAL INDUSTRY POSSIBLE.

Experimentation in rubber producing trees and shrubs may be expected in California this year. This state now grows commercially every crop produced anywhere in the United States, with the single exception of sugar cane, and the growing of that has been demonstrated to be entirely possible. Now, however, with rubber prices soaring as a result of foreign monopoly, it seems some active efforts will be made to produce this important commodity as a domestic crop.

Naturally, California is the place this can be done successfully, if it can be done at all. As a matter of fact, the rabbit brush, common as a desert plant, has a rubber content that research may make economically possible to utilize. The wild guayule bush in Mexico has produced rubber in commercial quantities for a number of years, and a carload of guayule rubber recently was shipped from an experimental planting in San Diego County.

Most of the rubber producing plants will grow on poor soil, some even thrive in desert conditions, and others seem immune to alkalinity in the soil. From the present plight of the American motorist may come another important industry to agricultural California, and with it the solution of handling some of the difficult types of soils hitherto held worthless.

AID FOR LA JOLLA.

Evidence of the effect of the conference on Pacific Ocean problems, held at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography of the University of California, at La Jolla, San Diego County, this winter, have been received by Director T. Wayland Vaughn from several sources.

Arrangements have been made with the commandant of the Eleventh Naval District to have temperature and water samples taken off the west coast of America all the way from Seattle to Panama. The commissioner of the bureau of lighthouses has written Director Vaughn, expressing his approval of the attempt to establish through co-operation with the bureau of lighthouses, a collecting station at Scotch Gap Light in the Aleutian Islands.

A letter from the director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey indicates that he is considering the installation of self-recording thermometers on the vessels of the Coast and Geodetic Survey so that these vessels will automatically take continuous records of ocean temperatures whenever they are at sea.

thal, George Perdue, Albert Crone, Harold Whisnand. Bennett was classed as a czar, and he levied numerous fines, to the advantage of the homeless children fund. Following a snappy meeting adjournment was taken to an uptown cafe. Sidney B. Witkowski took charge at the festive board, and while enjoying La Natividads, passed around with Charles Bennett's compliments, numerous talks were in order, among the speakers being Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Bert Farmer, Earl Lemoine, President Andrew Stodel, Leo Wright, "Billie" Newell, Al Metz, Walter Baskerville, Charles Russill, Glen Packer.

The Parlor is arranging to present to the Avenue Twenty-one public-school a State (Bear) Flag. During February large delegations of the members visited Glendale, San Pedro and Santa Ana. Sid Witkowski wants every member of the Parlor who can sing, dance or play any kind of instrument to get in touch with him; he has something "up his sleeve."

March 3 Los Angeles' officers will accompany Grand Trustee John T. Newell to San Bernardino and exemplify the ritual for the benefit of a large class of candidates for Arrowhead Parlor No. 110. All Native Sons are invited to join the caravan, and the fact that Arrowhead is the host assures a good time. March 11 the Parlor will initiate several candidates who have expressed a desire to affiliate with the "live bunch" in 45.

Los Angeles wants all Native Sons and their male friends to be at its meeting-place, 134 West Seventeenth street, March 25. The days of '49 will be featured, and there will be something doing every moment. The good of the order committee, Howard Bentley, chairman, is making the general arrangements. Michael Musso has promised a never-to-be-forgotten entertainment program, and "Chef" Al Cron promises there will be a sufficiency of "eats" appropriate to the occasion.

"TEXTILE LIBRARY."

An extensive "textile library," comprising a collection of textile fabrics, including such staples as cotton, linen, silk, and wool materials, with a complete description of each piece of goods and the purposes for which it is adapted, is being established at Metropolitan College of the University of Southern California by Miss Mary G. Ingersoll, a member of the faculty of the Home Economics Department of the university.

The idea of the "textile library" is to provide fundamental knowledge to the clerk and buyer in stores, and to guard the housewife and businesswoman in the purchase of textile fabrics, both in the piece and in garments and household furnishings.

CONSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS.

The reception of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. February 17 in honor of Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola of San Francisco was largely attended by members of the Parlor and visitors from Long Beach, San Pedro and Santa Ana. Those assembled had the pleasure of listening to a wonderful constructive address by Dr. Bertola, who is president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs. Delicious refreshments were served at daintily appointed tables. President Kathryn Ronan was chairman of the reception committee and Edith Douglas was head of the refreshments committee. The dance of January 28, in charge of Inez O'Shea, was a grand success.

According to the plans of Florence Peters an Jennie Raymond, the March 24 dance of Lo Angeles will be unusual. The colorful Mexica period of California history will be revived, an both old and new dances will be featured. Be tween dances there will be novel entertainmen featured. Between dances there will be nove entertainment features. March 10 the Parlo will serve a cabaret dinner at its meeting-plac Odd Fellows' Temple, Washington and Oa streets. All Natives and their friends are in vited.

BENEFIT CONCERTS NET GOODLY SUM.

The concerts of February 15 and 19, give for the benefit of the homeless children fund the Los Angeles County joint Native Sons' an Native Daughters' committee, netted a goodl sum. Those who contributed of their musica talents were well received, and they demon strated that Los Angeles has artists who ran in ability with the world's greatest. To Calve Wilson of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. h longs much of the credit for the success of th benefit.

POPULATION GROWTH REFLECTED.

Revealing an unprecedented growth in popu lation in the southenr portion of California du ing 1925, Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell released figures showing that in 192 the number of income returns filed was 296,37 as against 273,533 filed in 1924. For compar tive purposes, however, the number of retur filed in 1925 must be fixed at 355,614, as th increase in the exemptions allowed married pe sons became effective that year and approx mately 60,000 persons who were required to fi in 1924 did not have to report their incomes 1925.

The steady, consistent growth in populati was reflected by the never-failing increase in t number of returns filed annually since 192 1920, 110,834; 1921, 155,126; 1922, 176,95 1923, 230,682; 1924, 273,553; 1925, 355,614.

MARCH BUSY MONTH FOR RAMONA.

Arbor Day, March 7, Ramona Parlor No. 1 N.S.G.W. will conduct, in co-operation with t American Reforestation Association, a tree plan ing at Benmar Hills, just west of Burbank. T children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews all Native Sons and Native Daughters are urg to participate and plant trees. Aluminum plat showing the name of every child assisting in t plantings, will be attached to the trees. No e pense whatever is involved. The only requir ments are, that the name of the child be co municated to the American Reforestation As ciation in the Bradbury Building, and that t child be conveyed to the scene of the tree plan ing. Dwight Crittenden is chairman of the Pa lor's Arbor Day committee.

March 20 at 2 p. m. Ramona's officers, head by President Burrel D. Neighbours, will dedic the Circle theater at Carthay Center. The terior of the showhouse is being decorated w paintings of early California history significanc the drop-curtain pictures the historic Donn party.

A class of candidates will be initiated Mar 19, when delegates to the Grand Parlor will a be nominated. Ramona still maintains its pro position as the largest Parlor in the Order, a will have a big delegation at Santa Rosa in M March 26, at an "open" meeting to be follow by refreshments, Charles J. Prudhomme will liver an address dealing with the early histo of Los Angeles. Ray Russill is arranging billiard tournament.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE IS ON.

brother of President John Topham, has been elected recording secretary of the Parlor.

The membership drive, in charge of eight team captains, is well under way, and Corona expects to double its present membership. As a result of the drive, the first class of candidates were initiated February 15.

Corona's program for March includes a vaudeville show the 8th, sponsored by the membership drive team captains, eligibles are specially invited, and all members are urged to bring up their prospectives. At one meeting of the month the officers of Ramona 109 will officiate at the initiation of a class of candidates for the Parlor. A social session, exact date to be announced later, is down on the month's program. It will be in charge of Judge Bertin Weyl, who promises a most interesting and entertaining program.

Committees of the Parlor are at work planning for Corona's institution anniversary in April, and for the annual picnic in May.

PROGRESSING.

Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N.S.G.W., guided by President Gabriel Ruiz, is making good progress. Candidates were initiated February 3, the following officers of Los Angeles Parlor assisting: Sidney Witkowski, Ray Lemoine, Howard Bell, Andrew Beazell, Albert Crone, Richard Fryer, Julius Leuschner. Glen Stout, one of the initiates, favored with piano selections, and there were addresses by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Gus Alvarez, Deputy Grand President Albert Mayrhofer. Refreshments were served.

Initiation was held again February 17, Grand Trustee Newell, President Andrew Stodel, Beazell and Crone of Los Angeles Parlor and W. H. Trollinger of Sepulveda Parlor assisting. Matters of particular interest to Vaquero, particularly how to increase the attendance at the meetings, were discussed and various plans outlined. Officers of the Parlor intend in future to be more frequent visitors to the other Parlors. Several applications for membership are on file.

MARCH GATHERINGS.

During March the following conventions are scheduled for Los Angeles City: Southern California Retail Hardware Association. National Association of Harpists, Western Province Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

THE DEATH RECORD.

C. Mealey, father of W. P. Mealey (Ramona N.S.), died January 30, at the age of 80.

C. A. Lasher, father of C. Arthur Lasher (Los Angeles N.S.), died February 17, at the age of 54.

Mrs. Cornelia M. Sexton, mother of George Sexton (Ramona N.S.), passed away at Sacramento City February 17. She was a native of New York, aged 89.

Mrs. Rosa Jacobs, mother-in-law of Charles Blumenthal (Los Angeles N.S.), passed away recently at San Francisco, her home for fifty-five years. She was a native of Germany, aged 73, and is survived by seven sons and a daughter.

Isabelle Della Cook, sister of Paul F. and Sylvester J. Cook (both Ramona N.S.), passed away February 21.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Sidney B. Witkowski (Los Angeles N.S.) was a visitor last month to San Francisco.

Isidore B. Dockweiler (Ramona N.S.) was among the visitors to San Francisco last month.

office, there was objection to that name because of several other Louisvilles in the United States. It was then that the old citizens recalled John Greenwood, an old sailor who arrived among the first settlers and established a general merchandise building made from old sails and other portions of a boat once navigated by him. The place was given the substitute name of Greenwood, in honor of the old man who became wealthy from the modest business started in a modest structure.

Miss Esther Sullivan of Marysville Parlor No. 162, a member of the landmarks committee of the Order of Native Daughters, complimented the Native Son and Native Daughter Parlors of Sutter City upon the fact that their donations toward the proposed marker at Hock Farm, home of General John A. Sutter, after whom Sutter County was named, are the largest yet received. She referred to the decided interest taken by tourists visiting Washington, D. C., when introduced by the guide at the capitol to a memoir of General Sutter kept there, and to the lack of appreciation of the man where he should most be appreciated. The Hock Farm marker will be placed near a tree under which General Sutter slept at his first visit to the place.

Governor John P. Colford of the Past Presidents' Association presided at the initiation ceremonies and delivered the address of welcome at the opening of the banquet. Others who spoke were Richard Sinnott, Albert Graves, Mrs. Jennie Howlett, Vice-governor Seth Millington and Charles Maloney. Four candidates were added to the membership-roll. Marysville was chosen as the place for the March 24 meeting of Fred H. Greely Assembly and also as the meeting-place for the General Assembly of the Past Presidents' Association, October 16.

COULTERVILLE ONE OF CALIFORNIA'S OLDEST MINING TOWNS.

Coulterville is the name applied to that little mining town in Mariposa County that is built directly on top of the Mother Lode and in the immediate vicinity of the largest ledges of this noted zone, says the "Mariposa Gazette." In a general way, Coulterville also applies to all of that section of county north of the Merced. By way of explanation, one will say "On the Coulterville side" or "In the Coulterville side," which means any part of the county north of the Merced River.

Coulterville is one of the oldest towns of the state, built, as were all of the mountain villages, in the midst of the richest placer diggings. In the latter part of 1849 George Washington Coulter, who was at that time running a store near Pleasant Valley on the Merced River, was told of the rich placer diggings on Maxwell Creek, several miles further up in the mountains. He at once started for these new diggings with a large tent and a supply of provisions. He swung his tent on the trees, fastened a little American Flag at the top and commenced selling flour at a dollar a pound and wet goods in proportion.

The town was first known as "Maxwell Creek." The Mexicans, who were in the majority when Coulter came, named the place "Bandarita," in recognition of the little flag flying on top of Coulter's tent. Afterward, when the place had assumed larger proportions, the miners changed the name to "Coulterville" in honor of George Washington Coulter, the first storekeeper. The postoffice was also changed from Maxwell Creek to Coulterville.

Like all of the old mining towns, Coulterv has had its days of ups and downs. It is wa ing, like most of the mining towns along t Mother Lode, for "another boom," which w surely come, for there are great ledges of v uable ore on every hand.

MILLIONS OF STATE FUNDS TURNED OVER TO PUBLIC SCHOOL

Sacramento—State Superintendent of Pub Instruction Wood has made the final appo tionment of state funds for the fiscal year the high- and elementary-schools of California $6,762,561.27. The distribution was based average daily attendance. The high-schools r ceived $3,660,209.15 and the elementary-scho $3,102,352.12.

Los Angeles County received the large amount, $2,414,382.59; Alameda County w second on the list, receiving $635,804.62; S Francisco City and County third, $523,192.1 Fresno County's portion amounted to $27 482.14, and San Diego's to $235,570.30.

Spring Farm Picnic—The annual Univers Farm picnic, held each spring at the branch the College of Agriculture, University of Cal ornia, at Davis, Yolo County, will be on Sat day, April 24, according to announcement the student committee in charge.

¶ The Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West is founded upon the same broad patriotic principles that have been the inspiration of similar organizations in older States of the Union. Each State has its history. Into that history is interwoven a narrative of deeds performed by a mighty race of men who frontiered and pioneered the pathway for the countless thousands to follow. They transplanted the spirit, the life, the institutions of the Colonists, and wherever a State was erected there were established the ideals of the Fathers of the Republic.

¶ Therefore, the membership of our Order is limited to those born within the State, because we believe that pride of nativity is inherent in the breast of every person and moves that person to a consecrated loyalty to his native land. We do not maintain that birthplace alone confers any special privilege; rather do we teach that this casts upon the citizen an increased obligation to become interested in all material matters affecting its development and progress. National strength and national greatness have been commensurate with State strength and State greatness.

¶ California was the thirty-first State to be admitted into the Union. She contributed a citizenship and a golden treasure at an opportune time in the affairs of the nation. The many events connected with its settlement and organization as a State played a prominent part in shaping the destiny of the American people, and geographically she occupies a strategic position in the world-wide problems of the present and the future.

¶ We have taken an active interest in the conservation of our natural resources; the preservation of our scenic wonders and making them accessible to all; the retention of the State and its soil for the White race; all legislation, Federal and State, affecting the State and its interests.

¶ In our Fellowship endowment at the University of California we have expended over fifty thousand dollars in the preparation and preservation of the history of California and the Pacific Coast, and it has become the incentive for the Student Body of that institution and of the high-schools throughout the State to learn and teach that history. In this work we have laid the foundation for a text-book to be used in the public schools.

¶ We visit places where important events transpired and we have identified and marked the same with tablet and monument. Responding to the patriotic objects of our Order, we observe each recurring anniversary day of the Admission of California into the Union by public ceremonies in the various cities of the State. We actively participate in public dedicatory ceremonies of grammar-school and high-school buildings, on which occasions the students and citizens are addressed by officials of our Order on patriotic subjects.

¶ We maintain a "Homeless Children" Bureau and have placed in the childless homes over twenty-six hundred homeless boys and girls, insuring their development into a splendid citizenship amid elevating environments. In this activity we have expended over two hundred thousand dollars, contributed generously and voluntarily by the membership of the Order.

¶ It thus appears that the work of our organization appeals to every citizen of the State, irrespective of place of birth. It matters not where we were born in this land of ours; we are all citizens of a common country, we pledge our allegiance to one flag, and we are best evidencing our love of country and our loyalty to that flag by deservedly wearing the badge of public service wherever we exist and have our home.

¶ We welcome to our Membership the sons of California, and we promise nothing in return, save that compensation which comes to the citizen who conscientiously endeavors to perform his part in the cause of a greater and better civilization.

Grand President, Native Sons of the Golden West.

SPLENDID— FOR THE JAPS!

W. B. SHEARER, WELL KNOWN TO Grizzly Bear readers as a staunch advocate of national preparedness on the part of the United States, for he knows, from personal observations, what is going on in this country and otherwheres along that line, submitted to William H. King of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, November 30, 1925, a lengthy report, a copy of which has reached The Grizzly Bear.

In that report, it is set forth that for the past ... years the Japanese navy has been taking ... from Los Angeles Harbor 22,500,000 barrels of ... each year. The Japanese navy uses about ...000,000 barrels per year! The balance, 16,-...0,000 barrels per year, has been, and is being, ...ored for what? These figures do not include ... amount of bunker oil taken on as fuel.

"San Pedro, Los Angeles Harbor, California," ...s the report, "is the Pacific fleet anchorage. ...erican and British oil interests control the ...jority of waterfront property. The commer-...l supply of oil leaving this port is running ...und ten million barrels per month, a very ...at portion of which goes to the Orient.

"There is a Japanese population of about ...00 which controls the fishing industry of this ...rt. The most noticeable activity in the last ...y days at this port was the officers and cadets ...m the imperial Japanese naval tankers mak-... complete soundings of this naval station. A ...panese has just been granted a ten-year lease ... a piece of city property. This port has just ...covered a smuggling plot where great num-...s of Japanese find little difficulty in landing. ...eir success is attributed to the fact that they ...come quickly and easily absorbed by the great ...panese population in Southern California."

...bodied in the report is this affidavit:

"State of California, County of Los Angeles. ...ard A. Beacon, of the said county and state, ...ng duly sworn, says: That he is, and at all ...nes herein mentioned was, a citizen of the ...ited States, over twenty-one years of age; ...t he is the president and general manager ... the Pacific Marine Airways, a California cor-...ration operating passenger air service between ... Pedro and Catalina Island, and that within ... last ten days, on several occasions, he per-...nally observed imperial Japanese navy sailors ... motor boats from Japanese imperial govern-...nt oil tankers, at anchor in the San Pedro ...ter Harbor, making soundings at various ...ces in the inner harbor at the said port of ... Pedro. Signed, E. A. Beacon. Sworn and ...scribed to before me this 1st day of August, ...25. Signed, D. MacLean, notary public in ... for the County of Los Angeles, State of ...lifornia."

The officials of this nation and state, as well ... The People, should not be longer fooled by ... "peaceful intentions" talk of the white- and ... yellow-Japs. The facts here instanced, and ...ny more that could be presented, are evidence ...t Japan, which long has desired to obtain ...session of California and the Pacific Coast, is ... paring for war.

Candidates for office at the state primary in ...gust are springing up like grass after a warm ...ing rain. The voters should look them over ...ll, if they do not measure up to requirements, ... those in the running who will look after the ...t interests of their constituents.

Particularly should a careful check be made ... the records of candidates for the State Legis-...ure. It is a certainty that at the coming leg-...tive session an attempt will be made to ...end the California Alien Land Law so that ... Japs may continue their "peaceful invasion." ... only way to prevent the law being amended ... to make certain, before election-day, that ...se who would be legislators are unquestion-...y right on the Jap question.

And consider, also, the past records, not the ...or-to-election promises, of candidates for dis-trict attorney. Those officials are charged with the Alien Land Law's enforcement. In nearly every county the Japs have possession of and claim title to numerous parcels of land. Practically all of it is subject to escheat to the state, under the law. Has a single district attorney made any attempt to enforce the law, and thereby force the Japs from the land? Each Jap-infested county electing a district attorney this fall should replace the person now holding that most important office with one who will enforce every provision of the California Alien Land Law without fear or favor.

State Controller Ray L. Riley gave out the information in Sacramento last month that every second, California citizens are required to dig up $236 for maintaining the federal, state, city and county governments. The per-second cost is based on the annual expenditure of $750,-000,000 to keep the governmental machinery in motion.

Are the taxpayers getting returns to justify that enormous expenditure of their finances? If not, they alone are to blame, for they, through their ballots, provide the operators of the governmental machinery. Eventually those who have to meet this stupendous expense-bill will wake up, and then there will be more efficiency in government, and the cost of government will be greatly lessened.

"The activity in Tuolumne County's mineral field is greater at this time than it has been at any period during the past decade," says the "Union Democrat" of Sonora, Tuolumne County, "and the outlook might truthfully be said to be promising for a general revival of the mining industry."

Here's hoping that the outlook is not deceiving, and that the mining counties will soon come into their deserved own. The mining industry put California on the world-map, and the mining counties are now, as in the early days, the backbone of the state.

Recently the daily press contained information to the effect that the "Native Sons of the Golden State," an organization composed of native-born Chinese in no way associated with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, would endeavor to have the federal immigration law amended so that American-born Chinese may bring native Chinese women into this country as wives.

If such legislation be enacted, Japs and all other forbidden aliens will bring in their native women in droves, and every Californian knows what would result. Congress will, if it considers this state's wellbeing, turn a deaf ear to the appeal of the Chinese.

"Dry throats and wet bellies," nicely describes a great many so-termed prominent and influential citizens, many of them public officials sworn to uphold the law, who go about talking prohibition, and then hasten to quench the fires of patriotism their constitution-upholding appeals have set to flaring, by a deluge of "booze" of any old quality, obtained anywhere, at any price.

Those are the "birds" who are today contributing more to the undermining of government than any other class of citizens. Hunt them out and expose their two-facedness, and there will be much more general respect for the constitution and the laws of the land.

"The great foreign population in this country who maintain loyalty to alien ideas, standards and ideals constitute a grave menace to our American institutions," declared Reynold E. Blight in a recent Los Angeles address.

And the greatest menace of all are the Japs who, irrespective of their protestations otherwise, remain always loyal to their worshiped mikado. Most of them are trained soldiers of Japan, ready, when the call comes from across the Pacific, to strike, and to die if need be, for their mother-country, Japan.

The Federal Department of Commerce, commenting on the waning of marriage, says, according to a press dispatch, "Marriages are decreasing in number and divorces increasing, largely because of the independence of women."

Which is not so. The growing divorce-evil is the result of easy divorce-laws, and the utter failure of the church to uphold the sanctity of the marriage-vow by countenancing the officiating of its ministers at marriages of divorced persons. The evil does not rest largely with the women. It might, with equal justification, be charged to the dependence of men.

---

The "straw" ballot being taken by several newspapers on the prohibition question is valueless, insofar as determining the sentiment of The People is concerned. An overwhelming majority are not participating in the vote; the minority that are, are mostly now-and-always wets who have the mistaken idea that the result of the ballot will force a repeal, or at least a modification, of the prohibition law.

Personally, we are not in sympathy with the Eighteenth Amendment, for the reason that it was designed in the interest of the wealthy, and because it attempts to do the impossible—regu-

CALIFORNIA—QUEEN OF THE WESTERN SEA

(CAMPBELL COYLE.)

In loveliness she sits a queen
Beside the western sea,
Enthroned amid her ancient hills
In regal majesty.

Her face is like the morning light,
For she is wondrous fair,
And God stoops down each day to place
Fresh roses in her hair.

Her fulsome praise the rivers sing,
And 'neath her skies of blue
The poppies dance their roundelays
And drink their wine of dew.

The tall sequoias, ages old,
Obeisance make to her,
And hushed in holy silence bow
The pine tree and the fir.

The day each morn imprints a kiss
Upon her garment's hem,
And then at eve lays on her brow
A starry diadem.

Her sceptre reaches far and wide
And touches mount and lea,
As on her golden throne she sits
Beside the western sea.

MISSION SANTA INEZ REVIVING UNDER CARE REINA DEL MAR NATIVE DAUGHTERS

Laura Bride Powers

THE GLOWING ROMANCE AND TRADITION of California's youth-time is primarily in the keeping of her sons and daughters. The heritage is theirs, to have and to hold; and as the years go by, the responsibility grows.

But the state, happily, has come to the help of her sons and daughters in preserving her picturesque history by putting simple, direct stories of it in the hands of the people; and, what is more important, in the hands of the children of the public-schools—the result, let it be recorded, of the demands of said sons and daughters.

And thus, a great force is lent to the Native Sons and the Native Daughters in their patriotic work of preserving historic landmarks and the treasures they hold—works of art, books that contain records of the beginnings of California, tools and instruments that reveal the labor and the playtime of the Indians under the padres, and the thousand and one objects that tell the story of the Spanish-Mexican-American occupation more eloquently than the cold printed word. These things stimulate imagination. They ARE history.

SAINT AGNES (SANTA INEZ.)
Old Painting, hanging in Monastery, probably brought from Mexico by Padres.

SAINT FRANCIS.
A fine Work of Art, reflecting ascetic point of view so characteristic of Spanish painters of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Probably brought from Spain to Mexico, thence to California by the Padres. Now cared for in Museum.

It so happens that Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126 N.D.G.W. has had the good fortune to be born, and to grow up in the richest historical center of California—Santa Barbara, and the territory that environs it. Here—and here alone in all the state—has there been an unbroken line carrying back to the days of Serra, the first Pioneer.

Quietly, modestly, without flourish of trumpets, the Parlor has gone about a piece of work to which all California must bow acknowledgment—most of all her comrades-in-birth, who share in the fruits of her labor,—the safeguarding of Santa Inez Mission, unquestionably one of the most interesting of the old missions, and protecting the precious treasures that still remain there. What a pity that nobody cared in other days, when vandals plundered for profi the old outpost of civilization!

MISSION SANTA INEZ MUSEUM.

Fortunately, the work was well under wa when the June quake came, that all but devas tated its neighbor mission, Santa Barbara. An as a result, and partly because the shake wa not so severe in the Santa Inez Valley, the mis sion rode the storm well. Some damage, bu not depressing. And it is interesting to ad here that the tower, restored mostly by th donors protested at the time, but it availed

Equally important with the structural safe-rding of the mission was the construction of eral glass doored cases in the monastery at right of the old sanctuary, to protect and w they can be seen, but not handled. More-r, they are protected from dust, and, what is ch more important, from the ubiquitous

Here, too, are gathered an incredible number things from the old days, not the least inter-ng of which are the parchment books that r the handwriting of the founders of Califor-
, and all sorts of implements, weird musical ruments, and carvings.

And thus is formed the MUSEUM OF MIS
N SANTA INEZ.

And that's a thing for which California will grateful in the years to come. She ought to grateful right now. How many Californians note it in their touring this year?

And now that Santa Inez is only three miles rmers' measure) from the highway—El Ca-o Real—where once it was difficult of ac-
, this noble old hospice may again come into own.

The highway to Buellton. Then a turn to a d dirt road, past the Dutch-cleansered little te village of Solvang. Nothing could be more ign to the tradition of the old Spanish mis-with its gray walls, its shadowed cloister the old cemetery whose headstones bear the sical names of the Spanish colonists and their endants. But there it is—the new town, t at its elbow, utterly unbeautiful, but clean, ch is something, peopled by a thrifty Danish ple, kindly disposed to the somber old peace oss the road.

Since the recent occupancy of the mission by Capuchin branch of the Franciscans, the rumor has it that a good mission-lover is ut to plant trees from the aforesaid dirt road emblance of its former beauty. So bleak it ow, in its lovely setting of valley and moun-

e of the lost charm of the mission, Reina
Mar must be credited with a large share.

ART BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

And within the monastery, these new "guarn angels" of Santa Inez have brought to light roup of paintings that would command at-tion in any art center in the country.

Notable among the old canvases, brought to ifornia when the land was young, is a heroic sentation of Saint Agnes (Santa Inez) reveal-the beautiful young virgin in a flowing robe topaz, the head finely modeled, a swing to body that only a master could impart. On ay she bears her breasts that, tradition says, gram of winning her from the God of the istians. Whether the theme is pleasing or the canvas is of absorbing interest and sentation of "Saint Francis at Prayer," the rait of Saint Ignatius—notable modeling —and a half-dozen others of esthetic, as as historic, interest constitute part of the eum whose establishment marks the year of 5-6 a red-letter period for Santa Inez, for a del Mar, and for California. That's con-tive service!

t the head of the work is one of the young-members of the Order—Miss Mary Woods of a Barbara, chairman of the committee that carried on since the beginning, assisted, as be readily seen, by Miss Anna McCaughey, se executive power lies back of nearly every istic movement in Santa Barbara. Miss Sharpe, as president of Reina del Mar, has d back of the work with ardent faith in its nate accomplishment, even when the quake that greatly changed the face of things.
as for Miss Woods, she has never wavered her confidence that her committee would

MOST REAL CALIFORNIAN—JOHN BIDWELL

Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt

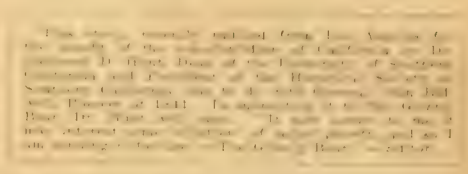
WHO, DO YOU THINK, ARE OUR truest, most real Californians? Well, I will tell you what I think. Of course, we all know the first, or original Californians were the Indians. We of today should try to learn more about them and their manner of life, and we should be kind in our treatment of those who are still living in our state; but no one now would think of calling them the real Californians. Then came the people of the Spanish race. Men from Spain were the first Whites to discover, explore and civilize our fair land, and surely they have left us a rich heritage of history.



But I think our truest, most real Californians must have been Americans—not the Easterners who knew nothing of the frontier, not the young people of today who have always lived in cities and in comfortable homes, but those princely Pioneers of early days who were genuine Westerners, who possessed the marks and traits of the Californian species of greatness, men of undoubted courage, wide and farseeing vision, strong manhood and high respect for their common fellowmen. Some of them were trappers and traders, like Jedediah Smith and Ewing Young; some were very early settlers, like George Yount and William Wolfskill; many came in search of gold, like Cornelius Cole and my own father. The truest, most real Californian came to this new country as a masterful Pioneer prince, finally made his home here, and became a builder of our great Empire State of the Pacific.

As a native of California myself, it has been my good fortune to be personally acquainted with several of these Pioneer princes, and I am glad to have the opportunity to tell you of one of the greatest of them all. Nobody can study his wonderful life without being made better for it. His name will never be forgotten in California—it is JOHN BIDWELL. His portrait now hangs in the State Capitol at Sacramento; his deeds and life are fresh in the memory of thousands.

John Bidwell was born in 1819 in Chautauqua County, New York, but was only ten years old when his parents moved to Ohio. In school he was good in arithmetic and grammar; he also studied Latin, and when he was nineteen became a teacher. But he had a great longing for travel—he wanted to see the great Western Reserve; and it was that spirit that finally led him to California.

When, in 1840, a French trapper named Robidoux returned from California to Missouri, he created great enthusiasm by describing the new wonderland as a "perfect paradise, a perpetual spring." In 1841, in the early springtime, a band of recruits made ready to set forth for faraway California. That caravan, which broke camp on May 19, with John Bartleson as captain and John Bidwell as secretary, came to be known as "the first emigrant train to California."

First in the line was a small band of missionaries, on their way to establish a mission among the Flathead Indians, with four carts and one wagon; then came eight wagons drawn by horses and mules; and finally five wagons drawn by seventeen yoke of oxen. Here were men, women and children, organized for the purpose of making actual settlement in distant California and "grow up with the country." What a venturesome undertaking that was, years before the great gold discovery, or even before the American conquest, without even the semblance of a road and with only the knowledge that California was somewhere out West. And how impossible it is for us, with our fine hard roads and swift automobiles, to realize the difficulties of that caravan of sturdy Pioneers! But a marvelous faith supplemented their meager knowledge, and all difficulties were overcome by an indomitable courage.

Creeping along at a snail's pace of ten to twenty miles a day, they followed the course of the Platte River, crossed to the South Fork, then to the North Fork, later passing such noted landmarks as Court House Rocks, Chimney Rock and Scott's Bluff, and reaching Fort Laramie, which was then a trading post. Later the Green River was crossed, then the Bear River was followed down to Soda Springs, and they came at length to Great Salt Lake. At night the covered wagons were drawn together in the form of a hollow square, the animals were picketed inside and a guard was set up to keep watch.

Of course, there were Indian scares, though the actual danger was usually not very great. After reaching the Platte, great herds of buffalo were seen. Years afterwards Mr. Bidwell said: "I think I can truly say that I saw in one day more buffaloes than I could have seen of cattle in all my life. I have seen the plain black with them for several days' journey as far as the eye could reach."

Making their way with extreme difficulty through the Rocky Mountains, they came to the Humboldt River, which they followed for many days, till it brought them to the great sink in Western Nevada. Keeping a general westerly course, they crossed Carson River, then followed Walker River into the Sierra Nevada Mountains. I have been in the wonderful, rugged mountains of Tuolumne County and have seen the waters of the upper Stanislaus River dash and tumble down the deep gorges. As I looked about I thought, John Bidwell must have passed near the very spots I beheld, in 1841! I tried to imagine the experiences of that stout-hearted band of path-breakers fighting their way through the granite heart of the Sierras. The last ox was killed and eaten to keep them from starvation. Slowly they made their way down towards the San Joaquin Valley. But, for the last day of October, Bidwell wrote in his journal this cheering entry: "Joyful night to us poor, famished wretches! Hundreds of antelope in view! Elk tracks, thousands! Killed two antelope and some wild fowls." It was almost exactly six months after setting out in the springtime that the first overland emigrant train to California reached its destination, November 4, 1841.

I cannot begin to tell you of all the interesting things that John Bidwell did in California. The story of them would fill a large book. He went to Sutter's Fort and worked for genial Captain Sutter; he surveyed many Mexican land grants; he became an interpreter from Spanish into English, for California remained a Mexican territory for years after he came; he took part in the movement for the Bear Flag Republic; he became an officer under Commodore Stockton and Captain Fremont in completing the American conquest; he became acquainted with nearly all of California's leading citizens, both Spanish and American. It was during the Civil War that he was made a general of the National Guard of the state.

General Bidwell was known as the "Father" of Chico, Butte County, and his estate—Rancho Chico—was one of the finest of all the ranches. I must tell you a little about one of my own visits there, for I can never forget the wonderful hospitality of this great man and his unusually talented wife, Annie Bidwell, who has been rightly called "one of the noble women of the age."

During the many years they lived at Rancho Chico, thousands of persons, both high and low, were invited to enjoy the unbounded hospitality of the Bidwells. Numbered among the visitors vertising of the railroads, hotels, automobile makers, not to mention the oral advertisers who use the padres and their old missions to enlist attention to their cause. And as for architects, painters and dreamers, the missions are an unfailing source of inspiration to them.

Santa Barbara Mission must be saved, if California means what she says. She can't afford to lose it. And Reina del Mar is ready to help in the best way she knows, for beautiful and interesting as is Santa Inez, Santa Barbara is queen of them all. Here stands the sanctuary, the soul of California. The lamp lit in that faraway day of the mission's founding, in honor of the Prince of Peace, burns still, with never a falter. And its spirit lingers, giving form to the peace that was planted with the Cross on the hill facing the blue sea.

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE STATE SUPREME COURT HAVING declared, during April 1876, the California anti-Chinese legislation unconstitutional, the agitation against Chinese immigration broke out with vigor and force throughout the state and became red-hot in San Francisco, where the Chinese had usurped the White labor in quite a number of industries. The State Senate appointed a standing committee of five to investigate the question and report necessary legislation at the next session of the Legislature.

The Order of Caucasians began forming camps in many of the towns, while anti-Chinese mass meetings were being nightly held in the cities.

April 6, at Union Hall, San Francisco, a mass meeting drew an immense crowd, numbering thousands. It was presided over by Governor Irwin and addressed by Mayor Bryant and a dozen or more of the leading orators of the state. Resolutions appealing to the United States Senate to make a new treaty with China regulating Chinese immigration were adopted, and a committee of three consisting of Frank M. Pixley, Eugene Casserly and Mark L. McDonald was selected to go to Washington, D. C., and present the resolutions and urge action.

The Six Companies, who controlled the Chinese population on the Pacific Coast, claimed to have unearthed a plot to burn the Chinese quarter in San Francisco and had their representatives appear before the Board of Supervisors and ask for additional police protection.

The State Legislature, in session at Sacramento, adjourned sine-die April 3, having reached its limit of 120 days. The closing hours were occupied, as usual, with presentations to officers and hilarity over humorous resolutions. One of the last bills passed was that submitting to the voters, at the next state election, the question of holding a new constitutional convention.

There was a great deal of excitement in the stock market during the month and a bear movement, headed by James R. Keene, then a leading broker, caused a big break in prices. It was claimed that the Con. Virginia bonanza was about worked out and that the insiders were unloading.

The Comstock mines declared dividends this month amounting to over $1,500,000, all payable in San Francisco.

CROP OUTLOOK ENCOURAGING.

The cornerstone of the new San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board building was laid April 27, with Colonel W. H. L. Barnes as orator. A seat in the stock board sold this month for $40,000.

There was quite a furore in silver speculation in San Francisco during the month. Rumors that silver trade-dollars were being bought up caused violent fluctuations in their value.

A Republican party state convention was held at Sacramento April 26 to select five delegates to the national convention to be held in June to nominate a presidential ticket. The nomination of James G. Blaine for president was favored.

Showers fell on several different days during the month and brought the season's rainfall to over twenty inches in the valleys of the state.

A crop report, published April 21, showed that in nearly every county in the state the grain crop never looked better and that fruit also promised well.

Oranges in Los Angeles were selling at $70 per thousand.

John S. Harris, a sheepman who had a range in San Benito County near Hollister, left for Asia Minor in June 1875 to purchase and bring to California the best strain of angora goat he could find. He went to Thibet, via China, and returned this month by ship to Baltimore and rail from there to California with twelve angoras. They cost him $7,000 to import.

A shipment of banana plants were received by steamer from Central America, to be planted as an experiment in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

An artesian well in Los Angeles County, bored to the depth of 212 feet, struck pine and redwood logs at that depth and pieces of them were brought to the surface.

Placer County Pioneers held a reunion at Badger's Park, near Oakland, April 20. General Jo. Hamilton was the orator and Albert Hart the poet of the day.

Don Pedro, emperor of Brazil, visited the state April 25. At his request he was treated as a private citizen and no functions in his honor were given by the public.

The Negro people were numerous enough in the cities of the state to celebrate the fifteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution anniversary April 3 with grand balls.

The San Francisco street-car line raised its fare to 6 cents. This caused a line of busses to begin operation on Market and Mission streets, carrying passengers for 5 cents and doing a big business.

NO SLEIGH RIDING DISGUSTS TOURIST.

The new Catholic cathedral was dedicated in Los Angeles April 30. Archbishop Alemany officiated with a coterie of bishops and priests from different parts of the state. A large procession was formed at the plaza, and the ceremonies lasted nearly all day. A $6,000 organ was given to the cathedral.

W. H. Story, at Camp Grant, was married t Miss Carrie Choate in San Diego April 25 t telegraph. The contracting parties in the r spective telegraph offices, amid gatherings friends, went through the ceremony with do and dashes instead of words spoken.

The first divorce case of a Chinese coup brought in the state was begun in San Francis April 17 by a christianized Chinese woman w was a pagan, the same as her husband was no when they were married. He had now desert her.

April 8 a fire in the snowsheds of the Centr Pacific near Emigrant Gap, Placer Coun burned 700 feet of sheds and several thousa cords of wood.

It was reported that an immigrant from Mi nesota, who came to Los Angeles to reside, h left in disgust when he ascertained that it w never possible to enjoy a sleigh ride in Southe California.

The Forest Hill, Placer County, stage w stopped by a masked highwayman April 5 a the express-box, containing $1,200, was take

A spring race meet was held in San Jose d ing the last week in the month and a number good contests were decided.

A novel race was contested in San Francis April 8 between "Goldsmith Maid," the gre Eastern trotter, and "Golden Gate," a Californ thoroughbred. The "Maid" trotted a mile harness, while the runner did a mile and 5 yards. The "Maid" won.

At the Bay District track, San Francisco, N Mowry and J. P. Smith rode a sixty-mile m tang race for $1,000 a side. Each contest had ten horses and changed at each mile. was a big betting event. Mowry won in t hours and eighteen minutes.

In tunnel 5 near Tehachapi, Kern County, the Southern Pacific, constructing south, a bl on April 2 that had failed to promptly explo went off after the men had resumed work. killed two White men and fifteen Chinamen.

Nicholas Del Valle, a 12-year-old lad in Sa Barbara playing in a lumber yard April 14, w killed by a timber falling upon him.

BOYS' ANTICS SCANDALOUS.

At the Bay View rifle range, San Francis April 18, the marker, a young man named He Graves, stepped in front of the target to adj it just as Captain H. J. Burns fired. The b struck him on the head, killing him instantly.

Charles Simmons, in San Diego April 18, l his left eye by the explosion of a soda-wa bottle.

Joseph Braeg, a young man employed in butchering establishment in San Francisco, A 28 while skimming a vat of boiling tallow l his balance and fell in. He was fatally scald Major W. C. Root, for many years in cha of the Mare Island drydock, was killed Apri by the falling of a mast.

There were an unusual number of suici during the month. One of the most persiste intent on self-destruction, was Andy Tyler, popular saloonkeeper at Washington Corne In a fit of despondency, he first attempted gash his throat with a broken bottle; then tried to hang himself, but the rope broke; then got an axe and gashed his head with score of times, but without inflicting a fa wound; he finally obtained a razor, and with severed his jugular vein.

Los Angeles boys were shocking the neighb hood of Second and Olive streets in that city bathing, naked, in a pond there. Their ant on the bank and in the water were described scandalous.

An immigrant went into a restaurant in S ramento and, telling the proprietor he had 25 cents, asked to be supplied hot cakes an cup of coffee to that amount. He sat down a table and proceeded to butter his hot ca when he was served. A roll of butter, as customary, was placed on the table and he p ceeded to cut off a chunk. Inserting his kn it struck a hard substance in the center of roll. This, on investigation, proved to be a $ piece. He at once ordered ham and eggs ad to his previous order.

IMPOSING STRUCTURE ON HISTORIC SI

Sacramento—The new station of the South Pacific, representing an investment of over $ 000,000, was formally opened for business F ruary 27. Fitting ceremonies marked the casion.

The structure stands upon practically same site whence the first passenger train fr California to cross the Sierra Nevada Mounta departed from Sacramento, June 18, 1868. that time the operating company was the C tral Pacific.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

MORE FEMININE MODE IN MILLINERY

SPRING FASHIONS ARE GAYER THAN ever this year. They seize their inspiration from the world of sports in crude and startling colors, also in the pastel shades that reflect the delicate tints of the great outdoors. It is rare when any one season produces so many novel materials and such a variety of color schemes.

The two-piece costume remains as popular as ever for general sportswear, particularly in the cashmere and woolen materials. Friska cloth, the non-crushable novelty fabric, makes its appearance in two-piece effects of soft greens, bois-de-rose and banana shades with simple lines. Narrow leather belts finish the overblouse of the two-piece costumes, adding a different touch to the frocks of the season's past.

The rose shades predominate in most of the frocks, with greens, grays, tans and blues all equally desirable. Gray is seen everywhere, also blue with a gray mist, and gray slips into tan and is mixed with jade greens to produce the lime shades. All the colors are distinctly new and flattering.

A variation of the blouse has come into being and is charming. These blouses are really more like jumpers, made of soft and pale materials, for they inclose the waist in many cases and carry belts. Many are made of coarse voile or linen hopsack and carry rumanian and bulgarian embroidery at the wrists and neck. Smocking is another kind of stitching that is popular, and cardinal shades and royal blues are used, but whatever design or line is decided upon the blouses are foreign in flavor.

The dressy coat has its distinction as well as charm this spring, and with good taste adopts decorations. It is a mistake to think that everything is flared. On the contrary, the flare is in the minority this spring. So, carefully consider the line which your individual figure and type require.

The sleeve is the one place where attention centers, and in our dressy coats we find every conceivable kind of sleeve, large and unique with abundant and attractive decorations. Satin is very smart, and even more exclusive is the use of taffeta and certain heavy crepes. The cape treatment of back or sleeve is largely used and the usual short-haired summer furs decorate many coats. These furs include mole, variously dyed furs and summer ermine.

The collar of self material has its own important place. Shawl and throw collars are approved and strike a new spring note. Some are cut like men's, with pressed lapels, and some are made of straight bands, which close at throat. A flower at the side or just under the chin is a concession to womanly taste.

Tweed, navy blue serge and broadcloth are used for strict tailormades. The skirts are slim, with pleats at the back or the front. The coats are short and neat, with pockets for trimmings. They fasten in front with bone buttons. The line of all top coats is straight and slim. The sleeves are long and are cut on the lines of the bishop sleeve, with a decorative band or cuff at the wrist to match the collar.

Afternoon dresses are made of crepe-de-chine, printed georgette or muslin, and are bright and young looking. They have full skirts and bodices that are straight and supple and have delicate collars and cuffs of fine lace and lawn, or of the same material, tied with narrow flowing ribbons.

A youthful dancing frock is made of crepe elizabeth, with a deep flounce of matching lace and dainty embroidery of rose and gold thread, and with low neck and no sleeves.

We see many attractive radium silks this season. One with polka-dot of white on a navy or black background makes a charming frock and is trimmed effectively with white crepe.

Worthy of notice is the colorful array of tub silks in solid colors, stripes or small floral patterns. Quite the smartest for sportswear is the prediction made for an old favorite,—rajah silk,—a rough weave pongee type of silk in tub fast colors ideal for summer suns. Alpaca, rayons, voiles and printed crepes appear in refreshing and becoming pastel tones and will make many a charming and inexpensive frock.

Plaids, never more lovely or more varied than now, protrude themselves throughout the realm of feminine dress. A late use of these colorful fabrics is to line the more somber suits or wraps, allowing the edges of linings to protrude, where they lend emphasis to the costumes. They are also used as a slip, under georgette, crepe-roma or any of the novelty crepes.

A new note in gowns is the slanting effect. Many jabots, flounces and other trimmings are placed across the front of gowns and wraps, and also from skirt hem to shoulder opposite. The sidewise effect in tucking is noticeable this spring.

With spring approaching, every woman should buy new shoes. She will buy light colored and light weight shoes if she buys the right kind. The smartest of spring shoes which trip by are made of fine kid in all the delicate new shades, and for the summer resort we have the whites and colors. Black patent leather is about the only conservative dark shoe which has lost none of its chic, while tans, not too dark, are still good.

The most chic little slippers are none too plain. Some times they are simple pumps, but then the handsome buckle is added. Otherwise they tend to adopt fine pipings and traceries in contrasting leathers, and unique straps in such fine reptile skins as lizard and snake.

I would suggest that we sacrifice good taste and conservative modesty to decorate our feet, but it is pleasant to be a wee bit daring. The new dressy oxford has quite captivated the fashion world. The oxford of parchment kid is ultra smart and a smart ribbon tie makes it appropriate for afternoon wear. Champagne kid, with a leopard suede insert, is a striking combination in a dressy oxford. A blonde lizard pump has matching inserts of plain kid and extremely high heels.

From all appearances, the smart spring hat is to be determined by the draping of its crown. First came the gigolo crown, high in back and folded over with a downward slant toward the front. Then the "tam," a brimless one which closely outlines the head in front and pushes its fullness towards the back, draping it high,—a style that is predicted good, until late spring.

The large drooping picture hat is now making its appearance and a successful summer season is predicted for it throughout the country. It will probably affect fine straws and chiffon and georgette, frequently shirred.

However, one notices many hints of a more feminine mode in millinery. There is no gainsaying the overwhelming popularity of felt, but many other mediums are arriving to dispute the felt's favor, such as soft, supple straws, perle visca, usually in knitted effect, shantung, hemp and milan.

Belting ribbons, faille and satin, quilted, corded or shirred, are already much in evidence. Profuse ribbon trimming is hailed as a coming note.

Many of the dressing gowns worn by the practical women are very similar to those worn by men—of quilted satin, taffeta or camelshair. They are short and tailored, carrying big pockets and rolled revers. A silk cord is used, and piping is usually the only trimming.

One has grown quite accustomed to the masculine note in headgear, street ensembles and negligees.

CALIFORNIA'S FLOWER

(DELMAR H. WILLIAMS.)

From where Sierra's summits crowned with snow
Look out across Nevada's wide plateau;
To where the Western Ocean's power is spent
To shape the margin of a continent;
From where the heavens pour libations on
The densely wooded hills of Oregon
To where a tropic sun's unhampered glow
Rests on the northern rim of Mexico—
You'll find the poppy sometime in the year,
Sown by the gnomes when gold was planted here,
And left to bud, and bloom and seed and wait —
Just to become the emblem of our state.

CANDLEWAX STAINS MAY BE REMOVED WITHOUT DIFFICULTY.

If colored candlewax stains on clothing are treated promptly they can be removed without great difficulty, says the United States Department of Agriculture. These waxes consist of paraffin in which an organic dye is dissolved. Remove the paraffin as completely as possible by scraping it away, then place a clean blotter on each side of the fabric over the stain and pass a warm iron over the spot. The grease is melted and is absorbed by the blotting paper. Then dissolve the coloring matter remaining in the fiber by sponging it with denatured alcohol.

If a slight grease spot still remains, remove it by sponging with one of the cleaning agents, such as chloroform, carbon tetrachloride, ether, gasoline, naphtha or benzol. The first two are the safest to use, as they are not inflammable. Take the greatest care in using any of the inflammable solvents. It is best to use them in a shady place out of doors; if in the house, by an open window and away from all flames.

Sometimes the part of the material having a spot has to be immersed in a bowl containing the cleaning fluid. In general, when this is the case, it is more satisfactory to immerse the whole article finally in fresh cleaning fluid, which prevents the formation of rings.

PRESERVES EASY TO MAKE.

Amber marmalade, made from an orange, a grapefruit and a lemon, is one of the easiest preserves to make at home. At this time of year these fruits are at the height of their season, and it also happens frequently that many of the jams and jellies made in the summer have been used up. Even if this is not the case, a pleasing variety in flavor can be introduced in this marmalade. Grapefruit and orange peel and also lemon peel can be used to make jellied peel, which is a delicious confection. The United States Department of Agriculture will tell you how to make both these products.

MEMORIAL TO CALIFORNIA PIONEERS

A MEMORIAL TO THE PIONEERS! This is the spirit in which the new Carthay Center Circle Theater, to be dedicated April 24 at 2 p. m. by Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., is being built, and in which its decorative motifs are planned. Fred Miller and J. Harvey McCarthy have combined their various enthusiasms with remarkable effect.

McCarthy is a Native Son—a member of Ramona Parlor—descendant of one of the Forty-niners. "We have indulged in period architecture for our theaters in Los Angeles," he says, "and have introduced various national moods into them. We seem to have thought of everything but early California. Now, in Carthay Circle, we are to have that.

"The new house will be a poetic tribute to the courage and adventure which marked those early gold-mining days. It will recall the romances, the passions and the ecstasy which made the California of the pioneer days almost fabled in history."

This is the first circular theater to be built in the West. It will have many novel features, among which will be an octagonal tower rising to a height of 140 feet, which can be seen for many miles around and will be beautifully lighted. J. Harvey McCarthy, president of the Carthay Center Holding Corporation which is erecting the theater, is spending much time and thought on the installation of many art objects all dealing with the early history of California.

The theater will be early Californian in architecture, with simple plaster walls and old tile roof. The interior will be an adaptation of early Spanish motives. The proscenium arch will be a huge soft gold frame for a mural painting to be done on the fire curtain by Frank Tenney Johnson, depicting the covered wagon and the struggles of the Pioneers. On either side will be large murals covering the two organ chambers, which will also represent the early period in California history. The ceiling will be the culminating thing of beauty—done somewhat after the motives of the old wood ceilings of Spain and rich in silver, gold and deep reds and blues with many recessed gold domes and hidden lights.

The promenade and foyer levels will be treated in rich old wood panels as a background for ten large murals on the early history of the state, to be done by Alson Clark. A statue, surrounded by a pool, typifying a California poppy girl, designed and executed by Henry Lion, sculptor, will have an appropriate setting in the lobby. The main curtain, by Frank Tenney Johnson, will depict the "Arrival of the Donner Party at Donner Lake." Among Alson Clark's murals will be the "Passing of the Pony Express" and the "Arrival of Jedediah Smith at San Gabriel Mission."

One niche in the corridor leading to the main floor of the auditorium is to show a miniature of "Sutter's Mill," in which will be utilized several relics of the original mill now in McCarthy's collection. Murals will show remarkable descriptive paintings of California's early history. A commodious lounge on the balcony floor will contain a gallery of portraits said to be of tremendous value. These are photographs of the actors and actresses who brought entertainment to the Pioneers and whose laughter, singing and dancing in those hazardous days have been handed down to tradition to the ennoblement of the entire profession.

BENEFIT FOR GOOD CAUSE.

Educators of Los Angeels are taking a civic interest in the development of Casa Adobe now owned by the Southwest Museum, and announce a benefit performance to be given under the auspices of the University of Southern California, the University of California Southern Branch and Occidental College, through their Spanish departments, and the Southwest Museum.

The event will occur the evening of Tuesday, April 6, in the Philharmonic Auditorium. The program will be varied and known as the Spanish vaudeville performance, although many of the numbers will be in English. Tandler's little symphony orchestra will also be an attraction.

The purpose of the benefit is to raise funds with which to adequately complete the rehabilitation of Casa Adobe. There should be one historical habitat in Los Angeles, say the benefit's sponsors, to which visitors, residents, students

IT HAS BEEN DIFFICULT for the Business Men's Association to reconcile the past record of the Los Angeles Times in the civic interest with the determined insistence of that paper that the Plaza Union Station shall be carried through.

It has been difficult to reconcile the fine and disinterested support which the Times has given many important public enterprises—a support which has largely contributed to their success—with its present unyielding support of the Plaza Union Station plan.

It has been especially puzzling to find reasons why a paper of the high character of the Times persists in editorial comment on the problem and in so strongly advocating a Depot at the Plaza site.

This Association publishes this advertisement frankly to correct the misstatements that have been made; and does so in justice to the citizens of Los Angeles, who are entitled to know the truth of the matter, and in justification of its own support of the railroads' plan for passenger terminals and traffic relief.

> The Times said, February 1, 1926: Much remains to be done before the orders of the State Railroad Commission affirmed by the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring the railroads to build a Union Station at the Plaza, are nullified.
> And again on February 9, 1926, the Times said: They (the railroads) have refused (to build a Union Station at the Plaza) notwithstanding an order to do so by the State Railroad Commission confirmed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The facts are that no order is in effect from any Commission, ordering a Union Station in Los Angeles anywhere.

Passing on the grade crossing and Union Passenger Station cases, the State Railroad Commission on April 26, 1921, called on the railroads to prepare and submit plans looking to the construction of a Union Station in the Plaza district.

The railroads, believing such a plan not in the public interest, and believing it unjust to themselves and (in the case of the Southern Pacific) confiscatory, appealed to the Supreme Court of California, which on December 19, 1922, annulled the order. One of the grounds of annulment was that the Supreme Court held the Railroad Commission had no jurisdiction to compel the construction of a Union Station by any railroads anywhere in California.

The Railroad Commission appealed to the United States Supreme Court, which on April 7, 1924, upheld the California Supreme Court, annulling the order of the State Railroad Commission.

There is, then, no order from the California Railroad Commission calling for the erection of a Union Station at the Plaza—or anywhere else. And the highest tribunal in the land has said that no such order would be legal.

The proceedings were reopened before the State Commission on motion made by the Central Development Association, September 17, 1925. To the hearing of this case the railroads presented the plan for separate stations, grade crossing elimination and removal of Pacific Electric trains from the surface, which has been discussed in previous advertisements by this Association.

At a recent hearing the president of the California Railroad Commission emphatically stated that this was not a prejudiced case, and that any and all plans would be carefully considered. On that statement alone it is evident that there is no order of the Commission in effect.

Now, as to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The City of Los Angeles brought a case before this Commission, urging the construction of a Union Station in the Plaza district.

On July 6, 1925, the Commission handed down its findings, stating that "Careful study of the Interstate Commerce Act convinces us that Congress has not conferred upon us authority to require carriers to construct Union Passenger Stations under conditions such as are here present." No order was entered ordering a station.

The situation, so far as orders from any commission or any court are concerned, is that the case is not yet decided, and not yet even fully tried.

> The Times said, February 7, 1926: The prohibitive cost of an adequate separate terminal keeps any other road out of Los Angeles. The Rock Island, Western Pacific, El Paso and Southwestern and other roads have all tried to get in, to no avail.

The facts are that any road desiring to enter Los Angeles can make use of any existing passenger terminal, upon application, and on payment of reasonable rental. This is provided for in the Interstate Commerce Act, paragraph 4, section 3. The wording of the Act is specific and clear.

The El Paso and Southwestern, incidentally, is now a part of the Southern Pacific.

> The Times said, February 9, 1926, of the Plaza site, that it was recommended by government and private engineers and by every expert who has ever examined our traffic problem.

As to the facts, it is necessary only to call attention to the fact that some five different plans have been proposed, each backed by engineers of some standing, and only one plan advocating the Plaza site. This Association believes that railroad engineers are quite as competent to judge of the needs and operating requirements of railroads as are engineers who have specialized in other fields.

> The Times said, February 1, 1926: . . . the roads will build four miles of elevated railroad into their present stations—four miles of hideous, clattering, dusty dangerous street darkening overhead trestles in our down town area.

What the roads wish to build is two and a quarter miles of elevated tracks, not four. (This misstatement, in word and cartoon, has been a favorite of the Times.)

The railroads' plan does not contemplate elevated structures lengthwise of streets, but along a private right of way, and through an industrial district, where it would not be objectionable and where it would not result in property damage.

It would not be street darkening, since it would not run on the streets. On the other hand, for the Pacific Electric to serve a Union Station at Aliso and Alameda Streets, commonly called the Plaza site, it has been proposed in testimony by a Commission engineer, as a witness favorable to a station at the so-called Plaza site, that the railway build an elevated structure from the Los Angeles River, along Aliso Street to San Pedro Street, thence along San Pedro to connect with the Pacific Electric at San Pedro and Sixth Streets.

That would mean some three miles of elevated. (The Times has been strangely silent about those three miles). It would mean elevated tracks lengthwise of streets, damaging to property values, and "street darkening."

Elevated roads can hardly be called dangerous. In over a quarter century in Chicago, and much longer in New York, the record of accident is trivial. Far less hazard is found in elevated roads than in the 1200 Pacific Electric trains which make 18,000 grade crossing movements on the streets daily.

> The Times, February 7, 1926, in reporting a statement of Engineer W. K. Barnard, quotes him as advocating that a subway be built under Main Street to 12th Street, under 12th from Main to Hill Street, under H.B. from 12th to the Plaza, so that the Pacific Electric would serve the Plaza Union Station by a loop service, incidentally discontinuing stub-end service for its interurban trains.

Mr. Barnard failed to state that such a subway, for a distance of four miles, would cost $18,000,000. Nor was it stated that if built at all it would have to be paid for by the taxpayers or property owners, under special assessments, just as subways in New York and other cities where they are in use have been paid for by the people.

> The Times, February 7, 1926, further quotes Engineer Barnard as saying: "If the Pacific Electric had had its way the Hollywood tunnel would have terminated at grade on Hill Street. The City and citizens protested and the Pacific Electric was forced to abandon its plan."

The facts are that the management of the Pacific Electric worked directly with the Subway Terminal Corporation, of which J. F. Sartori is president, with a view to placing the terminal at sub-grade, instead of at grade, so that it would fit into any subway system that might hereafter be built in the City of Los Angeles. It was co-operation between business men and property owners on one side and railway men on the other.

> The Times, February 14, 1926, quotes in full a statement of Samuel Storrow in which it is said: "The only plan proposed by the railroads results in more grade crossings than are now in use . . . a Union Terminal is the only way to eliminate grade crossings . . . "

The facts are that the plan of the railroads eliminates every grade crossing in Los Angeles for the Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific which any other plan would eliminate. And in addition it removes from the streets of Los Angeles, Main Street and east, all of the 1200 Pacific Electric trains engaged in interurban traffic north, east and south, at the same time doing away with 18,000 grade crossing movements daily.

This elimination of surface traffic for the Pacific Electric could not be accomplished if the Pacific Electric were to serve the proposed station at Aliso and Alameda Streets directly, unless it adopted the plan of building an elevated along Aliso Street from the River to San Pedro Street and thence along San Pedro to the tracks just south of Sixth Street; and we do not believe this would be approved by the people on account of the very heavy property damage on San Pedro and Aliso Streets, due to an elevated longitudinally in the streets; and if permitted would cost so much it would seem reasonable not to build it.

> The Times reports, February 16, 1926, that, according to W. K. Barnard and C. A. Dykstra, the "Pacific Electric proposes to rush 5,000 passengers daily into the Main Street Station and then dismiss them to spend all the running time saved, and more, finding their way to other parts of the city."

The facts are that for the great majority of the suburban passengers the Pacific Electric brings into the city, the Sixth and Main Street station is a most central terminal. Few leave the trains north of Fifth Street along Aliso, Main, San Pedro and Los Angeles Streets. It is the stops that must be made for those few, and for street traffic congestion, which add to the delays of the great bulk of suburban traffic and which go far to make the presence of Pacific Electric trains on the surface objectionable.

This Association has delayed publishing the above comparisons, in the hope that the Times would recognize what seems so obviously the interest of the city and the traveling public. The persistence of the Times in publishing the erroneous statements referred to above, has necessitated the publication of the facts, as a justification to the public of our own position. It may be called self-interest which prompts the Business Men's Association to back the railroads' plan. It is self-interest; but only as the general welfare and prosperity of the city make for business conditions favorable to the success of our individual membership. Without general prosperity for Los Angeles, shared by every person in the city, there is no prosperity for the members of the Business Men's Association.

INCENTIVES FOR "LIVE" ONES.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. presented to the Avenue Twenty-one public-school March 26 a State (Bear) Flag, the presentation address being made by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, who briefly outlined the state's early history. Charles Lloyd has presented to the Parlor a valuable oil painting, which will be disposed of and the funds derived devoted to advancing the interest of the Order in the southern part of the state.

The "Days of '49" show March 25 attracted a big crowd and produced a lot of genuine fun. There were several boxing bouts, unusual entertainment features, plenty of "eats," and the lid was tilted a little. "Sid" Witkowski has organized his minstrel troupe and the first rehearsals indicate the boys will "put it over big."

Any member of the Parlor desiring to go to Santa Rosa during the May Grand Parlor can get $50 cash by securing ten new members before April 30. To stimulate interest, Past President Witkowski offers to the first member of 45 securing ten new members before April 30 an emblematic ring. These are incentives for the "live" ones interested in the Parlor's numerical growth.

Los Angeles' April program includes: 1st, election Santa Rosa Grand Parlor delegates. 8th, caravan to the "Crown City" to visit Pasadena No. 259. 15th, initiation class of candidates. 22nd, entertainment at which all the California South delegates to the Grand Parlor will be honored guests.

VOTE, APRIL 30.

April 30 has been fixed by the City Council as the date for a special election at which several important propositions will be submitted to the electorate. Some of them involve but an expression of opinion, but they are of vital concern to Los Angeles' welfare. Vote, after giving due consideration to all the measures, and thereby qualify as a loyal and worthwhile citizen of the city. Briefly, the propositions to appear upon the April 30 ballot are:

No. 1, permitting Sunday and all-night dancing in the amusement zone of recently-annexed Venice.

No. 2, increasing the salaries of firemen and policemen. Every person should receive a decent wage. These employees of the city are not making an unreasonable demand. Every voter should vote "yes" on this proposition.

Nos. 3 and 4, pertaining to Wilshire boulevard zoning.

No. 5, pertaining to the granting of certain harbor lands by the city to the Federal Government for public purposes.

No. 6, pertaining to the formation of a port district and putting under one management the harbors of Los Angeles and Long Beach.

No. 7, pertaining to a twenty-eight-story new city hall.

No. 8, pertaining to the establishment of a terminal for steam railroads.

No. 9, pertaining to the "Plaza plan" as a location for a terminal for steam railroads.

A bond proposition will also be submitted—$1,900,000 for viaducts across the Los Angeles River, etc.

THEATER STAG.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. made another step forward in its plan to erect its own home on its Venice boulevard property when, at the March 19 meeting, the building committee was authorized to communicate with the membership to ascertain how many will subscribe for stock in the enterprise. The Parlor also endorsed the initiative measure to increase the salaries of policemen and firemen. Several candidates were initiated during the past month.

Leon Leonard, chairman of Ramona's good of the order committee, has a new "stunt" for the April social night. Each member attending the meeting the 23rd will be presented with a coupon entitling him to a reduced rate Orpheum ticket, good only for the 30th. It is to be a "stag" affair. April 16 a class of candidates will be initiated. Delegates to the Grand Parlor will be elected April 13. By far the largest Parlor in the Order, Ramona will be represented at the Santa Rosa session in May by thirteen delegates, a member of the Board of Appeals, Edwin A. Meserve, and two Past Grand Presidents, Herman C. Lichtenberger and Sheriff William I. Traeger—a delegation of sixteen.

JEDEDIAH SMITH CENTENARY.

At the March 2 meeting of the Historical Society of Southern California, Dr. Owen C. Coy, chairman, reported for the committee that is arranging for the due observance of the Jedediah Strong Smith centenary in November. Smith was the first American citizen to come overland to California.

The committee recently met at luncheon to discuss the celebration plans. Among those in attendance were Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt and Professor Rolland A. Vandegrift, University Southern California; Professor Westgard, University California Southern Branch; Grace S. Stoermer, Past Grand President N.D.G.W.; Mrs. Murray, California history supervisor in the public schools; J. Harvey McCarthy and Dr. Coy.

WANTS HOLLYWOOD FOR NAME.

Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. initiated a class of twelve candidates March 22, the ritual being exemplified by the officers of Ramona Parlor, headed by President Burrel Neighbours. Following a thorough discussion of the subject, the Parlor voted almost unanimously—35 to 1, to be exact,—to change its name to Hollywood. Among the visitors of the evening who addressed the gathering were Grand Trustee John T. Newell and D.D.G.P. William Coffey.

The booster meeting of March 8 drew a big crowd of visitors and eligibles. President John Topham presided, and a "snappy" entertainment was presented. The affair was under the auspices of the captains of the several teams in the membership drive, with Henry Bodkin in direct charge. Among those present were Sheriff William I. Traeger, Past Grand President, Marshal Charles R. Thomas, Henry Brodek, Grand Trustee Newell, Assistant District Attorney Wayne Jordan, Joe Sproul, Fred Kitts. Refreshments were served.

Corona's schedule of April events includes: 5th, election Santa Rosa Grand Parlor delegates. 19th, initiation. 26th, another of those popular dances. 30th, institution anniversary banquet, at a place to be later designated. This annual affair has long been a "big" feature with the Parlor, and this year's will be even more noteworthy than its predecessors. All members of the Order are extended an invitation to join in celebrating Corona's prosperity and growth.

SALARY INCREASE ENDORSED.

Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N.S.G.W. initiated several candidates during March, and endorsed the proposed increase in the salaries of policemen and firemen. President Gabriel Ruiz, Secretary J. E. Dorsey and other members have been taking an active interest in the doings of the other Parlors and attending their meetings.

The Parlor has a committee, headed by Frank Abbott, at work outlining a program of entertainments and other social features.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

Following the March 17 meeting of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. a surprise program was rendered: Brief sketch of Saint Patrick, H. Adele White; Irish melodies, Pearle K. Dwinell; readings, Mary K. Corcoran; Irish song, Jennie Raymond. The March 24 dance proved a very colorful and delightful evening. D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, a member of the Parlor, will be a candidate for Grand Outside Sentinel at the Sacramento Grand Parlor in May.

Los Angeles' program for April includes: 4th, social evening. 21st, observance of the Parlor's silver institution anniversary by the initiation of a class of twenty-five candidates; nomination Grand Parlor delegates. 28th, social evening, Florence Steinicke chairman.

GRAND BALL, APRIL 28.

The fourth annual grand ball of the Los Angeles Native Sons and Native Daughters will be held at the Alexandria hotel ballroom April 28. It will be a formal affair. Leon Leonard (Ramona N.S.) is chairman of the joint arrangements committee, Miss Flora Holy (Los Angeles N.D.) secretary, Arthur C. Davis (Corona N.S.) treasurer.

POPULAR CITY EMPLOYEE.

C. R. Lewis, treasurer of Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N.S.G.W., known to thousands of warm friends as "Charley," was born in San Francisco and came to Los Angeles in the early eighties, attending the public-schools of this city. In those early days the public-schools were not as efficient as now, but they turned out a pretty good product at that. Leaving school, he engaged in the dairy business. He was married April 21, 1902, and has a husky native son who expects soon to show his colors by affiliating with the Native Sons.

CHARLEY LEWIS.

For five years Lewis was foreman for the Southwest Land and Water Co., and when the district served by that company was taken over by the city water department he saw an end to his usefulness in that capacity. He began service with the park department of Los Angeles in 1910 and has served the city actively and efficiently ever since.

Lewis' popularity with his fellow-workmen is aptly illustrated by the fact that for three years, or three separate terms, he was president of the All-City Employees' Association and was elected for a fourth term, but declined to serve longer. He is also a director of the mortuary association, the insurance branch of the city employees' organization.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Joseph M. Robbins, affiliated with Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N.S.G.W., died February 25, survived by a wife. He was a native of Sacramento City, aged 51.

O. A. Hansen, father of A. M. Hansen (Ramona N.S.), died at San Pedro March 4 at the

Voters of Los Angeles City

The Native Sons and Native Daughters of Los Angeles City desire to place before you the following facts regarding PROPOSITION NUMBER TWO, APRIL 30th BALLOT:

Los Angeles employs 1,428 firemen and 2,500 policemen, who are now receiving a base pay of $140.00 a month—less than a good laborer or a fair mechanic receives. Out of this salary a policeman or fireman must pay for his uniform, revolver, handcuffs, helmet, fire-house bedding, etc.

Is it fair to expect men to stay on the job from ten to fourteen hours every day, rain or shine, hot or cold; to risk their lives (while unable to get insurance because of the high rate due to the danger of their occupations); to take a chance on leaving widows and fatherless children thus unprotected, for wages that you yourself would scorn to work for?

You say: "If they don't like it, let 'em quit!" All right. But they DO like it. Some of these men have spent years to make our Police and Fire Departments what they are.

IS IT FAIR TO TELL THEM TO GET OUT NOW?

Would it not be much better and a squarer deal all around to REWARD faithful service, and give these men salaries that will enable them to live in the same comfort that you yourself require and to which every man is entitled?

These men have expenses of which you probably know nothing. For instance, a policeman must qualify at frequent intervals as a marksman. He must buy his own ammunition, which represents a considerable sum. The requirements are that a policeman or fireman must come on duty spick and span; he must pay for this. If his clothing or equipment is damaged by bullets or fire, he must repair the damage out of his pay. So, when all is said and done, he gets less real money than a street sweeper and takes more risk per hour than the average citizen crowds into a lifetime.

San Francisco pays $200 per month for its policemen and $180 for its firemen. Los Angeles pays $140. LET'S BE FAIR! These boys are asking for $170, or a raise of $30 per month—not as much as most cities pay their men, but enough to allow them to live decently and raise their families as you want yours raised. They are your neighbors as well as your employees. Be humane enough to RIGHT THIS WRONG!

EVERY CITIZEN who values protection for himself, his family and his property SHOULD VOTE "YES" on NUMBER TWO at the APRIL 30th election. The proposition has the sanction of numerous civic and fraternal organizations, as well as the following well-known citizens: George F. Bovard, President Emeritus University of Southern California; Rufus J. KleinSmid, President University of Southern California; James Wood, General Manager Biltmore Hotel and former San Francisco Police Commissioner; Irving H. Hellman, of the Hellman Commercial Trust and Savings bank; J. A. Graves, President of the Farmers and Merchants National bank; George J. Birkel, merchant; Henry, Cyrus and O. J. Boos, of Boos Bros.; T. L. Dodge, Assemblyman 65th district, and many others.

(LONG BEACH APARTMENT HOUSE ASSOCIATION.)

IT IS ONLY NATURAL THAT LONG BEACH should welcome with open arms the stranger from without, or from within, who desires to find a home and share in its sunshine, health and pleasure. These priceless requisites of human happiness are here in greater abundance than anywhere else in the world, and we would not and could not sell what God has given to us, to you, and to everyone who desires to abide here. It is upon that spirit, that the Long Beach Apartment House Association is built—a spirit of service to the community.

VIEWS OF TYPICAL LONG BEACH APARTMENT HOUSES.

I shall tell the readers of The Grizzly Bear something about the apartment houses of Long Beach, California, and their association for the care of the tourist and the homeseeker, and a little—just a little—of the many charms of Long Beach—the "Queen of the Beaches," the "Playground of the Pacific," for the resident and the tourist.

Long Beach, the very choicest of all the beaches on the Pacific Ocean, has naturally attracted great numbers of people from all over the country. There have, consequently, been constructed large numbers and varieties of buildings, apartments, etc., for housing the people.

When the tourist or homeseeker comes to California, the first thing he has to do is to find a place to stay—to live. It is the purpose of this association and its members to provide for, and to take care of, these people; and to that end, it has provided an office at 130 West Ocean boulevard, where full information as to lists, apartments, single and double, furnished and unfurnished, flats, courts, bungalows, etc., with location, prices and conditions, is furnished free to all tourists and homeseekers. Strangers and others find this a most convenient and satisfactory arrangement.

"The apartment house" business of Long Beach is probably the biggest enterprise in this wonder city, representing an estimated investment of over $150,000,000. The buildings are, in most cases, of modern stucco, which is the most suitable for a country blessed with almost continuous sunshine, besides adding beauty and picturesqueness to the appearance. The individual apartments are designed as singles and doubles. A single consists of living-room with disappearing wall-bed, closet, dressing-room, bath and kitchen; a double is the same with an extra bedroom, furnishing accommodations for four people.

We also are well supplied with buildings of four- and five-room flats, with three beds, accommodating six. The apartments and flats are of the latest modern construction, large airy rooms with all the late built-in features, so convenient and highly prized by the women of the modern age, where everything is appreciated that will save time and labor in the house, thereby giving more time to enjoy the glorious outdoors.

Apartments are furnished complete in every detail with modern furnishings that add beauty and comfort to the home. Having within our city limits the greatest oil district in the world, we are furnished with natural gas, giving us the cheapest fuel to be obtained anywhere in the United States. Our apartment house district is well supplied with convenient stores and markets, thereby making the purchasing of provisions an easy matter. We constantly hear the remark from tourists already here that Long Beach, California, is the cheapest place in which to live of any city in the United States.

Long Beach is reached by nearly all the transcontinental railroads and all steam ships call at our port. The tourist and the public may find other accommodations suited to their tastes and conditions—such as the famous Virginia hotel, and the Breakers hotel now under construction on the ocean front, and other first-class hotels, restaurants, cafeterias, of all kinds to suit every wish.

There are but few choice places in the world in which to live the year round. Long Beach is one of the choicest—many say the choicest. It derives its name from its long, sandy, semi-circular beach almost a half-circle—protected on the sides and in front by the glorious Catalina Islands. Upon this circle, like a diamond in a crescent, sparkles this gem of the sea. In the west is the great harbor, with its inland channels, and ships and railroads on a water level for miles and miles, with vast industrial acreage. When completed, this harbor will hold the fleets of the world and be a magnet for the commerce and peoples of all lands and seas. The great ocean liners will load and unload thousands and thousands of people in these quiet and convenient waters.

To the north, within a few miles, is the metropolitan City of Los Angeles—of over a million people. Fine highways, boulevards, railroads and electric lines connect the two cities. Near by is a circle of hills and mountains to charm and rest the eye. There is Mount Lowe with its observatory, and, to the right, Mount Wilson with the largest telescope in the world, bringing into view several hundred thousand more stars in the heavens than had ever been seen before. What a feast for the mind. What wonderful views in the mountains overlooking the valleys, cities and ocean.

In the east are the delightful bays, lagoons and Recreation Park, with still water and miles and miles of sandy beach for boating, yachting, bathing, swimming, diving and all sorts of aquatic sports. If the tourist wants more life and zest, he can ride the breakers and swim in the grand old ocean; and he can do this every day in the year, because the temperature of the air, controlled by the sea, is nearly the same all the year round.

Then, in the center, is Bixby Park, where the state picnics are held and the old-time friends of former days from "back East" meet in happy reunions. This meeting with old friends is one of the delights of Long Beach. They are here from every state and clime. They have time and opportunity to visit—any day, any and every where—in their apartments or hotels, in the parks, in the streets, in the lodgerooms, churches, clubs—playing golf, swimming, fishing, etc.

There are so many things to attract the tourist in Long Beach that they cannot all be enumerated the delightful soft water; cheap gas (50c per 1,000 cu. ft.), no coal, no dirt, no dust or shoveling of ashes, cheap light (2c to 5.6c per K.W.H.), the glorious sunshine all seasons of the year; delightful weather in which one may motor every day in the year in the great outofdoors over the finest roads in the land up the canyons, through the hills, over the mountains, through the sweet-scented orange and lemon groves, enjoying the gorgeous sunrises over the mountains and the sunsets in the sea; watching the great ships of the blue Pacific; the wealth of flowers in the open all year round; the movies of Hollywood fame; the "Pike," with its amusements and entertainments; the free daily concerts of Long Beach's municipal band, led by Herbert L. Clark, recognized as one of the greatest cornet soloists and directors on either continent.

The tourist and resident of Long Beach can find almost anything and everything that is wholesome and delightful in the way of improvement, education, rest and pleasure. It is a city of churches with able ministers; a city of the finest schools in the country. Just now there is being constructed another high-school, costing a million and a quarter dollars.

There are thousands and thousand of people in the interior sweltering in the heat of summer and freezing in the cold of winter, who long for rest "beside the still waters." Let them come to this "gem of the sea"—Long Beach—where every day and night is a joy, and every different horizon is a picture of superlative grandeur spread before us for our delight and homage.

STATES SOCIETIES TO BE ENTERTAINED.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. initiated a candidate March 17, the ritual ceremonies being followed by a "side degree" which caused a lot of laughter. Visitors were present from Los Angeles, San Pedro and Santa Ana, and at the meeting's close the good of the order committee's "turkey feed"—and there was!—was enjoyed. During the evening there were talks by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Willard Buchanan, Thomas Robinson, "Bill" Reuter, Walter Slosson, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer and A. M. Stanley, Orange County farm advisor. Percy Hight, a member of the Parlor, has been appointed by Governor Friend W. Richardson a Long Beach municipal judge.

April 21, at 7 p. m., in the new Moose Hall, 1320 Elm avenue, 239 will join with Long Beach 154 N.D.G.W. in entertaining the Federation of States Societies, with which the Parlors are now affiliated. Supper will be served, following which a program will be presented. Clyde Doyle will extend the Natives' welcome. E. C. Crowell and Mrs. Clara Fay are in charge of the arrangements. All Native Sons and Native Daughters are invited, and a large gathering from all Los Angeles County is anticipated to extend California hospitality to the former residents of sister states. Delegates to the Santa Rosa Grand Parlor will be chosen April 7.

ORGANIZING DRILL TEAM.

Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. celebrated its twentieth institution anniversary with a supper and the initiation of four candidates February 24. Yellow was the color scheme of the attractive decorations, and in the center of the banquet table was a mounted bear carrying a basket of flowers. President Bertha Hitt introduced Mrs. Kate McFadyen, who cut the mammoth golden-and-white birthday cake and sketched the Parlor's history. Mrs. Vivian Burke rendered a vocal solo. Favors of the occasion were small dolls dressed in old-fashioned costume; concealed in the folds of the dresses were miniature hair-tonic bottles, the gift of the long-haired members.

The March 10 Spanish supper and card party of the Parlor was a huge success. Mrs. Julia Arbon headed the kitchen committee, Vivian Burke had charge of the waitresses, Daisy Hansen looked after the table arrangements and President Bertha Hitt was chairman of the reception committee. Jessie Willis-Boughner is organizing a drill-team in the Parlor, and recently entertained at her home to discuss ways and means of obtaining uniforms, drums, etc. Refreshments were served. The Parlor's California Thimble Club met March 14 at the home of Mrs. Kate McFadyen.

SANTA ROSA— IN HISTORIC SONOMA COUNTY— MEETING PLACE NATIVE SON GRAND PARLOR

Mark Lee

(SECRETARY SANTA ROSA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

IN AN ENVIRONMENT STILL FLUSH WITH the romance of early days, lies the modern City of Santa Rosa, county seat of Sonoma County, the eighth most productive county, agriculturally, in the United States. This is the setting for the 1926 N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor sessions, which are to be held May 10 to 14. The city is situated in the geographical center of the county and is the recognized trading center for Mendocino, Lake and Sonoma Counties.

Santa Rosa was founded in 1850 and became the county seat in 1853. It lies eighteen miles inland from Bodega Bay and the Pacific Ocean at an elevation of 150 feet in a valley eight miles wide and twenty miles long. The estimated population is at present 13,500. It is about fifty-two miles north of San Francisco on the Redwood Highway.

Petaluma, "The World's Egg Basket," the second city in the county, is fifteen miles to the south. West and north of Petaluma is the dairy section of the county.

Seven miles to the west of Santa Rosa is Sebastopol and the Gold Ridge district, so named because of the color of its soil, which produces the earliest Gravenstein apples. It is the second largest apple section of California and the largest berry-growing district.

VACATIONLAND.

The famous Russian River summer resorts and the groves of towering redwoods, including Armstrong grove and the world-famous Bohemian grove, lie between Sebastopol and the Pacific Ocean.

A few miles to the north of the mouth of the Russian River lies Fort Ross, where the Russians established their southernmost mission. The old Greek chapel, built by them in 1811, still stands.

A few miles to the east of Santa Rosa lies the "Valley of the Moon," made famous by Jack London. This valley is dotted with scores of summer resorts and hot mineral springs.

At the point where this famous valley opens out into the hay- and grain-growing section of the county, lies Sonoma. Here is located the most northern of the string of Spanish missions, and every Native Son knows that it was here that the State (Bear) Flag was raised.

To the north of Santa Rosa, about sixteen miles, is the City of Healdsburg, "The Buckle of the Prune Belt." Just above Healdsburg, on the banks of the Russian River extending northward to Cloverdale, is found the most extensive juice-grape producing section in California. Here, also, are produced the majority of the hops of the county. On the hills surrounding the fertile valleys of the county, sheep and cattle thrive.

A few miles to the east of Cloverdale, thirty miles from Santa Rosa at the Geysers, steam wells have been drilled and harnessed to create electrical energy.

One of the most interesting and unique sights to greet the tourist in imperial Sonoma County is the famous Petrified Forest; fourteen miles from Santa Rosa, where trees of stone as large as eight feet in diameter and 116 feet in length are found.

HOME OF LUTHER BURBANK.

Because of the wide diversity of agricultural products raised in the territory surrounding Santa Rosa, the city has never suffered from a crop failure in the county. The climate is mild, and is so favorable to agricultural development that Luther Burbank, world-famed horticulturist and plant creator, selected this section in 1875 as being the most nearly ideal place in which to carry on his experimental work.

His opinion of this section, after fifty years' residence, is couched in his statement: "I would rather own a piece of land the size of a good healthy house lot in Sonoma County than an entire farm anywhere else on earth, if I had to live elsewhere."

The stability of the community is shown by the fact that about 90 percent of the Santa Rosa families live in their own homes, the majority of which are modern artistic bungalows situated in beautiful gardens where flowers and trees form an inviting retreat,—homes in the truest sense. Modern apartment houses are available for temporary residence, and adequate hotel accommodations at reasonable rates extend hospitality to strangers.

Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 N.S.G.W. was instituted March 15, 1884, forty-two years ago. Since its inception the Parlor has been one of the active ones of the state and is today actively and enthusiastically at work making preparations for the entertainment of the forty-ninth annual session of the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

A GOOD TIME FOR ALL.

Captain T. V. Butts, head of the committee of the Parlor in charge of arrangements, knowing that the delegates to the Grand Parlor look forward to combining fellowship and pleasure with the business sessions, has laid out a program which insures everyone,—delegates, their wives and visitors, a royal time. The schedule provides, in addition to the business sessions, automobile trips on Tuesday and Thursday, visiting Francisco De Solano at Sonoma, in front of its many natural and scenic attractions. Other features included are a basket lunch, a barbecue at the famous Joe Hooker ranch, a trip through the Valley of the Moon, visiting the Mission San Francisco De Solano at Sonoma, in front of which the State (Bear) Flag was unfurled to the breeze June 14, 1846, a trip to the old adobe, the home of General Vallejo, the last Mexican governor of California, the grand ball and the grand banquet to delegates. Some of the special features to be enjoyed by the women who attend are a theater party and a trip to the Petrified Forest.

On top of all this, the City of Santa Rosa, through the Chamber of Commerce, has arranged to revive the rose carnivals which were held in former years, and with the close of the Grand Parlor session on Friday there will start the 1926 Rose Carnival. In conjunction with this, there will be a flower show such as only the "City of Roses" can stage. Miss Camille Crawford has been chosen as queen of the carnival.

Features of the Rose Carnival include: Friday, the coronation of the juvenile king and queen during the afternoon with maypole dances, etc., and the coronation of the senior queen and the queen's ball in the evening. Saturday, in the morning, the rose parade, in the afternoon a rodeo.

Santa Rosa's Native Sons ask you, brothers and sisters, what more could mere man do to insure those of you who plan to attend the Grand Parlor session a time such as will long be remembered?

GRAND PARLOR GOSSIP

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

The number of candidates for Grand Parlor office has increased since the March issue of The Grizzly Bear, and it will no doubt be considerably augmented following election of delegates to the Santa Rosa Grand Parlor by the Subordinate Parlors this month (April). The offie-seeking line-up, compiled from information received by The Grizzly Bear, is as follows, to date:

For Grand Third Vice-president—Grand Trustee Richard M. Hamb (Piedmont 120) of Oakland; Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge (Carquinez 205) of Crockett.

PRESERVING CALIFORNIA'S SPANISH INHERITANCE

(ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.)

Readers of The Grizzly Bear will recall that Professor Rolland A. Vandegrift was for two years a Native Sons' Fellow in Pacific Coast History. One year he studied as resident fellow at the University of California, under Professor Herbert E. Bolton and Professor Charles E. Chapman. He then carried on research in the archives of Spain and France for one year as a traveling fellow. Several contributions of historical articles from him have appeared in earlier issues of The Grizzly Bear.

Professor Vandegrift is furthering the study of history and the preservation of historical landmarks of California not only in his teaching in the History Department of the University of Southern California, but actively in other connections. He has served as secretary of the Historical Society of Southern California since coming to Los Angeles in 1923. Recently he has been named chairman of the library committee of the Southwest Museum. He was also instrumental in aiding in preserving the historic name of Temple street in Los Angeles when a change of name was recently threatened. Professor Vandegrift stands ready at any time to oppose the destroying of California's precious historical heritages.—Editor.

THE CIVILIZATION OF THE WORLD is now focused on the Pacific. During the Medieval Period, the civilized center of the world, as we know it, was the Mediterranean. Toward the close of the Medieval Period, changes in the development of man so influenced civilization that the shifting of its center was inevitable. In 1450, the printing press was invented; in 1453, Constantinople fell to the Turks. Europe was beginning to look toward the West. Development in commerce, intellectual experience, economic life, and the knowledge of geography and navigation made it possible for the discovery of America by Columbus, in 1492, and the center of the civilized world shifted from the Mediterranean to the Atlantic.

It is interesting to stop for a moment and analyze the Columbian incident; for here is the beginning of California's Spanish inheritance. The voyage of Christopher Columbus marks the turning point in the history of the world, yet in reality it was, from the material standpoint, insignificant. The whole voyage only cost approximately $7,250; $350 for the admiral, $120 apiece for the two captains, $1.25 to $2.00 a month for the members of the crew—a rather small investment to secure a new world.

Spain was leading the way for European advance into the West, and for one hundred years Spain was the pioneering nation in colonizing America. The gold of the Indies, found in unbelievable quantities, was the lure to draw the Spaniard over the sea.

In 1521, Mexico was conquered, and the treasures of Montezuma fired the desire of the adventurous Conquistadores to press on into the interior. The lure of the northern mystery, where they might find another Mexico, another Peru, or where they might encounter the fabled Island of California, where the only metal was the purest gold, an Amazon island, filled with mystery and romance, led them on.

Cortez, Conquistador de Mexico, was fired by the desire to solve the northern mystery. After ten years of disappointment, his courageous captain, Fortun Jimenez, in 1533 entered a bay which he believed was in an island. This was the Bay of La Paz, in Lower California. Fortun Jimenez was the first White man to land in California. The pearls found at La Paz probably convinced Jimenez that this was the Island of California.

In 1533, Cortez, himself, came to what we now call Lower California. His attempted settlement there failed. Cortez, as far as can be discovered, never called the land California. The name, however, was applied by others to this land at this time. Where, then, did the name have its origin?

It seems altogether fitting that the origin of the name, "California," should be in romance. One of our most prized Spanish inheritances is the beautiful and beloved name, "California." The name has a lure which has carried its fame farther than that of any other state in the union. The mystery of its origin, in itself, is intriguing.

California was not named for a member of the royal family. The name was not from Indian origin. California was not named for any place in the homeland. The word is not Spanish. For centuries, people guessed the origin of the name, and even in the present time we encounter, repeatedly, erroneous statements of its origin.

Some have maintained that it came from the two Latin words, "calida fornax" (hot furnace), others maintain it came from the Catalan, "californo" (hot oven), others maintain that it came from the Spanish word "colofon" (resin); other suggestions have been made, but it was left to Edward Everett Hale, the distinguished divine and man of letters, to discover the real origin of the name.

In 1862, he chanced upon an old Spanish novel, "Las Sergas de Esplandian" (The Deeds of Esplandian). This was a fantastic, romantic novel written at the close of the fifteenth century by Garci Ordonez de Montalvo. The original date of the publication is not clear, but a copy of 1508 exists in the British Museum, and there is a reference to an edition of 1498. "Las Sergas de Esplandian" was the best seller of its day. It went through a number of editions. In this novel, California is represented as an Amazon island, at the right hand of the Indies, close to the terrestrial paradise. It was inhabited by black women, living in the manner of Amazons. The island abounded in gold, and precious stones; no other metal was found there.

The men of Cortez knew this book by Montalvo. It is probable they actually had a copy of it with them at the conquest of Mexico City. Their imagination was fired by it, we know. They were looking for "a California." The name was logically applied to the peninsula where they found such wondrous pearls as were discovered in Baja or Lower California. If we had no other Spanish inheritance, the possession of the name "California" alone should cause us to give expressions of gratitude to Spain, the mother of California. We have many more Spanish inheritances.

The Spanish colonizers of California established their first mission at San Diego, in 1769, and extending the chain of missions up the King's Highway (El Camino Real) to San Francisco, gave California a picturesque and colorful institution, a precious historical monument. The military arm of the colonization left us the presidios. The civilian colonizers built the pueblos and established themselves on their great ranchos. Spain thus gave to California a dash of Spanish blood through the Spanish Pioneers. Spanish names, customs, institutions and colorful shades were given to our rural life, which have blended today to give California something unique, not possessed by any of her sister states. Spain gave us scenes and subjects for story, poem and play unequaled by any other spot in America.

HOLLYWOOD'S PROGRESS REFLECTED

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

BANK CLEARINGS AND BUILDING PERmits are two factors which always bespeak progress and growth of any community. These two factors have proven conclusively that Hollywood has steadily moved ahead, both industrially and commercially, since the breaking of the present year, with each feature setting a hard pace which promises to break all records for the separate departments before the conclusion of the present year.

At the moment, bank clearings are making the pace and indicating a definite upward trend for business in this community, according to officers of the Hollywood Clearing House Association. These officers present figures which show an increase in clearings for February of more than four and a half millions of dollars over the corresponding month in 1925. The total increase, in actual figures, was $4,555,-482.46 and describes an increase each day during the twenty working days of the month, with the excetpion of one, when a decline of $17,-118.17 was recorded.

According to figures provided by R. B. Odell, manager of the clearing house association, the total clearings for the thirteen banks composing the association in February 1925 reached $19,-767,355.72. In the same month this year the total reached was $24,392,838.18. In the past year the association has grown to fifteen members.

Twenty banking days were counted in February this year, the average clearings being $1,-229,641.91 for each day. The average in February 1925 was $985,362.79, or an average daily gain for February this year of $264,279.12.

The biggest day recorded this year was Tuesday the 16th. The best day in February last year was the 24th. On the former day clearings amounted to $1,646,674. This is $406,274.67 better than the best day in February last year, when the record was $1,240,399.73.

Although the Hollywood Clearing House Association has never reached a two-million-dollar day, there have been occasions when that mark was approached. Once that occurred late in 1925 and once early in 1924. On each occasion there was only a small amount between the clearings of the day and the coveted mark. Manager Odell is confident that the record will be established this year, according to his own admission.

Building permits involving more than a million dollars in construction cost were issued in Hollywood during January, showing a slight increase over January the year prior. With only three weeks to report in February, permits ran approximately $675,000, with a number of large construction jobs missing because of the brevity of the month. Since the opening of March each week has shown a decided upward trend, the first week representing permits aggregating $225,560, with the second week running $228,-000.

Another element regarded as one of the important primary indices demonstrating the continued upward climb of Hollywood, especially in population, is the school census, presented by J. B. Monlux, deputy superintendent of Los Angeles public-schools. At the close of the school year in 1925, the enrollment was 12,694, with 495 teachers. This census embraced the sixteen grade, junior and senior high-schools. At the beginning of 1926 the census was 15,530 students, with 525 teachers, an increase of 2,836. In 1925 the University of California Southern Branch in Hollywood enrolled 5,017 students, while at the beginning of this year the number reached 5,721.

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. ¶In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

HOLLYWOOD BOWL TO BECOME MAGNIFICENT GARDEN THEATER.

With grading crews at work, plans are progressing rapidly for the conversion of Hollywood Bowl into a magnificent garden theater and park—an outdoor theatre which, it is believed, will be an outstanding example of a project of this character. Through the appropriation of $100,000 by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, the Hollywood Bowl Association has been enabled to proceed with its contemplated improvement program, and, according to Mrs. J. J. Carter, president of the Bowl Association, an additioinal $200,000 will be raised by public subscription to complete the improvement of the eight-acre area which comprises the bowl proper.

The entire property includes about sixty acres, owned by Los Angeles County, but leased to the Bowl Association for a period of ninety-nine years. The association plans ultimately to convert the entire property into a great county park, with galleries for the fine arts, a children's outdoor theater and other features, but for the present attention will be concentrated on the bowl itself.

The bowl will have a seating capacity for 22,500 people. Encircling the seating area will be a wide promenade, 1,300 feet in length, flanked on both sides by hedges of cedar or cypress. These hedges will separate the promenade from the audience, so that people entering or leaving during the performance will not disturb the audience. The hedges along the promenade will also form a background of green for the bowl proper.

The cross-aisles will be bordered by low hedges, in which will be concealed lights sufficient in number to light the aisles. The west side of the encircling promenade will connect with a pedestrian tunnel leading under the stage, eliminating congestion of traffic at any one point in the bowl. The entrance walk between Highland avenue and the bowl will also be bordered by hedges and shrubbery, with niches for appropriate statuary and other ornamentation. Immediately adjoining the bowl, a large area for the parking of automobiles will be provided.

All grading and the establishment of the permanent seat levels will be completed in time for the Easter sunrise services. Temporary seats will be installed, but immediately after Easter the installation of the permanent seats, which will be of the most comfortable type, will start. The seats and the stage, together with the major part of the planting, will be completed in time for the summer Philharmonic Orchestra concerts, which start early in July.

CULTIVATING CIVIC BEAUTY IN PASADENA

Harry L. Roberts

(MANAGER PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

"IN ALL MY LITTLE JOURNEYS," wrote the late Elbert Hubbard, "never have I found any place to compare in loveliness, beauty and delightfulness to that threshold of Eden, Pasadena."

"Why," marveled John Burroughs, naturalist and writer, "even the sheds are glorified by rose bushes," and he might have added that there are few sheds in Pasadena.

Pasadena is the most beautiful city in the world.

"Europe has nothing to compare with this," said the distinguished diplomat after a motor tour of the city. "I am filled with admiration; indeed, I am somewhat awed."

In view of the fact that similar views have been expressed by thousands of other persons—notables and globe-trotters, as well as more ordinary folk,—there would seem to be some little justification for Pasadena's claim to beauty.

TOWER OF NEW PASADENA CITY HALL AS IT WILL LOOK FROM PLAZA.

A later visitor to the Crown City, Ricardo Edelstein, Persian consul-general at Wiesbaden, Germany, who recently spent several weeks in Southern California while on the last lap of an eighteen months' trip that took him into virtually every country on the globe, asserted that cities, at least. Pasadena is growing, and will continue to grow. The march of progress is proceeding, it will continue to proceed. But Pasadena is determined that it shall not proceed haphazardly. Unplanned and unrestricted growth could readily mar, if not destroy, the beauty that is Pasadena's boast. Pasadena must grow according to a predetermined and carefully developed plan. The city's beauty must not only be preserved, but steadily enhanced.

Of this beauty, Pasadena naturally is proud. She guards it zealously. Moreover, she strives constantly to enhance it.

Therefore, Pasadena has caused to be prepared a city plan—a comprehensive plan that looks into the future, visualizes the growth that will take place, and prepares for it. The plan was conceived and worked out by Bennett, Parsons & Frost, consulting architects and city planning experts of Chicago, who have prepared and executed city plans for Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, Buffalo, Saint Paul, Phoenix and many other cities. It contemplates the creating of new arteries of traffic, the widening and extending of existing thoroughfares, abolishment of grade railroad crossings, creating of new parks and beautifying of parks already in existence, construction of new public buildings, and many other improvements, including certain restrictions, such as the limiting of the number of persons who may reside within a given area.

One of the major projects in this city plan is the building of a new civic center, comprising three main structures—a city hall, auditorium and library—each a unit of the central plan, and each harmonizing with the other two and with its surroundings. The auditorium and library are to be situated at the two ends of Garfield avenue, five blocks apart, with the city hall between them, occupying a full block. The city hall is to be built around a patio, and will face a large, landscaped plaza. From the plaza in front of the city hall, the view to either side along Garfield avenue will be closed by one of the other two civic center buildings, the library or the auditorium. Completion of the project involves the widening and extending of two streets.

Work on the civic center project is now well under way. The library building is nearing completion, and will be ready for occupancy about September 1. Construction of the city hall began right after the first of the year. The schedule of construction calls for completion of the building March 1 of next year. Work on the auditorium has not yet started. The entire project is to cost in the neighborhood of $5,000,000.

Several other buildings, including the new American Legion building, recently occupied, and the Federal building and Board of Education building, as well as the Young Men's Christian Association building, are situated in the area to be occupied by the civic center buildings, and are to harmonize with the general scheme. They are not included in the $5,000,000 estimate of the cost of the project, however.

THE LIBRARY.

High architectural and artistic merit, unique securing of fine and subtle atmospheric effects, and the use of exceptional forethought in the planning for communication, supervision and control, mark the plans for the public library. Myron Hunt, Pasadena, who designed the Henry E. Huntington Library building and other notable structures, was the architect.

In keeping with the general architecture adopted in the civic center as a whole, the library is of the Mediterranean style. The general scheme centers about a spacious courtyard, which is cut off from observation from the street by a wall into which five artistic entrances are sunk. A roofed row of columns run about the border of the patio. All departments of the library, including the circulating department, reading rooms and children's section, open upon the courtyard.

The structure is primarily of one story, but in one section three stories are introduced for the benefit of artistic effect and practical utility. The additional floors do not rise beyond the height of the main structure, which is the circulating department, housed in a lofty room 32 feet high and 180 feet long.

In the northwest corner of the patio is an auditorium, providing all requirements for the display of small, artistic exhibitions or the holding of meetings. Although a component part of the library as a whole, the auditorium possesses the additional advantage of having direct outside contact, and functions held there need not disturb the work in the building proper.

Great attention has been paid to the lighting of the entire building. The main room is lighted from the south, while the auditorium is lighted from above to permit the securing of best effects in the hanging of art works. The children's department is like a diminutive church, and the lighting effects will not fall from the level of the eyes, but will find angled overhead entrance which will tend to diffuse the glare of the sunshine.

Future additions to the building may be made without interfering in any respect with the general outline of the structure.

THE CITY HALL.

A tower, rising 206 feet above the sidewalk level, with observation lookouts at various levels, is the dominating feature, not only of the city hall, but of the entire civic center. The floor line of the topmost lookout will be above the height limit allowed for other buildings, permitting an unobstructed view of the city and surroundings.

The entire building will measure 350 feet by 278 feet. The main part of the building is to be three stories in height, and disposed as a belt border around a large patio. The entrance to the building is really an entrance to the patio, and from the patio one proceeds to the desired department directly. This makes the interior court an integral part of the plan, since every one entering the building passes through the court.

The patio is to be treated as a rich garden, with trees to give shade and flowers to give color. Around the court will be open-air arcades, which tie the court into the building proper.

The style of the tower is borrowed from the Renaissance period of Italian and Southern French architecture. It is planned to establish a war memorial museum in the top of the tower.

A colonnade will connect the wings of the structure, with a walk along the top, permitting one to proceed from the upper floors of one wing to the upper floors of another without descending to the ground level. Bakewell & Brown, San Francisco, were architects for the city hall.

THE AUDITORIUM.

The exact type of auditorium to be built has not yet been definitely decided. Preliminary plans prepared by Bergstrom, Bennett & Haskell, Pasadena architects, provide for a theatre-type hall to seat 3,000 persons and a flat-floor hall, comprising 15,000 square feet, for the holding of exhibitions and banquets. A small lecture, concert and social hall also is provided with a seating capacity of 500. The flat-floor section would seat 2,000 persons in folding chairs or 1,200 persons at a dinner. It is possible that the plans for the flat-floor hall will be altered to provide for a room with a floor space of 25,000 square feet.
